Ontario Troops Capture Many Prisoners

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 20 (CP Cable) — Canadian troops completed their mop-up of the Caen factory area and the eastern outskirts of the city yesterday after their march down the east bank of the Orne river Tuesday, protecting the right flank of British armored forces in the British drive to the southeast.

The Canadians took several hundred prisoners in their advance along a corridor of the British 2nd Army's attack which smashed a breach in the German positions east of the Orne.

Ontario troops alone captured hundreds of Germans when they beat off a counter-attack Tuesday night on their positions east of the wrecked factory area of Colombelles, three miles northeast of the big Orne river port.

Canadian casualties in the operation, in which they cleaned out an area five miles long and overcame enemy infantry pockets, were comparatively light.

Early yesterday Western troops on the Orne river in front of Caen patrolled unopposed to a village east of the city and Ontario infantry later moved in to occupy the positions.

Started In Morning

With French-speaking and Maritime infantry in the lead, the Canadians started their march down the east bank of the Orne about 8 a.m. Tuesday after a devastating air bombardment blasted enemy infantry positions in front of them.

The air was thick with smoke and dust from the bombing and an artillery barrage in which Canadian as well as British guns fired, beat a path in front of the advancing troops.

They filed southward several hundred yards with little trouble before the Germans recovered from the bombing, part of which had been directed at enemy defences on the river bank.

Heavy fire from enemy machine-guns and mortars was turned on the French-speaking troops as they moved towards a chateau in the Colombelles area around which the Germans had built a strong position.

Maritime troops worked their way around to the west and Ontario infantry to the east before the position could be overcome. German defenders, shaken by the bombing, were taken prisoner in little groups.

The Canadians filtered into Vaucelles from the north, worked through woods and through the village of Mondeville, immediately east of Vaucelles on the Caen--Vimont highway, while one area after another in this factory zone was cleared of Germans.

Mounties Probe Quebec Speech

OTTAWA, July .0 — (CP). — Justice Minister St. Laurent said to-day in the Commons that Royal Canadian Mounted Police were investigating the accuracy of a report which quoted Jacques Sauriol, Montreal newspaperman, as having criticized English soldiers at a political rally. Mr. St. Laurent said if the report was found to be true "appropriate action will be taken."

Dr. H. A. Bruce (PC-Toronto Parkdale) quoted a report which quoted Sauriol as having told a political rally on July 9 that "English soldiers were the rottenest on earth" and that Canadian soldiers were pressed into service to fight Britain's battles.

Mr. St. Laurent said the report of the meeting had been drawn to his attention and that he had immediately instructed the R.C.M.P. to investigate its accuracy. They had informed him the investigation had started.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC-York Sunbury) interjected: "If it is true will you lock him up?"

Mr. St. Laurent then said that appropriate action would be taken.

Hitler Burned And Bruised In Unsuccessful Attempt On His Life; Officers Hurt

Three Military Leaders Seriously Injured While Seven Others Escape, Hitler After Attack Able To See Mussolini

LONDON, July 20—(CP).—Berlin announced that Adolf Hitler was burned and bruised in an unsuccessful bombing attempt on his life today. Three of Hitler's military leaders were seriously injured, while his chief military advisor, Col.-Gen. Alfred Jodl, was less seriously hurt along with five other general and two admirals.

(The BBC said Hitler also suffered a brain concussion, and said this explained a 14-hour break overnight in telephone communications between Berlin and Stockholm).

The broadcast announcement did not give the scene of the attack, but it obviously took place while Hitler was surrounded by high members of the military staff — perhaps at Hitler's headquarters.

The announcement came 16 hours after Tokyo's announcement of the fall of Premier Hideki Tojo, and Berlin said Hitler after the attack received Benito Mussolini, third member of the ill-starred trio who led the Axis into war.

Chief Aid.

Among the seriously injured, Berlin said, was Lt.-Gen. Schmundt, chief of the German Army's personnel department and chief military aide de camp to Hitler for several years.

Two lieutenant-colonels named Brandt and Borgmann, and a "collaborator" named Berger also were listed as seriously injured.

Slightly injured were these:

Generals Jodl, Hitler's personal military aide; Karl Bodenschatz, aide to Hitler; Guenther Korten, chief of staff of the German air force; Buhle, Heusinger and Walter Scherff.

Admirals Voss and Von Putkammer.

A source in London with close European connections said the incident probably occurred at Breda, Holland, reported to be the headquarters of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel.

This same source, who cannot be identified by name, said the critical question of reserves for the German armies on three fronts had provoked a split between Rommel and Field-Marshal Gen. Guenther von Kluge, commander of the forces in Normandy. He speculated that the incident might have resulted from a general division of the German staff, resulting in a brawl.

Reichmarshal Herman Goering at once went to Hitler upon learning of what happened, the Berlin broadcast added.

The announcement listed as slightly injured the following generals: Alfred Jodl, Hitler's chief military adviser; Korten Buhle, Bodenschatz, Heusinger and Scherff. Admirals Voss and Von Putkammer also were injured.

Seriously Injured

Schmudt was chief military adjutant to Hitler in the days of Munich and had since remained close to the Fuehrer. He was at the Brenner Pass conference of Hitler and Benito Mussolini March 18, 1940, which preceded Italy's declaration of war upon the Allies.

"The Fuehrer himself, besides light burns and bruises sustained no injuries," the announcement from Berlin said. "He had immediately taken up his routine work afterwards and, as it had been planned, received the Duce (Mussolini) for a lengthy discussion."

Tank Battles Raging East Of Caen

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 20.—(AP).—British armor slashing forward in several directions has cut into good tank fighting country on a broad frint five miles southeast of Caen and the Germans have been unable to stabilize their lines in the third day of the offensive despite their best efforts, headquarters announced today.

Heavy fighting was raging, however, around a German anti-tank screen in the Emieville-Frenouville area six miles southeast of Caen.

The British forces were reported to have swept through the railway station just outside Troarn, eight miles east of Caen.

The advance of British and Canadians of the British 2nd Army carried into the streets of Bourguebus, five miles southeast of Caen, and expanded both east and west of the town.

The armored drive led by Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard Nugent (Rory) O'Connor—who was captured in the African desert in 1941, but escaped from an Italian prison camp—jabbed into battered German positions after carving out a four-mile wide spearhead south from the vicinity of Troarn, east of Caen.

Quiet On American Front

Comparative quiet was registered on the American front except for local advances between St. Lo and Periers which took three villages, headquarters announced. A dispatch from Associated Press War Correspondent Hal Boyle said American patrols crossed the Ay River in the coastal sector and other forces clashed with Germans entrenched in Lessay, western hinge of the Nazi line.

In addition to the great armored push in the plain east and south of Caen, General Montgomery's troops, turning south from cleaned-up Faubourg De Vaucelles, immediately below Caen, drove south for two and three miles, capturing Ifs and Cormelles south of the Orne River, thereby gaining unrestricted use of the port of Caen.

Heavy armored battles were raging in an arc to Troarn, eight miles to the east and north. Clashes also took place between the Odon and Orne Rivers and on the road southwest to Villors-Bocage. The Germans still held Noyers on the Villers-Bocage road, but the British

The headquarters comunique said the drive on Troarn reached a railway half a mile outside the town. The Germans were reported offering their heaviest opposition on the outskirts of Troarn. The enemy in that vicinity was said to have thrown a large anti-tank screen across the road south to Vimont.

Landing-Craft Guns Used

Secret Weapon Aids New Allied Offensive

LONDON, July 20 — (CP Cable) — Announcement in last night's comunique No. 88 from Supreme Allied headquarters that landing-craft guns are taking a hand in the current British Canadian offensive on the Caen plain removes from the secret list a weapon navy men credit with playing a "terrific part" in the Allied invasion of France.

No reports of their activities in current fighting have reached here but it is assumed from the communique saying they are gunning enemy positions that as on D-day they are lying close to shore hammering Nazi strongpoints.

That's what they're built for.

Of the same awkward shape and size as the now-familiar landing craft which ferry ashore troops and artillery, the L.C.G.S. concentrate on guns. They have so many carried fore and aft that it is unofficially estimated their fire-power is equal to that of a modern heavy destroyer.

Great Battle Of Tanks Near Troarn

German Divisions Are Fighting With Fanatical Fury

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent.

ON THE CAEN FRONT, Normandy, July 20 — (AP) — Canadian troops striking southward from the ruins of Fauburg de Vaucelles have captured Fleury Sur Arne and stormed ahead to take Hill 67—the crest of which is dominated by the bitterly-defended Nazi stronghold of Maltot, lying on the far side of the Orne.

A great battle of tanks and troops was roaring around the outskirts of Troarn, seven miles due east of Caen.

At least nine more towns and villages have fallen in the last 24 hours as hard-fighting British and Canadian troops deepen and widen their corridor east of the Orne River.

Newly-fallen towns seized in the eastern salient include Frenouville, Cagny, Le Poirier, Fours, Bras, Hubert and Folie.

Heavy Fighting.

South-east of Fleury Sur Orne, now in Canadian hands, heavy fighting is going on in the streets of Bourgebus.

Field-Marshal Rommel is throwing in armor on an increasing scale with upwards of 30 Nazi tiger tanks impeding a British advance in the thickly-wooded country between Cagny and Troarn. There is a bristling screen of anti-tank guns ringing the Nazi-held ton of Vimont.

A remnant of 5½ German divisions is fighting with fanatical fury in an attempt to smother Lt.-Gen. Dempsey's powerhouse offensive toward open tank country to the south-east.

In the flatter, more open apple-orchard country west of the Orne, the Germans have turned every crossroads village into a hornets' nest of anti-tank guns.

"It is a battlefield for infantry supported by tanks, rather than for tanks supported by infantry," a British staff officer said.

"Tanks alone can blast out the German strongpoints, but it takes infantry to hold and consolidate gains.

"German oposition in the last 24 hours has been extremely strong since we passed through the crust broken by our air power."

The British-Canadian drive has taken 1,500 prisoners, it was announced.

West of Caen in the Tilly-Evrecy sector, the Germans were under pressure and withdrew from 1,000 yards to a mile on al ine from north of the St. Germain sector to Noyers. The British now firmly control both Hottot and Vendes.

A high British officer said the campaign was going forward in "measured advances."

All reports indicated, however, that Rommel was being bled white and, as General Montgomery said yesterday, it remains to be seen how many more jolts the enemy can absorb and still go on.

old British-Canadian offensive now is over but another big effort obviously is still to come.

Although a considerable number of German prisoners has been taken, including more than 1,200 in Faubourg De Vaucelles, Rommel apparently has been able to save the main body of his troops and tanks despite the break-through.

In the American sector the Germans pounded St. Lo with artillery stationed in heigths south of the town but made no counter-attacks to attempt to retake it. The villages captured on the American front were La Barde, Thiebots and L'Ange, engulfed in a half-mile advance on a mile front west of Remilly Sur Lozon.

An overcast dropped to only 600 feet over the battle area yesterday, limiting air support to occasional patrols, and not allowing the Air Forces to get at Rommel's reserves which are being shifted to meet the developing threats.

Guam Levelled For 15 Days

PEARL HARBOR, July 20.—(AP).— Battleships, thundering for four straight days at Guam—one of the sectors so gravely worrying Japan's Emperor that the Tojo cabinet resigned—have carried the unprecedented assault into the "barrage" phase.

The term, often applied to screen operations for landing troops, was used for the first time by Admiral Nimitz in his reports on 15 straight days of bombing and shelling the former U.S. outpost in the Marianas.

The fiery attack on Guam already has more than tripled the continuity of the attacks which preceded the invasion of Saipan, 125 miles to the north.

From the southwest Pacific, General MacArthur to-day reported a growing bag of Japanese dead and captured while trying unsuccessfully to break out of a British New Guinea trap west of Wewak.

Having failed frontally, the Japanese now are attempting infiltration inland through foothills of the Torriceli mountains on the right flank, hopeful of finding a way out for 45,000 men.

Coldwell Claims Misquoted

OTTAWA, July 20 — (CP). — A political altercation in Lethbridge Alta., on Tuesday night in which the word "liar" was houted and a Social Credit candidate in the forthcoming Alberta election was ejected had repercussions yesterday in the Capital.

It all started at a meeting addressed by M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. Leader. He was reported to have told a Lethbridge meeting that Norman Jaques, Social Credit member of Parliament for Wetaskiwin, had said in the Commons that Canadian finance was controlled by Jews.

Mr. Coldwell, however, in a telegram yesterday to The Canadian Press Otawa Bureau said he had been misquoted. What he said, he added, was that Mr. Jaques "quoted the protocols of Zion in Parliament to support his assertion international finance was controlled by Jews who were plotting to control the world."

When Mr. Coldwell made his statement at Lethbridge, J. C. Landeryou, Social Credit candidate for Lethbridge, said that if the C.CF Leader was saying the Social Credit Party was against the Jews he was a "liar." Mr. Landeryou as carried bodily from the meeting when he refused to apologize.

(In a statement issued at Calgary last night Mr. Landeryou said he was "forcibly ejected" from the meeting by at least four men. It added that he does not intend to take any legal action in connection with the "assault," and he "considered the matter dropped.")

Tojo presented the collective resignation of his Government to Emperor Hirohito after "having recognized the fact that it was most appropriate to carry out a total resignation," said a Domei News Agency wireless despatch reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Japanese announcement said: "It has been decided to strengthen the Cabinet by a wider selection of the personnel.

"By utilizing all means available, the present Cabinet was not able to achieve its objective," the statement said.

Cabinet Change Reveals Japs In Peril

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Whatever other implications of the Japanese Cabinet upheaval there may be, one thing stands out crystal clear. It represents recognition of the extreme peril in which the empire stands.

Beyond that we cannot go with certainy until we learn the complexon of the new cabinet. We shouldn't rush to conclusions.

If the militarists are returned to power—as seems quite possible—it will mean intensifcation of the war effort to escape the defeat which is bearing down on them from across the Pacific like a hurricane.

In the contingency of a moderate government being formed, shorn of the extreme military element which ex-Premier Tojo represents (and news dispatches say this isn't likely), it will mean that Nippon has decided to purge itself on the outward signs of barbaric aggression in an attempt to soften the Allied peace demands.

Japan, like Germany, knows without the shadow of a doubt that she is beaten. The only question remaining in her mind is how much she can salvage from the wreckage. The same is true of Hitlerdom. These two comrades in murder and pillage are walking the last mile together.

It's difficult to escape the thought that the Tokyo government crisis is associated with the disaster which is piling up on Herr Hitler. When Japan committed her savage treachery at Pearl Harbor she was hitching her war chariot to Hitler's blazing star. She gambled that he would win the European conflict, and thereby ensure a victory for the Mikado. She knew that if Hitler lost, she would lose. And the Fuehrer, for his part, placed much dependence on the amount of Allied striking power which Japan would absorb.

The Prussian militarists fully recognise their defeat. A similar stage has been reached in Japan, though Nippon presumably is capable of standing off collapse longer than is Germany.

However, whether the militarists or the moderates control the new Japanese government, we must figure on having to bring Japan to terms the hard way. Nippon's war resources are badly battered, and she is incapable of repairing the damage, but while she is defintely on the defensive she is able to offer fierce resistance.

Text Of Broadcast

"A bomb attempt was made on the Fuehrer's life today. During the attempt, Lt.-Gen. Schmumdt and Lt.-Col. Brandt and Lt.-Col. Borgmann and Collaborator Berger, who were in Hitler's company, were injured seriously."

Only yesterday, the Russian Press published a statement by the captured commander of the 41st German Army Tank Corps, Lt.-Gen. Edmund Hofmeister, saying there was grave dissent in ranks of the German high command, with old generals dissatisfied with Hitler's strategy in refusing to retreat.

It was the second time, at least, during the war that Hitler narrowly missed death.

The first time was on Nov. 8, 1939, when a bomb exploded in the Munich beer hall just after the Fuehrer had left celebration marking his ill-fated Putsch of 1923.

Place Not Identified

The Berlin broadcasts did not immediately name the time or place of the bombing attempt. Hitler has been reported spending a great deal of his time on his Eyrie mountaintop at Berchtesgaden. The captured General Hofmeister said it was there that Hitler recently held a conference of 150 generals and admirals to outline his strategy. The Hofmeister statement, as published in Moscow, described Hitler then as of swollen face, of low and jumbled voice.

Helmuth Hirsch, a 21-year-old Jew, was arrested Dec. 20, 1936, however, on what informed persons in Berlin at the time said were charges of carrying explosives for the purpose of making an attempt on the life of a high German personnage. Berlin dispatches at the time said his intended victim may have been Hitler.

Hirsch was executed despite intercession on his behalf by the United States government. Hirsch was a naturalized U.S. citizen, who was arrested at Berlin upon his arrival from Prague.

Equipment Left

The 5th Army gained three to four miles and captured Cearido, San Appiano, Vico D'Elsa, Poppiano, Linari and San Donato.

A five-mile gain was made beyond Castellina. Advance elements were less than three miles south of the important road junction of Astelfiorentina.

Remnants of the enemy rearguards were being mopped up south of the Arno river in the 5th Army's central sector and an enemy patrol was driven back from Pontedera.

An Allied spokesman said German prisoners from that area declared "they were bewildered completely by the sudden break-through and said numerous isolated units had been wiped out."

was just another development in the war which shortly may see activity from the Finnish gulf to the lands just north of the Danube.

Morale Cracking

Meanwhile the Russian press reported signs of cracking German morale.

Another group of four to five divisions surrounded east of Lwow at Brody was reported surrendering by the hundreds. Red Army men were rapidly rounding them up, but were taking steps for their complete extermination if any should folow Hitler's orders to die before giving up an inch of territory.

Dispatches said Italians, French and Yugoslavs had been liberated from prison camps where the Germans had interned them for fear that they would desert.

The Germans obviously had lost connections with several groups when the Red Army smashed the Prince Eugene line east of Lwow, and the fighting, while often unusually violent, apparently had little unity of direction from the German side.

"The Red Army offensive," commented the Moscow News, "which in number of troops, material and organization surpasses anything heretofore, including the offensive at the Kursk bulge, is proceeding so rapidly that the Germans have no chance to make use of even some splendid natural defence lines."

Front dispatches said Red Army tanks and riflemen, after capturing Sokal, 45 miles north of Lwow, and bridging the Bug, had reached for the first time Polish territory which had been the victim of Nazi overlordship for nearly five years.

Germans Pocketed Up.

Last reports said that barely eight miles northeast of Lwow the Red Army had four to five German divisions completely pocketed in the rear at Brody.

Premier Stalin's high command reported gains in many sectors of the 600-mile front, along which the prized objectives of Kaunas, Daugavpils (Dvinsk) and Brest Litovsk were nearly within the Red Army's grasp.

Battle-scarred Lwow, hub of six important rail lines and in Soviet hands the last time in 1941, appeared certain to be lost by the reeling German defenders, who fell back over 13 miles in the last 24 hours. The gateway city to central Europe, it is expected to be easily enveloped if the Germans choose to make a house-to-house fight.

Maslennikov's forces liberated 700 villages and towns in the first two days of their drive. In all, the seven Russian armies took 1,237 towns and villages.

The latest Russian communique disclosed that Marshal Ivan S. Koney's 1st Ukraine Army crossed the Bug River on a front of almost 10 miles north and south of Sokal on the fourth day of its offensive.

Konev's troops captured Prusinov, 10 miles west of Krystynopo on the Bug river border, as well as Krystynopol and Sokal. Also taken were Boratyn, five miles west of Sokal, and Ostrov, eight miles southwest of Sokal.

In a frontal attack on Lwow one Russian column captured Remenov, less than nine miles to the northeast, and another unit took Olshanitsa, 28 miles directly east of the city. Derevnya, 21 miles north, and mostly Velikie, 28 miles north, fell to Soviet troops breaking into the Polish plains behind the city.

The 21st German General to be taken prisoner since the greatest Russian attacks in history were unleashed 26 days ago was captured by Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky's forces in the Lithuanian salient west of the Niemen river. He was identified as Lt.-Gen. Ochsner, commander of the 31st Infantry division.

Shelled During Night

They dug in during the night and although subjected to the usual German mortar and shell fire strengthened their positions.

There was fighting too at Cormelles yesterday, Canadian staff officers said, but the area was cleared by Western and Ontario units and the Canadians spread over the crop country to the south, astride the road leading to Falaise.

(Western infantry battalions disclosed previously as fighting in France include the Royal Winnipeg Rifles, the Regina Rifles and the Canadian Scottish of Victoria, B.C. Ontario units include the Queen's Own Rifles of Canada, Toronto, the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders of Cornwall, Ont., the Highland Light Infantry of Galt, Ont., and the Cameron Highlanders of Ottawa.)

The Germans are making a stand in every little hamlet in this rolling country and it is not as good a district for tanks as would appear from maps.

Canadian engineers performed daring feats in building bridges over the Orne. They worked throughout Tuesday night putting up Bailey bridges over the river and were sniped at and mortared a good deal of the time.

At one stage enemy fire was so bad the commander of the Canadian forces here told the commander of the engineers that he could stop work until daylight if he wanted to when the infantry would wipe out the snipers and the mortar nests.

The engineer chief, however, said: "No thanks. If we can't build bridges under fire we won't build them at all."

The work went on and the vital bridges were completed.

Bouchard Denies Speech Was An Insult

OTTAWA, July 20—Liberal Senator T. D. Bouchard, dismissed as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Commission by Premier Adelard Godbout in retaliation for his June 21 speech, Wednesday in sharp reply to Senate critics declared he was vilified outside the Chamber and that he would answer outside the House.

The Senator, who drew down the wrath of his former leader in the Quebec Government and other spokesmen of the official life in Quebc Province, claimed in his now famous maiden speech in the Red Chamber that French secessionists were seeking to set up an independent French Catholic State in Canada and that the Jacques Cartier Order was active in this objective. He denied his statement was an insult to the Province of Quebec.

Today, in serving notice that he had not been silenced, the former Godbout Minister and mayor of St Hyacinthe since 1917, declared that his national family was not bounded by race, but is a "Canadian family composed of French-Canadians and all other Canadians; and when I am speaking to the Senate I am speaking to my brothers."

Common Textbook

Senator Bouchard's reply came just as the Senate in division approved a motion by Senator L. David, a fellow-Liberal from Quebec, urging the appointment of a committee of impartial historians at the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial conference, to prepare a common history textbook for the Canadian schools.

Senator David, in scoring the Bouchard speech said:

"Even if supposing there should be in Quebec some who are anti-British, should we be surprised? In every part of the Empire, in every Dominion you will find some one somewhere who may be anti-British.

"Should all French-Candians be condemned because a certain nummer of them might be anti-British? Are we," he asked, "to judge the majority in other Provinces by certain speeches of certain men any more than in the Province of Quebec."

Refers to Fanaticism

He said he had been sorry when Senator Bouchard launched an attack that gave the impression in other Provinces that Quebec was disloyal. 'He (Senator Bouchard) knows, as we all know, that the sole and only capital certain men have to achieve their personal goal, or to attain their political purposes, is fanaticism, chauvinism and prejudice.

"Why not act our roles as we do in the family," suggested Senator David. "Because a son is unworthy we have not the right to insult the mother. I have been criticized in Quebec for telling truths which I thought were necessary to my patriots, but outside the family of Quebec I have and always will defend Quebec."

In His Own Home

Senator Bouchard immediately rose. "I want to protest these words," he said. "After the speech I made in this House, I was vilified outside this House, and I will answer outside this House. But at the moment I want to say that when a French-Canadian is speaking in the Senate he is speaking in his own home.

"For French-Canadians, as for all other Canadians, our country extends from the Atlantic to the Pacific, from the 49th Parallel to the North Pole. I am in my own home when I am in the Senate, and I do not think I insulted my national mother."

Earlier in today's session Senator Sir Thomas Chapais (L., Quebec) had suggested preparation of a uniform textbook would be almost impossible and would not be desirable.

Senator David said nothing was impossible when men of good-will tried to accomplish it. A uniform textbook could be used as a basis for history instruction and could be supplemented by other works particularly pertaining to each Province.

Senator Chapais said a uniform textbook was not desirable.

"Uniformity is adverse to progress," he said. "It is the law of the closed door. It stems all efforts toward improvement. It lulls the incentive to achievement."

The preparation of a uniform textbook which would be generally acceptable was at the outset doomed to failure. A satisfactory division between the widely varying histories of the different Provincs was an almost impossible task.

Uniformity was not to be found in the history of any country.

One For Each Province

Senator Chapais suggested one good textbook for each Province, with special attention to matters of particular inteerst to that Province but prepared impartially.

Some speakers who had supported the resolution had used isolated quotations from textbooks to illustrate the unfairness of existing histories, but such extracts did not always give the true and complete picture.

Senator L. M. Gouin (L., Quebec) said while steps should be taken to create real Canadian patriotism it had become apparent there was a wide divergence of opinion on the proposal for a uniform textbook. It was necessary to agree on basic principles of history to prepare such a work, but personal interpretation of the author would be necessary in some controversial matters. A uniform book which was not controversial in any sense might be extremely dull.

Police Investigate

Arrested in a car at the entrance to Nicholls Oval at 3 o'clock this morning by Constable Gordon Trennum, Harold Scholer appeared before Vincent Eastwood, justice of the peace, in police court on a charge of vagrancy and was remanded until Friday morning without plea.

It was intimated that the remand was asked for in order to give the police a chance to make some further investigation into the matter.

This was the only case on the docket, with a quiet night reported by the police department.

Lightning Fires Implements And Barn Gilmour Church Tower Slightly Damaged

Lightning struck the tower of Gilmour Memorial Church on the Chemong Road last night, ripping off part of the wood finish and cracking one corner, according to one report this morning from Smith. Apparently the damage was slight.

Sid Tully of the third line of Smith lost his implement shed, most of his farm machinery and three loads of hay that had been stored in the loft. The same lighting put the telephone line out of commission, and Mr. Tully was left without means of communicating to friends his need of help.

"The shed seemed to be all on fire just a few minutes after a burst of lightning that seemed dangerously close to us," Mrs. Tully told the Examiner this morning. "As I looked out the window shortly afterward, the shed was in flames. Probably the lightning set fire to three loads of hay that were stored in the loft. We lost all the implements except those that were being used. The mower, hay rake and a wagon escaped the fire because they were not in the shed, but all the other machines were destroyed. There was nothing much we could do, as the telephone line was put out of order by the storm, and we were helpless."

Fuses Blown

R. L. Dobbin, manager of the Utilities Commission, reported some damage from the most luminous, persistent electrical storms of the summer with prolonged thundering.

Clouds had been straying around the city's overhead fringes all day, and along about bed-time they joined forces and turned on everything, rain, lightning, thunder, booming and crackling over the city for nearly an hour. That sense of proximity was generally felt over a wide expanse of countryside. One man motoring from Toronto said some of the lightning seemed to break so close to his car that it felt as if it were lifted off the pavement.

Post-War Plans Of Liberals Far-Reaching

OTTAWA, June 20—The Liberal party never had a more far-reaching program to present and it alone can form a strong and effective government, Senator W. McL. Robertson, president of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, said here tonight in a broadcast over a national network.

Referring to an address on family allowances by Mrs. Cora T. Casselman, Liberal member of the House of Commons for Edmonton East, who preceded him on the program, Senator Robertson emphasized that family allowances are but one phase of a "vast program of social security—a program calculated to bring new hope and opportunity to millions of people."

"If you will take the time and trouble for even the most casual study of the program of the Liberal party, there will not be the slightest doubt as to your enthusiasm," Senator Robertson asserted.

Attention to War

Members of the Mackenzie King Government, the senator said, must necessarily give their undivided attention to the war effort and on behalf of the Liberal party appealed to people of liberal thought to take on "without a moment's delay" the task of organizing for the return of a Liberal government in the next election.

"We of Liberal thought belong to the greatest political organization this country has ever produced" he stated. "The world of the future is sorely in need of liberal leadership. Canada under the leadership of Mr. King, one of the world's greatest Liberals may well exert a tremendous influence on the whole future of mankind."

Senator Robertson reminded his nation-wide audience that in ten years Canada's national income has risen from three billion to nine billion dollars per year and claimed that a a result of "direct administrative action of the government of Mackenzie King" this national income has been distributed "on the fairest basis ever achieved in any democratic country."

The object of the Liberal party, he said, is to maintain the national income in the post-war period at the highest possible level and to distribute it on as fair a basis as it has been during the war years.

"It must be done, if there is to be in this country the happiness and prosperity for which the people are fighting and working," he asserted.

Senator Robertson contended that chances of Canada maintaining a high national income depends upon the establishment of an entirely new basis of international trade. This is more likely to be accomplished by a government under the leadership of Prime Minister Mackenzie King, than by any of the other parties.

Definite Proposals

He also argued that the definite proposals the Liberal Government has placed before Parliament and the success which has attended the government's efforts in distributing income resulting from the war, gives ample evidence of its intention and ability to continue this policy in the future.

After stating that the size of Canada's income depends on the size of her export trade, Senator Robertson told the people of Canada they should resolve to send to the peace table the man most likely to exercise the greatest possible influence in shaping policies designed to develop international trade.

"I do not think that any clear thinking man or woman can but realize that the man who, by experience and prestige is best suited for this all-important task is the Prime Minister of this country, Mr. King," he stated. "It should be our first objective to see that he goes to this conference supported by the majority of the people of Canada."

Churchill To Review War Situation Aug. 2

LONDON, July 20—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill will deliver a statement to the House of Commons on the war situation Aug. 2, Foreign Secretary Eden told the House today. Mr. Eden announced that the House of Commons probably would adjourn Aug. 3 until Sept. 26, but said that if necessary its members would be recalled.

Flattened Crops Left In Wake Of Severe Storm

By The Canadian Press

Property damage was caused by a severe electrical storm which swept Ontario last night. The storm was most severe in the Toronto district and east as far as Northumberland county, about 80 miles from Toronto. There were no reports of deaths or injury.

In Toronto a violent wind accompanying the rain storm blew down trees which blocked roads and crashed through rooftops in some sections. Street car and motor car traffic was tied up and several power lines were snapped.

Damage was caused by lightning around Peterborough. A barn in Smith township was struck by lightning, and the tower of Gilmour Memorial Baptist church, four miles from Peterborough, was damaged.

Big Hailstones.

Near Campbellford crops were levelled by a cloudburst which brought hailstones as big as marbles, and a barn containing a pair of horses, several calves and the season's hay crop burned in Seymour township.

The city hall tower at Stratford was damaged and at Sebringville, near Stratford, one house was severely damaged by lightning. Grain was beaten to the ground in this district but crop damage was not serious.

The storm was also felt at North Bay, with hail and rain, but little damage was reported in the northern area.

Farmers in the Kingston district said the rain was "worth a million dollars," since all crops needed the moisture badly. No property damage was reported.

At Guelph a large Hydro transformer was struck by lightning causing interruption in power services for several hours. Damage to crops throughout the district was also reported as well as minor damage to homes.

Horticultural Society Reports 298 Members

With 298 members, an increase of 100 per cent over last year, the Horticultural Society has attained its objective, W. C. Wilks, secretary, commented to the Examiner today.

"We realize that a city of this size should have 500 members, but there is always another year. Mrs. G. K. Fraser as president this year has given the Society the impulse to rise to what it ought to be. Harry Beal, chairman of the membership committee, gave splendid leadership, and continues to be as ardent a worker for the society as in many other years. His own effort resulted in seventy-five memberships, and Dr. A. J. Madill accounted for fifty-one. The entire executive deserves much credit for their co-operation and support.

The first judging of Rock Gardens has already taken place and plans have been laid for the judging of the increased number of lawns and gardens and victory gardens. The Society has been invited by the administration of the Wartime Housing Company to sponsor another competition among the Wartime Housing areas. All these competitions will be judged twice during the season on a special scale of points compiled by the lawn and garden committee. The local military training centre has been supplied with floral urns and boxes of annual plants for use throughout the grounds. The beds of flowering shrubs at the Smith street bridge have been cleaned and pruned. Work on the forthcoming show still continues. Admission tickets are now on sale and may be obtained from any member of the executive or from any member of the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary. The entire proceeds will be devoted to the work of the Women's Auxiliary. There are 14 door prizes.

Budget Changes In Profits Tax Are Approved

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 20 — (CP) — Budget changes in the Income and Excess Profits Tax Acts proved sticklers in the House of Commons yesterday but after prolonged discussion were approved.

Progressive Conservative members fought hard for more generous treatment of the taxpayers and more liberal provision for tax concessions on funds invested in prospecting for minerals, but Finance Minister Ilsley and Douglas Abbott, his parliamentary assistant, stood firm on the proposals as outlined in the budget speech.

The change proposed to restrict the exemption granted corporations for charitable donations came under fire from Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC—York—Sunbury) and T. L. Church (PC—Toronto—Broadview) but Mr. Ilsley said it was necessary because donations, since the advent of the Excess Profits Tax Act, were becoming excessive.

Canvassers making special drives for worthy projects were using the argument that if a Company did not give them money the government would get it under the 100 per cent. Excess Profits Tax rate.

In effect the exemption allowed taxpayers to divert money which would otherwise go to the government to worthy projects of their own choice. There was no way of obtaining equitable distribution of such projects as municipal auditoriums and skating rinks across the country.

"I did not feel I could just sit still and see millions upon millions of dollars being diverted from what otherwise would have been the public treasury without taking a reasonable step for the protection of the revenues," Mr. Ilsley said.

This was in answer to Mr. Hanson's criticism of the retroactive feature of the proposal, which extends back to Feb. 1. Mr. Ilsley said it was necessary to act promptly, otherwise drives for funds would have speeded up, so he announced he would relate to all donatons after Feb. 1.

Had Desired Effect

The announcement, he said, had the desired effect. He considerd the proposal sufficiently generous since it placed all corporations on the same basis, those which have no excess profits and pay on the normal 40 per cent. rate and those which have excess profits and are taxable on part of their profits at 100 per cent.

The provision allows corporations to make donations up to the level of the average of their contributions in the two years prior to 1942 but contributions beyond that limit may not have the effect of reducing the taxes they would otherwise have paid by more than 40 per cent.

Mr. Church urged acceptance of proposals advanced by the Anglican Bishop of Ontario and other church authorities in a memorandum that contributions to approved post-war building projects for churches and educational institutions be exempted. Mr. Ilsley said the memorandum had been given careful consideration and it was felt the provision made was sufficiently generous.

Canada Gains 16 Corvettes For Minesweepers

OTTAWA, July 20.—(CP).—Canada's naval escort forces have been strengthened by the addition of 16 British-built corvettes, while Canadian shipyards are turning out 16 "Algerine class fleet minesweeperes for the Royal Navy in exchange, Navy Minister Macdonald announced last night.

The "trade" results from an agreement reached between the British and Canadian Governments last year, Mr. Macdonald said in a statement.

Mr. Macdonald said 12 of the new corvettes were of the "Castle" class, a type new to the Royal Canadian Navy and much improved over the "Flower" class corvette. They are larger and more powerfully armed than the standard type of corvette.

The remaining four corvettes are of revised "Flower" class design, representing the most up-to-date modification of the corvette design which played such an important role in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Ships already commissioned and ready for service, together with the names of their commanding officers, include the ollowing:

Revised "Flower" class corvettes—H.M.C.S. Giffard, Lieut. G. H. Matheson, Victoria; H.M.C.S. Forest Hill, Lieut. Ernest Jones, Montreal; H.M.C.S. Long Branch, Lt.-Cmdr. R. J. G. Johnson, Toronto; H.M.C.S. Mimico, Lieut. F. J. Jones, Hamilton.

"Castle" class — H.M.C.S. St. Thomas, Lt.-Cmdr. L. P. Deny, Dartmouth, N.S.; H.M.C.S. Kincardine, Lieut. R. P. Brown, Quebec; H.M.C.S. Orangeville, Lieut. F. R. Pike, Edmonton; H.M.C.S. Arnprior, Lieut. Stuart D. Thom, Regina; H.M.C.S. Tilsonburg, Lt.-Cmdr. William Evans, Toronto; H.M.C.S. Petrolia, Lieut. Peter W. Spragge, Toronto; H.M.C.S. Huntsville, Lieut. C. B. Herman, Ottawa; H.M.C.S. Hespeler, Lt.-Cmdr. N. S. C. Dickinson, Toronto.

The remaining four ships of this class will be commissioned shortly.

One of the new corvettes, H.M.C.S. Giffard, was with the Canadian frigate Valleyfield on convoy duty when that warship was sunk in the Atlantic in May, and rescued survivors. Another took part in invasion operations on D-Day, while still others have gone to reinforce escort groups.

15-Year-Old To Stand Trial At Fall Assizes

COBOURG, July 20 — (ENS) — Charles Frances Davey, the Hamilton boy who is charged with the murder of four-year-old Norman Lamb on Sunday last, will stand trial in the regular criminal court instead of being tried in the newly-established criminal court here, it was decided Wednesday by Judge J. C. M. German.

Judge German heard an application from Crown Attorney Harry Deyman that the youth, who is 15 years old, be tried in the ordinary court, the judge granting the application and directing that he be indicted in the usual way with trial in the Supreme Court of Ontario.

"I feel that it is in the interests of yourself and the pubic that you should be tried before judge and jury, in view of the gravity of the charge," stated Judge German to the boy.

Bewildered

An average-size boy of 15 years, the accused sat rather bewildered-looking in court, watching the proceedings intently from under a shock of wavy brown hair that hung low over his brow. He told the court that his full name was "Charles Frances Davey" when J. J. Brown, superintendent of the Boys' Training School, Bowmanville, gave the boy's name as "Frank Davey." Mr. Brown said that the accused was born on September 21, 1928, in Hamilton, that he had attended the handicraft school in Hamilton and had reached the 6th grade in public school.

The boy's father, whose name is James Stewart Davey, is employed at the Hamilton Bridge Works and was born in England. His mother was born in Hamilton.

The accused will appear before the magistrate at 2:30 p.m. next Wednesday, at which time he may be again remanded for preliminary trial. The next sittings of Supreme Court commences on October 30, to which court he will be committed for trial.

The boy's father visited him at the jail Wednesday, bringing him some fruit.

It was learned that the accused had a fairly good record while a ward of the school, up until the alleged murder, and his apparent departure into serious crime has puzzled training officials. Usually he is a quiet mannered boy, it is stated.

Prospecting Aid Is Refused

OTTAWA July 20 — An appeal that cut across party lines for gold prospecting to be allowed the same tax credit that is granted to persons on contributions advanced for the search of base and war strategic metals, was refused last night by Finance Minister Ilsley.

The Minister, at the same time, rejected suggestions that the industrial backer of an individual prospector should be granted the tax credit. The lone prospector was credited in mining history with discovery of the majority of the major producing properties.

The appeal for extension of the tax credit provision was led by Deputy Speaker Joseph Bradette, who took his seat in the House and, as the private member for Cochrane, a riding which takes in the Porcupine gold camp and borders on the Kirkland Lake and Noranda fields, maintained it should be possible "to include gold mining in any program that is implemented by the Federal Governmment."

In the lengthy afternoon argument on the resolution, Rodney Adamson (P.C.-York West) moved, in order to extend the tax credit provision to gold prospecting, that the word "base" be struck from the resolution.

The ruling was given late last night by Deputy Speaker Bradette—a ruling that was directly antagonistic to his personal views on the issue. Mr. Bradette, under the House rules, said the motion was "out of order."

The initial tax credit allowed to a taxpayer of 40 per cent of contributions made by him in 1943 to associations, syndicates or mining partnership "organized for the purpose of prospecting in Canada for base metals of strategic minerals," was provided last year to stimulate the search for war materials then in short supply.

Last year the cost of outside exploration for base or strategic minerals was allowed as a deductible item, but such expenditures were limited to something like $5,000. "This," said Mr. Bradette, "is a feeble and hesitating step in the right direction, but why not include gold?"

Gold mining was no "luscious bonanza," said the Cochrane member. "Some people seem to think it is like some fruit that grows in abundance. It may surprise the committee to know that out of 4,500 ventures only 2 per cent comes to full development, and that only 1 per cent of gold mining ventures have been paying dividends."

His appeal, said Mr. Bradette, was made with an open mind, "realizing that the industry has done much for our national economy." The manpower situation in the mines areas "is now tight because nobody backslid as far as voluntary enlistments are concerned."

THURSDAY, JULY 20 1944

Conscription And Common Sense

On Monday, July 10, the Defence Minister, Col. Ralston, made a long speech in the House of Commons dealing with the country's military manpower situation. This, we presume, was intended to correct a vast amount of rumour and ill-informed discussion which is going on at present, encouraged by a section of the press, the burden of which is that we must have conscription in Canada at once, or we shall suffer national ignominy. But Col. Ralston's speech has not quieted that discussion, not because his explanation was faulty, but because the discussion itself is not based in reason. A general election is coming, and if the Liberals can be bamboozled into enforcing conscription now they will most certrainly be defeated. That explains a great deal of the superficially disinterested agitation for conscription. There has never been any strong enthusiasm for conscription in Canada, and since the war began Liberals, Conservatives and C.C.F. have all, at one time or another, declared themselves unequivocally against it.

Canada would welcome conscription if it were needed to keep our forces overseas up to strength. Col. Ralston has explained that they are amply supplied with reinforcements until the end of this year, and recruiting of reinforcements for next year is going ahead satisfactorily. The Home Defence Army, sometimes referred to contemptuously as 'the Zombies', comprises 73,000 men of whom 35,000 are on duty in Newfoundland, Labrador, Nassau, Bermuda and Jamaica, where U.S. troops are also stationed; 13,000 are on non-operational duty, 14,000 are in training centres, 4000 are in depots, and 7000 are on leave for necessary civilian work. This is not, we think, the idle army which we are told about by Opposition politicians. If the 73,000 men were to be sent home we should have to bring men back from Europe to fill their places.

There is no particular virtue in conscription per se, and if it were to be introduced now without need it would cause great dissatisfaction to the volunteers overseas. Col. Ralston's statement seems to us to be perfectly clear and perfectly sensible. This is what he said:

> "I am for keeping our army overseas 100 per cent. volunteers if we can do it; but if we cannot maintain the army overseas with volunteers and it is necessary to send N.R.M.A. men, there can be no alternative for me but to recommend action under the act, and I shall do so".

So long as our forces do their full duty under the present system what need has Canada to feel shame? Australia and South Africa have formed their armies on the same policy and we have not yet heard any hint that they are not doing a grand job in the war.

• • •

The talk of conscription at present is election talk, and should be treated as such; if either of the Opposition parties goes to the country with a pledge of conscription when election time comes, we shall regard it more seriously But they have balked at conscription in the past and it needs no prophet to say that they will do so again. When Sir Robert Borden asked for conscription in 1917 he was able to tell Canada that we could not do our full job without it. If any statesman can tell Canada that—honestly—now or any time before the war is over, he will get the people's consent to conscription at once. But the present uproar about 'Zombies' and 'overtrained conscripts who exist in idleness' is sheer bunk; the N.R.M.A. (composed of exactly the ratio of French Canadians and others which would be expected on a basis of population) is doing work which somebody has to do. Conscription is a live issue in the political war—the endless Canadian war—only; it means nothing in relation to the fight for freedom.

The Glorious First

Rarely a day passes that a newspaper is not corrected about something, for as a newspaper is made up of a vast number of facts and opinions it is not surprising that some of them should be wrong. Recently it was pointed out to us that the Examiner had referred to the Battle of the Boyne as having been fought on July 12, 1690, when as a matter of fact it was fought on the first day of July in that year. As it seemed to us unlikely that both the Examiner and the Loyal Orange Order would be mistaken in such a matter we have looked into it, and find that the paper, the lodge and our critic are all right.

The joker is the alteration from the Julian to the Gregorian calendar which England made during the eighteenth century, and which affects our reckonings of all previous dates. It was indeed on the first of July that William and James met on the banks of the Boyne, and the Jacobite cause was lost forever. Making allowance for the difference between Julian and Gregorian reckoning, the present celebration of the battle would be most properly held on July 11, but the twelfth was chosen because it is also the date of the Battle of Aughrim in 1691. The Battle of the Boyne was a great strategic victory, though as a fight it was unremarkable; Aughrim was a slaughter, in which 7,000 of James' troops were slain, while the English forces lost only a few hundreds of men.

The twelfth of July, therefore, seems to be the best approximation of the date of the Battle of the Boyne that can be made with our present calendar. Those who maintain that the battle was fought on the first are right; those who celebrate it on the twelfth are also right. What could be more satisfactory than a question upon which it is possible for two parties to disagree and for both to be right?

Brantford And Peterborough

All progressive Canadian cities are laying their plans for post-war development now, and they are exchanging ideas in a most friendly and co-operative manner. Peterborough has announced its intention of building an Arena and Health Centre, and the Brantford Expositor, citing us as an example, says this:

> "If matters proceed according to plan, Peterborough may possess, in the early future, what Brantford has long needed. This city has a number of halls, useful for certain gatherings, but it has no adequate convention building, no place really suitable for major political, patriotic or other rallies, and its sports facilities, while good as far as they go, can not be said to go nearly far enough.
> "Equally, Brantford feels, and has felt for many years, the need for a modern concert auditorium and 'Little Theatre' building. In view of the city's enviable attainments in the field of choral and other music, this lack is frequently and embarrassingly noted, although the regular theatre managements have been generous in 'helping out' from time to time".

We draw particular attention to the second paragraph. Peterborough, too, needs a concert auditorium, and if it were suitable for Little Theatre work, so much the better. We have not as highly developed a musical life in this city as Brantford has; for many years it has supported one of the best civic choirs in Canada and it attracts many first-rate concerts. But Peterborough will be able to expand musically (and perhaps in Little Theatre work as well) if it puts a good auditorium on the list of its post-war needs. We have already suggested that the new City Hall might include such an auditorium and we hope that the matter may be discussed by the committee which is considering the design of the new building.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The Japanese insist that it is a capital crime to bomb from the air without a particular target. We shall remember this when we catch the robot bombers.

A clergyman in Orillia says that "practically every trouble-maker in Canada has come here after he was twenty years of age". That 'practically' covers a great deal of ground, as the police records show. Canada is not entirely self-supporting but she manages to raise most of her own trouble-makers.

"Invention of the zero by an ancient Hindu", says a column-filler newspaper item, "is considered one of the greatest advances in mathematics". Invention of the Zero by a modern Jap looks less and less like one of the greatest advances of aeronautical engineering as time goes on—even to the Japs.

The story from Winnipeg telling of ex-convicts who secured posts as guards at Stony Mountain Penitentiary on the strength of several years' "prison experience" is both amusing and alarming. The amusing part is the daring impudence of the applicants—and the alarming part is the indifferent attitude of the N.S.S. officials whose thirst for details was so easily slaked.

Poland Laughs At Germans.

(FROM THE POLISH REVIEW)

THE Germans entered Warsaw on October 1, 1939. Goose-stepping through the streets of the battle-scarred Polish capital, they thought the world was theirs. But the painful truth soon dawned upon them that they were like flies that had conquered the flypaper. For the people of Warsaw spontaneously formed a united front against the invaders. In a thousand different ways they showed the Germans just exactly what they thought of them—and it was not flattering. They discovered, too, that ridicule could be a trenchant and effective weapon, one that drives the literally minded Germans to impotent fury.

In spite of concentration camps, executions, man hunts and a vicious campaign to exterminate the Polish nation, the Poles are still able to smile. Warsaw newsboys had always been famous for their sunny disposition and ready wit. Under the occupation these ragged, barefoot urchins carry on. They steal rides on trolley cars, they invariably point in the opposite direction when asked the way by Germans. And they have coined the phrase, "Mr. Temporary," to shout after the Germans.

NOTHING gives quite so much encouragement as a lively street song. Polish youngsters often sing within hearing of the Germans: "As geht alles voruber, es geht alles vorbei—Und nach 9 November—wieder kommt 3 Mai." (Everything passes over, everything passes by; and after the 9th of November, returns the Third of May (Polish national holiday)). They sing at railroad stations, they sing on street corners. Despite their bare blue feet and their tattered clothing, they laugh and sing and they collect coins from passers-by for this bit of gaiety in an otherwise grim lif.e They have learned the art of vanishing into thin air at the sight of a German policeman or a frown on the brow of a German who understood too much of a song such as:

"Who are you? A Volksdeutsch child.
What's your symbol? Bread defiled.
And your source? A world on fire.
And your fate? The funeral pyre."

◆ ◆ ◆

WARSAW'S youngest citizens are not the only ones to laugh at the expense of their unwelcome guests. Not a day passes that an outspoken inscription on wall or sidewalk does not make Warsaw smile or that the underground does not issue a "special" edition of the German "reptile" press. (The gadzinowka, or reptile press, is a play upon godzinowka, or newspaper issued every hour during the siege). War jokes are born daily by the score, bringing a bit of brightness to the grim reality of life under German occupation. In underground printshops secret presses roll off Polish equivalents of "Judge" and "Punch." These humorous gazettes: Lipa (The Gag), Szpilka (The Pin), Mucha (The Fly), Moskit (The Gnat) and many others are a compilation of cartoons, jokes and stories—all most timely and poking fun at the Axis. Lipa bears the sub-title: "A humorous paper published in Poland in days of horror," and its motto is borrowed from Nietzsche: "One kills not by anger but by ridicule."

"Days of German Culture in Poland
PROGRAMME

First day: Opening of an exhibit on "The influence of German culture upon the development of cities in Poland"—showing pictures of Polish cities, villages and hamlets after the September campaign of 1939.

Second day: Inspiring spectacle: "German torch of enlightenment" at Hitler Square—public burning of Polish school texts and the works of Sienkiewicz, Michiewicz, Zeromski, Prus, Konopnicka, etc.

Third day: Lecture in the ruined auditorium of the University on "Totalitarian culture"—formal closing of higher institutions of learning, secondary schools, trade schools and elementary schools.

Fourth day: "Freude durch Kraft"—demonstration of manhunts in streets and homes, combined with an excursion of Polish intellectuals to Dachau, Oranienburg, and Oswiecim.

Fifth day: German school of culture film featuring the teaching of Polish University professors in concentration camps by the young people of the Hitler Jugend.

Seventh day: Opening of a shooting-gallery for soldiers and Volksdeutsche. The special attraction will be shooting at Poles near posts, under walls and while running.

Ninth day: Inauguration of the "German district," followed by a demonstration of lightning deportation of Poles and confiscation of their furniture and other belongings.

Tenth day: Grand Finale of the "Days of German Culture in Poland," under the slogan "Ein Volk—ein Fuhrer"—solemn homage paid to the one and only Fuhrer Hitler by other Fuhrers: Mussolini, Hirohito, Petain, Antonescu, Quisling, Hacha."

Poles are quick to seize any opportunity to tease the Germans. A woman entering the part of a streetcar reserved for Germans asks the conductor to "let her through to the section for people." Warsaw trolleys are made up in two sections. When the second car happened to become detached from the first, someone shouted to the policeman: 'Say, Mr. Temporary! The Government General has torn itself away from the Reich!"

The following streetcar story is a favorite: An inebriated passenger loudly enumerates all the misfortunes that have befallen him during the war and ends by declaring that only one knave, villain, rat (and many other juicy epithets) was the cause of this stream of troubles. With drunken insistence he tries to recall the name of the culprit: "It begins with an H . . Just a moment, it will come to me." The other passengers move away uneasily. But a very sugary gentleman sits down next to him and encourages him to recall that interesting name. Finally, after many imprecations, the bold fellow stammers: "I know now. His name is Hurchill (Polish phonetic pronunciation of Churchill). And whom did you have in mind, Mr. Gestapo-man?"

ONE night in 1941 the German tablet on the statue of Copernicus in Warsaw was replaced by a Polish one. Whereupon the Germans dismantled the statue of Kilinski, the Polish shoemaker-hero of the Uprising of 1863, explaining their act as a retaliation for "desecrating the monument of a German scholar." The Kilinski monument was shipped to an unknown destination. The next day on the wall of the National Museum appeared a huge inscription, "I Am Here, O People of Warsaw, Jan Kilinski." And Copernicus was outfitted with a new Polish sign: "As punishment for your having wronged Kilinski, I now prolong the winter on the Eastern front to April."

Another Polish means of annoying the Germans is to "edit" official posters so that they may better correspond with reality. "Deutschland siegt an allen Fronten" Germany is winning on all fronts) became "Deutschland liegt an allen Fronten" (Germany is losing on all fronts).

The poster telling Warsaw of the execution of 100 hostages for the shooting of Igo Sym, an informer, was signed Moder. When dawn broke the next day, "Moder" had been amended to read "Morder" (murderer). The poster of German colonists saying: "On this soil we shall remain" received the hearty approval of the Poles: "Three feet underground." Nor was Germany's annual campaign to recruit Poles for seasonal work in the Reich ignored. On posters picturing the vineyards of Bavaria, the wheat fields of Prussia and the smoke stacks of the Ruhr, appeared Polish post scripts: "If you wish to get T. B., you may go to German-ee." The Polish reply to a poster inviting Poles to "Come with us to work in Germany" was a masterpiece of understatement: "Go yourself."

PRACTICAL jokes by students drive the Germans mad. At one time Gestapo headquarters was deluged with anonymous letters informing them of secret military activity under Colonel Andrew Bobola, in the desolate region of Kampinow. The Germans set a price on Bobola's head, and instituted a search for the troublesome army. They finally awoke to the realization that "Colonel" Bobola was a Polish saint who lived in the 17th century. On another occasion a number of black hens were left hanging in public places with these notes attached: "I prefer to hang here upside down than to feed the Germans with my eggs."

One of the first acts of the Germans was to put up "Nur fur Deutsche!" (Only for Germans) signs on restaurants, theatres and other public places. The Poles were quick to hang similar signs on trees and lampposts to indicate the plans they had for the supermen. The Germans use gasoline to wipe out Polish flags painted on the sidewalks. Inscriptions "Poland will win" have been so thoroughly removed from the walls of Buildings that the mark left will remain forever.

In the wooded promenade encircling the centre of Cracow, the Germans painted "Nur fur Deutsche" on the benches. The next day Polish inscriptions of identical shape and size appeared, setting forth the property rights of both nations: "Our benches, your rears." The Germans hastily washed off both notices.

In these ways the Polish Underground, the whole Polish nation, laughs at the Germans. Nothing is more indicative of the tremendous courage and faith in a better future of these martyred men, women and children than their ability to indulge in mochery at German expense. The humor may be broad, or it may be subtle, it may be satire, or it may be bitter laughter, but it never fails to hit its mark. For five years it has been one of the factors undermining the morale of the occupation forces in Poland.

THE QUESTION OF BALKAN ALLIES —By Thomas

Campaign Without Hysteria

(By BRUCE HUTCHISON)

MR. DEWEY proposes to conduct an unusual campaign for the presidency of the United States. He says he will not start to fight seriously until well on into the autumn. During the summer he will take a "long pause". His view is that a month or six weeks will be quite long enough to bring his policies to the attention of the nation. Meanwhile he is carrying on as governor of New York, and at Albany the other day he replied to all questions of a serious character with the remark: "No comment".

If Mr. Dewey adheres to his plans, this will be an unusual and subdued presidential campaign. Mr. Roosevelt is not expected to make many speeches. As in 1940, he will be too busy with the business of the nation; and while in 1940 he was finally pressed by the powerful crusade of Mr. Willkie to abandon his vow of silence and make several major speeches, this time he will have little leisure for such activities. Moreover, he will probably demonstrate the nation's essential need of him in the White House better by attending strictly to the management of the war than by talking about it.

Several candidates for the presidency have refused to barnstorm the country. At one time the "front porch" campaign was the tradition. The candidate simply made speeches from his own verandah and let the press carry them to the people. The last experiment of this sort, Mr. Harding's campaign in 1920, was a success politically, though not otherwise.

Mr. Dewey is quite right when he says that a free election at this time is a living proof of the strength of American democracy. Only a nation of free men, sure of its freedom and confident in its political system, would dare to plunge into an election controversy at such a critical moment. In Mr. Dewey's judgement a clean, honest, hard-fought campaign will unite rather than divide the American people. "The doom of the Axis", he says, "will come sooner because we are so strong we can argue among ourselves and fight a war better as we do it". In this belief he does not wish to start his campaign early and keep the country at a fever pitch of excitement for four months while the war is rushing to its climax.

We are going to start this campaign, he says, in the most critical period of our history. We are going to prove in this campaign to all the world, including our enemies, that America is the most united nation in the world. We are going to prove it because we are almost the only nation in the whole world which would dare risk an election during the most critical phase of the war. We can risk an election because to us that means we are free men and women. We are going to keep the things we are fighting for and strengthen them by having an election in these times....Throughout this campaign the points upon which we are agreed will become so clear that even Hitler and Hirohito can understand them.

While the points of agreement among both political parties are clear enough—the necessity of maintaining free government under the constitution—there are grave cleavages within the parties on many other issues. Mr. Roosevelt is faced today with a revolt in the Solid South which always provides the core of Democratic strength. The Republican party is stressing the protest of the South against the New Deal and against the President's sympathy with the Negroes, but the Republican party itself is in a state of schism also.

Mr. Roscoe Drummond, the chief political writer of The Christian Science Monitor, which supported the Republican party in 1940, writes that this Republican schism is evident in the fact that nineteen Republican governors in a body tried to secure a stronger internationalist platform than the party convention would adopt; and the other fact that "the convention ultimately gave its presidential nominee a platform which was vague, evasive and self-contradictory and which Governor Dewey started to amend within twelve hours after he was nominated. Why does the Republican platform face both directions on at least three major issues? On collaboration to secure peace, on trade, on domestic finance? The honest reason is that the Republican party is deeply divided on these matters.

"It is an asset," says Mr. Drummond, "to a resourceful presidential nominee to have a party charter which does not greatly tie his hands, but it is a liability to Mr. Dewey not to know whether his own party can be effectively united behind the specific and detailed program which he will have to evolve from its framework of loose generalities and conflicting promises. As far as divisions within his party go, Governor Dewey's difficulties are as acute as President Roosevelt's."

Thus the campaign opens in deep confusion. What chiefly concerns the world is whether, in this confusion, the real issues of world concern will be blurred or lost.

HUMAN NATURE

Gambling on the whole is an evil thing. But the borderland between the instinct of gambling and the spirit of speculation and risk which has played its part in so much of the world's improvement is often a very dim one—and we are not so hypocritical as to pretend that it is not an understandable one. After all, it is the thing we see in thousands of people sitting in at a bingo table; or in millions of dollars passing through the pari-mutuels at a race track. We may tell ourselves that the world would be a better place if this spirit did not exist; tell ourselves even that our gold mines would be better off in the long run if there were less speculation in them. We can't tell ourselves realistically that such speculation can be stopped. It is really much of a part of our individualistic system.—Ottawa Journal.

THE NOES

"No matches", "No cigarettes", "No cakes", "No sweets"—we have faced every negative in turn or collectively. The latest denial is "No daggers". The notice appears in the window of an antique shop in a southern cathedral town. Against the glass is a lot of muskets, rusty swords, and Dick Turpin pistols. Above them is the curt "No daggers".

Perhaps they have gone for salvage. Perhaps the American troops have bought them all, thinking them a useful close-up weapon, like the Gurkhas' knives, or for souvenirs. Whatever the reason of the shortage, there it is. No daggers—even on points.—Manchester Guardian.

WRONG-WAY GLIDER

One of the amusing incidents of D-Day was staged on the station of Group Captain "Jamie" Rankine, D.S.O. and Bar, D.F.C. and Bar, the famous Battle of Britain pilot.

A big glider, filled with troops, was being towed across to France. In mid-Channel and in pitch darkness the tow rope broke.

The glider, involuntarily, made what is known as a "reciprocal turn," and continued under its own impetus. Soon it crossed the English coast again and made a neat landing.

What followed was told to me by an R.A.F. flying control sergeant who had dashed out to the runway to investigate.

"Before I could reach the glider out sprang several excited men, faces blackened, armed to the teeth and pointing their tommy guns at me. They completely surrounded me, yelling 'Achtung! Achtung! you (so-and-so)!' at the top of their voices.

"'And where the hell do you think you are?' I yelled back.

"'Blimey, mates!' said one of them, 'this bloke speaks English as well as I do. What part of France is this, chum?'".

A Bible Message

AND Jesus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about....And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and stood up for to read. And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the synagogue were fastened on him. And he began to say unto them, This day is the scripture fulfilled in your ears. And all bare him witness, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. (Luke 4: 14, 16-22.)

Thou, therefore, my son, be strong in the grace that is in Christ Jesus....Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. (II. Tim. 2: 1, 15.)

All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, throughly furnished unto all good works. (II. Tim. 3: 16, 17.)

"Pardon me, but are you the lady who was singing?"

"Yes, I was singing. Why?"

"Well, lay off the top notes, please. We've had the bloomin' fire engine out twice!"

Coach: "You're doing well, son. The way you hit the lines and the way you dodge and tackle and worm through them is marvellous."

Player: "It comes easy to me. I used to go with my mother to the bargain sales."

Former Peterborough Boy Finds Holy Land Full Of Interest

In a letter received by his aunt, Mrs. H. Barrett, 464 Bonaccord street, Flight Lieut. Harold "Pat" Scolly, son of Mrs. Jane Scolly, Fort William, formerly of Peterborough, writes a highly interesting description of life in the Middle East, where he is serving as a technical expert with the R.A.F.

The letter, tells of a trip to Damascus, when he hitch-hiked in a staff car, and included a trip over the Lebonese Mountains, which was magnificent.

"Damascus is an amazing sight" the young flier writes," with little narrow streets all covered over with sunlight trickling through here and there. The streets are jammed with people and everything here is a hive of business.

Everyone seems to be making something, and agents pester the life out of you, trying their best to sell you something; usually their poorest wares first, and if you don't bite, they bring out the better class of goods some of which is truly beautiful. There are lovely silks, brocades, jewellry, and anything you desire. Everything for a woman, but very little for a man. I spent a considerable sum of money and when I returned the next day to Beirut, I was practically broke. They surely can shake the shekels out of you in this country.

Visit Landmarks

In the afternoon, we hired a gharry and rode all around the old wall of Damascus. We visited the Shrine of St. Paul, where Ananias met Saul. Had our pictures taken outside the window where he escaped by lowering himself in a basket.

I also visited the Holy City, first taking in the shrine where Mary died, and its magnificent with beautifully inlaid floors, and marvellous mosaic carvings all over. It is situated in the middle of immense marble pillars. I saw the place where the cock crowed thrice, and a church there, underneath which was the dungeon Christ was imprisoned in after being taken a prisoner at Gethsemane."

"In the afternoon, we took a trip out to Jericho, the Dead Sea and Jordan river. All I can say is I'm glad I wasn't baptised in the Jordan river: it's the dirtiest, muddiest, river imaginable. Jericho is nothing but a beautiful cypress and banana plantation. The Dead Sea is just like an ordinary lake, but the water is most peculiar. Went for a swim and it sure was a funny sensation. Lie on your stomach and do the breast stroke, and your feet come right out of the water. The water was so boyuant it is possible to read a newspaper while floating on your back. "Visited the old city, and never saw anything like it. The streets are bustling with people, three-quarters Jew, and the rest, Arabs, dressed in every possible colour. Beggars are everyweher asking for alms! What a place."

Biblical Places

"I saw the place where Pilate sentenced Chirst, and we walked down the street He walked carrying the cross. We saw the Holy Sepulchre where He was crucified and buried. It was all very interesting, but they have it so commerciatized now, it makes you question the authenticity of these places."

"The next day, we visited the Mosque of Omar on the site of King Solomon's temple; an awe-inspiring structure; pillar after pillar 110 feet high; inlaid floors, mosaic walls. Then we went over to the Wailing Wall, Jewish Sunday, and more than 2,000 people were there. They stood in front of it, hats off, the men at one end, and women at the other. They said prayers, then spoke to the wall, cried, and swayed back and forth. Later in the day, I took a donkey ride with four W.R.E.N.S., from England, and visited the tomb where Mary was buried."

Ft. Lieut. Scolly is a former Ft. William collegiate teacher and is well known in Peterborough, because of the lengthy period he lived here, and frequent visits to friends here after he left the city. He has been in the Air Force since 1940.

2,000 French Civilians Die In Caen Attack

LONDON, July 20—(CP-Reuter)—About 2,000 French civilians in Caen were killed and 1,300 are in hospitals, Maj. Arthur Henderson, financial secretary to the war office, revealed in the House of Commons today.

Britain Seeks To Regulate Production Change

LONDON, July 20 — (AP) — Hugh Dalton, Economic Warfare Minister, informed the House of Commons Tuesday that Britain was trying to obtain an agreement with the United States to regulate the industrial switch from wartime to peacetime production.

Questions and answers disclosed disturbed feeling about markets, in view of the efforts of U. S. War Production Chief Donald M. Nelson to permit American industry to return partly to production of civilian goods.

Mr. Dalton, who also is president of the Board of Trade, said war production still would come first in Britain but that the government was prepared to consider requests from British manufacturers to prepare for peacetime production.

Former Civil Servant Is Sentenced To Prison

OTTAWA, July 20 — (CP). — Frederick George Comrie, 50-year-old former assistant treasurer of the War Services Department, was sentenced on Wednesday by Judge McDougall to three years imprisonment on 26 charges involving the theft, forgery and the uttering of cheques.

Sgt. Detective William H. Styran told the Court the total amount of the cheques involved was in the "vicinity of $3,000." There were 11 charges of forgery, one of uttering and 13 of theft.

Judge McDougall referred to the accused's long record of service in the Government and said that record would stand in his favor.

"But I could not overlook the fact that the accused was fully aware of his responsibilities," he added.

SWELL Say the Services...

THOSE YOUNG MEN in uniform do pop in at the most unexpected times. Well, they can't come too often, bless them! And you can be all set and ready with Campbell's Chicken Noodle Soup on the shelf. It's no trouble to serve in a jiffy.

Just watch the sparkle in their eyes when you ladle that rich, golden broth into their plates with lots of delicious egg noodles and plenty of tender chicken meat.

Anybody could tell, at the first taste, this is not just noodle soup but Chicken Noodle Soup. The broth is slow-simmered from plump, selected chickens—just like they made chicken noodle soup in the old days.

This is the kind of good nourishing food folks need these days—a hale and hearty soup with lots of energy for those with wartime work to do. Look for the Red-and-White Label.

The Sports Round-Up

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
Associated Press Staff Writer

NEW YORK, July 20 — (AP).— If you hang around with major leaguers, you'll hear plenty of tall tales about the "good old days" in baseball and how kids used to be happy to play with a home-made ball on a field grubbed out of a briar patch....And likely as not youll hear that kids nowadays have to be pampered and won't play under conditions that the old-timers regarded as normal....In controversion of such statements, we present the following letter from Wendell Laline, the Newport, Vt., sports scribe.

Read it and weep:

"I thought you might like to hear about the game the Barton Town baseball team played at East Hardwick the other day," writes Wendell. "Barton lost the game, 18-13, but the score does not necessarily indicate poor playing on either side. The condition of the playing field, which was a cow pasture, was accountable for the high score and many errors.....A hit ball which looked like an easy out would hit a bump and bounce over the player's head, far out of quick retrieving. Even the catchers had to run over a knoll after foul balls."

Special talents:

"The fence which surrounded the pasture was another bad feature," Lalime further explains. "Balls hit through the fence would go for a home run, which even on any good pasture would not have gone for a double....Some of our Vermont ball players know how to hurdle the barbed wire enclosures, and in most cases of this nature a hit over the fence doesn't go for a homer unless you can make it."

SKIN BLEMISHES RESPOND TO VITAMINS

Science shows that many skin troubles due to lack of vitamins

Lemon and lime juice were once used on long sea voyages to offset the dread scourge of scurvy. Today we know the merit lay in the vitamins these citrus fruits contain. Now, for many skin and complexion faults, science says—take vitamins daily. "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets give not one vitamin alone, but 5 vital vitamins. Each helps the other to function. Fortify your daily diet with "ALL-in-ONE" Vitamin Tablets. The cost is only $2.15 for a month's supply. At most drug stores.

By HERB MARTIN

To Mr. and Mrs. Tom Doughty and Mr. and Mrs. L. Bearne go the honor of winning the Ovaltine Trophy tournament that was held out on the bowling greens Wednesday afternoon and evening—or as much of the evening as the weather man would allow.

To R. F. Downey goes the credit of making this remark, "If you want rain just ask the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club to stage a tournament and rain it will."

This is the second open tournament this summer that has been interrupted by rain, but in this case we had completed two rounds of the scheduled three, so it was declared a tournament. Had the third round been completed no one knows what would have happened. Maybe the results might have been the same and maybe altogether different. However, when the crowd of 22 mixed rinks saw that deluge come down, they knew that the tournament was all off and they graciously bowed to the ruling of the committee. And while the prizes were awarded according to the standing of the teams at the end of the second round, it might not be too far astray to say that the tournament will go down in the club's records as "unfinished business."

The Winners.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

The City League playoff arrangements have been all knocked for a loop as a result of developments this week, and the last straw bobbed up last night when the Soldiers-St. Peter's clash was stopped by rain in the second innings with the Military Training Centre leading by 4 to 0. That meant, of course, that fourth place is still undecided and as a consequence the opening game in the playoff semi-finals between Plazas and Soldiers scheduled for tonight has been postponed until next week, and St. Peter's and Soldiers will make another effort this evening to get their battle out of the way. If the Saints win they will be tied with U.E.W. for fourth spot and the two teams will meet Friday night to break the deadlock. On the other hand, if the Soldiers win U.E.W. will finish in fourth place and qualify for the playoffs. In that event Switchgear and U.E.W. will be sent in against each other Friday in the first game of the semi-final series. Tonight's game therefore is of primary importance to a lot of folk, and it should be a thrilling engagement. Pete Procyk, who started last night's game for the Soldiers, will likely be sent right back at the Saints again, while St. Peter's will use Gene Reynolds or Bill Moorhead. No matter which team wins tonight there will be a battle tomorrow night, although just what it will be will not be known until after tonight's game.

Flying Officer Al. Marshall, Peterborough's swimming champion and winner of the Dominion senior breast stroke title, who is now a Spitfire pilot with an R.C.A.F. squadron in Egypt, has been starring again at his favorite sport. In a meet in Cairo on July 1 when the Canadians in Egypt celebrated Dominion Day with a big program of sports, the Peterborough flier cleaned up the whole swim card, winning a gold medal for the feature swimming event, the quarter-mile race, and also winning the breast stroke event, the free style contest, the back stroke race, and a side stroke competition in which he had to invent a stroke of his own for that particular style was something new to him. Flying Officer Marshall won a bunch of silver medals in addition to the special gold award and had a great day all around. Writing home, he remarked that he had not been in training and his form was terrible, but apparently from the victories he scored the Peterborough swim star can still go places in the water with plenty of speed, and he was too good for the opposition he encountered in the Cairo competition.

Colts Here Saturday

Oshawa Colts, for the last two years winners of the Ontario intermediate A softball championship, and this year gunning for a senior B title, will be here on Saturday evening to meet Switchgear at Riverside Park in an exhibition game, and the contest should be one of the outstanding softball attractions of the season. The Colts with all of last year's strong club, with the exception of Red Jubenville, now in the army, intact, are playing great ball again and they showed it last Saturday when they held the fast Hamilton senior A club with Russ Johnson pitching to a 1 to 0 win Colts still have Preem Whiteley and Dean McLaughlin to do the tossing, backed up by a hard-hitting, clever fielding outfit, and Switchgear will have to play up to their best ball of the season here Saturday to give the Oshawa stars a battle. The Colts incidentally will give Peterborough fans a chance to see what well-dressed softball clubs are wearing, for they will be all togged out in their new regulation baseball uniforms, maroon in color and with stockings and cap to match. The game is billed for 6.45 smart ball here and Switchgeare are determined to make them show o'clock and should attract a big crowd. The Colts have always played their best wares Saturday.

* * * * * *

George Campbell has the following comment in his Oshawa sport column on the Colts' game with Hamilton last Saturday: "Well, Oshawa Colts didn't win over the crack Hamilton senior A club—One of the best softball teams in Canada—when they met here on Saturday afternoon, but they sure gave the visitors some keen opposition. There has never been a closer softball game played in this city than that 1-4 hum-dinger here Saturday afternoon. The attendance was good, but there should have been at least a couple of thousand on hand. The Colts are trying hard to bring 'the best' here for exhibition games and it seems that the support by local sport fans should be much better. At that, there were some 'cheap-skates' on Saturday who actually barged into the park to see the game but refused to buy a ticket—even though the proceeds were going to a very worthy cause. Russ Johnson struck out 14 batters and allowed only 3 hits, while he walked two. One lone run was the best that the Beavers could get off 'Preem' Whiteley, too. He struck out four and walked three, while allowing only 6 safe hits. Defensively, Hamilton's battery did their work, while the Oshawa outfielders carried the load for the Colts. It was a sparkling contest, played in fast time and full of brilliant plays and good pitching. At that too, the homesters might have won, although actually Johnson was too good, but the fact remains that only a freak bounce deprived 'Prem' Whiteley of a homer, while another potential run was lost at the plate when the runner just missed the old platter by about an inch. The real sportsmen in the crowd applauded both teams for their fine plays and the swell game."

On The Rugby Front

There is action on the local rugby front. In fact, a meeting has been called for Friday night in the U.E.W. headquarters, George street, for the purpose of discussing the organization of a junior O.R.F.U. squad in Peterborough, and all players under 21 years of age who are interested in this development are urged to attend. Rich. Jackson has been working on the organization of a club for some time, and has also been doing some missionary work around the district in the hope of arranging a junior group that might include Oshawa, Belleville and Cobourg. A start was made last season, and although it was late in the fall before a game could be arranged, the young players in the city were enthusiastic and some good material was uncorked. A number of the boys who showed good form last autumn, are of course missing now. They are in the armed services, but it is felt that there is enough young material on hand to justify going ahead with the formation of a team. There should be a good attendance at Friday night's meeting to get the organization off with a bang.

For once Bucky Walters faltered in a night game last night, and although the Cincinnati ace was not credited with the loss, he was driven out early in the battle with the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the Bums came on to win the decision 10 to 5 when they hammered a pair of Red relief pitchers. The law of averages caught up to the Boston Red Sox, too, for after beating Chicago eleven times in a row they finally had to drop a game to the Pale Hose last night, beaten 5 to 4 in a game in which Chicago scored all their runs in one inning. Detroit Tigers were the recipients of an unprecedented piece of generosity on the part of Washington when the Senators made three errors in a row in the 10th inning to give the Bengals a 2 to 1 triumph. The Yanks came from behind with a three-run homer by Johnny Lindell, the big blow in the game-winning barrage. In the National League Boston's Nate Andrews pitched fine ball to win his 10th victory of the season, beating the Chicago Cubs 6 to 1.

Brandon Golfer Takes Lead In Manitoba Field

WINNIPEG, July 20 — (CP) — Bill Thompson of Brandon, Man., registered the greatest upset of the day when he tourned the St. Charles Country Club course here with a three-under par 70 to capture medal round honors yesterday, in the Manitoba Amateur Golf championship for the Free Press Trophy.

Thompson, rated a dark horse entry, wound up the tough 18 holes three strokes ahead of his nearest opponents, Ray Reaney and George Cotton, both of Winnipeg, who completed the course in 73.

Baltimore Gets Great Pitching Down Jersey City

By the Associated Press.

Great pitching has rocketed the Baltimore Orioles back into second place, 1½ games behind the International League-leading Montreal Royals.

Only a week ago, Baltimore dropped from the league lead to the fourth place as a result of losing 12 of 15 games, including seven straight.

Last night's 8-2 victory over Jersey City was their fourth straight over the Little Giants and the fourth time in a row an Oriole hurler has gone the route. Rolland Van Slate gave up but three hits in the seven-inning game, cut short by rain.

Montreal won both games of a double-header from Buffalo, 7-4 and 12-3, despite a triple play and three home runs by the Bisons. A total of 30 hits, 12 in the first and 18 in the second, made it easy for Wayne Collins and Jean Pierre Roy to hang up victories. Morris Aderholt led the slugging with five hits though Catcher Stan Andrews supplied the big punch with a grand-slam homer in the sixth inning of the second game. Andrews also hit a single and double, driving in seven runs in the nightcap.

Buffalo's first triple play in years was started by Leslie Floyd, with men on first and second, on Andrews' liner in the fifth of the nightcap.

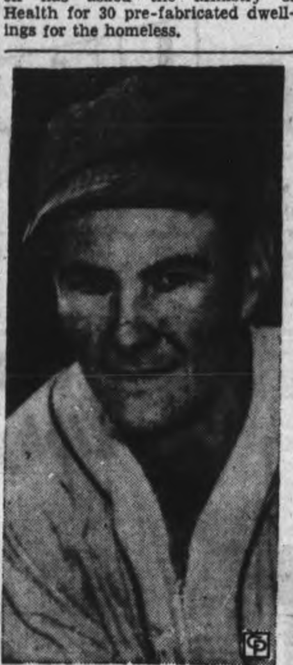
FIRST "TIN-TOWN"

LONDON — (CP) — A Cambridgeshire hamlet shattered when an ammunition train exploded recently may become Britain's first "tin-town". The rural district council has asked the Ministry of Health for 30 pre-fabricated dwellings for the homeless.



MAKING A MARK—Hitting of Mark Christman, St. Louis Brownie infielder, causes comment as the Browns continue to lead the league. Christman, said by Manager Luke Sewell to be the most improved player in the league, has driven in 44 runs and is batting around .300 now. Christman originally came up to the majors with Detroit, going to the Browns in 1939.

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis had an answer to its attendance problem to-day in the 31,361 paid customers for the first two games of the Yankee-Browns series for the American League lead.

Although 31,361 represents a fair Sunday crowd in some big league towns, it is roughly 20 per cent of the Browns' total home draw and is calculated to ease the pain of last night's 6-5 setback by the New Yorkers.

Johnny Lindell's three-run homer was the big blow in a Yankee four-run rally dooming Sig Jacucki and giving Ernie Bonham his fourth straight.

Detroit continued strong since the return of Dick Wakefield, taking six of eight starts and going into a fourth-place tie by yesterday's 2-1 nod over Washington as stubby Overmire out-elbowed Dutch Leonard in 10 heats.

Chicago finally cracked Boston's hex after dropping 11 straight to the Red Sox and capture a 5-4 game on five runs in the fifth.

Bucky Walter failed to go the route in a night game for the first time this season but kept intact his seven-game win streak as reliefer Arnie Carter took the loss in a 10-5 shellacking by Brooklyn.

Ken Raffensberger missed a shutout by one inning but held on for Philadelphia's 4-2 edge over Pittsburg's Nick Strincevich in a Shibe Park night outing.

Nate Andrews graduated into the 10-win class by hurling Boston to a 6-1 nod over Chicago with Bob Chipman suffering the defeat.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

When Arne Anderssen hung up a new world record for the mile at Stockholm on Tuesday he stepped off the first quarter in the amazing time of 56.8 seconds. The 28-year-old school teacher ran the second quarter in 60.5 seconds, the third in 62.9, and finished up with a 61.4 last lap.

Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, announced last night the acquisition from the Montreal Royals of Barney Koch, 20-year-old, hard-slugging second baseman of the current International League leaders. The Royals got Outfielder Eddie Basinski in exchange from the parent club.

The major league clubs have been struggling to maintain a .500 percentage in their games with crack service teams this year, but St. Louis Cardinals again proved themselves equal to the big time standards of peace years when they trounced the Camp Shanks, N.Y. Army team by a 22-7 score.

Though Don Ameche is by no means a leading earner, he drew $247,667.00 for his film work last year... Flying Fortress crew named it "Whispering Cass Daley." That's high-class kidding, since Cass is the greatest enemy of the undertone in history... At a party in Kay Francis' house Veronica Lake got up, pulled her hair over one optic and said, "I will now sing 'When Irish Eyes Are Smiling'."

TORONTO, July 20 — (CP). — When Winnipeg Blue Bombers announced they would sponsor a high School football team to prepare the boys for the big time, there was considerable viewing with alarm in some quarters, and the cry of "professionalism' wavered on the breeze.

Some observers thought this would undermine the pillars of the amateur sportdom in the High School world, by tieing the boys down to the sponsoring club and making them more or less chattels of the vested sport interests, as it were.

Granted the youngsters probably would feel obliged to play with the team that gave them their sport education, still it's fact they would not get the chance to become such good players otherwise, so it's 50-50.

And, as Al (Brantford Expositor) Rose points out, schools are intended to educate you, and what better education can a boy get than a good grooming in athletics and games? Besides the physical benefit obtained, ability at football, hockey or some other sport always is just about as good as a diploma in helping corral a job.

Any takers?

Apparently the girls around Montreal are anxious to see an Eastern Canada women's track and field championship meet staged, but there doesn't seem to be too much interest anywhere. Myrt Cook, the Montreal star, wants some Ontario club to stage the meet, promising full support from Montreal civilian clubs, with the R.C.A.F. Women's Division and W.C.A.C. taking part. But apparently there is only one active club in Ontario Laurel ladies, and they are shy because they attempted a similar meet two years ago and only two clubs entered.

Incidentally:

Les Lear, captain of last season's Winnipeg Blue Bombers, has signed a professional football contract with Cleveland Rams in the National Football League. Lear made the all-Canadian team the last three years, despite a leg injury that caused his rejection by all three armed services.

Ontario Swimmers Take Honors At Vancouver Swimming Meet

VANCOUVER, July 20—(CP)—At least three girls and one man from Eastern Canada took prominent parts in the Canadian swimming championship meet, held here yesterday in connection with a service club (Kinsmen) aquatic carnival.

Evelyn Buchanan of Toronto defeated Audrey Jones of Saskatoon in the metre spring board diving class while Jean Mowat, also from Toronto placed second twice, in the 100-yard breast stroke and the 220 yards back stroke, both senior ladies events. In the first she was defeated by Joan Langdon of Vancouver and Shirley Muir of Vancouver won the other event.

John Dean of Toronto entered three classes and won a first, a second and a third. He finished the 100-yard backstroke for armed service men in 1:09 4/5 to edge Don Burgess of Vancouver and placed second to Roddy Andrews of San Francisco in the 200-yard senior men's free-style.

Andrews and E. Cline of Vancouver finished ahead of Dean in the senior men's 100-yard backstroke class.

H. James of Brantford won the 50-yard breast stroke for armed service men and the 150-yard junior girls relay went to the Montreal entry. Vancouver and Victoria entrants finished in that order behind the Montreal girls.

Syl Apps Wins Major Events

BRANTFORD, July 20—No. 20 Canadian Army Camp of this city nosed out Simcoe, 50 points to 47, in D Zone eliminations of the track and field championships of Military District No. 2 last night.

Syl Apps, Camp 25, Simcoe, won both events in which he entered, the discus throw and the shot put. He had to forego the pole vault because of a ligament he sprained at the Toronto police games Saturday. Simcoe camp banked on him in the event.

Feature events of the meet were the three-mile run, won by Milt Wallace of Camp No. 25, and the finish of Gibson in the 880-yard run. Gibson, Camp No. 20, came in in a sprint to wipe out a 10-yard lead that Morey of Camp No. 25 had on him at the 660-mark.

Eden's Chances As P.M. Have Improved

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, July 20 — (CP). — Disappearance of Sir Samuel Hoare from the House of Commons enhances Anthony Eden's chance of becoming successor to Prime Minister Churchill as Leader of the Conservative Party.

While the British Ambassador to Spain, recently elevated to the peerage, was still an M.P., he had a strong following among some die-hard Tories who hoped he might emerge as a post-war leader of the party.

Mr. Eden, who has always been the popular choice to succeed Mr. Churchill, now more than ever before looms as Torydom's next champion.

Most recent addition to the Commons is Maj. F. W. Cundiff, Conservative, who defeated two other candidates in the Rusholme by-election. He polled 8,430 votes against 6,670 for H. Blomerley, Common Wealth, and 734 for C. J. Taylor, Independent.

Now that Mr. Churchill has lifted the veil from the flying bomb and its destination, members are seeking more concessions from him. With support from certain sections of the press, they are asking that the blackout be lifted or at least lessened, and that the ban on visits to south coast towns be raised.

There has been no hint as to what view the Government takes about the south coast, although restrictions have been lifted on visits to the south-west coast, but Home Secretary Herbert Morrison may ease the blackout to the extent of increasing the candle-power of the street lights. The Minister asked a member who wanted the blackout lifted "not to tempt" him.

In connection with those flying bombs, Capt. L. F. Plugge (Con Rochester) plans to ask the Prime Minister whether the pilotless plane is being considered for post-war activities, and whether plans are being made to develop it for sending mail over long distance routes.

Deer Is Seen

Gore's Landing, July 20 ((ENS)

A MOST unusual sight in this district, a deer roaming the countryside, was seen by Joseph Hilton Harris on the outskirts of the village as he drove from Gore's Landing to Bewdley yesterday.

Startled by the car, the deer bounded off into the woods, but confirmation of what Mr. Harris had seen was later provided by an American tourist, James Whitley, of Tanawanda, N.Y. Out fishing, Mr. Whitley saw the deer swimming in Rice Lake.

Soldiers' Leaves Not Sufficient Commons Told

BY DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 20 — (CP) — A plea for more frequent home leave for servicemen overseas, with the observation it would result in fewer broken marriages, was made in the British House of Commons by a member who by virtue of recent service in the Middle East spoke with the authority of first hand knowledge of what soldiers think and want.

"When a soldier goes abroad, five years seems an infinity and sometimes produces a sense of irresponsibility," said Col. R. S. Clark (Cons. East Grinstead). "The result is seen in two ways; cases of unfaithfulness at home and of men going astray."

The British qualifying period for leave is five years overseas service and Maj. Henderson, financial secretary, war office, said that period will be reduced "if it is at all practical."

"Unfortunately," he warned, "the position is going to get more, rather than less, difficult, because we shall shortly have to take into account the very large number of men sent overseas after the outbreak of war."

The Canadian counterpart to the British problem lies among men who enlisted at the outbreak of war and who came to Britain with the first contingent in December, 1939. Many of these men, most of them in Italy now with the 1st Division, have been away from their homes and families nearly five years.

Pro and Con

Home leave has always been a favorite off-hour discussion subject of Canadians in Italy. There have been strong representations made by chaplains of 1st Division battalions, with Maj. E. J. Baily, Winnipeg, of the Loyal Edmonton Regiment, an outspoken champion of the troops right to compassionate posting.

There are many arguments on both sides and the army has not been entirely deaf to the approaches. While army spokesmen have made no official reply to the pro-leave promulgators, their contention is that the present, when every man is needed for the final thrust, is not the time to make an issue of leaves.

Many soldiers, in letters to army newspapers, have lent support to this argument and some would honestly prefer to remain abroad until the job for which they enlisted is done.

"If I can't go home to stay I would rather not go home at all," is a comment frequently heard. "Separation is no fun, but a second parting would be even worse."

Soldiers who speak that way usually are men whose home ties have stood the strain of long separation. Their marriages were built on solid foundations and despite the grief of being parted from their wives and children, they can plan with confidence and hope for the years when they will be reunited.

Chaplains Sympathetic

Unfortunately all marriages have not been so successful and the succession of tragic incidents related by soldiers lends strong support to those who argue in favor of home leaves. Chaplains, closest counsellors of the troops, hear of these incidents more frequently than other officers and in consequence are more sympathetic..

There have been many suggestions for returning troops to Canada among them one that soldiers draw lots for the occasional vacancies which become available in ships or aircraft. Compassionate grounds are taken into consideration when soldiers are returned for special courses or as instructors.

Last month a large draft of Canadians returning home for compassionate reasons left Italy. Each battalion was given space for 10 or a dozen men on a ship carrying prisoners of war.

This was only a drop in the bucket, but if only a fraction of the distress and unhappiness which war separation causes is alleviated by the return of these men, the sponsors of home leave feel that something worthwhile will have been achieved.

A few weeks ago I flew to England from North Africa with a British gunner returning home on compassionate grounds. He had waited six weeks for air passage after receiving an ambiguous message which led him to believe that his wife was mentally deranged.

Married 10 years and father of three children, this Tommy said his wife had sufficient cause for going "queer" as he put it. She lost two brothers in the services and her home was destroyed by bombing.

"But I'm not worried," the soldier said. "I don't think their is anything the matter that my homecoming won't put right.

And there are many soldiers, not so fortunate, who feel the same way.

Quaker Representative Finds Plant Good Model For Europe

The newly appointed European representative of the Quaker Oats Company, Willem Adams, a citizen of the Netherlands, who has been in South America, Africa, and most of the countries of Europe, but has never visited Canada before, came to Peterborough this week to study the operations of the Dominion subsidiary. He will be in the city from three to four weeks. From what Mr. Adams has had a chance to see of Peterborough in the short time since he crossed the border from the United States, he has already been able to form the opinion that this is an "attractive city."

The post of European representatime, which is charged with the management of all Quaker Oats operations on the Continent from the moment the war ends and North American businesses are able to resume production and distribution abroad, is a newly created position in the foreign setup of the great cereal company. Formerly, as it was pointed out to the Examiner Wednesday, Quaker Oats had a European representative in each of the countries in which it did business; but henceforth, Mr. Adams will combine and consolidate operations from one head office, which will more than likely be situated in Rotterdam, site of one of the company's large plants before the war.

Mr. Adams, who has had an interesting career, explains that his appointment, which became effective June 1, is to a large extent a result of the realization on everyone's part that in the post-war world it will be more than useful, in fact almost essential, for American businesses with subsidiaries on the European continent to have natives of Europe who can speak the languages and are familiar with the conduct of business there to take charge of their foreign branches. "For years after the war, for instance, European governments are going to have a much larger hand in commercial affairs than was the case before," Mr. Adams says.

Good Pattern.

In regard to his visit to Peterborough, the new Quaker representative states that of all the company's plants the operation of this one here and the style of packaging in use come closest to what will obtain in Europe when the war is over.

Mr. Adams has had a long career with the Dutch Shell Oil, and in the years between 1935 and 1940 was managing director of its company in Yugoslavia. It was by mere coincidence that he had made arrangements to transfer to the United States in May, 1940, the month that the invasion of France by the Germans began. Shortly after arriving in the States, he became the commercial secretary of the Netherlands Embassy in Washington, and worked there for three years handling commercial and financial matters for his country.

Though perhaps better entitled to an opinion than the majority of people far from the battle-lines and not acquainted with the secrets of the high commands, Mr. Adams declines to comment on when the war might end or what will be the future of Germany or Europe. Adopting Will Rogers' famous phrase, he thinks that the statements of Gen. Montgomery and Gen. Eisenhower are as close as anyone can get to the truth just now.

Blueberry Crop Decidedly Light

According to most reports, the blueberry crop in Peterborough County this season has been decidedly light.

In some of the favorite spots very few berries are to be found, and Peterborough citizens who have made a trip north in search of the usually plentiful fruit have found that they have used their none-too-plentiful gasoline in vain.

Wild raspberries are in abundance in the southern part of the county, and pickers along every side road have done well. Further north, however, the long spell of dry weather has played havoc and the berries have dried on the bushes.

Driver Suffers Facial Injuries

Louis Corbin, Western avenue, sustained facial injuries when the car which he was driving south on Highway 7 got out of control and smashed into a guard rail and then into a bridge over a culvert near the Lindsay turn.

Melville McCartney, a passenger, escaped unhurt, but the automobile was almost completely wrecked in the crash.

Corbin's car veered to the side of the highway, struck a guard rail, knocking down three posts, and then collided with a cement bridge with considerable force.

Pte. Alfred Bailey Writes From Hospital

Now back in England after fighting in the first weeks of the invasion of France with the Glengarry Highlanders, Pte. Alfred Bailey has written home, in a letter dated June 25, informing his wife, who lives at 16 New Romaine street, that he was wounded in action. No word of the nature of his wounds has been received, and Mrs. Bailey is awaiting information from the Department of National Defence.

Pte. Bailey, who went overseas with the Highlanders in 1941 and was formerly employed at the C.G.E., wrote home to say that his unit went through hell in the Normandy fighting and that it was only by a miracle that he was live.

Douro Farmer Lost His Barn

LAKEFIELD, July 20.—(ENS).—Three horses, eight pigs and one brood sow was all that could be saved Wednesday night from the barn of Percy McFadden, Lot 16, Concession 7, Douro, a quarter-mile from the village, when lightning struck and burned the barn down to the foundations.

The disaster occurred about 10 p. m. and Mr. McFadden noticed the fire almost immediately after the lightning struck. He and his son, Donald, entering the barn, found one horse dead inside the door, apparently the victim of the lightning, but were able to lead the other three horses to safety. Rapidly spreading fire prevented the two, who worked alone at the job, from rescuing most of the rest of the contents; and also lost were five calves, 80 hens, two pigs and a brood sow, 55 tons of hay and a large part of the farm implements.

There was $1,300 of insurance on the barn, but the contents were not covered.

Saved Brother

Dexter, Ore., July 20 (AP)

ELEANOR PARKER, seven, tugtugged her eight-year-old brother, Stephen, to shore after he slipped into Lost Creek last night. Playmates swarmed around the rescued boy. Then they turned to Eleanor. She was gone. Her father, John Parker, recovered the girl's body from the same deep hole into which her brother had slipped.

WITH INVASION TROOPS — Gnr. W. J. A. McKee is now serving in France. He is the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. George A. McKee, and he enlisted at Kingston in May, 1940, and has been overseas since December of the same year. Prior to enlisting he assisted his father in a butcher business. His younger brother, Lance-Corporal Harry McKee, has been stationed at Camp Borden since July, 1942.

Peterborough People Prepared To Deal With Adolf Hitler

Judging from the opinions of the average man-in-the-street in Peterborough, a certain Adolph Hitler will never be presented the opportunity of becoming a social paragon in a neutral country, after being defeated on the battlefronts, such as Kaiser Wilhelm illustrated in World War 1.

In a series of interviews conducted along Main street today, this is the idea experssed by two out of three people, and although many weird, but strangely appropriate methods of torture were prescribed for the ill-fated Nazi boss, most people carefully advanced intelligent and mature suggestions, designed to put Mr. Schickelgruber out of circulation for a long, long time.

"Now that's a difficult question, when you consider almost every type of torture you can think of is too good for him", said Miss Muriel Greatrix fifth form student at Collegiate.

"If I was chosen chief fate-decider for the man who plunged the world into war, believe me there'd be no exiles for him. First, I'd have him take a tour through all the conquered countries, and let him see what suffering he's caused in places like Greece and Poland. Then, a court made up of representatives from all the countries he's overrun, would meet, and I think they'd know best how to punish Mr. Hitler. In any case, he shouldn't be allowed to dash into a neutral country like the last one did," she said.

Possible Hideout

The tiny Swiss republic, entirely surrounded by contries under which Germany has imposed iron-bound control, is thought by many people to be a probable place for Hitler to scurry, when Allied soldiers begin marching through Unter Den Linden.

"If he goes to Swizterland, it leaves only one thing to be done", said H. R. Kingdon, barber, "and that is he should be brought right back, regardless of any neutrality laws, to face punishment for his crimes. He's a murderer, and he should be executed. He should be executed for the murder of those fliers who scaped from a prison camp if nothing else. I think he should be tried by a court, too, because a trial will disclose evidence of more crimes than we know of now, and so, will make certain his execution."

While in the heat and fervor of a deadly war, many people lost all track of perspective and at the present, while people are likely to say, "Hitler should be shot", after the war, those same people, lulled by a blissful feeling of peace, are just as apt to set themselves against the executions of men they feel, have just as much right as any to live.

That's the opinion of an engineer, who says he's always been against capital punishment.

"Hitler should be confined to a prison, not exiled, but imprisoned", he said, "and because we didn't know the true story of what goes on inside Festung Europa, pinning the war guilt on any group of men will be a risky chore. Then perhaps Adolph isn't responsible for his deeds, he might be insane."

Soldiers Families Ready

Canadians, with brothers, sons, sweethearts and fathers being killed and wounded by Hitler's war, aren't going to feel any too affectionate toward the Austrian-born paperhanger after the war, thinks Miss Audrey Brioux, waitress, who has two brothers in uniform, one fighting in France.

"If Hitler should be sent to Canada for a while, people who have had loved ones killed or maimed by his war, will know best how to dispose of him" she said. He should suffer the same way he has made thousands of other people suffer, but here in Canada, we'd know what to do with him".

An insane asylum seems to many people, to be the proper setting for Adolph to spend his declining years, —at least that's the way Bruce Hillier, book-keeper, thinks.

"To my way of thinking, that man should be confined to an insane asylum. Killing him might be a bright idea now during the war, but under conditions after the war, people have a tendency to be less harsh with war criminals", he said.

To accurately describe a punishment for Hitler, the press would have to lower itself to obscenity, thinks Robert Sager, clothing merchant.

"You couldn't print what I think about him, and he won't get a chance to exile, if any of our boys catch him," he said.

"There's only one punishment for a murderer, and he is a murderer of those Canadians fliers who escaped the prison camp, and that is execution."

Among those interviewed, was a quiet looking man mentally waltzing to the strains of Straus emanating from his office radio.

"Well, what do you think should be done with Mr. Hitler?" we inquired.

"To be brutally frank, why don't they force him to listen to some American swing music", he said, adding, that as a precautionary measure, he should be afterwards shot.

TAKES NO CHANCES

There is at least one little girl in the city who apparently takes to heart the instructions of her parents not to cross streets alone and obeys the order to the very letter. She was seen at the corner of Simcoe and Water streets hailing passers-by and asking if they intended going to the other side of the street. After a couple of futile approaches to hurried pedestrians, she "picked up" an obliging gentleman who went out of his way to take her by the hand and escort her half way across. From there she launched out on her own and gaily skipped the rest of the way to the opposite curb.—G. W.

Movies Make Books More Popular

The books most in demand at the Public Library during the past month range from religious studies to popular fiction and from current history to blood-chilling mysteries, according to the librarians and workers at the city book-shelf.

Among the fiction, "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn," by Betty Smith, still is holding first place in demand, and a large list of people waiting for the book is on file. Compared with this, "Gone With the Wind," a relative old-timer, is still circulating nobly, and although four or five copies of Margaret Mitchell's portrait of the American Civil War have been worn out through usage, people still want the book, and rare is the day when it can be found on the bookshelves.

Somerset Maughn's "The Razor's Edge," "The Patriot" by Pearl S. Buck, "So Little Time," by J. D. Marquand, and Ernest Hemmingway's "For Whom the Bell Tolls" are books that still circulate quite freely, although slightly older than others in the library.

Religious Books

A back-to-religion movement may be indicated by the rush for Rev. Dr. J. D. Smart's new study of religion, "What a Man Can Believe," although, library officials pointed out, there is usually a good demand for books on religious subjects. "The Robe," by Lloyd C. Douglas, did a tremendous business, even though essentially it was a religious book.

There is always a great demand for light novels, mysteries and westerns, according to library officials. Agatha Christie's latest chiller, "Toward Zero," is causing a stampede to the library, demonstrating the popularity of the well-known "whodunits."

Support From Movies

Movies, it was pointed out, often have an enormous effect on the popularity of books. As an example, some time ago a book was released entitled "Uneasy Freehold", and few if any copies of the mystery were in demand. However, recently a film, based on the book, was produced, and with the title changed to "The Uninvited", did a booming business. Since then, the library said, "Uneasy Freehold" has become one of the most popular books in the library. The same theory was true of Eve Curie's "Madame Curie", and more recently, "The Story of Dr. Wassel". Incidentally, Eve Curie's "A Journey Among Warriors" is still on the most-in-demand brackets, too.

Current history and novels of this war are going well also, and there has been many requests for Durante's "U.S.S.R.", "Hotel Berlin" by Vicki Baum, and "The Curtain Rises" by Quentin Reynolds.

Other books in demand are: "Here Is Your War", based on dispatches by Ernie Pyle, famed war correspondent for International News Service; "Pioneers, O Pioneers", an Englishman's first impressions of America, by Hillary St. George Saunders; "The Valley of Decision", by Marsha Davenport, and Carlson's "Under Cover".

Librarians said many people do judge books by their covers, and no matter how interesting a book may be, some people refuse to take it out unless the cover is immaculate, and the title attractive. And as for ages, well there just isn't any way of predicting what a certain person will wish to read. A sweet old lady is just as liable to come in and demand a blood-curdling thriller as a man is likely to chose something by Kathleen Norris, or Faith Baldwin, library workers said.

HIGHLANDER WOUNDED — Pte. Alfred Bailey of the S.D. and G. Highlanders, has written his wife that he was wounded in action a short time before June 25. No further details are available about his injuries, but Mrs. Bailey, who lives at 16 New Romaine street, said she did not believe his wounds were serious.

Council Studies Administration Of Verdun, Que.

Verdun, Quebec, with a population of 73,500, is administered by a mayor and eight aldermen, and executive city manager, Alderman J. E. Sullivan reported to the council this week from an enquiry into municipal forms and methods on a recent trip to Montreal and Quebec.

"J. R. French, city manager, told me that their snow loader and blower for removing surplus snow from the streets has proved satisfactory in every way and is considered by the council to be one of their best investments," Alderman Sullivan commented in a written statement of which copies were supplied to all the members.

"When they come to a street where there is vacant property adjacent thereto, the snow can be blown onto this property, saving the expense of drawing the snow away. I was told the cost of the machine was $15,000."

Verdun uses small tractor plows for removing snow from its sidewalks. I was told the city has a post-war program amounting to more than $1,000,000. One project they have in view is the widening of their main street.

25-Mill Rate.

The assessment of Verdun is $50,000,000. The general rate is 15 mills plus 10 mills for school purposes. This 25 mills is levied on all taxpayers, excepting the industries. To the industries there is charged 12 mills as school rates. The total of taxes for schools is pooled and distribution is made to Protestant, Catholic and Jewish schools on the basis of school attendance.

In their health department they have a qualified doctor and six qualified public health nurses on their staff. They have no pension scheme but are working on one.

Mr. French, the city manager, is paid $8,200 a year; Mayor Wilson receives $1,200; four members of the council $800; and the other four $500 a year.

"It might be explained that the four members receiving $800 each are known as the executive of the Council and they must be property holders. The four others need not be property owners to qualify as members of the council.

The Fire Chief is paid $3,700, and Chief of Police $3,500. Firemen get $100 a year more than policemen. The city clerk's salary is $3,700; auditor (chartered accountant, part time), $4,000; city solicitor (part time) $2,500.

Churchill Club Sounds Call To Further Aid

A good leader in times of stress and danger might very well be considered a real blessing for then it is that the need of such is the greatest if the danger is to be overcome and its perils averted. Out of a crisis comes both danger and opportunity from both of which was born the great leadership of Prime Minister Winston Churchill in leading the British Commonwealth of Nations from the darkness of mid 1940 to the light as it prevails in 1944.

In tribute to the work of this great man the Peterborough Churchill Club was formed in April, 1941, its avowed purpose being to give assistance to the sufferers from air raid attacks over Britain through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, a work that was dear to the heart of him in whose name they have since operated.

Working under a name that should give much inspiration in these times of stress, it is only natural that all would wish to make the enterprise a succesful one, and this has found expression in a total of gifts that has now well exceeded the $1,000 mark. In very recent times and particularly since the accelerated attacks on Britain through the robot or flying bombs have commenced to cause considerable loss of life and damage to property, those who have been responsible for the formation and operation of the club have felt that another call to service should be made, and meet with the same ready response as that received in the early days of its operation.

Four U. S. A. New Members

While on a business trip to the south of the border, one of the committee members had only to explain the principles for which the fund operated, the result of which brings four new members into the fold, in the persons of Mr. and Mrs. Sam F. Newkirk, Jr., of Elizabeth, N.J., and Mr. and Mrs. Jas. E. Gibson of Charleston, S.C. the former being Superintendant of the Waterworks system in Elizabeth, and at present the president of the American Waterworks Association, while Mr. Gibson is General Manager of the Waterworks at Charleston.

With American currency at a premium, their memberships meant an extra 40 cents to the fund, in addition to which two other new members Garth Choate and Jim Choate are recorded to-day, with renewals also being made by A. J. Bourne, Mrs. G. S. Mathews, C. J. Ray, Mrs. Ed. Riley, and Lieut.-Col. J. Turnbull.

There is a considerable membership recorded among the employees at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. plant, and H. A. Cranfield has again kindly offered his services to accept renewal fees and new memberships for the purpose of assisting in the increased need to assist the bomb victims in Britain at this time, to which a general response would be most welcome indeed.

St. Andrew's Girl Guides

The Peterborough Girl Guides have done a notable work in this city in many branches of endeavour on behalf of the war effort, among which the fund has had quite a fair share in various ways, and now a urther proof of their continued interest is in evidence, through a nice gift of $10.00 from the First St. Andrew's Company, through Miss Gladys Bridcott, their captain which is also listed to-day.

Peterborough Boy Shares Trench With Monkey Pet

BY LOUIS HUNTER

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, July 20 — (CP) — Smiles from Normandy:

Soldiers of a Western Canada Highland Battalion believe it pays to advertise. On a side of a German Panther tank lying disabled beside a road near a small Norman village they've hung a crudely painted sign which proclaims: "This tank was destroyed by a Piat gun of ... Regiment." .... The tank was knocked out by a gunner who lay doggo in a ditch until the tank was almost upon him when he fired and stopped it dead in its tracks.

Bug Hunter

The Germans don't know it yet, but among the invading hosts was a cute little ringtail monkey from Africa which touched down on the Norman beaches about D-day plus 1½ .... Young "Mick" monk is the protege of Capt. George Craft of Montreal, the medical officer with an anti-tank regiment. Mick came ashore inside Capt. Craft's tunic. He is as tame as a kitten and scarcely much bigger and if fond of rum, gum, toffee and gin. He doesn't like women and has no slit trench of his own, but seems to know when its wise to take shelter and often does when the ack ack guns are firing.

L. Bdr. Hugh Abbott of Peterborough, has found a good use for Mick. Whenever Hugh has to spend any length of time in his slit trench he first sends Mick down to eat up the bugs and then is able to rest comfortably himself in the shelter of his trench free from vermin.

Reunion Near

Cpl. Tom Wild of the Canadian Provost Corps and his brother, Spr. Lawrence Wild of the Engineers, who come from London, Ont., met for the first time in a year in the ruins of a farmhouse in shattered Carpiquet Village. A third brother, Robert, is with the artillery in Italy and Tom Wild said: "We are working down that way for a reunion."

Tanker's Chronicle

Since June 10 gunners of a Canadian anti-tank regiment haven't suffered from lack of news of other fronts as other troops have. They have their own paper—"Anti-Tankard," published by the regimental intelligence officer of Toronto, later by Adjutant Capt. Parker Booth and now by the educational officer and Bdr. Larry Veck, also of Toronto, who got the job because of his knowledge of shorthand which enables him to take down the BBC news broadcasts.

Said Booth: "Even 'Div' gets its news from us."

The "Anti-Tankard" is mimeographed, but because of the shortage of paper its circulation is limited and when paper is particularly short the officer makes the rounds of different positions in the evening and reads it to the gunners.

The officer commanding this regiment is a colonel from Hamilton, and his second-in-command is Maj. Bill McMullen of Toronto.

Sniper in Barrel

Pte. Charles Thomson, a P. R. O., tells of one sniper in the Caen area who had been hiding in a cider barrel. "He had 13 victims chalked up on the inside of the barrel when we got him," said Thomson. The sniper was a 19-year-old Hungarian.

O'Connor Commands Tank Formations

NEW YORK, July 20—(CP)—The BBC said todya that the commander of British and Canadian tank formations in the Caen area was Lt.-Gen. Sir Richard Nugent O'Connor, tank expert, who was captured by the Germans in Libya and returned to Britain last January after escaping.

The broadcast noted that O'Connor, after being captured in Libya, had been held for two years in Italy as a prisoner of war.

Churchill And Staff To Visit Australia

NEW YORK, July 20 — (AP) — Prime Minister Peter Fraser of New Zealand announced today that "Winston Churchill with his chiefs of staff will visit Australia and New Zealand at the end of the war in Europe, to plan the final defeat of Japan," the B.B.C. said.

"Mr. Fraser added that later Mr. Roosevelt and the United States war leaders will take part in Pacific area talks with the combined chiefs," added the broadcast.

Church Is Filled For Funeral Service Of Buddy Lamb

MILLBROOK, July 20—(ENS).—The funeral was held on Wednesday, of Norman Beatty (Buddy) Lamb, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Lamb, 6th Line of Cavan, age 4 years and 10 months, whose death occurred on Sunday, July 16.

The private service was held at the home at 2:30 and the public service at St. John's Anglican Church, Ida, at 3 p.m. It was conducted by Rev Mr. Chevis, rector of Cavan parish and the Venerable Archdeacon William Simpson, the former rector.

The church was filled to capacity and many waited outside the church. As the funeral arrived at the church the bell tolled and Mrs. L. A. Winslow at the pipe organ ployed softly "Peace, Perfect Peace." Appropriately the little white casket was placed under the large memorial window depicting the Good Shepherd. The opening hymn was "God sees the little sparrow fall," followed by the 23rd Psalm, read responsively, led by Archdeacon Simpson. The lesson, read by Rev. Mr. Chevis, was taken from II Samuel, chapter 12, 16-23, the story of Davids grief over the death of his son, and from Matthew 18, 1-6, the story of Christ placing the little child in the midst.

The address was given by Rev. Mr. Chevis. He said: "We dare to speak on such an occasion as this, because God is sending a message of comfort and hope, since we believe that this little one is now beholding the face of his Saviour and has been taken into the safe keeping of God's eternal love.

"He has been called away earlier, but we are assured of his perfect happiness and contentment. This makes it possible to offer the sympathy to those who were so deeply bereaved."

Archdeacon Simpson took the prayers, and closed by repeating the hymn "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" after which Mrs. Winslow played softly while the large congregation filed slowly past the open casket, lined with white and gold blossoms.

Pall-bearers were four cousins: Pte. Norman Budd, Port Hope, William White, Port Hope, Orland Lamb, Sunderland, and Karle Fee of Millbrook.

The gave was covered with flowers, and the committal service intensified the atmosphere of deep emotion which had been noticeable throughout the entire service, many being moved to tears.

Floral tributes were from the following: the Mother and Father, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Lamb; Mr. and Mrs. Beatty Fee, St. John's Sunday School, Ida; Mr. Fox, owner of Ontario Sawmill Company, Millbrook; Employees of Ontario Sawmill Company; Mr. and Mrs. Hugh, Mr. and Mrs. William Budd, Mr. and Mrs. White of Port Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. James Jones of Millbrook, Miss Annie Sisson, Mr. and Mrs. James Fee, Byran Vance of Ida, Mr. and Mrs. Jocelin and family of Grimsby, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Lane of Bethany, Miss Mary Tinney, Mr. and Mrs. J. Burns of Cavan, Mr. and Mrs. J. Miltz of Toronto, Mr. and Mrs. Ward, Mont Joli, Quebec; Maude and Bertha Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. Puttile of Peterborough, Flt.-Lt. Buddy Fee, St. Thomas; Mrs. Kelly of Lindsay, and Wilfred and Edna Laugh of Malton. Telegraph of sympathy was received from Staff-Sgt. Hawke.

Sgt.-Major Kent represented the Midland Reserve Regiment and gave the salute.

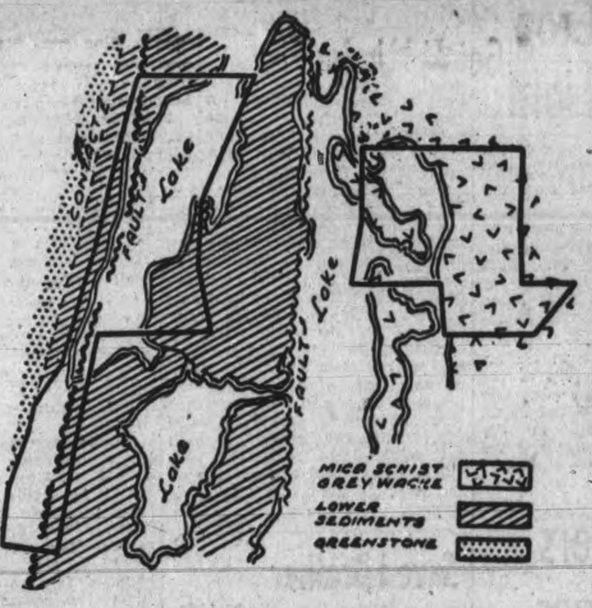
"Right ON A Main Break"

"THE TWO GROUPS OF CLAIMS ARE WELL LOCATED ON OR NEAR THE FAULTED ZONE TRENDING FROM SOUTH TO NORTH ALONG THE YELLOWKNIFE VALLEY"
—reports Dr. J. F. Wright, Geologist



Geology of the Fleetwood Properties on a Regional Yellowknife Break

Map drawn by W. Langridge Jr., from data supplied by Dr. J. F. Wright, indicates favorable geology typical of Yellowknife "finds". Note particularly the line of "break" through the west group.

FRESH from personal inspection of the two groups of Fleetwood Yellowknife claims, Dr. J. F. Wright, consulting geologist, states (July 6, 1944) in regards to the faulted zone along the valley of West Walsh and Banting Lakes: —"This is regarded as an important fault or break with 2½ miles of displacement indicated—as emphasised, the formations bordering major regional breaks may be crossed by subsidiary structures carrying gold ores and the ground along or close to one of the main breaks of the field, therefore, is regarded as attractive for exploration."

FLEETWOOD YELLOWKNIFE'S position—right on the main regional break—gives these properties an importance which cannot be stressed too strongly in the light of the extensive efforts now in progress in this district.

The two properties are only a couple of hours by canoe or motor from the town of Yellowknife, supply hub of the area. Accessibility helps fast action!

The Active Part of the Yellowknife this Season

IN HIS preliminary report (July 5, 1944) Dr. J. F. Wright, made this significant statement:—

"Frobisher Exploration, Bear, Homer Yellowknife, Tiffany Yellowknife, and other companies have groups along this belt and it will be the active part of the Yellowknife camp during the present season".

This statement, we think should be extremely meaningful to shareholders and prospective shareholders of Fleetwood since it lends assurance to the view that earlier and more definite developments of vital importance may be expected in relation to properties in this particular zone of the camp than may occur in other areas of the now very widely staked Yellowknife district.

THE PLAN. Under the direction of Dr. Wright, who will have charge of field work, it is the company's plan to set up a program for the early detailed prospecting and exploration of its very favourably located ground, so that full advantage may be taken of activities which will be carried on concurrently by the several "good neighbours" of Fleetwood.

Seymour Crops Damaged In Bad Storm

CAMPBELLFORD, Ont., July 20—(CP).—The worst electrical storm of the season swept over the eastern part of Northumberland county last night, including a cloudburst of hail stones as big as marbles.

Standing crops of farm land were levelled to the ground and power lines and transformers were blown out, leaving many districts in darkness. Motor traffic was completely tied up during the storm.

Lightning struck a large barn on the farm of Edward Quinn in Seymour township, starting a fire which destroyed the building, a team of horses, several calves and the season's crop of hay.

Masonic Activities Benefit Communities

TORONTO, July 20—(CP)—Benefits to all communities as a result of Masonic activities were discussed by Grand Master T. C. Wardley of Elora, Ont., in opening the 89th annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario here Wednesday.

Tribute was paid to Grand Secretary Ewart Dixon of Hamilton and R. B. Dargavel, Past Grand Master for excellent service. Sir William Mulock, Col. E. S. Wigle of Windsor and A. H. Von Gunter of Chatham were also honored.

Mr. Wardley expressed "the deep sense of gratification felt for the manner in which all Masons are assuming their responsibilities of citizenship to a fine and full degree."

An increase of 1,552 in Masonic membership during the year was reported.

Grants of $3,000 to the Canadian Red Cross, $1,000 to Chinese Relief, $500 to Greek Relief and $500 to the Navy League of Canada were approved.

Germans Claim 2nd Division Now In France

LONDON, July 20.—(CP).—The German D.N.B. Agency, in a wholly unconfirmed reference to the Normandy fighting, claimed today that "new Allied formations brought up to the front include a replenished Canadian 2nd Division which carried out the raid on Dieppe."

This claim was made in a broadcast referring to the American general, Lt.-Gen. George S. Patton, Jr., which said:

"Further divisions of Patton's army, which consists of Canadians and Americans, are now being engaged on the invasion front. . . ."

Claiming the presence in action of specific Allied units is nothing new for the Germans, who early in the invasion reported the Canadian 2nd Division was in action and later said it was the 3rd Division.

Major-General Keller's 3rd Division is the only Canadian force announced officially to have been in the Normandy fighting.

In the Dieppe raid of Aug. 19, 1942, the Dominion's forces were drawn from the Royal Regiment of Canada, Toronto; the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry, the Essex Scottish Regiment, Windsor, Ont.; the Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Canada, Winnipeg; Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal, Montreal; the South Saskatchewan Regiment and the 14th Canadian Army Tank Battalion, Calgary.

Berlin has been repeatedly saying since the Normandy landing that an army under Gen. Patton was waiting in Southern England for an opportune moment to cross the channel.

Axis Would Like To Know Where President Is

LONDON, July 20 — (AP) — The authoritative British Press Association, commenting on Axis surmises as to President Roosevelts movements, said to-day he "is not at present planning a visit to Britain."

The President has been away from Washington on a trip, the agency said, but "on this occasion his holiday is understood to be simply in order to brace him for the coming Presidential election fight."

Without confirmation from any source, the Nazi-controlled Paris radio said last night that "President Roosevelt who has left Washington, will visit Rome."

In another apparent "feeler," the German-controlled Brussels radio to-day said that President Roosevelt is expected in London soon to confer with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

"The President may then proceed to Normandy and will eventually meet Marshal Stalin," it said.

Soldiers' Dependents Get Aid Under Bill

OTTAWA, July 20 — (CP) — An official source, explaining provisions of the government bill providing for payment of family allowances at a press conference yesterday, noted that the measure would not come into effect until July 1, 1945, and said:

"Of course, we hope by that time to have the soldiers home." He hurried, however, to add:

"If they aren't and I don't think many of them will be, then their dependents will receive more money under the bill."

(In the Commons June 27 Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he personally was the one who fixed the date and he did so because he did not propose to do as a former Conservative Prime Minister had done and have cheques going out to elecors on the eve of an election. He said an election would take place before the bill became effective.)

1,000 Used Car Tires Located In Toronto

TORONTO, July 20 — (CP) — Royal Canadian Mounted Police officers yesterday discovered 1,000 used automobile tires and 200 gallons of gasoline while searching an Etobicoke Township farm. The tires were found hidden in tons of hay in a large frame barn. The gasoline was found hidden in a small garage on the property.

According to police, the owner of the farm, a well-known businessman, claims legal possession of both the tires and the gasoline. He contends that the gasoline was used in his trucking business.

Ex-Convict Guards Fired From Prison

WINNIPEG, July 20 — (CP) — The Winnipeg Free Press said toda that guards at Stony Mounta Penitentiary have been discharge following discovery they were once inmates of Kingston Penitentiary.

The Free Press said their prison records were found following trouble with some of the prisoners recently transferred from Kingston. Apparent friendliness between one of the guards and these prisoners had led to an investigation, it added.

The paper said it is understood that following discharge of the two guards trouble with prisoners at Stony Mountain was diminished.

Officer And Ship Hit Both Back On Runs

LONDON, July 20—(CP Cable)—Lieut. Charles Bond of Toronto, and his "L.C.I." named "Lucky Canuck" are both ready to go back to sea now, Bond with a shell hole in his shoulder and the infantry landing craft with a patched shell hole in her bow.

Bond earned himself the nickname "Taximan" on invasion day when he returned from the Normandy beach, walked up the main street of an English port with a shell-torn shoulder and calmly hailed a cabbie to take him to hospital.

Now he is better, though he still has a few shell splinters in his body, and plans to carry on a regular shuttle service with the "Lucky Canuck" between the Normandy beaches and Britain.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 21

ACCORDING to the ruling astral influences this day may develop a sudden and quite unforseen opening to make astonishing headway in an adventure which might possibly have spectacular results. There might be radical departure from old ideas, processes or objectives, but in the about face there is high promise of progress and perhaps public or community cooperation or approval. A certain timidity or fear to attack an out of the ordinary problem should be routed with force and determination. Grasp the opening with astute and swift action and with publicity and sensational drama, for startling returns.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for the sudden advent of an unusual proposition or opportunity for attaining possibly a sensational coup in a field involving novelty, drastic change, publicity, or some sort of public or community approval or celebration of high drama or thrilling adventure. Innovation, originality, independence and courage are demanded for best performance, although in a way the tendency may be to be reluctant and hesitant. Move forward with courage and daring to win happiness and gratification, in business, or romance.

A child born on this day may have exceptional skill that may call for change, originality and independence to assure it public acclaim. It must conquer all mental and emotional timidity and doubts for best development and a happy career.

. . S. T. Luther Weds Doris E. Withers

Mark Street United Church was the setting for a pretty wedding today, when Doris Edith Withers, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Withers, Downer's Corners, became the bride of LAC. John Robert Luther, R.C.A.F., son of Cpl. S. T. Luther, 57 St. James street. Rev. E. W. Rowland officiated, against a background of fern. Harry Northrop was at the organ and accompanied Miss Betty Craig when she sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was becomingly gowned in floor-length white satin and lace, with a sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves, coming to a point over the hand. Her finger-tip veil of white embroidered net fell from a matching coronet, caught with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Ivy Withers was her sister's bridesmaid, in floor-length white sheer, a shoulder-length veil caught with pink flowers, and carrying pink roses. Miss Marlene Tippett, niece of the bride, was a dainty flower girl in floor-length blue taffeta, with a fitted waist, full skirt, a matching bonnet with pink ties, and carrying a nosegay of matching sweet peas.

Cpl. Ted O'Toole, R.C.A.F., was best man, and H. C. Tippett and A. B. Blondin were ushers.

At the reception held following the ceremony at Hooper's Palm Rooms, the bride's mother received the guests in a blue and white sheer frock, white accessories, and a corsage of red roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in green Paisley silk, with brown hat and accessories, asd a corsage of Talisman roses.

For a wedding trip to Toronto, Winnipeg and Banff, the bride chose a gold linen dress, white hat and accessories. LAC. Luther and Mrs. Luther will make their home at 517 13th avenue, east, Calgary, Alta.

The groom's gift to the bride was a pendant, and the bridesmaid a compact, while the flower girl's gift was a dressed baby doll. The best man and ushers received wallets.

ENQUIRY COLUMN

QUESTION: Can you tell an old bachelor how to make a sauce called Bordeiates—I think that is the way it is spelled.

I lunched at the ——— and had minced steak with this sauce and it was most appetizing, and I would be very glad if you can give me instructions how to make it. Instructions will have to be very detailed, as I am a duffer at anything in the cooking line I am not sure of the spelling—it may be Bordelates. —Charles C.

ANSWER: The sauce you refer to is likely Bordelaise sauce— so named because it calls for Bordeaux wine.

If I were a bachelor I think I would consider it a great deal of trouble to make, but I think I can describe a good Bordelaise Sauce, but a simplified version of the genuine thing.

Genuine Bordelaise Sauce.

Two tablespoons melted butter, 1 slice onion, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup brown stock (made from boiling beef bones or beef with various vegetables), 1 cup Bordeaux wine. Melt the butter, and add the onion and brown it. Remove the onion and stir in flour blending well. When brown, add stock and wine. Season to taste with salt and pepper. Cook until it boils and is smooth.

Mock Bordelaise Sauce.

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 1 teaspoon very finely grated onion and 2½ tablespoons flour and blend; add 2 cups boiling water, 1 Oxo cube, and ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon sherry flavoring (or in place of 1 cup of water add 1 cup Canadian sherry) and stir until thick.

QUESTION: Do you know a method of drying rhubarb? My grandmother used to have it thin as macaroni and then you put it in water when you needed it.

I would also like a recipe for a cheese souffle. I have eaten different ones, but I could never make one like I had at a friend's for supper. It had raised to the top of the casserole and was deep in color.

I hope this is not asking too much.—Mrs. M. McM.

ANSWER: It is impossible to keep a genuine souffle from "falling" when it is taken from the oven. However, there are several ways of overcoming this — the breadcrumbs in the following recipe being the simplest way I know.

Cheese Soufle with Crumbs.

One to 1½ cups grated cheese, 1 cup milk, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 tablespoons flour, 3 egg yolks, 3 egg whites, ½ to 1 cup soft bread crumbs. Melt the butter, stir in the flour, blend, stir in the milk until thick; remove from heat and add the cheese, stir it in well, then stir in the yolks, being sure they are well mixed. Beat the whites stiff and fold them in then fold in the bread crumbs. Now for flavoring you need some salt to taste, and to get the deep color you mention might add up to ½ teaspoon paprika. This would be added to the flour before stirring it into the butter. Pour prepared souffle into buttered baking dish and stand in large pan containing warm water and bake at 325 degrees Fahr. for 50 to 60 minutes.

Drying Rhubarb.

Wash choice stalks of small rhubarb and dry it. Cut into inch pieces. Blanch by letting stand in active steam in steamer for from 4 to 5 minutes, or by immersing in boiling hot water for 1½ minutes. Pat the rhubarb dry after blanching and draining. Place on trays or racks with removable wire trays and cover with cheesecloth. Place in oven at 200 degrees Fahr., having door closed for 15 minutes, then open door 1 inch until temperature goes down to 150 degrees Fahr. and hold at this temperature for 3 hours, then open the door a little and turn up heat to keep the temperature goes down to 150 degrees Fahr and hold at this temperature for 3 hours, then open door a little and turn up heat to keep temperature at 150 degrees Fahr. for 2 more hours, when the rhubarb should be thoroughly dry. It is imperative to have the door open though, for there must be a curent of air during the latter part of drying to dry out all the air in the oven. The rhubarb should be moved about at least twice during the dying process, but should always be left in a single layer. Rhubarb should be leathery and pliable, not brittle, when done. Do not store for several days, but empty back and forth between containers four or five times. Then pack in air-tight cans or hang in cloth bag in dry attic, or keep in paraffin-coated paper containers. Soak at least 4 hours or overnight before using.

St. John's Choir Holds Picnic At Nicholls Oval

St. John's Church choir picnic was held on Wednesday afternoon at Nicholls Oval, games of cricket and softball forming the major part of the entertainment. When overcast clouds declared the approaching storm, all adjourned to the Parish Hall, where supper was served, catered for by T. H. Hooper & Sons.

A program of sports supervised by A. Bacon and V. Coleman took place for prizes donated by C. K. Lech, P. E. Moore, K. G. Lech, W. C. Hughes, A. Bacon. First prize winners in races for boys were Terence Chapman, Jack Adams, and Roger Hendren, while John Haugh, Gerald Crouter, and Ian Penglase were awarded second prizes in each event. In the women's sports event Mrs. E. Brown secured the first prize, and Miss E. Wagstaff the second, while in the men's event V. Coleman came in first, followed by W. J. Dyer in second place.

A novel feature as a mixed event with women and men participating in musical chairs to determine who could remain the longest. Prizes went to E. Brown in first place, and Miss E. Wagstaff, who w[illegible] ousted in the final tussle by t[illegible] former, as awarded second prize.

This is the first event of this nature held by the choir in the past four years, due to the spirit of the times, and all members enjoyed themselves to the limit.

Women Vigilantes Plan To Better Moral Welfare

WOODBRIDGE, England, July 20 — (CP) — The campaign for moral welfare among the young womenfolk of this Suffolk town is in full swing. The only thing is that in its initial phases the campaign has been without result, the reason being that there hasn't been any immorality discovered by the women vigilantes.

After setting up their organization the vigilantes made their initial patrol and reported it went off without incident.

They went around the town's pubs and motion picture houses and up and down the quiet lanes where young love might flourish in the summer evening, and found nothing to complain of whatever. But being women of determination they announced they would continue the patrol, next time choosing a later hour.

The whole thing started a little while ago when a dozen women of this little town enrolled themselves as members of a local "save-the-girls-from-themselves" patrol and drew up a rota whereby every week-end—and perhaps oftener— two of them will together go the rounds in Woodbridge and keep a motherly eye on the young girls.

The first experimental patrol was from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m., but it failed to turn up one case of a damsel in distress. But that, in the view of the vigilantes, is not because there are no distressful damsels; it is because the patrol chose the wrong time. The next one is to be from 10 p.m. to 11 p.m.

The First Patrol.

Two of the women who went on the first patrol are Mrs. Gibbs of Edwin Avenue and Mrs. Oxborrow of Hasketon Road.

"We walked more than a couple of miles," Mrs. Oxborrow said. "We visited the river bank and other places where we thought our services might be needed, but there was nothing to do. Obviously we should have started after the public houses closed."

"Some of the young girls here need to be saved from themselves," she added. "If I am on duty no young girl in trouble will appeal to me in vain."

Chief of the vigilantes is the wife of Rev. L. Juby, a Methodist minister. Miss G. M. Wilby of Capel St. Mary, organizing secretary of the Suffolk Welfare Association and the woman behind the scheme, is not going on patrol herself because she has so many other duties.

Here are some of the things the vigilantes hope to be able to do for the girls in distress: Escort them safely home if they are appealed to; have a tactful word with parents; report bad cases to police.

"We are not snoopers," said Miss Wilby. "We have no intention of interfering but the very young girls need somebody to advise them, or come to their aid in difficult circumstances."

The black frock has a tunic top, and a splash of appliqued roses and petals on one side; the fedora has a peekaboo brim; the gloves to match applique are pale pink satin.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

PETAL TOUCH FOR BLACK—What do they wear when they hit the bright spots in the big city? Puk Paaris' answer is pictured above, as she was seen on the St. Regis roof when she came to dine one humid evening. Obviously, the sophisticated black frock, plain except for its shower of print fabric roses over one shoulder, might have been put on at five o'clock in readiness for dinner hours later. That's a good choice which helps solve the luggage problem of travellers in these porterless days. Double-duty fashions are worth their weight in carrying, to be sure.

Apple Pancake Delicacy For Exciting New Dessert

Thanks very much, you people, for another perfect alibi for crossing the border. I have to go and see the world so I can find out what they're getting to eat these days.

A genuine cheese cake and Henrici's apple pancake highlighted two meals I'll never forget, and these two sensations are now yours for the reading and executing.

The cheese cake looks like a fine-textured sponge cake that didn't rise quite high enough, and when you taste it it has a sponge cake texture, but the addition of cream or cottage cheese to the batter gives it a flavor not of this earthy world.

The apple pancake is the biggest one you ever imagined—bigger. It is the size and shape of a large skillet. Evidently one diner is supposed to eat the whole thing as his main course. For our part it was ample dessert for six of us.

Cheese Cake

One-half cup melted butter, 2 cups swieback crumbs, ½ cup icing sugar (1 teaspoon cinnamon is optional), 4 eggs, ¾ cup granulated sugar, ¼ cup lemon juice, rind ½ lemon grated, ⅛ teaspoon each vanilla, and salt, 1 cup cream or top milk, 2 cups white cream cheese or cottage beaten fine, ¼ cup flour. Mix together very well, the butter, 1 cup of the crumbs, icing sugar and cinnamon. Separate the egg yolks and whites. Combine yolks, granulated sugar and ½ cup water. Cook this yolk, mix in double boiler, stirring constantly, until mixture coats spoon. Remove from heat and stir in lemon rind, lemon juice, salt and vanilla. Beat whites stiff and stir the cream into them. Blend the cheese with the flour and add it to the cream. Combine the liquid mixtures, and stir the crumb mixture into them. Turn all into buttered baking dish, sprinkle remaining crumbs on top. Bake at 275 deg. Fahr. (slow oven) for about 1 hour. Open oven door and let cake remain in oven 45 minutes after baking. Serve in wedge-shaped pieces. Some people think red currant jelly is the proper accompaniment.

Henrici's Apple Pancake

Three cups flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon sugar, 4 eggs, eggs and yolks beaten together, 2 tablespoons melted butter or cooking oil, 1 pint thick, rich sour milk, 1 teaspoon soda, apples. Mix all ingredients very well except soda—straining them if lumpy. Let stand 1 hour. Just before using add the soda which has been dissolved in 1 tablespoon hot water. Have ready a large frying-pan in which you have melted 1 tablespoon butter and greased sides and bottom of pan with it—pan should be nearly smoking hot; pour in one-half the batter. Quickly distribute sliced apples to cover batter, then add remaining batter and immediately place in oven of 500 deg. Fahr. Batter will puff up like popover or Yorkshire pudding. After about 18 minutes, when pancake is well puffed and golden, heat may be reduced to 300 for about 7 more minutes.

Now to serve this monster pancake, slip your spatula under it and ease out onto large hot chop plate. Garnish centre with wedges of lemon; pass maple syrup and butter (preferably unsalted) at table. To serve cut in wedges like a pie.

Mining Features

Norman Byrne, resident engineer for Nib Yelowknife Mines, Ltd., advises that a crew is mapping the company's claims preparatory to diamond-drilling which will be started on the wide shear zone on the group where channel samples over 20 feet averaged .72 oz. gold per ton.

Twenty-two claims in four groups are held by the company, all the claims being staked in 1935 when the previous Yellowknife boom was under way. Considerable work at that time revealed favorable geological conditions.

Using Heavy Drill

A diamond-drilling contract has been let by Randona Quebec Gold Mines, Ltd., to Inspiration Mining & Development Co., under which an extensive program will be undertaken on Randona's 11-claim property in the Lake Dufault-Waite Amulet section of Quebec. According to M. J. Boylen, the well-known prospector, who is now in the north country for the summer, and who is an official of the company, Randona will have the use of one of the heaviest drills available for its program. The drill to be used is capable of drilling to a depth of 4,000 feet.

Nortyne Is Set

Oversubscription of the first public offering of shares in Nortyne Gold Mines has placed a large sum of money in the company's treasury with which to start one of the most extensive diamond-drilling programs ever proposed by a company of this kind. C. O. Stee, mining engineer, and a director of the company, recommended a program of 50,000 feet of drilling.

A full crew is now at the property in Manneville Township, Quebec, preparing for the program. The company has purchased two boats with which to freight in supplies.

Plans Drilling

Money is being raised to carry out an extensive diamond-drilling program at Scout Pershing Mines in the new Pershing district of Quebec. The Scout property adjoins Aenda Pershing on the north, which is being financed by Perron Gold Mines and touches the northwest corner of the Cromer Pershing property. Companies in the Pershing district plan quite an elaborate program of work as soon as crews are available. Besides diamond-drilling by the individual companies, a geophysical survey of the whole region is planned.

Examine Gauthier Property

Preliminary examination has been completed of the Gauthier property recently taken over under option by Scott Chibougamau Mines, Limited, which adjoins Upper Canada Mines on the east. There is considerable promise of picking up the extension of the favorable ore formation of the Upper Canada Mines on the Scott property, it is reported. In addition, the west section of the property contains a large contact which has not been explored and which is being drilled north of the Gauthier property by Northland Mines, who report encouraging results.

Report on the Gauthier property is now being completed by F. M. Malouf, E.M., and as soon as his report is submitted directors will determine the amount of preliminary diamond drilling that will be necessary.

Development Program

The development program is in full swing at the main property of the Kayrand Mining and Development company, six miles north of Amos, Que., according to officials of the company. A large 340-inch compressor is now on the job and test-pitting and trenching is underway on the No. 1 ore shaft vein, in an attempt to extend the known length of this vein on the surface and to correlate it with the underground workings on the 100-foot level. Preliminary sampling last week by F. M. Malouf, consulting engineer for the Kayrand company, returned average values of $15.75 per ton over a width of 6 feet and a length of 45 feet with both ends of the vein open. Full width was not determined as the hanging wall still has not been reached due to heavy overburden.

MEN TRANSPARENT A GLASS

A correspondent asks: "Is it easier to judge the character of a man, or a woman?" A man by long odds. Compared to a woman a man is a transparent pane of glass through which anybody can see well enough to get a fair idea of what sort of person he is, whereas even the most artless looking woman is always an enigma whom her best friends cannot guess. Nobody really knows her. She is not even acquainted with herself.

When you meet a strange man you have a yard-stick by which you can measure him with a certain degree of accuracy. He is handsome, or homely. He is well-dressed, or slovenly. He is an interesting talker, or dumb. He is modest, or an egotistical braggart. And so on and so forth through all the variations of human behavior and appearance.

But a woman offers no such sign-posts for your guidance when you start out to explore her personality. You can't even tell whether she is beautiful, or ugly, for her peaches-and-cream complexion may have come out of the drug store, and heaven only knows what color her hair really is. Nor are her clothes an index of her taste and judgment. She may have enough money and sense to let the exclusive shops pick out her wardrobe for her, or she may have a mind that is set on the higher life instead of glad raiment. She may be a brilliant conversationalist, or she may let you think she is because she lets you do all of the talking. And there you are, and you can know Mary Jones for twenty years without having the faintest inkling of what she is like when she takes off her complexion and her company manners and is just herself.

Women's Gift Makes Men Their Victims

It is the veil of instructability that is Nature's best gift to women because it makes men their hapless victims when they go husband-hunting. A man has to take a girl at her face value, so to speak. If she looks soft and purry as a little kitten, he has no way of knowing that she has claws concealed about her person. Nor can he foresee if she yes-yeses him before marriage, she will boss the life out of him afterwards. He doesn't even know when she weeps whether her heart is broken or she is crying for revenue only.

You don't have to be a fortune-teller to prognosticate what kind of a husband a boy will make, but nobody can guess what short of a wife a girl will turn into. All of us have seen girls who lured men to the altar by feeding them on their angel's food who came out of their kitchen on their wedding day and never went back into it again. And we have also seen girls who were so trifling and no-account and lazy that we pitied the poor men who were foolish enough to marry them, who turned into crackerjack cooks and house-keepers. And we have known girls who were nothing but animated clothes-horses and who threw Papa's money to the winds who bought their clothes after marriage at the marked-down sales, and, who pinched every penny when it was their husbands' money they were spending.

And how many women we have known who had seemed silly weaklings in their days of prosperity who turned into pillars of strength that the whole family leaned on in the day of adversity! How many neurotic invalids we have seen get up from the beds on which they had lain for years and go to work and support the husbands who had broken under the strain of bad luck.

All of which prove you can never guess a woman.

JUST FOR WOMEN

By CONNIE NICHOLSON (Society Editor of The Examiner)

BEST FOOT FORWARD

Yes, girls, summertime is the time when your best foto should be forward, but, while getting one foot ready to go forward, it's just as easy to give the other the same beauty treatment, and have both comfortable and soothed, as well as looking smart when they peep through summer sandals. A weekly pedicure doesn't take much time, and really pays dividends in foot comfort and appearance.

Begin by soaking the feet for five or ten minutes, and then scrub them with a soft brush or coarse wash cloth, paying particular attention to the soles, and around the ankles and nails. Rinse in warm water then in cool, and dry thoroughly. After pushing back the cuticle with an orange stick wrapped in cotton, just as for hands, rinse off loosened cuticle and cuticle remover, and massage with lotion. Remember, always trim the nails straight across instead of shaping them.

Before applying polish, place small balls of absorbent cotton between the toes, to avoid the danger of smearing the polish, and while waiting for the polish to dry, soothe and loosen tired muscles by doing a few simple foot exercises. It's surprising how smart and relaxed feet feel after this easy treatment.

Summertime also increases the danger of infection, and the problem of protecting feet from the many common contagious foot diseases. Always be sure instead of sorry, and use a household disinfectant on shower and bathroom floors. Follow the directions carefully, and repeat the process often. Bath mats are carriers of infection too, and should be laundered frequently. A household bleach or disinfectant in the correct amount in the water, will help immeasurably towards protecting your family's feet.

PAINTING POINTERS

A great many Peterborough families are spending their summers at cottages in the district, and enjoying cool lake breezes while the poor unfortunates, who have no cottage to retreat to, swelter in silence. As is often the case, the little woman gets the bright idea of brightening up the place, and goes to work with a will, to give cupboards, doors, woodwork, indeed anything she can reach, a refreshing coat of paint.

This idea is definitely sound, and really works for the house in the city as well as the cottage. Dark hall closets and long narrow cupboards are much more cheerful and a great deal brighter when treated to a coating of white or cream paint, and they're not hard to keep clean, since an occasional washing with hot soapy water will keep them fresh and shining.

Here are a couple of little tips which might save a few frayed tempers and banged shins. When she's in the painting mood, ask the lady of the house to dab some white paint on hooks and nails in the basement, so that they'll be a good deal easier to find without stumbling over junior's skates or sleigh. Also, if any member of the family often treats himself to tumbles down the cellar step, try painting the top and bottom steps a coating of white paint. They glisten and reflect light so that you know where the steps begin and end, and the danger of walking off into space is somewhat lessened.

Here also are a few pointers to remember when starting out to renovate some articles of furniture with a paint brush, some paint, and a great deal of ardor. See that the brush is in good condition, and is free from hardened paint or varnish. If proper care had been taken of the brush when it was put away, it should be just right for a good many more painting miles. After using turpentine or paint remover to clean it up, it should be washed well in warm water and soapy suds, to soften bristles, and preserve them.

If paint has thickened in the can, place it in a dish of hot water and let it stand for a few minutes until is flows easily again. When tackling ceiling or high mouldings, tie a piece of old flannel or absorbent cloth around the brush just below the bristles, to prevent dripping. Old gloves are a grand idea to protect hands while painting, but, for the lady who likes to be different, dipping the hands in melted paraffin before beginning is guaranteed to keep paint away.

Always take care to avoid ironing over buttons, hooks, zippers or buckles. They should be placed right side down on a soft cloth—several thicknesses of old Turkish towelling or flannelette—and pressed on the wrong side with a moderately warm iron.

Before washing slipcovers, lay them on the ironing board and give them a careful brushing inside and out, taking particular care that the bindings are free from dust and grime. This plan eliminates the danger of loose dirt streaking the material.

If washable pigskin gloves have lost their color through frequent washings, try adding enough cold coffee or tea to the water to give them a brown tint. The stain lasts for several washings, and they look as good as new.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

APPRECIATE YOUR GIFTS

THERE IS no point to the giving of birthday presents unless they are appreciated, and there is no value in receiving gifts from the Gods of bridge distribution unless you figure out how to make use of them. If the missing cards of a crucial suit, perhaps the trump suit, are badly divided against you, that is hard luck. But if one of them, a singleton, happens to be an honor which drops on the suit's first lead, that should cause you to figure out the way to play the suit better than if the singleton were a little card.

West led the diamond 2, which South won with the A. With one positive losing trick in diamonds and one in clubs confronting him, his job was to avoid more than one loser in trumps. Setting out about this in the sound way, he laid down the A, and noted West's drop of the J.

After a moment's thought, he decided West might have the Q-J doubleton. If that was the case, he could make an extra trick by dropping the Q. So he played the K next, and was crestfallen when West discarded the spade 2. That meant the end of his hopes for the extra trick, but a little further examination showed that it was worse even than that. He was due now to lose two tricks in trumps, and no possible play could save him. When he later led the 10 from dummy, East scored the Q and 9, and the defenders also got their trick each in the two minor suits.

There was a simple play to make the contract a sure thing, if South had been willing to forget the extra trick. After the A dropped the heart J, he should have led a small heart to the 10. If West had the Q, his contract would have been perfectly safe and, if East had the remaining three trumps, the Q would have been the only trick taker, as the K-8 would have been retained by South for a finesse against the 9-7.

Canada Digest Goes To France

OTTAWA, July 20 — (CP) — Canadian forces took reading material along with them on the invasion of Europe.

Sqdn. Ldr. Gregory Vlastos of Kingston found this out recently when he went to Britain to obtain the troops' view of various Wartime Information Board Publications.

He wrote to Lieut. Donald C. MacDonald, editor of Canada Digest—one of the publications for the troops:—

"For a while I was mystified not to find a single copy of it in a number of units of the 1st Canadian Army that I had happened to visit. Then I solved the mystery. Apparently the full supply of the May issue was packed securely away in boxes and trucks into the back of three-ton trucks, in which auxiliary service supervisors are riding in invasion operations. Canada Digest has been included in the list of priority essentials to welfare and morale."

The Digest is distributed to men of the three services not only in the United Kingdom theatre and northern France, but in the Mediterranean the Middle East and India.

It has already provoked considerable comment, not only in letters from readers, but the British press. The South Wales Argus, published in Newport, concludes an editorial with the hope that the British authorities will duplicate the Canadian publication.

REPORT NAZIS TO WITHDRAW TO "INNER FORTRESS"—Germany's supreme war council, according to reports from Madrid, is contemplating withdrawing its forces from occupied countries. Military observers believe that Hitler will withdraw to his inner fortress (black area on map) by throwing overboard his outermost conquests, the Balkans, Norway, the Baltics and part of France (white area) to concentrate more on imperilled territory closer to the heart of Germany. Some of the Nazi fighting units are now operating about 25 per cent. below battle strength, and pulling in troops to build these divisions up to their full strength, is said to be the German answer to the problem.

Exam Cramming Doesn't Help Getting Education

LINDSAY, July 20 — (ENS) — "Education is not to pass examinations and I don't think it means a thing to cram for education—fifty per cent. of the things you learn in this way are never used," said Charles Conquergood, president of the Canadian Ink Co., past president of Toronto Kiwanis Club, past president of the Manufacturers' Association, past president of the Toronto Board of Education, speaking to the Kiwanis Club Tuesday.

"Education is going to cost more for good teachers must receive better salaries. Of all the professions, taeching receives the least pay for the amount of good work accomplished. Better salaries will provide better-quality in teachers."

The speaker intimated that teachers today are being called on to do the work of parents in the home, and also the work of teachers in the Sunday schools. He commented briefly on the "frills" in education. Some people cited teaching of music, health and vocational training as frills, but to others these "frills" are looked on as essentials.

Mr. Conquergood did not endorse cafeterias in school, stating that some pupils drank soft drinks, grabbed a piece of pie and did not have time to properly masticate their food. Vocational guidance training can do a lot of good, but he recommended a slow development of the idea as many mistakes are being made in this direction.

Ready For Life

Mr. Conquergood gave as his topic "The Spiritual Value of Education," and stated he did not mean spiritual in the sense of religious benefits. "Education is three-fold in its purpose—to help you take your place in community life; to the technical group it is a means of learning to make a living. The educatiinal system provides the primary school (which gets the least attention and deserves more), secondary schools and colleges.

"Today teachers are called on to do almost everything in the way of training boys and girls; even to teach manners, and lately the teaching of religion in the schools is being taken away from the churches, gradually but effectively. Laymen have let our churches down in that respect. Today teachers are called ont o inculcate habits of accuracy in boys and girls (largely through mathematics) — and too much mathematics is being taught. Teachers are asked to inculcate habits of health among pupils; they must inculcate the habit of work."

Continuing, Mr. Conquergood said: "Today there are too many boards of education, some 7,000 in this country compared to 26 in Scotland, where there is a larger population. But there is a gap in the educational system," said Mr. Conquergood. "If a young man can be taken by the air force and in one year trained to become an expert pilot, capable of handling a $100,000 machine, then why can't we train industrialists in the same way, or merchants, instead of having tradesmen serving five and seven years' appreaticeship. We should develop trade schools for this purpose. Technical schools have helped greatly in the war effort by producing boys and men to take their places in war work and war factories."

Cheese Stocks Will Last Ten Months

Preparing For 3rd War

WASHINGTON, July 20—(CP)—Sumner Welles, former Under-Secretary of State and close friend of President Roosevelt, says the German General Staff is already preparing for a third attempt to dominate the world and the best way to combat that attempt is to break Germany up into three small states. Welles' contentions are made in a book, "Time For Decision," being published to-day.

German Ammunition Of Poorer Quality

LONDON, July 20—(CP-Reuter) —The Germans have been forced to ration ammunition for practice shooting and a deterioration in the quality of ammunition has been reported since the Allied invasion of France, the Earl of Selborne, Minister of Economic Warfare, told the Royal Empire Society today.

"The bombing of synthetic oil plants and refineries in Europe has hampered the efficiency of the armed forces by reducing their supplies of oil from refineries and increasing the difficulty of maintaining the flow from reserve dumps," Selborne said.

Has Good Reason To Recommend Syntona

Had Suffered 3 Years With Indigestion, Gas, Acidity, Backache and Rheumatic Pain. Says the Herbal Compound Helped Him From the Very First Bottle.

MR. WILLIAN JARVIS

"After the way I suffered with my stomach in the past three years, it is certainly great to find a medicine that helps me," said Mr. William Jarvis, Freeman, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I used to have indigestion, sour acid risings, and heartburn after every meal. I would have awful gas and a feeling like there was a lump in my throat, which nothing would take away. This gave me a smothering sensation and shortness of breath. My back was aching all the time and rheumatic pains set in my joints. Just before I started taking Syntona my hand was so sore I couldn't use it at all.

"I took everything I heard of and got no relief. Finally I was persuaded to try Syntona, and right away—from the very first bottle—my stomach felt better. As I continued taking it I found I could enjoy my meals again without having all that gas, sour acidity and heartburn. My appetite picked up and my sleep became more sound and restful. Now, after several weeks, the backache is not troubling me and I can use by hand again. The soreness is gone. Also I feel a lot better in every way and I am certainly thankful for having found a medicine like Syntona."

Syntona is made from the pure herbal extracts of 12 of Natures Finest Medicinal Plants. It acts on the stomach, kidneys, liver and bowels. Aids in the elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter from the system and promotes better assimilation of food for increased strength and energy.

World Press Freedom Urged

CHICAGO, July 20 — (AP) — Drafters of the democratic platform were urged Tuesday to declare themselves in favor of supporting the United States in throwing its moral weight behind the idea of World Press freedom.

John S. Knight, publisher of the Detroit Free Press and other papers and President of the American Society of newspaper editors, and Ralph McGill, editor of the Atlanta Constitution and representative of a committee of newspaper editors, said World Press freedom would lessen the chance of future wars and increase the likelihood of enduring peace.

"The most powerful thing in the world is truth," McGill told the plaform committee and he declared "We believe that a free and honest press in every country would contribute greatly toward lessening the chance of future wars."

McGill said that all persons connected with peace settlement should work for:

1. A declaration for freedom of speech and press, and condemnation of peace-time censorship and distortion and tainting of the flow of news and information.

2. Equality of access to news at its source in all countries by all properly accredited press and radio representatives, domestic and foreign. If truth is available to all at the same time, he said, truthful accounts will eventually prevail.

3. Equality of access for all properly accredited press and radio representatives to transmission facilities, which shall be adequate, and which shall promptly transmit news at reasonable rates.

Two Money Reformers Ready To Be Called

OTTAWA, July 20 — (CP) — Two money reform supporters who are members of the Commons Banking Committee—Arthur Slaght (L-Parry Sound) and G. G. McGeer (L-Vancouver Burrard)—Tuesday offered to serve for a period as witnesses instead of members, but their offer was not accepted.

Mr. Slaght said that Mr. McGeer, a former mayor of Vancouver and long an advocate of money reform, should be called as a witness.

Mr. Slaght said the Ottawa Journal had recommended both Mr. McGeer and himself be called. He was ready to appear.

W. H. Moore (L-Ontario) chairman, said the other committee members would not hesitate to question Mr. McGeer without designating him a witness.

Germans Propose To Barter Lives

LONDON, July 20 — (CP) — The Germans recently made a "blackmailing' proposal to barter the lives of surviving Hungarian Jews for a partial lifting of the Allied blockade, Reuters diplomatic correspondent reported to-day.

Half of the 800,000 Hungarian Jews are reported to have been deported to Poland for murder in gas chambers by the Gestapo, he said. The same fate hangs over the heads of the remaining 400,000 still in Hungary.

This moment was chosen by the Germans for the dispatch from Hungary to Turkey of two emissaries carrying proposals, allegedly made on behalf of the Gestapo, he said. The proposals were for the release of surviving Hungarian Jews and a cessation of the policy of extermination of Hungarian Jews, in exchange for certain concessions, such as passage through the blockade of railway trucks and other supplies.

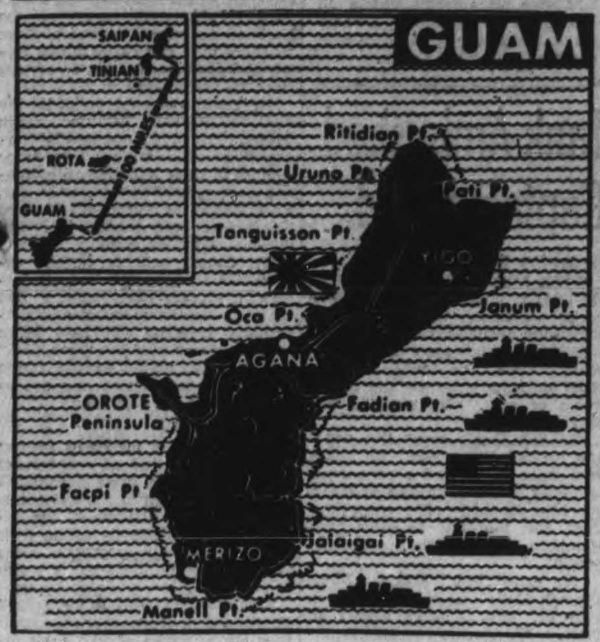
Two German Divisions In Revolt In Russian-Beseiged East Prussia



GUAM INVADED — Dispatches from Admiral Nimitz' headquarters said today that American Marines were invading the island of Guam after some of the largest U.S. battleships have hammered it for days. All landings were being carried out according to schedule. Here is a close-up of Guam which, while not considered the most important move in the next Pacific naval venture, is a part of it. Small inset at Left shows how Guam links with Saipan, the vital point in the Marianas group which was won only after a bitter struggle.

Reds Seize Strangle-Hold On German Baltic Front

By DANIEL DE LUCE—Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 21—(AP).—The Red Army seized a deadly strangle-hold on the Germans' Baltic front deep inside Lithuania today, hurled a massive blow toward Poland's martyred capital of Warsaw and sealed the fate of the Nazi stronghold of Lwow. Pouring across the trans-Lithuanian railway, Soviet forces captured the junction of Skopishki, 50 miles west of Daugavpils (Dvinsk), 85 miles southeast of the Latvian port of Riga and 165 miles east of Memel.

Warsaw, a little more than 100 miles from the Red Army vanguard, was the objective of concerted attacks west of the Nazis' broken Bug River defences.

Lwow Doomed.

The Nazi garrison at Lwow was doomed, with the Russians five miles away in the suburb of Doroshev. It faced the same kind of disaster that overtook more than four German divisions encircled earlier in the week at Brody, 55 miles northeast, where they now are being annihilated.

The luckless garrison's resistance failed to check the pace of the first Ukrainian front offensive, which engulfed the rail junction of Rawa Ruska, 30 miles northwest of Lwow, and over 300 settlements.

For 60 miles along the Bug River from captured Opalin to Sokal the Red Army scored new gains.

Acutely endangered by the Soviet advances were the German fortresses of Brest Litovsk and Lublin, on the eastward approaches to Warsaw. Nazi rearguards in the railroad town of Korbee Kobryn, 27 miles northeast of Brest Litovsk, have been liquidated, and at other points the Red Army troops are about 10 miles away, front dispatches said.

Soviet columns were within 50 miles of Lublin, which is about 75 miles southwest of Brest Litovsk.

(The German radio said Russian troops had reached Augustow in the northern sector, only a two-hour march from East Prussia. Moscow made no official announcement on action in this theatre, but Soviet radio broadcasts heard in London asserted "uprisings and a serious panic had developed in East Prussia.

(The supplement to the broadcast communique as recorded by the Soviet monitor in London said 8,000 for Rawa Ruska and Wlodzimierz, Germans had died in the fighting 33 miles southwest of Kowel.)

Nazi Command Fooled

It appeared that Marshal Stalin had crossed up the Nazi High Command by unleashing the drive west of Kowel toward Warsaw after his troops had forced the Nazis to transfer numerous divisions to the Niemen river sector for the anticipated all-out attack on East Prussia.

The new blows have shoved the front between Lwow and Brest Litovsk another 30 to 40 miles nearer Warsaw and Germany itself.

Shelter Can Bed 8,000 Londoners

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 21—(CP Cable).—London's deep shelters can't compare to a bedroom at home but when the drone of buzz bombs gives you that cold, scared feeling in the pit of the stomach they look most inviting.

A press party of British and Canadian reporters visited some of these shelters last night in London's south side.

Beside this group is a street which is just a long alley of piled-up debris. Over this rubble stands a sign saying prophetically: "James Sloan, demolitions and houses removed.'

Some people still live in the remnants of these houses.

Amidst this flattened rubble, the shelter stood out, round and solid, looking like a sawed-off grain elevator. We went down 148 steps to put 138 feet of steel, concrete and earth between us and buzz bombs.

There were 8,000 people bedded down in surprising comfort in the shelter, which was like an underground railway station, built in the form of long tubes joined together like a letter H.

Along these, bunks were placed in little compartments of four each. Across these compartments shower curtains were strung to ensure a measure of privacy.

People taking advantage of these refugees are chosen because they are old, infirm, crippled, expectant mothers, or because they have no other place to stay. Five special shelters together look after 40,000 persons, while other shelters, tube stations, surface refugees and personal retreats, accommodate practically 6,000,000.

Pilot Fools Control

Somewhere In Italy, July 21 (AP)

A LONG line of big four-engined bombers just back from raid was circling around its homefield awaiting instructions to land when a pilot radioed the control tower: "Like permission to land—only one engine working." The tower gave its okay and a lone fighter darted out of the formation of heavy bombers and breezed in, its pilot laughing heartily and its single engine working perfectly.

Bank Reform Advocates Lost

Three Amendments To Bank Bill Are Defeated

OTTAWA, July 21—(CP)— The Commons Banking Committee, some of whose members frequently have urged it make faster progress with the bill extending bank charters, staged a burst of speed at a sitting last night.

In successive votes, the committee turned down three amendments to the bill moved by Arthur Slaght (L—Parry Sound) and G. G. McGeer (L.—Vancouver Burrard), money reform advocates who have placed their views before the committee at length since sittings started in May.

Today the committee will proceed with examination of the bulky bill which has more than 160 clauses. Several minor clauses have been approved but controversial sections had been held over for discussion.

On the section dealing with bank reserves, the committee rejected Mr. Slaght's amendments suggesting that chartered banks be required to maintain 100 per cent reserves against their demand deposit liabilities or current accounts. The bill requires a reserve of not less than five per cent.

It also rejected a second amendment by Mr. Slaght asking that private banks be not allowed to lend to the Dominion government.

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 21.—(AP).—Torrential rains and deep mud bogging the battlefields of Normandy slowed Allied offensive to-day, but Canadian troops slogging forward a mile captured St. Martin de Fontenay, five miles due south of Caen.

British units earlier had pushed eight miles east of Caen toward Paris, in the deepest spearhead plunge through Nazi defences.

The British forces to the west gained 1,000 yards on a two-mile front south of the Caumont-Tilly road and Americans pinched off a longer portion of the road from St. Lo to Periers, Supreme Headquarters said, but virtually continuous rains for 36 hours "interfered with ground operations."

Routed From Underground.

Canadian infantrymen routed Germans from underground shelters in the advance into St. Martin after seizing St. Andre-Sur-Orne on the east bank of the Orne river.

British and Canadian infantry had taken over the brunt of the fighting from General Montgomery's armored units.

The deepest penetration of the German defences took place directly east of Caen, where British Tommies by-passing Troarn to the north drove within 1,000 yards of the village of Bures on the Dives river slightly more than eight miles from Caen. The enemy has flooded the river to block the coastal route to the great port of Le Havre.

Directly south of Caen British and Canadian infantry drove to within 1,000 yards west of Verrieres and captured St. Andre Sur Orne on the east bank of the Orne river. Verrieres is five miles south of Caen.

Strong Opposition

In Troarn itself, British tanks encountered the strongest kind of resistance from a company of Tiger tanks and withdrew to the outskirts of the railway station just west of the town.

In the drive southeast of Caen toward Vimont on the main road to Paris a Nazi anti-tank screen still held up the British advance between Emieville and newly-captured Frenouville.

The east bank of the Orne now has been cleared for five miles south of Caen while the west bank is rapidly being cleared of a few German stragglers for the same distance.

Evrecy, nine miles southwest of Caen, was under heavy attack by the British. Moyers fell to the British after several days' stubborn fighting.

Mothers Urged To Leave London

LONDON, July 21.—(CP).—Salvos of flying bombs exploded in London and South England today and Home Security Minister Morrison urged mothers to evacuate the capital and other danger zones.

"It is a trying attack," he said at a luncheon meeting, "and there is no point in making light of it. Let me give the parents of London a warning. Do not be influenced by a quiet night now and then, or even by a few quieter days and nights.

"We are tackling this new weapon with all we know and all we have got and we shall beat it, but we have not beaten it yet and the strain on the housewife and her children may get worse before it is finally and completely removed.

"I strongly advise mothers still in the evacuation areas to think again and think hard. They will be far better out of London until this battle is won."

The presence of piloted German bombers was not confirmed by London sources, however.

The robot attacks last night started just after dark, ending a 12-hour lull in the assaults. Both casualties and damage was reported.

Frantic Attempts

Washington, July 21.—(AP).

SECRETARY of State Hull said to-day that Heinrich Himmler would not now be able to "conceal from the German people the fact that many German Generals believe that Germany has lost the war."

Hull described Himmler, to whom Hitler has delegated supreme authority within Germany, as Hitler's "chief executioner" and said the efforts to restore an appearance of unity in the High Command were at this stage "frantic attempts."

30 Divisions Told To Remain In Baltic States

By JOHN KIMCHEL
Reuter Military Commentator.

LONDON, July 21— (CP-Reuter) —Evidence is accumulating that Hitler had prepared with grim deliberateness another and bigger and more costly Stalingrad. This undoubtedly was one of the contributory causes behind the attempt to assassinate him.

The northern army groups under General Von Lindemann are disengaging in Latvia and Estonia — but they are not retiring into East Prussia. They are staying in the Baltic. They are preparing a gigantic brideghead from Lake Peipus by way of Dvinsk and Kovno to Konigsberg. Thirty divisions of the 15th and 16 Armies have been ordered to stay.

The decision to form a defensive island in the Baltic is definitely linked with the revolt of the generals.

So, too, is the known determination of the Fuehrer to permit no retreats in the east.

There can be no two meanings about it. The 30 divisions—about a quarter of a million troops—are to risk isolation from the Reich except by slender sea communications.

But it is questionable whether the German officers can have any illusion of what this really means. They can no longer doubt the effective superiority of the Red armies all along the 800-mile front, they can have no hope of stopping this steamroller.

At Stalingrad 30 divisions had to be thrown to the Russians to gain a few weeks of breathing space.

Marines Land On Guam In Marianas

All Landings Are Effected On Island According To Plan

By CHARLES H. McMURTRY
Associated Press War Correspondent

PEARL HARBOR, July 21.—(AP).—United States Marines and Infantry are pouring ashore on Guam, first American territory seized by the Japanese in this war, and fighting their way inland under cover of a pulverizing aerial and warship bombardment, Admiral Nimitz announced today.

The landings, a quick follow-up to the victory on Saipan, started yesterday morning, and "are continuing against moderate ground opposition," a communique said.

Guam is the southernmost and largest of the Marianas group of islands. In American hands it will greatly strengthen Saipan's position as a base from which Japan can be mortally assaulted. Guam is 130 miles southwest of Saipan and both islands are within easy Superfortress range of Tokyo and the whole of Japan.

The Philippines, lying some 1,500 miles west of Guam and Saipan, likewise are vulnerable to the mighty forces Nimitz is hurling across the Pacific.

The Guam landings came after 17 days of terrific warship and plane blasting with battleships adding their heavy shells to the torrent of explosives poured from cruisers, destroyers and planes.

No indication was given as to the landing places. A fleet spokesman merely said: "All landing were effected in all areas as programmed." This suggested the landings were not as difficult as at Saipan.

Guam, 32 miles long and four to 10 miles wide, was overrun by 8,000 Japanese troops who stormed ashore against 200 Marines in the early days of the Pacific war.

The island has one of the Pacific's finest harbors, Apra, and formerly served as a way-station on the trans-Pacific air route to the East.

Canadian Support

SYDNEY, Australia, July 21 — (CP) — Supply Minister J. A. Beasley told interviewers yesterday on his return from Canada and the United States that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had pledged support of Canadian troops in the war against apan should they be required.

ELIMINATED—Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck, who was named as a conspirator against Hitler, was "no longer among the living persons," the Berlin radio said today. Beck was former chief of the German General Staff.

Canadians Slog Through Mud To Capture Town

By CHARLES LYNCH
Reuter War Correspondent.

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 21 — CP-Reuter).—In mud so deep that they repeatedly slipped and fell as they pressed forward, Canadian troops made their second assault in 24 hours to recapture the tactically important village of Bouruebus, some five miles south-east of Caen.

(Allied Supreme Headquarters to-day announced that Canadian troops advanced a mile to capture St. Martin de Fontenay, five miles south of Caen and 3½ miles due west of Bouruebus.)

It fell to a two-pronged attack—infantry stormed down from the north while armor drove in from the east.

It is a vital road junction which the Germans fought to the last man and the last bullet to hold. As the threat to Bourguebus sharpened with the Allied occupation of Bras and Hubert-Folie, one mile and 1¼ miles north-west of it, the Germans tried to pull up reserves of infantry suported by armor.

But the violence and force of the Allied attack gave Rommel no time to line up his reserves before Allied tanks were crunching over the cobblestones of the main street.

First Assault Thursday.

The first assault on the village was made yesterday by Canadians who were almost choked with dust. In the midst of the attack rain started to fall and has been falling ever since, coating the whole area with doughlike mud.

The Canadians fought their way in Bourguebus late yesterday afternoon, but retired last night in the face of the heaviest counter-attack

Nazi Retreat Into Gothic Defences

ROME, July 21—(AP)—British 8th Army units began encircling enemy-held Citta di Castrello, 13 airline miles northwest of Unbertide in the Upper Tiber Valley today, while big German guns in the hills behind Pisa lobbed a harassing fire into the stricken city of Livorno.

Allied Headquarters announced that American units still were finding and exterminating pockets of enemy resistance on the south side of the river yesterday, described as one of the quietest days experienced by the 5th Army since the offensive began May 11.

Flee Before the Poles

The enemy was reported in strong outpost positions on the north side of the Arno, especially where the stream could be forded, but at the eastern end of the Italian front the Germans continued to flee before the avenging Poles.

The Poles crossed the Esino River on a 15-mile-wide front in the Adriatic sector, and reached Montemarciano, six miles beyond the stream and 15 miles northwest of Ancona. The Italians on their left pushed on from Lesi.

Progress was less rapid on the inland portions of the 8th Army front, but two-mile advances were reported north of Arezzo.

The Germans still hold a few machine-gun positions on the north side of the Antifosseto Canal, which meets the sea 2½ miles north of Livorno and six miles south of Pisa.

Shell fire intended to deny the Allies use of Livorno harbor was coming from the 3,000-foot mass of Monte Pisano, northeast of Pisa. The enemy laid down a heavy barrage also at Colla Salvetti, six miles east of Livorno.

Allied Engineers found 16 ships sunk in the north and south approaches of Livorno harbor. Quays were demolished, cranes wrecked, warehouses destroyed and bridge approaches knocked out.

Nazi war plants at Friedrichshafen were left in flames and grounded planes at two airdromes near Munich were bombed yesterday when up to 500 American heavy bombers hit southwestern Germany for the third straight day. Seventeen enemy planes were shot down and the Allies lost 15.

Axis Smashup Is Approaching

By TOM YARBROUGH
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 21.—(AP).— The London Star, commenting editorially on the reported attempt on Hiler's life, said to-day "the enemy is back to September, 1918 and well he knows it."

"A fissure has gaped in the once solid ground of Germany." the Evening News declared, adding, "This crisis may pass. Its effects on Germany will not pass for Germans have seen the first tottering of the walls."

British morning newsppert had interpreted the Hitler incident and Gen. Hideki Tojo's fall from power as signs of the approaching final smashup of what is left of the Axis war machine.

The Times said: "German leaders are waging a war of nerves on the German people in a desperate hope of finding some way to combat that spirit of black despair and listless resignation to inevitable fate which is achieving increasing ascendancy over the German mind."

The London Daily Herald leaned to the theory that the bomb blast against Hitler and 13 members of his personal military staff might have been a plot by German army traditionalists to wipe out Hitler's "intuition brain trust."

Hitler Vents His Full Rage For Bombing Plot In Purge Of Hun Generals

Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck, Former Chief Of Staff "No Longer Among The Living"; Himmler Is Ordered To Purge All The Rebels

LONDON, July 21—(CP).—Two German divisions were reported today to have revolted in Russian-besieged East Prussia and a full-blown purge of generals apparently was proceeding in Germany as an aftermath to what Adolf Hitler called a traitorous attempt to assassinate him and pave the way for surrender.

With broken communications masking within the Reich, the Berlin radio announced that Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck, former chief of the German general staff was "no longer among living persons." He presumably was shot in the fiery vengeance Hitler was venting upon his own people.

At the same time a traveller reaching Sweden said two German divisions revolted in East Prussia on Wednesday, apparently touching off the movement which culminated in the attack on Hitler, declared by Berlin to have occurred Thursday.

Besides Beck, Berlin announced execution of a whole group of conspirators linked with the plot to overthrow the Fuehrer and prepare the path for peace in the defeat-riddled and bomb-tortured Reich.

Among them was the colonel who was alleged to have planted a bomb which exploded only a little over six feet away from Hitler while he was surrounded by his highest personal military aides.

Deputy Press Chief Sunderman declared in connection with Beck's demise that there was "proof that a connection was established with an enemy Power," Berlin broadcasts said.

Beck was removed as Chief of the General Staff in November, 1933, because, Berlin dispatches stated at the time, "he failed to see eye to eye with Hitler."

He was reported to have disagreed with the Fuehrer's plans to seize Austria and Czecho-Slovakia.

Field-Marshal Gen. Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt was removed as commander of an army group at the same time. Von Rundstedt, restored to favor in the war, was removed from his command in Western Europe only a few days ago.

Stockholm newspapers were cut off from their Berlin correspondents at 8:40 p.m. last night, and communications were still blocked to-day. Other sources of neutral information from inside Germany likewise were blocked.

The world therefore was restricted largely to the view put forth by Berlin and other German-controlled broadcasts.

While these sought to give the picture of a completely normal Germany, with the plot scotched, other bits of information indicated the revolt was still on.

The "Atlantic" radio, supposedly operated inside Germany, declared "revolution has burst forth in Germany" and "part of the eastern army is deserting and returning from the front."

Allied propagandists bombarded the Reich with broadcasts urging the Germans to deal the death blow to the Hitler regime.

New bits of information relayed by Berlin on the incident in which Hitler was said to have been burned and bruised by an explosion included the Berlin announcement that the one man fatally injured in Hitler's circle was a press stenographer. He previously had been identified as "Collaborator Berger."

2,500 U.S. Planes Bomb Germany In Day

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 21. — (AP). — Around 2,500 American planes bombed the heart of Germany today, with 2,000 flying above a howling channel storm for attacks on Regensberg and Schweinfurt and another 500 from Italy penetrating within 125 miles of Berlin.

It was the fourth consecutive day of massive, co-ordinated American attacks on Germany from the west and south and followed heavy R.A.F. night raids.

More than 1,100 American heavy bombers flew from Britain, convoyed by nearly 800 fighters from the U.S. 8th Air Force, the largest number of fighters from the force ever to take the air at one time. Scores of enemy aircraft were seen, but most kept at respectful distance. Other targets beside Regensberg and Schweinfurt were bombed, but not immediately named. En route home, some fighters dipped low to strafe rail targets.

Targets of the Italy-based bombers were at Brux in Sudetenland, the mountainous border province which Germany stole from Czechoslovakia in the Munich conference which prefaced the war. Brux is northwest of Praha (Prague), the

Turkey Moves Towards War

LONDON, July 21 (AP) — Signs increased today that Turkey soon may swing from her tenderly balanced neutral position to a possible declaration against the Axis.

One such indication was a broadcast by the German-controlled Vichy radio that all Turkish ships had been ordered into Turkish harbors without delay, and that all navigation in Turkish waters of the Black Sea had been suspended.

There was a growing belief in London that Turkey may attempt to improve her position at the Allied peace table by handing Axis diplomats their walking papers.

Expulsion of Nazi agents has been at the top of Allied requests to the Turks ever since they agreed to end shipping of chrome to Germany, with the acknowledged belief of all parties involved that this would mean a formal break in relations and possibly war.

Urge Soldiers To Be Loyal

German Soldiers In France Ordered To Back Hitler

LONDON, July 21 (AP) — The German radio said tonight that Field Marshal Gen. Guenther Von Kluge in an order of the day to his French command underlined what he called the "absolute necessity for loyalty to Hitler."

"Soldiers of the West: A small clique of retired officers made a mean attempt on the life of the Fuehrer. The Fuehrer is alive. He spoke to the German people and to German soldiers last night.

"The perpetrators have been rendered harmless. Calm and order prevail at home.

"The war effort at home and the fight on the fronts go on. With indignation and bitterness, we soldiers have learned of the plot. For us there will be no repetition of the year 1918 nor repetition of the example set by Italy.

"For us soldiers in the west, there is only one watchword: With inflexible determination and unconditional loyalty to the Fuehrer, we shall bring the fight against the enemy to a victorious conclusion.

"Long live the Fuehrer- Long live Germany!"

Von Kluge recently replaced Field Marshal Gen. Karl Von Rundstedt as commander in the west.

President Roosevelt Accepts Fourth Term Nomination Of Democratic Convention

25,000 Closely Packed Delegates Hear President Roosevelt Accept In Speech Broadcast From Naval Base

By C. R. BLACKBURN—Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, July 21—(CP).—More than 25,000 closely-packed men and women silently watched an empty rostrum in Chicago stadium last night, and listened to President Roosevelt, in a precedent-shattering address from a west coast naval base, accept Democratic nomination for a fourth consecutive term as President of the United States.

This was the climax of a convention marked by bitter division, and still concerned over the battle being waged for second place on the Democratic ticket.

Division on the presidential issue was not important enough at any time to threaten the renomination of Mr. Roosevelt.

The so-called southern state revolt against the President wilted considerably before the vote was taken and Texas — the state that started it all—split its 48 votes, giving 36 to Mr. Roosevelt and 12 to Senator Harry F. Byrd of Virginia.

Only One Ballot.

There was only one ballot. Of the 1,176 votes in the convention Mr. Roosevelt got 1,086, Sen. Byrd 89 and James J. Farley, the man sometimes credited with putting Mr. Roosevelt in the White House, got one vote from the New York delegation.

Today the convention will start at noon to settle the main controversy—selection of a vice-presidential candidate. The fight seemed to be between the president Vice-President, Henry A. Wallace, and Senator Harry F. Truman of Missouri.

Delegates also adopted a platform pledging the United States to join an association of sovereign nations empowered to use armed force, if need be, to preserve the future security of the world.

Last night's scene at the stadium was the highlight of the convention. The huge vaulted auditorium trembled with applause and oratory. There was not a vacant seat and thousands were crowded into aisles and corridors. Loudspeakers were everywhere.

Outside the stadium an estimated 10,000 people stood to hear what came over the loud speakers high up on the stadium walls.

Chairman Sam Jackson told the audience of the President's broadcast and there were signs of disappointment because thousands believed the President himself was to make a sudden appearance.

In his acceptance speech, Mr. Roosevelt insisted he will not campaign "in the usual sense" because he doesn't think it is appropriate and moreover, he said, he doesn't have the time.

Like To Retire.

As in 1940, Mr. Roosevelt said he would like to retire to private life, again as in 1940 he said new hands would take over when this four years eids. His decision this time he said is based "solely on a sense of obligation to serve" if the people so decide in November.

Between himself and Republican candidate Thomas E. Dewey — to whom he did not refer personally—the President said the issue this time is simply:

Whether the nation will "turn over this 1944 job—this world-wide job—to inexperienced and immature hands, to those who opposed lend-lease and international co-operation agains the forces of aggression and tyranny until they could read the polls of popular sentiment — or whether they wish to leave it to those who saw the danger—who met it head-on."

Mr. Roosevelt lifted up his record from the early new deal days through the pre-war jitters and down to now. He said this election will be influenced by that record "written on the seas, on the land and in the skies."

It is written also he said in the figures on war production and food output, on the international food conference, the U.N.R.R.A., the Atlantic charter drawn with Prime Minister Churchill on the high seas and his conferences at Casablanca, at Cairo and at Teheran.

Supported by Republicans

Mr. Roosevelt pictured his administration as one that Republicans vote for, as well as his own democratic supporters. He even referred to a Republican President, Abraham Lincoln, as the "greatest wartime president' and quoted from his second inaugural speech in which Lincoln saw the task as one of binding the nation's wounds, caring for the soldier and his family and seeking lasting peace after the American Civil War.

The President said it seems "wholly likely that within the next four years" the war will be won and the world will take up a "system which we hope will prevent" another conflict.

He said he had "the best staff in our history" doing the war job and now "studying the problems of the future."

He summed up the job ahead:

"First, to win the war—to win it fast, to win it overpoweringly, second, to form international organizations and to arrange to use the Armed Forces of the Sovereign Nations to make another war impossible within the forseeable future. Third, to build an economy for our returning veterans and for all Americans — which will provide employment and decent standards of living."

Keitel Escaped

Field Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Keitel, chief of the German High Command, was among top-ranking generals conferring with the Fuehrer at the time, Berlin asserted, but he escaped harm. Twelve other aides were injured, however.

London rumors said there now was convincing evidence to support recent rumors of increasing dissatisfaction with Hitler's authority and that opposition to Nazism apparently had been organized under responsible leadership.

The strongest indication that Himmler, despite the sweeping powers conferred upon him by Hitler, had not yet completely liquidated the outbreak was the rupture in neutrals' communications with Germany.

This interruption was similar to the break Wednesday night which presaged yesterday's news.

In London doubt persisted that the Germans had given anywhere nearly a full account—and there was considerable doubt that even a bona-fide attempt was made on Hitler's life.

Berate Generals

Speeches by Hitler, Reichsmarshal Goering and Admiral Karl Doenitz, Commander of the German Navy, berating traitorous Generals were the surest signs of revolt, even if abortive, within the Reich.

The question was whether it would be snowballed or crushed by the purge. There was a possibility it might grow as the militarists sought to save themselves by resisting the Gestapo.

It was felt there that Nazis had two choices—to try to hush up the incident or to twist the facts into propaganda and create an emotional story on the home front. The fact that the latter course was chosen suggested a revolt of such dimensions that it could not be concealed.

The Soviet-sponsored free German committee in Moscow broadcast an appeal to all Germans to "overthrow Hitler and save the fatherland at this last moment," adding that "it may be assumed that the open struggle (within Germany) continues in its most active form and that valuable key positions have already been seized from bankrupt Nazi bosses."

Try to Rally Home Front

Nazi leaders made fervernt efforts to rally the home front. Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, old-time Nazi party member and former Minister of Civil Administration in occupied territory in the East, wrote in a special edition of the Voelkischer Beobachter that the assassination attempt was "the opening of hostilities on the fifth front—the head and heart of the German war commands."

Gen. Nikolaus Von Valkenhorst, Commander-in-Chief in Norway, issued an order of the day to his troops expressing gratitude for Hitler's escape and pledging to "follow him until victory is won."

He was the first Army General to join Admiral Karl Doenitz and Reichsmarshal Herman Goering in pledging continued loyalty to Hitler. Doenitz and Goering had spoken for the Navy and Air Force, respectively.

Significantly, none of the top-drawer Junkers, headed by the deposed Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd Von Rundstedt, had yet been heard from.

Speaking in angry and strident tones in an unheralded early-morning broadcast only a few hours after Berlin announced he had escaped death, Hitler declared:

"At an hour in which the German army is waging a very hard struggle, there has appeared in Germany a very small group similar to that in Italy (apparently a reference to the Italian surrender last Sept. 8) which believed that it could thrust a dagger into our back as it did in 1918. But this time they have made a mistake."

Revolt is Likely.

That a revolt of widespread proportions may have developed among high German officers was indicated by Hitler's words, although he, as well as Reichsmarshal Herman Goering and Admiral Karl Doenitz, who followed him on the air, all tried to emphasize that the dissatisfaction was concentrated in a small group.

Goering's remarks were directed to the German air force, Doenitz' to the navy. No spokesman appeared for the army, and this was regarded as possibly significant.

Goering, who is topped only by Hitler in the Nazi hierarchy, pointed the finger of retribution directly at the stiff-backed Junkers faction of the German army.

Some London quarters expressed belief the entire affair might be a frame-up to give the Nazis an excuse to purge some German General Staff members considered unreliable.

There is considerable suspicion over the fact Berlin propagandists for six hours had been telling the German people and the world that the attempted assassination was made by the enemy" before Hitler came out with a flat accusation of his own army officers.

Former Generals.

Goering declared the "mean attempt at murder" was organized by "a miserable clique of former generals who had to be chased from their posts for a leadership that was as cowardly as it was incompetent."

A few days ago, Field-Marshal Von Rundstedt, long an outspoken opponent of Hitler, was removed as commander-in-chief in the west. Two days ago another old-line Junkers general, Col.-Gen. Alexander Von Falkenhausen, was eased from his command in Belgium and Northern France.

Others who have been dismissed from major commands in recent months include Field-Marshal Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch, Field-Marshal Gen. Fedor Von Bock, Field-Marshal Gen. Wilhelm Ritter Von Leeb, Field-Marshal Fritz Erich Von Mannstein, and Field-Marshal Gen. Ewald Von Kleist.

Anti-Hitler Group.

As long ago as last November reports from inside Germany indicated an anti-Hitler group of old-line Junkers was awaiting the psychological moment to attempt a coup.

The first Soviet reaction broadcast by the Moscow radio was that the attempt on Hitler's life was "only one episode of a widespread conspiracy by a group of German generals and officers." This broadcast said it was considered significant that one German general after another had surrendered in the face of the current Red Army offensive without attempting to carry out Hitler's fight-to-the-death order.

Goering decreed that every airplane flight must have the approval either of himself or Himmler—possibly a precaution to prevent any Hess-like flights or forestall any peace emissaries from reaching the Allies.

Himmler, whose reputation as a ruthless hangman is well known even within censor-ridden Germany, got early to work after Hitler named him "commander of the army at home."

"This time we will settle accounts in such a manner as we National Socialists are wont," shouted Hitler.

Reported Killed

The axe fell first upon the Colonel named by Hitler as hurling the bomb—a Count Von Stauffenberg, apparently one of the three sons of Freiherr Schenk Von Stauffenberg of Wilfingen, Wuerttemberg. Berlin announced he had been shot.

"The ringleaders have partly committed suicide after their attempt had failed. Partly they were shot by battalions of the army . . . there were no incidents anywhere. All other people who have become guilty of crime by their attitude will be taken to account."

An hour and a half after the Nazis claimed the revolt had been crushed, a broadcast purporting to come from an underground German radio called for an organized fight against Himmler's Gestapo.

Lauding the officers who made the attempt on Hitler's life, the speaker, who identified himself as a German army man, declared that "only a united host of such courageous and fearless officers can save our cause."

Thirteen of Hitler's personal military staff were injured by the explosive—which went off within six feet of the Dictator himself—and one of them died, Berlin said.

"I personally am entirely unhurt apart from negligible grazes, bruises or burns," Hitler said in relating that he called "the details about a crime that has no equal in German history."

"An extremely small clique of ambitious, unscrupulous, and at the same time foolish, criminally stupid officers hatched a plot to remove me and together with me virtually to exterminate the staff of the German high command," said Hitler.

Addressing himself to "German men and women, Hitler declared that one of the reasons for his broadcast was to disprove "the assertion of these usurpers that I was no longer alive." Goering, in the same vein, accused the plotters of trying to get up a new government on the false premise that Hitler was dead.

NAZIS' BALTIC LIFE LINE IN PERIL

Budget Changes Are Approved

BY FRANK FLAHERTY — Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 21 — (CP) — Further consideration will be given the fixing of the date at which prices of imported farm implements must be reduced following removal of the Tariff and the War Exchange Tax, Finance Minister Ilsley said in the Commons last night.

This assurance came as the members in committee of ways and means approved most of the remaining budget resolutions, including those making changes in the Succession Duty Act, the War Exchange Conservation Act and the Special War Revenue Act.

A recent announcement fixed Sept. 30 as the date for a lowering in the ceiling price on imported implements and parts. When several members protested that this would delay the benefit of the tax reductions so far as farmers are concerned until after all purchases required for the year's harvest have been made, Mr. Ilsley explained the basis of the Order.

He said it had first been intended that the price should come down at once. That would mean that articles already imported and on which taxes were paid could be sold at present prices but articles imported later would be sold at reduced prices.

It was found, however, that there were some 80,000 parts and it was physically impossible for the prices board to go through the list and fix new prices to apply to articles imported after the tax removal. Ordinarily when a tariff was reduced prices came down by the process of competition. This time, it was believed there was not sufficient competition and so they would have to be brought down by compulsion.

It was decided the only practical way was to fix an arbitrary date, and his information was the inventories of imported implements and parts imported under the tariff and the tax were so high that they could not all be liquidated before Sept 30.

The only opposition to the removal of the duties came from three members. They were: Ross Macdonald (L—Brantford), in whose constituency are large plants of the Massey-Harris Company and the Cockshutt Plow Company; Gordon Fraser (PC—Peterborough West), who represents a city manufacturing cream separators, and T. L. Church (PC—Toronto-Broadview.)

Mr. Macdonald quoted figures to the effect that only 3.7 per cent. of the average farmer's expenditures go in the purchase of implements and parts. As more than half of expenditure goes into the purchase of tractors which were already duty free he estimated removal of the former 7½ per cent. duty would save farmers not more than $1.25 on every $1,000 of expenditure.

As against this slight benefit to farmers he feared the removal of the duty would mean serious loss to workers in factories after the war. In Scandinavia from where cream separators would be imported, 75 per cent. of the work was done by female labor at a wage rate of 16 cents an hour and 25 per cent. by male labor at 34 cents an hour. The lowest wage in Canada was 54 cents an hour.

The maintenance of a healthy industry was important to Canadian farmers and it could not be healthy if it faced competition with low wage countries.

"I am satisfied before many years are past it will be found that the removal of the duty is detrimental to both the farmers and the workers," he said.

The Germans used infantry, mortars and armor which resulted in fierce fighting through the streets of the wrecked village. The Canadians retired to about one mile north and this morning struck southwards again in the worst fighting conditions yet encountered by the beachhead troops.

The Canadians had visibility of less than 500 feet when they advanced. Air support was out of the question and even artillery was unable to provide a heavy barrage.

Advancing up the hill into the village they passed the bodies of their comrades killed in yesterday's fighting.

The village is actually hardly more than a cluster of houses, but it stands on high ground which commands the German positions farther south.

Specific targets at Brux were not identified. The Germans used a defensive smoke screen, compelling the Liberators and Fortresses to bomb by instrument.

During the squally night, a force of around 1,000 R.A.F. heavy bombers pummelled objectives in Germany, France, and Belgium, losing 31 planes. The major rail yards of Courtrai bottlenecking three trunk lines leading to the Normandy battlefields were targets, along with German oil plants at Homberg and Bottrop-Welheim in the Ruhr, the port of Hamburg, robot bomb platforms in Northern France, and road convoys north and south of Paris. Italy-based planes struck around the River Po and in Yugoslavia.

Two R.A.F. forces of night bombers hit synthetic oil plants at Homberg and Bottrop-Welheim in the Ruhr, while Hamburg was bombed by Mosquitos. Another big force of heavies hit the railroad yards at Courtrai in Belgium commanding the three main northern arteries from Germany to France.

Lost 31 Bombers.

The R.A.F. lost 31 bombers on all night operations. The Air Ministry said one of the German installations in Northern France attacked yesterday evening was a "site believed connected with the enemys threatened use of long-range rocket."

On the Normandy battlefront the night-flying Mosquitos attacked highway convoys north of Paris and a Seine crossing south of Paris.

The Germans reported intense night air battles over Germany, Belgium, and Holand, and claimed —without confirmation — that 37 Allied bombers had been downed.

The weather to-day curtailed operations over the battlefront, but Allied air forces in Britain and in Normandy flew between 6,000 and 7,000 sorties yesterday. Most of these were not made in direct support of the ground troops.

Long-range bombers and fighters flew more than 2,200 sorties and the Allied Expeditionary (support) Air Force flew 3,200— larger portions of them on defensive patrols.

Sailor's Body In Nude Form Rouses Protest

TORONTO, July 21—The charge that Christie St. Hospital officials had sent the body of a young Canadian naval rating to the morgue nude, without even a blanket or sheet covering it, was made last night by the Chief Coroner, Dr. Smirle Lawson. He was presiding at the inquest of Raymond Grimm, 18, of HMCS York, who died June 27 of injuries received in a Sunnyside Park ride accident.

"I have had complaints about the way in which this young sailor was sent out of this hospital," Dr. Lawson remarked, as he summed up the evidence of the inquest hearing. "To send one of our good boys out of Christie St. Hospital in a nude condition—without clothes or a sheet or a blanket or the British flag—is something, in my opinion, not in keeping with the treatment that should be given our young dead heroes. If the jury, who have heard all the evidence, care to recommend that this practice cease, I will see to it that this protest goes to the proper authorities at as early a date as possible."

The Jury's Finding

The jury found that the Galt sailor came to his death in Christie St. Hospital from a fracture of the pelvis, secondary infection, acute cellulitis and multiple hemorrhages after injuries suffered on June 21 last while riding the "Hey-Dey" whip ride at Sunnyside Amusement Park. The jury attached no blame to the operators of the concession.

The verdict pointed out that the Morgue register recorded the "deplorable fact" that the body of Seaman Raymond Grimm, who was on active service with His Majesty's forces at the time of his death, was released by Christie Street Hospital in a nude condition. The verdict said: "We think of men in the services are deserving of better consideration than this and we strongly recommend that the practice be discontinued."

The jury also recommended that every car in the ride be equipped with a safety belt attached in such a manner as to prevent any occupant from standing up while the cars are in motion. It was recommended further that a properly equipped first-aid station be placed at the disposal of the public by the Sunnyside Amusement Park authorities.

Dr. Lawson Sums Up

In his summing up, Dr. Lawson observed that the Galt sailor had been suffering from streptococcus before the acident, according to evidence. The disease travels to the seat of an injury where physical resistance is lowered and then is carried through the blood stream, Dr. Lawson said.

The chief coroner said that the doctors of Christie St. Hospital had given the naval rating "grand treatment," but the body was sent to the morgue "stark naked," He said the happening was not the fault of the ambulance staff which brought Grimm's body to the morgue.

Tells of Examination

Dr. W. L. Robinson, professor of pathology, University of Toronto, stated that he had made a microscopic examination of a "puzzling case" in which the 18-year-old sailor had suffered superficial bruises on the right hip and two bruises on the shoulder blades. There were also evidences of hemorrhages in the abdominal cavity. The hip bone was also broken and "the boy had received a severe blow," said Dr. Robinson.

He related facts of a "confusing autopsy" and said Grimm's muscle tissues were acutely diseased because of the presence of streptococcus germs. He believed that this toxemic condition caused the youth's death a week after he was taken to Christie St. Hospital.

Leonard C. Decarie, attached to H.M.C.S. York, related that, on June 21, he and Grimm went on the roller-coaster and then on the ride on which Grimm was injured. He said his friend was thrown out of the machine and hurled 10 feet in the air before he crashed. Sitting up, Grimm told Decarie that he had "blacked out."

A Direct Hit

Washington, July 21 (AP)

THE British Battleship Nelson, firing at almost 20 miles range, blew an automobile load of Germans into atoms with a direct hit from a 16-inch shell. The Nelson's commander, Capt. A. H. Maxwell-Hyslop, telling a press conference about it yesterday, said the shot was "one of the extraordinary flukes."

"I once hit a rabbit with a .22 rifle, but I never thought I would hit a motor car with a 16-inch gun," he said with a grin.

Tank Ambushed Captain Killed

By DOUG HOW

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 21.— (CP).— The major asked: "Could you write something about Maxie"

"I don't know just what you could write," he said. "If you could only have known the guy it would be easy. He was the best Maxie was.

"He was short—about five five—and he had blond hair. He was a very quiet fellow and a very tough and able fellow when this squadron got into trouble. His name was Capt. Nils Bier and he came from Hamburg, Ont. Sure, German descent.

"We called him Maxie. Right through Sicily and on up he's been with us. always solid, always in there. We used to see him standing in the turret of his tank with a grenade in his hand, ready for anything.

Got Away a Round.

"He was killed near Casamaggiore a couple of days ago. The Germans commanded three-quarters of an arc of a circle and Maxie was ambushed by four Mark V Panthers. He saw them and got away a round before they got him. He died giving his gunner a fire order.

"Two days before he had been wounded, but he came right back up. That was Maxie Bier."

The major, N. A. Dickens of Toronto, paused. He looked over at Capt. Richard Crooks of Montreal and went on:

"Now there's another one. His tank was knocked out the same time as Maxie's. She brewed up (burned) and all four of his crew were wounded. Dick got them out somehow. then he saw that the three wounded in Maxie's tank got out; he got them in a ditch, all seven of them, cared for them and saw that they were taken back to safety.

Toronto Officer Killed.

"We lost some good men this time," the major saiad. "Our squadron commander, Major Don McCallum, was wounded, and our second-in-command, Capt. D. K. (Mickey) Dawson, Toronto, was killed by the same shell. They were standing in the doorway of a house making a recce of an area when the thing landed right beside them.

Over in another squadron they wanted to know if could write something about Lieut. W. S. Webb, Durham, Ont.

"He'd always done good work observing enemy fire," Capt. Ian Grant, Victoria, said. "That's the way he was killed, going forward to observe when he knew damn well he would have to go under heavy fire. Nobody would have blamed him if he hadn't gone. But he went. That's the sort of a guy he was."

Alberta Candidates Get Extra Gasoline

TORONTO, July 21 (CP)—A report that candidates in Alberta will get extra gasoline coupons for the Aug. 8 provincial election was confirmed by the Dominion Oil Controller's office here today.

"There is nothing new about that," an official of the department said. "We did the same thing in the Saskatchewan election, and are going to do the same in the Quebec and New Brunswick elections. Federal election candidates will probably get the same allotment.

"As for officials and returning officers, they have always been looked after."

The Dominion office said that 40 units are alloted to every certified candidate of each party. They are special coupons which expire the day after the election and are given to the leader of each party for distribution.

Human Life Is Cheap To Himmler

LONDON, July 21 (AP)—Human life is cheap to Henrich Himmler, bespectacled executioner who has been named by Hitler as commander-in-chief inside Germany, a role for which Himmler long has been preparing and in effect assumed last September.

Every day, somewhere in Nazi territory, firing squads take their toll. The death figures have run into scores of thousands, and it is Himmler and his black-shirted SS. Elite Guards and Gestapo agents who are held responsible by the Allied world.

It was the cold-eyed Himmler who ordered the massacre of all residents of the Czech village of Lidice in reprisal for the assassination of his right hand aide, Reinhard (the hangman) Heydrich, in June, 1942.

Pleasure Launch Operating In Kawarthas Without Certificate Commons Is Told

OTTAWA, July 21—(CP)—Munitions Minister Howe said today in the Commons he would consult Transport Minister Michaud about a complaint made by T. L. Church (P.C.—Toronto Broadview) that a pleasure launch was operating at a summer resort near Lindsay without a certificate.

Mr. Church said he had a letter indicating the launch carried between 25 and 27 persons on pleasure excursions and some of the people came from his constituency. He said the Minister of Transport had power to stop the sale of gasoline to pleasure craft carrying passengers when they had no certificate.

He added:

"Surely some action has to be taken. I have sent the complaint to ministers. I would like to hear from the minister this morning. If the answer is brought down as a return they (presumably the pleasure seekers) may all be returned over the weekend—in their coffins."

Prisoners Of War Are Liable For Tax Arrears

OTTAWA, July 21 —(Staff)— By strict interpretation of the income tax law, only the less than friendly relations which exist between Canada and enemy countries prevent the National Revenue Department from reaching over and collecting or trying to collect income tax or arrears from war prisoners.

This was indicated yesterday by National Revenue Minister Colin Gibson in reply to a question by Gordon Isnor (L., Halifax). Mr. Isnor wanted to know if Canadian merchant seamen, held as prisoner of war, were liable for National Defense Tax arrears and income tax. Mr. Gibson said they were.

Mr. Gibson said in further explanation that, by the law, all persons in arrears were liable, a fact that is generally accepted and particularly by those who have fallen into the clutches of the "revenoors." But the Minister hastened to assure that the department was not as hard-hearted as it sounded.

War Risk Bonus

The position of merchant seamen is different to that of members of the armed forces, even if they are engaged in service in the war zones. Seamen, in the attitude of the department, are liable to tax on their incomes, the only exemption being on that part of their wages which is represented by war risk bonus.

Therefore, reverting to Mr. Isnor's question, if their pay continues while they are prisoners of war, their income tax is deducted. Then, if they are in arrears, under the law, they face a day of reckoning after the are once more returned to circulation. The Department, as a policy, will not attempt to collect arrears while a seaman is languishing in a Nazi prison camp.

Day of Reckoning

Members of the armed forces who are on active service and who joined one of the services owing money to the Government, have their liability charged against them until the day they either pay or a settlement is determined.

"The liability still stands while they are overseas," said Mr. Gibson, "but there is no attempt to collect arrears while they are overseas. Some families might get assessment notices because the Deparment cannot tell whether a man in arrears has joined up or whether he is overseas.

There is one happy, more or less assurance for defaulters when they return. Income tax collectors are empowered to use their discretion in relation to their claims for repayments.

Canadian Hogs Are Too Fat

Nearly all Canadian hogs are too fat, reports the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers in its July Letter. That is true of No. 1. No. 2 and No. 3 selection bacon as well as the mass of hogs that are so fat they are unfit for use until they are defatted in the processing plants.

The Allied countries for a time were short of fats, but that is no longer so. The world supply and movement of fats is now nearly normal. It is time for hog producers to aim right from weaning time to reach market weight with lean meat along with a limited interlarding of fat. It is now possible. The increased marketings of cattle, hogs and sheep have increased supplies of animal protein by-products such as meat meal and vegetable proteins are also available from heavier supplies of oil cake meal, distillers grains and fish meal.

It is impossible to fit together high qualtiy bacon production and a large lard output.. There is now no reason to produce lard. If an annual export of 400 million to 500 million pounds of bacon is to be maintained, at least half the hogs must grade "A" instead of one quarter to one-third, as at present. The desired increase in quality can be made by mixing protein supplements with grain feeds. Hogs are now being marketed at the rate of 10 million hogs a year.

Kinsmen Hear Of Indian Life

CAMPBELLFORD, July 21 (ENS) —First guest speaker since the Kinsmen's Club was organized a short time ago was Cecil B. Stephens of Christian Island, Geoorgian Bay District, where he and Mrs. Stephens represent the United Church of Canada as teachers at that Indian Mission.

He said that the Indians were a different people, with a different outlook on life. They are not progressive, have a low standard of living, though some have good homes. They rely almost entirely on the Indian allowance of $30 a head. Their principal diet is potatoes and scone, and make no provision for the winter. If they must have a fire they cut some green wood. Because of their indifference they stand no chance against the white man's diseases, he declared.

While they speak the Objjway language, they can sing in English, and to them Christmas and New Year's celebrations are community affairs.

The government has done everything possible to encourage education, Mr. Stephens related. The school accommodation is excellent and the Community Hall is adequate, the Roman Catholic and United Church work in unison, and the finest spirit of co-operation exists. Christian Island also has its historical significance, for if the Jesuit Fathers who came to Christianize the Indians had been able to hold that stronghold against the Iroquois, Ontario would be a French province like Quebec.

Concluding, the speaker noted the worth while leadership which the church is furnishing to the original inhabitants of the land.

Kinsman Masterson expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Stephens. Kinsmen and Fink and Callaghan to the Rotary Club for loaning equipment for the street dance held Thursday evening.

The Kinsmen stood for two minutes silence in memory of Squadron Leader James Kerr, who was killed in action overseas.

Stone Wall Suggested For Park Entrance

COBOURG, July 21 — (ENS).—One of the proposals for the entrance to Victoria Park on the newly-acsuired Arlington lots, is for a stone wall with coping, which would run along the front of the property at King Street. Construction of such a wall was suggested by a Toronto landscape architect. Parks Commission chairman Judge J. C. German is ascertaining the cost of such a wall. However, nothing is decided and at a meeting to be held later this summer, the sugestions of citizens will be received as to how the entrance to the park should be arranged.

Farmers Glad Of Rain Little Damage Done

COBOURG, July 21 — (ENS).—Wednesday night's rain was welcomed by farmers in this district, and although about 25 per cent of the hay crop in Northumberland County was still in coil, the effect of the rain was detrimental to only a small extent. Of great benefit was the rain to canning crops, such as tomatoes and peas. Some grain was flattened a bit, but nothing of a serious nature, nor was the apple crop injured. The rain will help the raspberry crop which needed the moisture. Cherries and strawberries were not particularly plentiful this year, and it was hoped that a bumper crop of raspberries would help out, but no such crop was forthcoming.

Reciprocal Income Tax Agreement Urged For British Commonwealth

OTTAWA, July 21 — (CP) — A Reciprocal Income Tax and Succession Duty Agreement between all countries in the British Commonwealth was urged in the Senate yesterday by Senator Rupert Davies (L—Ontario).

Succession duties became a topic of Senate discussion when second reading was given a bill ratifying a tax convention with the United States to eliminate duplicate taxation. The provisions of the agreement were outlined by Senator Salter Hayden (L—Ontario).

Senator Peter Compbell (L—Ontario) endorsed the agreement as a measure likely to encourage a flow of United States capital to Canada.

Eliminate Duplication

Three members of the Upper House—Senator John T. Haig, acting Progressive Conservative leader, Senator W. D. Euler (L—Ontario) and Senator James Murdock (L—Ontario)...said steps should be taken to eliminate duplication of Succession duties among the Provinces.

Senator Campbell said the Legislation was long overdue. The Provinces had used "every means fairly and unfairly" to extract money from investors and regulations introduced by Ontario had discouraged investment of United States funds in Canaidan gold mines. Some people had been forced to withdraw investments from Canada to protect their investments in the event of death.

Need New Capital.

"Only one thing stands in the way of prosperity in this country beyond anything we have ever dreamed of and that is a radical and unstable government," he said. "That, if it comes about may disturb business and discourage investment."

Senator Davies said the principle of the agreement with the United States, as well as that of an income tax agreement already in effect, should be made effective in an agreement between Canada and Britain and later extended throughout the Commonwealth.

Senator Davies said he believed in succession duties, but considered they should be paid to the country where the estate was earned. He objected to estates being taxed by both the Dominion and provinces.

Senator Haig said while he favored the new agreement with the United States it should be recognized that United States investments in Canada greatly exceeded Canadian investments in the United States placing Canada on the giving end of the deal.

The Senate passed a bill amending the salaries act to provide for salaries of ministers of new departments and at the conclusion of the sitting adjourned to July 24.

WA To Celebrate 10th Anniversary

ROSENEATH, July 21.—(ENS).—With the president, Mrs. G. L. Tucker presiding, the regular meeting of the United Church W.A. was held in Mrs. Frank Adams' home Wednesday afternoon. The subject of the devotional period conducted by Mrs. A. Nill, was "Faith."

During a program period, conducted by Mrs. E. Waldie, Mrs. R. White spoke of the appreciation felt by ministers and their families for the valuable assistance rendered by Women's Associations in their line of work. Mrs. White is the wife of the newly arrived minister from Bermuda, and various phases of the church life and activities on the island, especially at the present time with men in the service were recounted by the speaker.

Regarding the tenth anniversary of the society to be observed in September, two committees were appointed as follows: Program, Mrs. B. Thackerey. Mrs. C. Grigg and Mrs. Charles Sandercock. Refreshment, Mrs. G. L. Tucker, Mrs. E. Waldie, Mrs F. Norris and Mrs. H. Hugh.

The treasurer, Mrs. Grigg, reported $170.49 in the treasury and receipts for the day included $2 from the sales committee and two members' fees.

The secretary, Mrs. E. Braithwaite, read a letter of thanks from Deema Houghtailing, Reg. N., England, for a parcel. Mrs. S Thackeray offered her home for the August meeting, and Mrs. B. Thackeray and Mrs. E. Sandercock volunteered as a program committee. Mrs. Lorne Thackerey read a story, "Be careful what you say."

Commandos Take In Crops

"We haven't failed any farmer who has asked us for help," said G. A. Gillespie today in a complimentary reference to some C.G.E.-Genelco employees, soldiers in training at the local Military Camp and some others who wished to lend a hand in taking off the local crop of hay.

Some of the farms where this "commando corps" proved their ability to "pitch hay" were those of Howard Quinn, Walter Bowles, Robert Dobbin, Bert Taylor, Harold Archer, Hary Grant, and others.

"At Howard Quinn's farm 98 loads of hay have been taken off, and there are about twelve loads still to go in," Mr. Gillespie said. "Mr. Quinn has a man from the West, but he has also had some of our men for ten evenings, and they didn't waste any time. Everything was ready for them to start work as soon as they arrived."

Mr. Gillespie said that fifteen to twenty men were available every evening and Saturday afternoon during the continuously favorable weather for three weeks. The only break was the evening of July 12 because of some rain that day.

"These helpers are men who have had some farm experience, and they know what to do. That includes the men from the Military Camp," Mr. Gillespie added. "The men from C.G.E.-Genelco were ready to go shortly after their day's work, and altogether I think this group has done a good job."

Mr. Gillespie has kept a work log of names and dates and intends to make a more complete acknowledgment when the group has completed the assistance that is still needed in the local farm district.

Superficial Japanese Changes

Premier Tojo and his cabinet have resigned and we may yet hear that they have committed hara-kiri in a body. They have not been conducting the war satisfactorily from the Japanese point of view; and when a Japanese cabinet is unsatisfactory it is expected to make the fullest apology. The loss of Saipan, an important island of Japan's inner defense, was the climax of a bad year for Tojo. He has given place to the Marquis Koichi Kido, who probably hopes for better luck.

There is nothing for us to rejoice about in the fall of Tojo. The man who replaces him will be just such another. Tojo was one of the Samurai—the sword-bearing aristocracy of Japan—and Kido is of the same caste. Tojo was a figurehead for the Samurai and for the big businesss interests; Kido will occupy the same position. Tojo was not a man-god, a personification of the State, like Hitler; he was primarily a servant of the Emperor. Kido will now be the chief servant of the Emperor, but the old gang, who have always ruled Japan, will continue to rule.

The Japanese state has changed its prime minister, but the change does not amount to much. The war is going against Japan and the Japs know it, and they are trying to recover themselves by a change of administration. But the ideas and the real orders will come from the same old source. The Japanese change, which looks like an upheaval, is much more superficial than it seems.

Women Must Be Realistic

The Republican party, preparing for the approaching Presidential election in the U.S.A., has put a plank in its platform insisting on equal rights for women; the Democratic party was also urged to do so, and had a lively discussion of the matter in which one gentleman referred to it as a 'lunatic proposal'. The party, in his opinion, should not promise what it could not undertake to act upon.

* * *

The matter of the status of women after the war is one which needs some discussion now, for apparently a number of wild ideas are circulating about it. The status of women as wives and mothers, of course, will remain as secure as it has always been. So will the status of those business and professional women whose talents are so great that they are able to compete freely and successfully with men. But the status of women as industrial workers and as holders of minor administrative jobs will change, and if that point is not made clear now there will be disappointment and a feeling of having been badly used among great numbers of women who find themselves out of jobs after the war.

* * *

When the war is over industry will be busy for some time in supplying the needs which have grown up during the war years. But the men who come back from service in the forces are all going to want jobs, and they must have them. Whatever plans the government and industry itself may make to ease the change from war industry to peace industry, there will inevitably be a certain amount of upheaval and insecurity, and there will inevitably be large numbers of women laid off to make room for men. A man who gave up his job to go to the war will expect to have it back, and if a woman holds it she will have to go.

* * *

As in labour, so it will be in the professions. During the war great numbers of girls who have had scientific or engineering training have found excellent jobs in war work. It is unlikely, however, that they have a sufficient mastery of their jobs to compete with trained men. Margaret Barnard Pickel, who is an advisor to women graduate students at Columbia University, has recently pointed out that several American colleges are behaving unfairly to women students, for they are training them as engineers, on the understanding that they will be able to get jobs in the rebuilding of Europe after the war! On the face of it, this is ridiculous. In the first place, Europe has plenty of engineers of its own; in the second place, a girl just out of college is not fitted to take charge of jobs in which she will be working with great numbers of European workmen whose language and habits she understands imperfectly. But these universities are at least frank in admitting that there will be no jobs for these girls in the U.S.A.

* * *

The problem of employment for women will be a serious one. As always after a long and disastrous war, great numbers of girls will be widows, or will have lost their chance to marry, and they will have to support themselves. But the problem will not be settled by demands that women be given "equal rights" with men in the employment market. A woman of unusual ability has little trouble in establishing her equality with the best men in her chosen field. But the women who have only ordinary ability will find themselves in competition with men of ordinary ability, and it is on this level that competition is ferocious, and women suffer by reason of their sex.

Where then, can they find jobs? This is the advice which Miss Pickel gives in an article to which we have already referred:

"They will do well, in my opinion, to avoid those professions in which men are still preeminent. I am speaking of the average college woman, not of the notably brilliant one who must, because of a marked gift for law or engineering or surgery, move out of the ranks and take her chance with men. By and large, women will not be, any more than they have been in the past, the movers and shakers of the world beyond the horizon. Is it too hard for women to be instead the helpers and servers?

"That phrase from Ibsen has annoyed many women, yet it is not ignoble. It calls to the fundamental and honourable qualities that differentiate women from men. Women may well be proud of that capacity for devotion and dedication which marks them when they are at their best. It is not unworthy to consider this their great contribution to personal and professional life. Some women scorn it as a sort of biological throwback. Well, biology is an old business and likely to continue at the old stand. While it does, women can profit by bringing to their work the qualities that are essentially feminine.

"Strangely enough, opportunities in the future seem likely to be in the very fields in which those qualities have a special value. There will be a great demand for teachers, brought about not only by the present drop in the number of those taking professional training, but by the tremendous program of adult education laid down for service men and women after the war.

"There is good reason to hope that education will be not only more general but better than it has been. If we are to have better education we must have better teachers, women who are fundamentally well educated themselves and zealous for what is real and sound in education. The growing emphasis on physics and chemistry and the return of mathematics to its rightful place in education will provide splendid opportunity to women with aptitude and good training in these subjects. Teaching, in all the ranks, should call to the most intelligent and the ablest of our college graduates.

"Women will have scope on a larger scale for their home-making talent. It seems likely that there will be a building program calling for women skilled in interior decoration, in the buying of furniture and fabrics, in landscape gardening. Women trained in institutional management and in dietetics will be in demand. In dietetics particularly there promises to be an increase in field work, in research and in teaching. It is probable that community needs will be more commonly met by community feeding, child centers, work among young people, public health and organized recreation—all in the hands of professionally trained workers.

"An inevitable and far-reaching effect of the war will be the care and rehabilitation of the wounded on a vast scale. Army and Navy hospitals will need not only nurses but occupational and physical therapists, technical and administrative workers of all kinds. Psychologists, psychiatrists, social workers, vocational counselors will all be neeeded to help the casualty to return to normal and useful life when he leaves the hospital. All the resources of public health and social service will be needed to keep his family well and his home a satisfactorily going concern for him to go back to."

This is a common-sense approach to the problem, and as such it has more value than a basketful of resolutions passed by bodies which have no power to enforce them.

The Shape Of France To Come

(THE LONDON OBSERVER)

By OUR POLITICAL CORRESPONDENT

THE people of Bayeux, first town in France to be freed from the Germans, greeted the Allied soldiers with flowers and wine, and with the cry: "A Paris!" So in the streets of that ancient Norman town were expressed the pent-up hopes and longings of all Frenchmen. "A Paris!" has sounded like a refrain at many turning points in the history of France; and each time its meaning was different.

Sometimes the cry was proud and defiant, as when the men of Rouget de Lisle set out on their march from Marseilles to the capital. In the last sentences of Zola's "Nana" the words "A Paris!" had the ring of an ominous verdict; they came from the lips of the Prussian soldiers of 1870. Again in the first days of June, 1940, "A Paris!" was the triumphant battle-cry of Hitler's Panzer divisions drunk with conquest and victory.

"A Paris!" in Bayeux this June, 1944, spoke of the ardent and impatient wish of France to see that verdict of 1940 reversed. The words voiced a desire and a determination to bring a quick end to a chapter of prostration and shame that has been written in the blood and tears of the French people by the men of Vichy. But the hope spoken now by this old cry goes deeper and the hope it voices looks far to the future.

FOR four years past the Nazis and their Vichy satellites have worked to print upon the French mind the "Anglo-[illegible] betrayal"—"the betrayal of Dunkirk," "the [illegible] to Bolshevism," the ruin of French [illegible] Allied bombing. The indictment against the Anglo-Saxons" has even been crowned by the warning that the freeing of France by the Allies will be a sham; that it means not French liberation but British or American domination. The propaganda has been crude. It could never have been mistaken for truth, for its authors and their motives were known. But the few facts on which it based its spurious stories were real and recognized; and the imprisoned people of France have had little room or chance for the clearest judgments. It has been difficult not to wonder whether there might not be traces among the misery of ordinary French folk of the work that has been done. This, aided by their bitter experiences, might warp their minds against us.

The people of Bayeux have given the first answer to our questionings. They did not fail for an instant to see in the Allied soldiers who entered their town the missioners of their freedom. At that first moment, at least, there were no misgivings. When they shouted "A Paris!" they stated all their unshaken trust in the Ally from whom they were so tragically separated in the days of Dunkirk. They stated their belief that no wrong will be done to them by those whom they greet as liberators. It was a vote of confidence. The old Entente, indeed the whole Grand Alliance, is to them linked inseparably with the rebirth of France.

"THE rebirth of France." . . . How easily words like these become worn and stale. Yet in France today they are as a prayer de profundis of agony and hope. France has seen the things she cared for and stood for all destroyed or degraded. She has seen a Government, which has pretended to speak on behalf of France, licking the boots of the German enemy. Even now she still sees the ghost of Vichy parading the streets of French towns—and in its hands the sorry scrap of paper that is called the armistice of 1940. She still sees Darnand's militia called up to do service for her foes. To her the "rebirth of France" means the laying of that ghost for ever, the denial without doubts of that pretended armistice, and the end of that servitude. Never will she accept attempts to raise Vichy from its living death, no matter how or by whom they are made. No new version of Darlanism will be accepted by the people of France as liberation.

This is not to say that France in her latest and greatest hour of trial has become "Gaullist" in the sense that the epithet has acquired in the atmosphere of dictatorial ambitions and intrigues among some Frenchmen in exile; if those ambitions and those intrigues were now to be transplanted to be governing principles in France, it would be the knell of French hopes for restored freedom—and of the Anglo-French friendship that is vital to us, to them, and to Europe. But the French people are most certainly "Gaullist" in the sense that the word took on in June, 1940, when it spelled—as it still spells to a majority of Frenchmen—hope against hope, resistance, and the defiance of the enemy and his French friends.

THE "rebirth of France" means more than this. It means the incorporation of France again into the framework of European civilization, cleansed from Nazi mud and blood. In a Europe true to its own traditions of progress and humanity, France can be neither a Cinderella nor a hanger-on. Europe without France would be shortened in its stature by a head at the least. France, without her liberal European outlook, would as surely become a nation morbidly resentful and centred in itself, set on the road trodden by Mussolini's Italy.

The "rebirth of France" is more than a matter of the spirit. It is impossible without the rebuilding and the development of the power to use her material resources, to produce and to distribute the goods of secure living. The last years have left a terrible legacy of impoverishment. French industries have been squeezed by the Wehrmacht. French agriculture has been despoiled by the occupying armies. French currency has been debased by the burden of indemnities to the invaders. France has not only suffered in captivity; she has also paid a heavy ransom for every day of the almost one thousand and five hundred days of her servitude. She now has to pay still more for her liberation by the destruction of her towns and villages.

NO doubt the mass of Frenchmen will accept this added price with sense and courage ("a la guerre comme a la guerre"). But it would be unforgivable if, in addition to this price, new and avoidable burdens were to be put upon the starving and most sorely tried people, if the Allied forces as they advance were to drain unduly the meagre reserve of foodstuffs, if new billions of francs, issued by a foreign Power, were to be pumped into circulation to speed on the inflation of French currency. If this gross error were to be allowed, the enthusiasm with which the Allied soldiers were greeted by Bayeux might even turn into bewilderment and resentment. There might well be left a poisonous aftermath in the relations between France and her Allies.

The vote of confidence which General Eisenhower's soldiers received from the people of Normandy will not be abused. The distrusts and the suspicion which German and Vichy propaganda have tried to pour into Frenchmen have been scattered by the first eager, welcome sight of the liberating armies. But they may still linger. Not a thing must be done, by us or by the Frenchmen who return home with us, that could call them back now or in the future.

Public opinion in Great Britain and in the United States must be aware of these risks and these dangers. The peoples must see to it that the great and heroic venture—the liberation of France—is not soiled by short-sight or lack of understanding. The future historian must have no trace of an excuse to say that the Allies liberated France but failed to restore her self-respect.

"ELEMENT OF SURPRISE, ESSENTIAL TO VICTORY!"
—OLD MILITARY AXIOM

A Recollection Of Pavolova

(ST. THOMAS TIMES-JOURNAL)

MANY people in this part of the country and throughout the United States have memories of the great Anna Pavlova, the queen of Russian ballerinas around the 1920's, and of Michael Mordkin, the man who was her partner and right bower during most of the time after she left the Imperial Ballet of the Czar and ran her own company with which she toured the world. Pavlova died about 15 years ago. Mordkin died last week-end at Millbrook, New Jersey, after a long career with his own ballet.

The death of Michael Mordkin recalls one of the most sensational incidents that ever occurred on a stage in full view of an audience. Pavlova and Mordkin were appearing at the Palace Theatre in London, and during one of their numbers Pavlova had to do a pirouette, then leap into Mordkin's arms as he stood about six feet away. Mordkin did not catch her securely and she slipped to the floor in a most awkward manner. As she rose to her feet she struck Mordkin on the cheek as hard as she could with the flat of her hand. The audience gasped with astonishment, Mordkin walking off the stage and the curtain was quickly rung down. They never danced together again. Each blamed the other for the fall.

Years later the blame was fixed by Madame Pavlova's musical director, who remained with her till the end of her career. In a book he stated that the fault was entirely Pavlova's. He explained that according to the music she ought to have made several more pirouettes before leaping into Mordkin's arms, but on this occasion she cut her twirls short and leaped before he was expecting her and was not properly "set" to catch her.

Pavlova must have known she erred, and to cover her mistake she made Mordkin the "goat."

Severe Wounds Are Painless

(DR. H. BURROWS in "THE LANCET")

IT is a surprising fact that a person who is mauled by lions or tigers or other wild beasts does not suffer immediate pain. This common phenomenon, in fact, accompanies all sudden and violent injuries, whatever their nature. Severe war wounds are always painless until some time after they have been received.

For example, a youth was walking between railway lines in a dockyard, when he was startled by the whistle of an engine close behind him. Leaping for safety he slipped and fell, and the locomotive's wheels passed over both his legs. On admission to hospital, he was given morphine and warmth, and his legs were amputed. I asked him if he had suffered much pain, and he said that he had felt nothing worth calling pain from first to last.

I was present when a naval officer was brought into hospital, nearly dead from internal injuries. I asked him if he had very much pain. He grinned and said with a smile. "None at all, but I know that it will come presently."

On the other hand, one of my friends was in a dugout that was under shellfire. A man was hit and lay on the open ground shouting for help. Going to his assistance, my friend found that the noisy man's wound was only a bruise on the ankle—the kind of trifling wound that may be very painful from the start.

The victim cannot always locate sudden, severe injuries with precision. During the battle of Loos an officer received a wound that removed a considerable portion of his chin and jaw. He was convinced at the time that it was his nose which had been shot away, but putting his hand to his face, he found that his nose was intact.

In wartime it is comforting to reflect that severe wounds received in battle are always painless at first, and that the use of morphine at the nearest field hospital will greatly and perhaps entirely prevent reactionary pain.

Death of a Hero

THE U-boats are defeated. The packs that roamed the North Atlantic at will, hunting down the thin line of convoys that linked the old world with the new, are dispersed and destroyed. The task was one of the most difficult that seafaring men put their hands to. It took months of unremitting vigilance and tireless devotion to the most exacting duties. What it cost in physical hardship and suffering can only be imagined. It helps us to understand the nature of the job to read that Captain F. J. Walker, the Royal Navy's ace U-boat killer, is dead of exhaustion.

Captain Walker devised the strategy of beating the U-boat packs by forming task forces of small escort vessels to operate in mid-Atlantic. There they closed the gap left by air patrols operating from both sides of the ocean. He commanded the Second Escort Group, which scored its greatest victory in the Bay of Biscay this year when it destroyed six submarines in six hours. His own score of U-boats destroyed stood at 17, and he damaged many more.

This "Nelson of the little ships," as he was called, had the happy faculty of sensing where the enemy was likely to be found, and he pursued him with relentless determination. He stood night and day on the bridge of his sloop, and it was said of him that in the months he cleaned up the North Atlantic he never slept more than two hours in the twenty-four. His death ennobles the duties he performed and illumines the devotion of his kind to the daily task. It is to them that we owe our security and comfort, a debt we can never repay.—Montreal Gazette.

Shoe On The Other Foot

AFTER the Ontario elections, Col. Drew had hardly settled himself comfortably in the premier's easy chair in Queen's Park before E. B. Jolliffe and his C.C.F. cohorts began clamoring for an immediate session of the Legislature. In vain Premier Drew explained that he considered it wise to prepare for legislation before summoning the Legislature. The C.C.F. yapping only increased in vigor; Col. Drew was un-British, he was disregarding British parliamentary practice, he was sacrificing the possibility of making preparations for the postwar period, he was injuring the interests of Labor. In view of all of this it might be regarded as peculiar that Mr. Jolliffe and his Ontario followers have maintained a passive silence in face of the provocative statement from the leader of the C.C.F. in Saskatchewan that he does not intend to call a session of the Legislature until October.—Toronto Telegram.

Crusade Against the Rowdies

A GREAT victory note for justice that should resound around the world has just been sounded in, of all places, a Chicago police court. It was the case of Mrs. Amanda Spielman versus Dimitri Onofrei, opera star, and let its details be spread to the four winds.

Dimitri Onofrei sings in his apartment. As he is an opera star he presumably sings beautifully. But as he is an opera star he is also a singer who is accustomed to being heard in the farthest reaches of the galleries, and that over the accompanying music of a 50-piece orchestra.

Mrs. Amanda Spielman is a lady who lives in the next apartment. Music, she says, is all right up to a point. But opera singing in the next apartment is beyond her point. Her unhappiness landed her in court, charged with disorderly conduct.

Mrs. Spielman was charged by Onofrei with imitating him vocally through a thin wall—and doing other unappreciative things—when he and his pupils were doing the scales. On one occasion, charged Onofrei, she even accosted his pupils and told them to "stop that damned singing." And when they did not stop she followed him vocally up and down the scales, somewhat off key, then beat a tin pan and cussed loudly. Three of the opera star's pupils testified in court that they had heard the musical Bronx cheers from Mrs. Spielman and Onofrei's wife Bianca, a lady whom the Chicago Daily News describes as statuesque and also a singer, told the court she had heard many bad words.

When the combatants met in court there was quite a scene. Onofrei was asked to sing, which he did with great gusto and to the obvious delight and applause of the witnesses. Said Judge Harry P. Beam: "We all appreciate your very beautiful voice."

"Now," said Onofrei with bitterness, "I want you to hear her sing." But Mrs. Spielman was doing no singing that day.

It was then up to Judge Beam. Shaking his head sadly he allowed that some people just could not appreciate beautiful music. "She is possibly a little eccentric, but on the other hand music might precipitate a nervous expression in her. But I don't feel there's sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction. Case dismissed."—Ottawa Journal.

A Bible Message

AND he sent away the multitude, and took ship, and came into the coasts of Magdala. . . . And when his disciples were come to the other side, they had forgotten to take bread. Then Jesus said unto them, Take heed and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees.

And they reasoned among themselves, saying, It is because we have taken no bread. Which when Jesus perceived, he said unto them, O ye of little faith, why reason ye among yourselves, because ye have brought no bread? . . . .

How is it that ye do not understand that I spake it not to you concerning bread, that ye should beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees? Then understood they how he bade them not to beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and of the Sadducees. (Matt. 15: 39; 16: 5-8, 11, 12.)

Tobacco Crop To Require 30,000 Workers

By The Canadian Press

To cope with the need for workers, the Ontario Tobacco Industry will come under a permit system starting Saturday, Thomas Phillips, National Selective Service Travelling Supervisor said in St. Thomas on his trip through the tobacco regions of western Ontario. If the tobacco crop runs true to present indications, 30,000 tobacco harvesters will be needed in this area by the end of the month.

A report from Simcoe states that prospects in Norfolk county are favorable, but that rain is needed. In Kent County too, farmers say that there is a lack of rain.

Though there has been sufficient labor up to date to help the flue-cured tobacco farmers in Norfolk county, growers there are said to doubt whether there will be enough later. Ten thousand more acres of flue-cured tobacco were planted this year than last, and Selective Service officials are hopeful of getting experienced curers and primers from the southern States.

However, fears were expressed that since the American crop is late and labor lacking there too, the help expected would not be available in time for the Canadian crop.

Tyers and handlers can be obtained without much trouble, but the primers and curers are the key men and they are hard to get under even the best conditions. Women cannot do the job, Mr. Phillips said.

Great Increase

The outlook for the Burley tobacco crop in Kent county is reported excellent. There is a great increase in acreage over last year and quality of the crop is above normal.

Burley growers also fear a shortage of help during the middle of August when the suckling operations start and at the end of that month when harvesting operations begin. However there is no registration required for Burley tobacco workers such as there is for the flue-cured tobacco workers.

Mr. Phillips said he believes 75 per cent. of the workers required will be women and that 40 to 50 per cent. will be drawn from the tobacco area. In addition, 5,000 experienced workers will be brought in from the outside.

Referring to the introduction of the permit system for tobacco employment, the supervisor said that it was inaugurated to be of service to the grower and it was in the growers interest to make a report as to what help is needed to the Selective Service by Saturday.

Important Role For Canada In Post-War Aid

By MARGARET ECKER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 21—(CP)—Canada as a member of the Allied nations will play her full part in the plans of the United Nations' relief and rehabilitation administration for the re-establishment of war-blasted Europe.

Speaking at a press conference here, Sir Arthur Salter, a deputy director of UNRRA under Herbert H. Lehman, stressed that members of the British Empire such as Canada, Australia and New Zealand would have important plces in the program.

L. H. (Mike) Pearson of the Canadian Embassy in Washington is chairman of the supplies committee which is concentrating on the financing and transportation of supplies and their equitable distribution to the peoples of Europe after liberation.

Canadian Wheat

As an example, Sir Arthur said, "wheat will without doubt be drawn from Canada and the value of the wheat will be credited to Canada's contribution to the relief of the countries concerned."

No new annoucements were made at the conference which reiterated the purpose of UNRRA that "food comes first."

It was said at the conference that the speed with which liberated peoples will be provided with an adequate nutritious diet depends on the extent to which the retreating Germans destroy existing stocks and crops, communications and port-loading installations.

A statement prepared by the British Ministry of Food read: "All the efforts of all the United Nations could not possibly feed Europe adequately if the system of production and the internal distribution of food were to break down on the continent, since Europe was relatively not a large importer of food before the war."

Food will go first to the countries whose need is greatest, regardless of capacity to pay.

Ontario Fruit Crop Has Increase

Preliminary estimates of the fruit and vegetable crop in this province by the Ontario Department of Agriculture indicate "a slight increase over 1943 figures which represent an increase of approximately 7 per cent in production over the last five-year average."

The peach crop in the western section of the province will show an increase of approximately 136 per cent as compared with the extremely low yield of 1943. "However, this would be a 12 per cent decrease from the five-year average, and 36 per cent less than the big production year of 1942."

That prospect should point to a supply of peaches that may reach down to the public without all the bother that has been reported and observed in the scramble for a few berries—straw., huckle and rasp.

Plums—"A reduction of approximately 27 per cent from the light crop of 1943 is expected."

Corn—Acreage 41 per cent more than last year; heavy crop expected.

Estimates for eastern Ontario generally agree with those from the western part of the province. The total cherry crop will be slightly less than last year's.

Lose By Holding

The provincial department makes the following observation about potatoes with a little barb for the hold-up by producers last winter: "Practically all old crop potatoes throughout Ontario have now been sold. Available supplies were just about sufficient to take care of demands; therefore, if growers had released their storage holdings and thus provided constant supplies during the winter period of extreme scarcity, it is quite probable that ceiling prices would have been satisfactorily maintained for the entire 1943 crop."

Fall wheat looks like a bumper yield; the hay crop will exceed the average, and in some sections has been decidedly heavy and in prime condition.

Spring grains have been developing uniformly, and the color is good. "Early oats and barley are now heading out, and prospects are for a heavy yield."

This monthly review by the Department makes special mention of the tremendous crop job that has fallen upon the reduced agricultural ranks, and how they have been responding to the emergency with insufficient help.

Puppet Resigns

NEW YORK, July 21—(AP)—The Swiss radio, quoting reports in the Fascist press, said to-day that puppet Italian war minister Rodolfo Graziani had asked to be relieved of his post because of Field Marshal Kesselring's "decision to subordinate Italian Republican army units to German commanders." The German-language broadcast was reported by United States Government monitors.

WE in Canada are blessed with a great and fertile land, capable of producing tremendous quantities of the food which is essential to victory. But many thousands of our people are serving in the armed forces and in the war factories. There are not enough of us on the farms to harvest the produce of all our rich acres. You may be a school teacher or a student, you may be a business or professional man, office or factory worker, storekeeper or clerk; no matter who you may be, if you have a few days, weeks or months of spare time this Summer, you are in a position to perform a great and valued service for your country by taking temporary work on the land. You may be inexperienced, but there are many things you can do to help the farmer. You will find the work healthy and congenial, and you will be paid for it. The shortage of farm help is a National emergency ... your help is URGENTLY needed ... lend your willing aid, NOW.

NEW YORK, July 21 — (AP) — The big feature of the 1944 football season in the United States may be the rise of army teams and the decline of those navy powerhouses that have ruled the roost for the past couple of years...The Colleges won't be getting so much good navy-marine material and the pre-flight schools won't be much better off than the Colleges...But reports trickling in here say you can expect some high-powered stuff from the four Army Air Force teams at Charlotte, N.C., Colorado Springs, Randolph Field, Tex., and March Field, Calif.

For the third night in succession Soldiers and St. Peter's will endeavor this evening to run off their postponed game upon the result of which fourth place in the City League race depends. The teams got in an innings and a half Wednesday night when came the rain, and the fixture was postponed until Thursday. Yesterday afternoon's heavy rain left the diamond at Riverside Park unplayable, and once again the struggle had to be deferred. So they will try again tonight. If Soldiers come through with a win the U.E.W. team will grab the fourth playoff spot and will meet Switchgear Monday night in the first game of one of the semi-final series. However, if St. Peter's grab off the decision they will be tied with U.E.W. and the issue will have to be decided in a sudden-death game. Pete Procyk will probably do the gunning for the Soldiers in tonight's tilt, with either Gene Reynolds or Bill Moorhead firing for St. Peter's. It is the last chance for the latter squad and they will make a big effort to come down in front. The game is billed for 7 o'clock sharp.

Johnson Motor girls, who are playing great ball these nights, will be back in action at the Bowl again tonight when they clash with Aircraft in their last engagement before going on holidays. The Outboard Marines threw a big scare into the Westclox camp Wednesday night when they led the Big Bens by three runs in the sixth inning when rain washed out the game. They hit hard in that fixture and gave the Westclockers all the opposition they wanted. Aircraft will have to be on their best behavior tonight or they may run into a surprise. The Johnson Girls have been steadily getting stronger and they are going along in fine style now, showing the result of the experience they have been gaining. Helen Mark, steady pitcher, will likely be on the mound for them this evening, while Aircraft will call upon Marg. Selkirk or Norma Strickland. It has every indication of being a snappy ball game and will draw a real crowd.

Should Be Treat

The visit of the Oshawa Colts to Peterborough tomorrow to meet Switchgear, holders of first place in the City Softball League, should provide one of the most interesting games of the summer. The Colts, now playing senior B ball after cleaning up the intermediate A division two years in succession, are a powerful machine, strong in every department. They have one of the best two-man pitching staffs in the country, backed up by a strong defensive combination and considerable power at the plate. It is likely Dean McLaughlin, the drop-ball experts of the Colts, will be sent in against Switchgear. George Campbell writes to say the Oshawa team wil bring all its regulars and that means that the Peterborough representatives will have to play ball all the way to have any hope of getting a verdict over the fast-travelling Colts. Manager Murph. Chambers has not announced his pitching choice for tomorrow, but Ronnie Akers may get the call. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock at Riverside Park and a big crowd of softball enthusiasts will undoubtedly be on hand when the umpires send the teams away. Incidentally Reg. Fair of Oshawa may be one of the officials for this colorful engagement.

Doug. Vaughan in the Windsor Star has some pertinent remarks that apply to other towns than Windsor. We pass them on as follows: "True, some sporting organizations and individuals, big of heart and mind as well as of voice, can make you glad to do things for them; others, however, just make you wonder: 'Oh, what's the use?' Only last night, for instance, we heard that a certain athlete resented a bit of a rib in Joe Burns' column—and this despite the fact that during his brief residence in this city he has got more and glossier publicity (from this same Burns) than he ever did elsewhere. Yet even worse are some of those athletes who have grown up here. The particular outsider referred to can be excused because of an unusual temperament, but some of the supposedly right guys around town are the ones who irk you. These fellows can be the subject of nine stories saying how great they are. They won't say thanks, but they'll agree that you're 100 per cent. right. But write a 10th story and criticize them for some little thing, and they'll demand to know what you ever knew about such and such a sport, or about writing. Only the other day a reporter was sitting beside a fellow who, as far as we can recall, has never been the victim of the slightest criticism in our reports of his softball activities, yet the reporter found him surly and caustic because a player who is a friend of his had been publicized at length for a defeat, in contrast to earlier and glowing reports of victories. When all had been on the sunny side nothing had been said."

Aiming At Group

Peterborough Junior Rugby Association, anxious to organize a junior group in this section of the province, has already been in communication with football enthusiasts in a number of other centres. J. D. Miller, secretary of the association has written to several outside points, including Belleville, and in reference to his letter Ken. Colling, Belleville sports writer, has the following comment in his column: "Elsewhere in today's issue appears a letter we received from J. D. Miller, of Peterborough, suggesting the formation of a junior rugby football group for the Central Ontario area....It takes in the area from Oshawa to Lindsay to Belleville any person, group of interested personages or club desirous of sponsoring a junior football team should contact Mr. Miller at 83 James street in Peterborough....However, Belleville may not be in the fortunate position for the provision of gasoline as is the Canadian General Electric, sponsors of rugby football in the Liftlock City....Otherwise the suggestion of organizing is very sound and has merits....With a strong Interscholastic rugby group assured Belleville football fans at the minimum of cost to either the fans or the teams....Then the O.S.D. is expected to return to local Intercholastic sports circles this fall."

The two winners of the Kawartha Lakes championship at the Kawartha course in the last two years, Bobby Gray of Scarboro, who won the title last season, and Bobby Burns of Weston, who came home in front here last week-end in the 1944 event, were both knocked out of the Miller Trophy competition in Toronto Thursday by dark-horse entrants. Their defeat was one of the biggest upsets in the history of the Millar Trophy competition. Gordon DeLaat, former Lakeview pro and now on war work, was the giant killer who knocked Burns out of the running, beating the Weston crack two up. Gray found himself opposed by Bill MacWilliam, veteran professional at St. Andrew's, who had done very little playing this season, and the result was regarded by the experts as a foregone conclusion. MacWilliam surprised the world, however, by beating Gray 1 up. Lex Robson of Kawartha won his first round game with Ben Norris, former Kawartha pro, 4 ot 2, but Bill Spittal of Peterborough did not do so well. He battled with Stan Horne, Montreal ace, and was eliminated 3 and 2.

TORONTO, July 21 — (CP). — Greyhound racing, definitely the "bugs" in Britain, but virtually unknown in this country, may be the up-and-coming sport after the war, muses Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman. The boys returning from Britain will go for the hounds in a big way after they have been subjected to it for years in "Blighty."

Jim reports that some far-seeing individual is toying with plans for a modern greyhound emporium in the environs of Toronto. And, continues Coleman, the income tax people should keep an eye on this character because he will be Canada's first post-war millionaire.

Greyhound fanciers are hopefully breeding dogs for the day when they can branch out, and they held a surprisingly successful meet last year in Guelph, Ont. Given a little encouragement they could do surprising things with the dogs.

As in most race tracks across the country, bettors in Calgary's Victoria Park toppled records almost daily. During the first seven days of the meet $475,969 clicked through the parimutuel machines, while the biggest day's total was -97,961. Both are believed to be all-time records.

Record seeker:

Speaking of records, big Jack McFeeley wants to set his speedy mare Bonnie Golos after the mile and one-eighth mark at Montreal's Blue Bonnets Track. He is willing to match Bonnie Golos against two sprinters in a race against time, with the sprinters setting the pace in relays. If the mare doesn't break the record of 1.52 2-5, McFeeley gets nothing.

Incidentally:

Premier John Hart of British Columbia, no slouch on the golf links, is seeking his fourth senior north-west golf title on the Victoria Greens next month. The competition is open to 55-year-olds and up.....Manager Bruno Betzel of Montreal Royals, as well as Branch Rickey of the Dodger clan reportedly regard Montreal as major league calibre, if a franchise ever is available.

Tip Top Tailors Eliminate Bears

TORONTO, July 21—(CP)—Play in the third annual Toronto and District Tournament of the National Sandlot Baseball Congress advanced to the semi-finals last night with the elimination of three teams in separate games here.

Tip Top Tailors of Toronto, the defending champions, eliminated Bears 6-3 in the last game of the night. Earlier Trinity eliminated Morse 3-2 and Mahers defeated Camp Borden Air Force 10-7.

Trinity, Mahers, Tip Tops and Trenton, who got a bye, will meet in the semi-final round here Saturday. Both will be nine-inning games.

The draw to select the two to play each other with be made by J. P. Fitzgerald, high commissioner in Canada of the Congress, Friday.

Bagging U-Boats Puts End To Jinx

LONDON, Ont., July 21—(CP). —When the frigate H.M.C.S. Waskesiu bagged a U-boat last winter, burly Lieut. Jim Farmer, former University of Western Ontario football star, figures he broke a "jinx" of never playing on a championship team.

Last night at Ottawa, the navy gave official recognition to the feat of the Waskesiu, the first Canadian frigate to sink a German submarine, by announcing nine awards to crew members for "good service" in the destruction of the underseas raider.

For his part in the sinking of the U-boat, Jim Farmer received mention in dispatches. Now, he figures his jinx is smashed, and he is with a championship team at last.

"I never played on a championship football team," once wailed Jim, who is 27, weighs 220 pounds, and comes from Windsor, "I figure I was a jinx."

Farmer played for thee years for Western, but neveh once did the team win a championship.

When he finished university in 1939, Jim still was gunning for a football championship. He chose Argonauts, kings of the gridiron in 1937 and 1938. The year he played for them they lost.

He enlisted in the navy as an ordinary seaman in July, 1940, was commissioned in July, 1941, and went on loan immediately to the Royal Navy. Since then he has treked from Scotland and Iceland to South Africa on active service, but never once did his ship make a kill until the Wakesiu bagged a U-boat and broke his jinx.

Bob Montgomery, holder of the New York version of the World Lightweight title, and Beau Jack, will meet in a 10-round Overweight Boxing match at Madison Square Garden Aug. 4, with admission to the show by purchase of War Bonds only.

The Canadian Diving and Swimming championships scheduled for last night at Vancouver were postponed because of adverse weather conditions officials announced. Rain fell during most of the day and it was considered the water would be too cold for the swimmers. The meet will resume tonight and conclude Monday.

Garden State park at Camden, N. J., apparently is headed for a record $75,000,000 meeting. Until this year, the track, built in 1942, had only one million-dollar day. This year there have already been three such days in the first two days of the 50-day meeting.

A group of former Major League baseball stars will don the White Sox uniforms at Chicago Sunday but not to play ball. The one time diamond standouts will be at Comiskey Park in the "million-dollar War Bond day" in conjunction with the White Sox-New York Yankee doubleheader. Bob Gray Beaten First Round Of Millar Trophy

TORONTO, July 21—(CP)—Play goes into the quarter-finals for the Millar Trophy, emblematic of the Eastern Canada Professional Golf championship, over the 6,600-yard Islington Golf Club course here to-day.

Yesterday's first round matches were featured by the defeat of Bob Gray, Toronto, defending champion, by Bill MacWilliam, professional at the Toronto St. Andrews Club, who scored a 1 up triumph.

In another upset, Gordon DeLaat a former Lambton caddy, eliminated Bob Burns, Weston, Ont., professional who won the Kawartha Lakes open title at Peterborough, Ont., last week-end. He scored a 2 up victory.

The course was turned into a damp, soggy pitch early yesterday as a result of a heavy downpour of rain and special rules were put into effect for the day, whereby any ball "plugged" or deep in casual water was lifted.

Two Favorites Eliminated

Gray and Burns, regarded among the best golfers in Canada, were the only two favorites to be eliminated.

Among successful performers advancing into today's rounds were four former champions — Jimmy Johnstone, winner of the trophy when it was first donated by Capt. Melville Millar in 1928; Lex Robson, six-time winner of the cup, from Peterborough, Ont.; Gordon Brydson, winner of the Ontario Open Championship here last Tuesday and Millar Trophy champion in 1937; and Dick Borthwick, 1938 champion and semi-finalist last year.

Johnstone defeated Gordon Watson of the R.C.A.F. at Trenton, Ont., 6 and 5; Robson defeated Ben Norris, unattached, 4 and 2; Brydson defeated Archie Grimsditch, Credit Valley, 3 and 2, and Borthwick bested Archie Bloor of Orillia, 4 and 3.

Two Quebec contestants — Jules Huot of Quebec City and Stan Horne of Montreal—also won their opening matches. Huot defeated Lionel Ross, unattached 3 and 2, and Horne won 3 and 2 over Willie Spittal of Peterborough.

Finals for the trophy will be played Saturday.

WORLD'S FASTEST RUNNER AND RIVAL—Arne Anderson, Right, 28-year-old school teacher who set a new world record for the mile when he defeated his rival, Gunder Hagg, shown congratulating him, at the Malmo track in Stockholm, covering the distance in 4:01.6, or three full seconds under the 4:04.6 mark set by Hagg in 1942. Hagg finishing second to Anderson by two metres in his record-shattering race, was clocked at 4:02, bettering his former record mark by 2:6 seconds. This picture was made at last year's meet in Stockholm.

Teddy Mills Of Marines Hits Homer With Bases Full

Two runs, chased across during the fourth and fifth innings, saved Peterborough Lock from a complete smothering by Outboard Marines, as they wound up a Ladies' Softball League game at Ashburnham Bowl Thursday evening on the short end of a 23-2 count.

In the fourth frame the Lock Works' Beryl Lee doubled to left, went to third on Isobel Varcoe's single through short stop, and completed the run on a single by Anna Howran. In the fifth, Myrtle Falls singled to right, the next batter rolled one to pitcher and was out at first, Betty McMahon hit one into right field, and brought home Miss Falls, totalling the Lock Company's count for the evening.

In the sixth, the Marines chalked up four runs, when Teddy Mills, one of the team's hitting stars, hit a home-run with the bases loaded.

The Marines added seven runs to boost their evening's gathering to 23, in the ninth inning. Eileen Young singled through short-stop, and stole the next two bases. Ollie Smith was safe on a hit into short left field. Vera Mitchell socked one into deep left, scoring Miss Young. Helen Mark bunted safely, allowing Ollie Smith to score. Maxine Monson hit an easy one to pitcher, which when fumbled, brought another batter home. Teddy Mills, up next, popped to third base. Edna Smith walked, bringing in Helen Mark, and the next batter bunted, and another fumble by the Lock Company's infield scored another runner. The next batter flied to right field, and Eileen Young, with two away, hit one into deep centre, scoring one. Bertha Phillips scored on a single by Ollie Smith, and the next batter popped to second base to end Marines' most successful innings.

Maxine Monson and Helen Mark pitched for Marines, fanning 8 and walking none, while holding the Lock Company to nine blows.

Beryl Lee was on the mound for Peterborough Lock, contributing one strike-out, and issuing two walks.

Slow fielding by Peterborough Lock helped the Marines, and errors in the infield also contributed to their defeat. Audrey Patton was the other half of the Lock Company's battery.

Ineffectual hitting by the Lock Works put many of their players out at first base, while Marines' centre field, manned by Eileen Young, and third base, handled by Maxine Monson, also tossed their quota of Lock Works' players out of the fray.

Buffalo Whip Royals 11-3

By The Associated Press

Montreal Royals lead the International League to-day by only half a game, as a result of last night's loss to Buffalo Bisons, 11-3.

As proof of the fact that the league race is a red hot affair, Stan Andrews of Montreal and Bison pitcher Walter Wilson teed off at each other in the fourth inning. After being hit by one of Wilson's pitches, Andrews heaved his bat at Wilson. This touched off a near riot which was precipitated when players from both sides rushed on the field.

No one was ejected, however, as the game went back to normal. Backing up Wilson's pitching was Bobby Maier, who blasted a base-clearing triple in the Herd's six-run third. The only high spot for the Royals was Moe Aderholt's 18th homer of the year. Aderholt thereby regained the league lead from Bison Eddie Kobesky.

After 11 innings of scoreless play, Newark pushed a run over in the 12th against Baltimore, only to have Howie Moss unfurl a game-winning home run in the last half of the 12th with one aboard.

Alex Mustaikis won his 11th game as Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Rochester, 4-3. Mustaikis now shares the league lead with Mike Roscoe of Buffalo. The Leafs' winning tally was made by Dick Shoff, who batted in three runs during the game.

Draw Completed For Henley Meet

TORONTO, July 21 — (CP). — Draw for this year's 62nd Royal Canadian Henley at Port Dalhousie, Ont., revealed that the meet will extend over a period of three days instead of the originally-expected two-day regatta but that on the first day—July 27—only two 145-pound junior eights heats will be contested.

The draw was made at a meeting of the Canadian Association of Amateur Oarsmen here last night, and as has been usual during recent war years the bulk of events will be confined to two days—Friday and Saturday, July 28 and 29. In pre-war years, when entry lists were much heavier, the draw took up three full days.

This year's entry list follows much the same pattern as those of recent Henleys with Toronto Argos defending their aggregate laurels against scullers and oarsmen from Buffalo, Detroit, Ecorse, Mich., Wyandotte, Mich., and Hamilton, Ontario.

Feature events of the meet as usual will be staged on the final day with the senior eights and the senior singles holding the spotlight.

Four events for service personnel also will be staged, including one—a quarter-mile whaler race — for Wrens.

Browns Defeat Yankees 7 to 3 Nelson Potter Given "The Finger"

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Shades of 1920 have descended on the 1944 American League pennant race as the old "spot ball" argument was dragged into the first place struggle between St. Louis Browns and New York Yankees.

Claiming Pitcher Nelson Potter had been tossing "spitters," Umpire Cal Hubbard gave the Brownie starter the heave-ho in the fifth inning last night. Since 1920 all such freak deliveries have been banned.

Two former Yankee farmhands made the St. Louis fans forget the incident by smashing home runs in a five-run seventh-inning rally that gave the Browns a 7-3 victory and upped their lead to three full games. Mike Chartak clouted one homer as a pinch-hitter with two on and George (Lefty) McQuinn hit the other with one on, dooming Hank Borowy.

While Browns were stretching their lead, the Cardinals downed New York Giants twice, 10-2 and 6-2 in 11 innings. Mort Cooper had no trouble in grabbing the opener over Rookie Jack Brewer, but Teddy Wilks had to have a four-run 11th inning to decision Rube Fischer. By the double victory, St. Louis moved 13 games ahead of Cincinnati, their largest margin of the year.

Boston dropped Chicago back into the National cellar by two 5-4 victories, the first behind Jim Tobin who singled in the 14th and scored the big run to top Paul Derringer. Connie Ryan's double won the nightcap for Ira Hutchinson over Claude Passeau. The Braves tied for sixth with Brooklyn as the Dodgers were shut out 6-0 by Cincinnati's Harry Gumbert.

Ray Starr hurled Pittsburg to an opening 4-1 edge over the Phils' Bill Lee, but Ford Mullen singled with the bases loaded in the 11th to even matters with a 3-2 edge.

Boston's Red Sox became the first club to take a season series by whipping the White Sox 11-7 for their 12th decision in 13 starts against Chicago. Detroit shaded Washington 7-6 on the slugging of Rudy York and Dick Wakefield. Steve Gromek hurled Cleveland to a 2-1 whisker over Philadelphia.

Yesterday's Stars

(By The Associated Press)

Whitey Kurowski and Augie Bergamo, Cards—Kurowski drove in two runs with triple and three singles in St. Louis' first game win over Giants, 10-2; Bergamo's pinch single broke deadlock in 11th frame of finale, won by Cards, 6-2.

Gee Walker, Reds—Paced Cincinnati's seven-hit attack with double and triple, driving in two runs of 6-0 margin over Brooklyn.

Bobby Doerr, Red Sox—Boosted league-leading batting average to .338 with two safeties, knocking home three runs in Boston's 11-7 triumph over Chicago.

Mike Chartak, Browns—Delivered three-run pinch homer to provide winning runs as St. Louis rallied to stop New York, 7-3.

Canadian Pilot Escorts 135 Prisoners

By HAROLD MAYES
Reuter War Correspondent

WITH THE 2ND TACTICAL AIR FORCE IN NORMANDY, July 21—(CP-Reuter).—WO. Richard Watson of Oba, Ont., an R.C.A.F. fighter-bomber pilot, was back at his base today after a series of adventures that included being shot down over the German lines across the Orne, taking shelter in a slit trench while a battle raged and acting as an escort to 135 German prisoners.

Watson had just released his bombs on a German infantry position on Tuesday when his plane was hit by flak, exploded in the air, and he was thrown from the cockpit.

He managed to pull his parachute ripcord and floated down inside the German lines only three fields from his original target.

Expecting an unfiendly welcome, he dived into a slit trench, but found the Germans too busy with the battle to bother about him.

Under Heavy Fire.

Soon British armor was moving up and the field came under heavy fire. His parachute, only a few yards away from him, vanished under a direct hit.

After three hours Allied tanks rolled up to capture the field, but Watson had still to pass many pockets of German resistance before he could reach real safety.

On the way back he was met by two privates with 15 prisoners. They suggested to him that his safest way back would be to escort the prisoners.

He continued with this party to a first aid post where he was treated for burns and shock, and there he met two other British soldiers with 120 prisoners.

Eventually, with three soldiers and 135 prisoners Watson reached the British lines.

Men of an R.A.F. regiment escorted him to an airfield where he was flown back to his own base.

He is recovering from shock now and soon will be in action again.

Jerry And Jap Are Captured By Young French-Canadian

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN VAUCELLES, July 19—(CP Cable)—(Delayed) — A strange group came across a sturdy wooden bridge thrown over the Orne by Canadian Engineers on Wednesday from Caen to its east bank suburb of Vaucelles.

One of three men kept the other two covered with a Sten gun. He was Pte. Lucien Girard, a young French-speaking Canadian from Montreal and probably the happiest soldier in France at that moment. For he was escorting two unkempt prisoners — one a small Japanese who didn't look a year over 18 and the other a surly soldier of the German Wehrmacht.

First Day in Action.

"What do you think of this," he shouted "It is my first day in action, and look what I get—a Jerry and a Jap. What more can you ask?"

The first Canadian we met in debris-littered Vauceles was Cpl. Stewart Beattie of Vancouver.

Beattie showed us a garden where one of four machine-gun nests which his outfit wiped out earlier in the day was situated. We asked him if he had taken any prisoners.

"You seldom take any prisoners when you mop up machine-gun nests," he replied.

Farther up a street marked with white tapes, indicating it was being checked for mines, Pte. Tony Ketlo, a Carrier tribe Indian from Fraser Lake, B.C., was engaged in a queer pastime. He had stuck a picture of Field-Marshal Von Rundstedt on the garage floor and was throwing a commando knife through the forehead with unerring aim from 20 places.

Trooper Jack Finnerty of North Cobalt, Ont., of a Canadian reconnaissance regiment, was admiring the marksmanship. Ketlo said he had accounted for three Jerries during the Tuesday night's fighting.

Between two wrecked buildings Maj. Duncan McKenzie of Oakville, Ont., was sitting in an armored reconnaissance car, listening to news of the battle south of Vaucelles as it came over the radio.

Snipers Are Young.

We had to climb on a porch to make way for three shirt-sleeved westerners marching some two dozen green-uniformed youngsters of a German SS. division to the pontoon bridge. Half the prisoners, who had been left behind as snipers and machine-gunners, appeared to be less than 20, and if there was any expression on their tired faces it was one of relief.

We reached a point where a grimy-faced Canadian provost who said he hadn't slept for 48 hours warned us about going ahead because isolated snipers hiding in the fields had been taking pot shots at Canadian troops driving forward towards the south.

Back at the bridge leading to Caen was an old Frenchman who stuck it out to the finish with 400 other civilians who lived in Caucelles to this day. He wore the white arm band of the French resistance movement and said modestly he turned over eight Boches to the Canadians Wednesday morning.

Our sappers were standing near their pontoon bridge with a proud, paternal look in their eyes. It was their first river job in Normandy, and they said it had taken them three hours.

The men there included Sgt. John Holland of Seaforth, Ont., and Cpl. Vincent Lynch of Thorold, Ont.

Mrs. K. Larmer Hostess To Friends At Picnic

FRASERVILLE, July 21—(ENS)—Mrs. Keith Larmer and her mother, Mrs. R. Wood, of Fraserville, entertained at a picnic Tuesday afternoon. The children played games, while the women spent a social time until the supper hour, which was enjoyed on the lawn.

Great Britain To Represent Commonwealth

OTTAWA, July 21—(CP)—Great Britain and not the British Commonwealth will be represented at the conference of four great powers to be held in the United States to consider plans for world security, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the Commons Thursday.

He was answering a question from Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, as to whether the Commonwealth would be represented at a United Nations gathering.

Mr. King said no meeting of the United Nations was to be held. The meeting of four powers was being held in accordance with the Moscow declaration.

"Is the British Commonwealth included in the four great powers or just Great Britain," asked Mr. Graydon.

"The four powers are the United Kingdom, the United States, the U.S.S.R. and China," said Mr. King.

Outside the House, a government official said that after the conference has agreed on the framework of a plan for world security, the next step no doubt would be to call in the smaller powers of the nations and have a definite proposal to lay before them. Canada would then be represented in the conferences.

In the meantime, Britain knows the views of the Canadian Government as a result of the conference of prime ministers in London last May.

It Doesn't Leave a Lot for the Civilian

WHEN war demands have been filled . . . when invasion gasoline, aviation gasoline, Navy fuel oil, petroleum for the manufacture of explosives, synthetic rubber, and gasoline for war industry, farming and essential trucking all have been taken from Canada's oil supply—it doesn't leave a lot for the civilian!

Figure it out for yourself. It takes 5,250,000 gallons of gasoline to fuel 5,000 bombers and fighters for a mission over Germany. It takes enough oil for one fueling of a battleship to heat an average house for 350 years. It takes 18,000 gallons of gasoline to keep one armoured division on the move for one hour.

From petroleum and petroleum gases we obtain the gasoline and fuels needed to power planes and ships and tanks as well as the raw material for acetone, ammonia and toluol for explosives, organic chemicals for anaesthetics, naphthas for camouflage paints and plastics and resins for war weapons production.

This is why civilian gasoline is short. This is why it's up to every motorist, to every owner of an oil-heated home, to exercise the strictest economy in gasoline or fuel oil usage. Every gallon we can do without here at home is one gallon more for the fighting men. And they need every gallon they can get.

Two full years of gasoline rationing and fuel oil control in Canada have saved 393,000,000 gallons of gasoline and 175 million gallons of fuel oil—a total saving of 568,000,000 gallons of petroleum products. Yet, despite this saving, gasoline stocks on hand in Canada, as of March 31st, this year, were 55,000,000 gallons less than at the commencement of rationing, April 1, 1942.

Oil has a mighty war job to do—yet supplies are short and are constantly dwindling. Oil powers the attack on every front. Oil can mean the difference between success or failure, between light casualty lists and heavy. Oil is vital ammunition—not to be wasted, not to be needlessly, frivolously spent.

LESS CIVILIAN GAS MEANS MORE "FIGHTING GAS" FOR THE FORCES

NO. 4 OF A SERIES OF ANNOUNCEMENTS ISSUED BY THE DEPARTMENT OF MUNITIONS AND SUPPLY, HONOURABLE C. D. HOWE, MINISTER

Answering YOUR QUESTIONS about the GASOLINE SHORTAGE

What are Canada's total yearly requirements of motor gasoline? . . . Approximately 800,000,000 gallons. Do these requirements have to cover both military and civilian needs? . . . Yes. Why cannot this supply be increased? . . . Because total hemispheric supplies are inadequate to meet both the colossal war demand and civilian needs. There is not enough oil, there are not enough tankers, for both. How much of Canada's petroleum needs is supplied from Canadian wells? . . . Only 15% Why can't this home production be increased? . . . Every effort is being made to do so. More new wells are being drilled or prepared for drilling, than at any time in the history of Western Canada, but we have yet to find a new Turner Valley. War does not wait for new production.

STORE IS ROBBED.

Young's grocery store at Young's Point was broken into during Thursday night, and the thieves got away with $100 worth of merchandise, Provincial Constable Price Morris stated this morning. Entrance to the place was gained at the rear of the store.

HAVING EXCITING TIME

In a letter to his father, Joseph Brioux, 62 Brioux street, Pte. Bill Brioux, a despatch rider in France, says he's in good health, and although in the front lines where the fighting is tough, is having an exciting time in the invasion. His brother, Stoker Thomas Brioux, R. C. N., is stationed in Quebec City, but is expected home on leave.

NOT B.-A. FIRE

Management of British American Oil Company in the district has reminded the Examiner that several references recently to correspondence with the city council has suggested that company property was burned in an Ashburnham fire. As a matter of fact there was no fire involving B.-A. tanks, but a serious fire did occur on the property of Canadian Oil Company.

CORN'S IN.

Corn on the cob arrived rather furtively in the fruit and vegetable stands, registering in at 59 cents a dozen. So, there it is, take it or leave it, probably Golden Bantam, and true to name. Its ears should be tingling by the week-end if it hears some of the things the neighbors will be saying about it at that price.

A REAL FAN.

Peterborough has at least one real ball fan. Thursday night when a police cruiser was patrolling the water front just north of the C.P.R. bridge, the officer in charge noticed an automobile parked close to the bank of the river with the lights out. Investigation showed that the sole occupant was intently listening to a broadcast of the Leafs-Rochester game, and he explained he had picked that spot as a listening post because it was quiet.

BEAUTIFUL VIEW.

All the advantages of a summer resort, with the comforts of home, are now available to Water street residents whose homes face the river, since city workmen trimmed the high-growing hedge along the embankment between Dublin and Antrim streets. The spires and other bushes which had been effectively screening the view of the river have been cut and trimmed, and now a wide expanse of the Otonabee is visible. The appearance of the beds has not suffered, however, since the hydrangea and chrysanthemums and lillies are beginning to bloom and asters and other fall flowers are coming along.

The quantity of milk used in the manufacture of creamery butter and cheese during June was 452,106,000 pounds, or 4.6 per cent. less than June, 1943, when 474,012,000 pounds were supplied by Ontario's dairy farms.

For the first six months' period the quantity of milk for the manufacture of cheese and butter totalled 1,302,747,000 pounds as against 1,393,844,000 pounds in the first half of 1943, a reduction of 6.5 per cent.

Two Soldiers Reported Badly Wounded

Two more casualties, both badly injured have been reported today from Ottawa. One soldier, Sgt. Wilfred Thomas Jones, previously reported wounded is now classified as dangerously ill. The other, Sgt. Roy Garrett, is said to be seriously injured with shrapnel wounds.

With an artillery unit in France, Sgt. Jones was recently made troop commander of his outfit. He went overseas in October, 1941, and attended Confederation School and Peterborough Collegiate. Before enlisting he worked at the Brinton Carpet Company.

SGT. W. T. JONES (Dangerously Ill).

SGT. ROY B. GARRETT (Severely Wounded).

Another Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlander to be reported wounded in action in France is Sgt. Roy B. Garrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernie Garrett, R. R. 2, Lakefield. Robert Ridge, wounded in Normandy, and at present in hospital. His father is a veteran of the First World War and is confined to bed with a heart condition.

Raspberry Crop Disappointment

That mid-summer delicacy — raspberries—is going to be just as scarce this season as was its predecessor, strawberries, according to the city's retail and wholesale merchants.

Although retailers have no grounds for suspecting people of buying direct from the grower, as as the case in the strawberry season, they said many people are taking advantage of the plentiful supply of the fruit growing wild along the highways and byways of this district; and it as indicated the wild berries might even exceed the crop of domestic fruit.

With a ceiling price of 24 cents a pint, Anthony's Fruit Market said they found the berries selling like hotcakes. Blueberries, they said, are much more in evidence than raspberries, and although there is no ceiling price on them, prices generally range around 50 cents a quart.

The Modern Fruit Market pointed out that people, hiking out into the country after blueberries, will find crop of wild berries will be very small, and most of the fruit has dried up already.

But raspberry fanciers can take hope, however, in the forecast of one optimistic fruit vendor. He says there will be plenty next week and week after that will see even more in the stores.

One CGE Group Adds $16.65 To Plant Record

Less than a week ago, three gifts from the employees of the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd. appeared in this column on behalf of the bomb victims in Britain, through the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, at which time they had then attained the impressive total of 7,189.91 in money raised by them on behalf of this very worthy cause.

Today this total has been boosted above another hundred dollar mark through the work of the employees in the Punch Press Department, of which A. Griffin is the foreman, this making the second gift from this one group since this year began.

This group has a fine record of achievement on behalf of this fund, their gift of $16.65 today marking the 12th donation that has been received from them, which in all has aggregated a total of $240.93, an average of slightly over $20 a time, they being among those who have given consistent suuport all along the line.

This latest contribution gives the employees of the C.G.E. Co. Ltd. and Genelco Ltd. a total credit of $7,208.56, which is over £1,500 sterling, in itself thus providing the means for well over three regular donations each of £500, which the fund usually cables at one time.

Young Girl Makes $8.64

After the first flush of excitement at the advent of the long summer holiday recess from school duties has subsided, parents could very well encourage their young children to gainfully employ their leisure hours in such a manner of which an instance is reported today, since children with such an objective are in an indirect way receiving an education in itself which may well be of great assistance in character building that might well bear fruits for good in the days that are still yet to come.

On Wednesday of this week, Geraldine Perks held a sale of canned goods, flower jars, cigarette holders, books, pictures, frames, and soap, on the verandah at the family residence, 221 London street, and raised the nice sum of $8.64 credited in her name today.

This is a nice sum for a ten-year-old to raise, and the experience gained will bring much satisfaction in the future, besides acting as an example or inspiration to others. This young girl particularly wishes to thank all those who assisted by giving her donations to make the effort possible.

As people grow older, memories of yesteryear hold more and more an open place in their lives, and when they concern the part that a loved one now passed beyond the veil to eternity had played in their lives and affections, the memories become all the more poignant.

No finer tribute to their memory can be paid than that of doing some act of kindness or goodness to other people in misery or distress in their name, and in the instance reported today with a gift acknowledged under "Cherished memories of our darling boy, Billy Coleman, Mom and Dad" it also means the carrying of assistance to those in need, back to the land from which his forbears emanated, and recalls the works done by this young scoutmaster himself in training others for the better things of life, while he walked the paths of this city.

War—4 Years Ago

WOUNDED IN FRANCE — Sgt. Sherman Hill, who has been overseas with the S.D. and G. Highlanders since 1941, was wounded in Normandy by a rifle bullet in June. His injuries are healing nicely and he hopes to be back in action soon. His wife lives in Lakefield.

Vagrant Given 6-Week Term

When Joseph Turcotte, charged in police court a few days ago with vagrancy, pleaded guilty sentence was reserved until today to enable the police to look up the man's record.

This morning Turcotte's dossier as compiled by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police was handed to Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. and it proved to be one of the worst, so far as the number of charges were concerned, that has been produced in the local court for a long time.

It showed numerous convictions on both sides of the border for a variety of offences and dating back 20 years.

Magistrate Langley sentenced the accused to six weeks' imprisonment on the vagrancy charge and refused a request to have the sentence dated back to the day of Turcotte's arrest. The man was taken into custody here after he had begged at a number of residences and frightened several women by his conduct. Police say that he entered one house and changed his shirt in the kitchen.

Mrs. J. Thompson Dies On Return From Visit

Returning from a visit to Preston, where she formerly resided, Mrs. James L. Thompson was stricken by a heart attack, and died suddenly Thursday evening at her home, 627 Walkerfield avenue. She was in her 52nd year.

Born in Brisbane, Australia, daughter of the late Charles and Emma South, she received her education in Australia, and in Vancouver, B.C. Formerly Marjorie W. South, she and her husband resided in Picton for some years where he was manager of the Bank of Toronto. She had only been in Peterborough for six months, and was a member of Trinity United Church. She also belonged to the 57th chapter of the I.O.D.E.

Mrs. Thompson is survived by her husband, two sons, Capt. John N. Stephenson, with the Canadian Army Overseas, James Thompson, Peterborough, and one daughter, Mrs. W. D. Atton, Peterborough.

The funeral will be Saturday, July 22 from Comstock and Son Funeral Home, 305 Water street, at 4:00 p.m. Interment will be at Little Lake Cemetery, and Dr. E. W. Young will officiate.

Had 245 Bottles

TORONTO, July 21. — (CP).— Harry Workman pleaded guilty in police court here yesterday to a charge of possessing 245 bottles of liquor worth $1,200. The bottles bore seals of the Quebec Liquor Commission and the car in which they were found had a Quebec license. He was fined $500 or three months and his car and liquor were confiscated.

Rangers Leave For Camp Sunday

The 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, in strength comparable to last year, leaves for its two-week summer camp at Connaught Ranges Sunday and will be away from the city until August 8. Battalion members are to parade at the Armouries at 12:30 a.m. Sunday morning for the trip east that day. An advance party of about 17, of which Lieut. W. S. Cowell is in charge, will depart ahead of the main group. The entire brass band will be down at Connaught Ranges during the second week of training.

As most of the reservists in the Prince of Wales Rangers have already undergone a good deal of basic training, the training in the next two weeks will be of a more advanced character, the regiment's headquaters says. It will be an advanced, collective training, more interesting than more elementary phases, and will combine a variety of schemes. There will be a certain amount of firing of weapons on the range by each individual and all kinds of weapons are included in his portion of the training program. Each Ranger will fire under the direction of a coach; and competition will be made lively by the award of prizes for high shooting scores.

Special Sports

Organized sports in conjunction with the competition in the use of weapons will be a feature of the life in camp, and the Rangers, who will be at Connaught with bridged units from the Ottawa area, will have a field day near the end of the training period. When it comes to the tug-of-war, they have an old grudge to settle with the S. D. and G.'s, who last year took the Peterborough reserves on as soon as the latter had just finished pulling their hearts out against another adversary and even so beat them only by the slenderest of margins. When the Peterborough men forwarded a challenge to the Highlanders to meet them on the field of battle again the next morning, the S. D. and G.'s declined another pull, saying that their rope was packed. But the Rangers stalwarts are not through seeking their revenge, not by a long shot.

Music lovers who are travelling with the Rangers on Sunday have been reminded to bring along their instruments, so that their virtuoso talents may help maintain the jollity of battalion life around the camp fire in the evenings.

FIGHTING IN FRANCE—Sgmn. J. Kelly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kelly, R.R. 1, Norwood, is believed to be fighting in France. He enlisted with the R.C.C.S. two years ago this month and was formerly employed with the Hydro in the Norwood and Indian River districts.

Huckleberries Reported To Be Plentiful

Huckleberries from the Sudbury rock country are quite plentiful and of excellent quality, George Clarke of National Grocers told the Examiner today, and supplies of northern stock are available. The harvest in Burleigh and Methuen was much lighter than last year.

The cherry crop seems to have disappeared. The black variety is just about finished, and deliveries of Montmorencies have been so light that they may be cancelled from the season's fruit list.

"We did not get any yesterday and today," Mr. Clarke said, "and maybe we will finish the week in that condition. However, we had been advised that the crop was nearly a failure."

However, the first of the 1944 apple crop is approaching the picking stage, and the "firstlings" of Yellow Transparents and Duchess are expected to reach Peterborough some time next week.

And when the Yellow Transparents have mahogany colored seeds in them, you know the summer has passed the meridian of the year, and its zenith is only a memory. The early apples are coming from the Leamington district.

Carrots Set Back

Meanwhile, it may interest the neighbors who go in for carrot juice that this vegetable crop is showing improvement after a reverse during the long dry period, and should soon catch up with the abundance of beets, cabbage, string beans and other garden products.

Leamington celery shows a decline in prices, and the quality is first rate. California canteloupes are folding up and will be replaced at the forepart of next week with the famous "Leamington loupes".

Local potatoes are plentiful and the prices is easier, but the week end price of tomatoes may move up before the prospect of recession next week when larger supplies are expected.

Sholer Given His Freedom

A vagrancy charge against Harold Sholer was dismissed in police court this morning, Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. declaring that the crown had technically failed to prove the charge.

However the court warned the accused that he had better be careful in the future.

Constable Gordon Trennum testified that early Thursday morning he had found Sholer asleep in a car inside the Park Hill Road entrance to Nicholls Oval. The officer stated that he had found the car belonged to a woman.

"He had an alarm clock in the car", said the witness "and a gasoline can and a piece of rubber hose that smelled of gasoline. He told me first that he had been locked out of his boarding house and that was why he was there in the car at that hour. There was a new 1944-45 gasoline ration book in the automobile with not a coupon left".

Sholer told the court that he had used the gasoline can and rubber tubing at noon the previous day when his car stalled on the street and he had to clean out the feed pipe. He had forgotten to take them out of the car afterward, he said. Wednesday night Sholer stated, he had gone to the home of his sister where he had been boarding for the past week and as the people were apparently away he had driven to the Oval for a while and fallen asleep in the car.

"I suppose you know the police have many complaints of gasoline being stolen?" asked Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

"I have heard that", replied Sholer.

"And you know that tubing such as you had is used for the purpose of siphoning gas from cars?"

"Yes, but I had it to fix my car".

Magistrate Langley said that it was a case of suspicion but that technically the vagrancy charge had not been proven.

REPORTED MISSING — FO. Frank Haddlesey, D.F.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haddlesey, Norwood, has been reported missing after air operations overseas. He was decorated in December, 1943.

FO. F. Haddlesey On Missing List

Awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross in December 1943, after he shot down a Nazi fighter plane, then went to the aid of his gunner, even though he himself had been wounded three times, FO. Frank Haddlesey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Haddlesey, Norwood, has been officially reported missing after air operations, according to word receieved by his parents.

The young officer lived in Central Dummer before enlisting, and he trained in Toronto, Jarvis, Trenton and MacDonald, Man., where he received his commission.

It was while flying with an Australian Lancaster squadron the airman won his D.F.C. After destroying a German night fighter, he said nothing about his own serious wounds in the right shoulder. For three hours on the homeward journey, FO. Haddlessey tended the wounded gunner's wounds, saying nothing about himself having been shot. It was only upon arrival at the base hospital, that blood was noticed streaming from his shoulder. Still, the brave airman refused to be treated until after the gunner's wounds had been dressed. Then, he collapsed. His commanding officer termed it, "one of the bravest actions I have ever heard of."

Used Old License To Go For Swim

"It was hot, Your Worship, and so he took a chance and drove the car for the purpose of going for a swim", explained Traffic Officer L. A. McClure in police court this morning after Percy Dunford, 17, Indian River pleaded guilty to driving an automobile that did not have the required license.

The officer said that Dunford had bought an old car, bearing 1931 markers and had driven it on this occasion before he had obtained a new license for the car.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. remarked that he thought a small fine would be sufficient under the circumstances and accordingly imposed a levy of $10 and $2.50 costs.

On a written plea of guilty a fine of $1.00 and $1.00 costs was imposed on J. A. Bradshaw for parking in a prohibited area in Lakefield.

Leo Hull, 21, Douro township, charged with assaulting and beating his wife, Betty Hull, pleaded not guilty and was remanded until Monday when he said that he was not ready to go on this morning. A request for bail was objected to by Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. and refused by Magistrate Langley.

WHAT COULD SHE EXPECT?

Many a business girl has lost a great deal of her liking for open-toed shoes as a result of the torrential downpour shortly after one o'clock Thursday afternoon. The prime disadvantage of the air-conditioning of this particular style was brought vividly to mind as they were forced to brave flooded streets if they wished to fill the inner woman. Practically all could borrow umbrellas, but rubbers were at a premuim, so a great many were to be seen, dashing in poor racing form, for the cover of friendly restaurants. One bystander, who happily was not hungry, and standing in the protection of an awning, as one poor girl puffed by and wailed, "the rain's running into my shoes," observed, with marvellous clarity, "no wonder, they've got holes in them."—C.N.

CIVILIZATION?

LONDON — (CP) — The alert signal flashed on the screen in a suburban theatre. In the distance a flying bomb crashed and then another a little nearer. Immediately afterwards, a character in the movie said: "So this is what they call civilization!"

The bride wears white dotted Swiss inset with eyelet embroidery, and made with bishop sleeves. Her white hair net is laced with fresh daisies to match her tuzzy muzzy bouquet.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

A GARDEN-TIME BRIDE—Filmy, crisp cottons are the choice of many a bride both for her own wedding dress and that of her attendants. Shops are in league with this preference, and an astounding price range is covered in the readymade offerings. Tulle veils and lacy headdresses aren't usually the best bet as accessories to the bridal dress of cotton; yet tradition demands that a bride's head be covered. This photograph shows the new rayon hair nets decorated with fresh flowers as caps for both the lovely bride and her attendant.

Navy Auxiliary Committee Appointed for Field Day

Six members of the Navy Auxiliary, Mrs. A. Chartren, Mrs. Walter Wheeler, Mrs. J. G. M. Wilson, Mrs. F. D. Craig, Mrs. George Groombridge and Mrs. W. H. Morton, are to act with the president, Mrs. Frank Merrett, on a new committee of women, to plan their part in the proposed Labor Day Field Day, now under way. The committee was chosen at a special meeting of the Auxiliary Thursday evening in the Y.W.C.A. The Army and Air Force Auxiliaries will also have a committee of six, in addition to their respective presidents.

Since the women of the auxiliaries are to be in charge of supplying food and refreshments for the day, considerable discussion as to ways and means, took up the greater part of the meeting of the Navy Auxiliary. It was felt that each booth should carry a definite line of goods. and that all supplies should be bought at the same time. Hot dogs, chocolate bars and gum, cigarettes and ice-cream if available, were suggested as possible items to be sold. Decorations were also discussed.

The members expressed their genuine appreciation and pleasure at the interest taken by the men in planning this special day's entertainment, with all proceeds to be divided among the auxiliaries. The men on the committees are to take charge of all the sports and entertainment for the whole day, and already have a tentative program in mind, which will include a parade, a round of sports and competitions and special programs.

Auxiliary Thanked

Mrs. Merrett read a letter of appreciation from Lieut. J. B. Raine, commanding officer of H.M.C.S. Peterborough, "for the splendid way in which they supported the ship and for their warm and generous interest in her and her ship's company. The numerous and generous gifts, the wonderful reception and entertainment provided by the citizens, are, and will long be, a most pleasant memory to us. We are most grateful to the ladies for their untiring work and wish to say a special 'Thank You' to you all."

The executive for the Field Day, chosen at a special meeting held recently, is as follows: Chairman, K. J. Currie; vice-chairman, W. J. Hamilton; assistant co-chairmen, Mrs. Frank Merrett, Mrs. R. J. Kearns and Mrs. J. A. Dewart; secretary, R. J. McGrath; treasurer, C. S. Cummer. L. A. McClure is chairman of the Sports committee, with J. A. Armitage as vice-chairman, and assistants H. A. Cranfield, G. H. Roper, Lt.-Col. James Turnbull, J. A. Jebson, Miss Caroline Littlefield, and the president of each city service club as well as representatives from each of the three auxiliaries.

The prize committee is headed by H. S. Longhurst as chairman, with A. Ward-Smith as vice-chairman and George Moore, A. Graham, Mrs. R. B. Harle, Mrs. George Moore and Mrs. James Turnbull as assistants. C. H. Huffman will be chairman of the concessions, and Max Swanston will be chairman of the property committee. Refreshments will be in charge of the three auxiliaries. H.A. Cranfield is also to be in charge of first aid arrangements.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, July 22

CONTINUED opportunities of great significance and of the highest objectives are seen in this day's stellar operations. It is a moment for attacking the dearest hopes and wishes with confidence and assurance, but with all the skill, initiative and enterprise at command. This should bring attention from influential sources, fulfilling the promise of enhanced prestige, financial expansion, business responsibility and many emoluments, pleasures and honors of a purely social or personal value. Seek these with all resources, but be prudent, reasonable and not tempted by indulgences or emotional impulses. Conserve health.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of splendid achievements with rich fulfillments in whatever field of adventure and attainment the aspirations and ambitions may lead. There is expansion, production, financial and business security, with high prestige, in social, professional and cultural lines. Much pleasure and gratification depend on a prudent, reasonable and calculated use of all resources and endowments. Care for health as well.

A child born on this day should be excellently equipped for high success and honors in life, having many resources.

TIME AND ABSENCE HEAL LOVE.

Dear Miss Dix: I have been married six years and until recently my husband, who is in the Navy, seemed happy and contented, but lately he has decided he is in love with a girl he knew before he did me, and she insists upon his getting a divorce and marrying her. He does not want to do this.

All three of us involved in this triangle are 30 years of age. What should I do?

A BROKEN HEARTED WIFE.

HUSBAND MUST WAIT.

Answer: Tell your husband that you want him to be happy and that you do not intend to be a dog in the manger and that if after he returns from the war he feels that he loves this other woman better than he does you that you step quietly out of the picture, but that you are not going to do it now. Tell him he will have to wait to choose between you and the Other Woman until he has had plenty of time to think the matter over and search his heart.

You say your husband is 30 years old. He is acting like school boy, not knowing his own mind. You will be doing him a great favor by making him wait for a divorce, instead of handing him out one because a girl is persuading him that he wants her instead of you.

Perhaps in the long nights at sea, when he is alone with his own soul, he will grow up and get to be adult enough to at least know what he wants.

Dear Miss Dix: My husband will soon go into the army and I will have to get a job. That's all right. Neither of us wish to shirk our duty. But my parents and friends insist that I give up my lovely, comfortable apartment, store or sell my furniture, and go to live with either his family or my family, or my sister.

I can't see it. I want to stay in my own place. I feel that I will miss my husband less there than anywhere else, and that it will be a comfort to him to know that his home is intact and waiting for him. What shall I do?

WOMAN SHOULD KEEP HOME DESPITE WAR.

Answer: I would say keep your own apartment. Stay in your own house with your own things. Don't go to live with your family or your husband's family. The one means freedom and self-expression, having things the way you want them, doing the things you want to do. The other means that you are in bondage to the whims, caprices, tastes and habits of somebody else, and that you will have to give an account of your every move.

If you go back to live with your mother, she will treat you as if you were still 5 years old, and not bright at that. If you go to live with your husband's people, they will consider you an unwanted guest who has been wished upon them, and you will have just about as much liberty as a dog on a leash.

And a final word of warning. Never go to board with anyone who tells you they will treat you as a member of the family. They do. They never consider your taste, or your comfort, or your habits. They expect you to eat what they eat and do as they do, and like it.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Is it foolish for a man of 45 to still crave kisses? All my life I have been starved for kisses, but my wife doesn't get any kick out of them and tells me to be my age. Call kisses mushy or anything you like, but I think they are necessary for a happy married life.

LOVING HUSBAND

Answer: Well, for goodness sake, if you are a kissing bug, why didn't you find out before marriage your girl's views on osculation, and whether she was a petter or a non-petter? Seems as if you might have noticed whether she turned her lips or the back of her ear to you when you kissed her.

Anyway, I don't think its is silly for a man of 45 to crave kisses from his wife. I think it is prefectly wonderful!

Higher Prices For Pulpwood

OTTAWA, July 21—(CP)—A. H. Williamson, timber administrator for the Prices Board, announced on Thursday that all its pulpwood price ceiling orders have been amended to allow payment of higher prices when the wood is purchased by a mill through established dealers or brokers.

Mr. Williamson said earlier orders of the board fixed maximum prices which could be paid for pulpwood by pulp and paper companies at delivery points. The prices covered all charges, including commissions.

The new orders make no change in maximum prices, but provide that dealers may add a charge of 40 cents per cord for handling rough pulpwood and 60 cents per cord for peeled pulpwood. Brokers' commissions are 75 cents and $1 per cord for rough and peeled pulpwood, respectively.

The board said the changes were expected to stimulate production from farmers and settlers through help given by brokers and dealers in financing and arranging transportation, and to help in maintaining fair distribution of wood among the mills.

Divorce Grows In Wartime Survey Reveals

TORONTO, July 21 — Scores of wartime marriages in Ontario are drifting and breaking on the shoals of the divorce courts of the Province.

The number of estranged couples seeking to have their marriages dissolved has reached a record peak, taxing the facilities of the law courts of Ontario.

Divorce statistics compiled by the Province reveal that the number of homes broken up in 1943 through divorce is almost double that of 1939, when 747 couples terminated their marriages. In 1943 more than 1,-243 marriages were dissolved by the courts of Ontario.

Within the last three months alone, more than 50 couples in the Toronto area, married since 1940, have obtained decrees nisi.

The year 1944 holds the likelihood of an even greater marital dissolution rate, with more than 500 decrees nisi granted in the first half of the year in the Toronto area alone.

Contributing to the break up of family life is the increasing strain on the home front and the high emotional tensions under which men and women, separated by war, live apart, in the opinion of church authorities and social workers.

Causes Surveyed

From the positive point of view, a greater degree of premarital education and character-building is looked upon as the chief means of ensuring happy marriages and curbing the mounting number of divorce cases.

The growing economic independence of women through employment in industry has also played its part in flooding the divorce courts, in the view of the Board of Evangelism and Social Services of the United Church of Canada.

Wartime lifting of restraints and subservience of moral standards to the slogan: "Nothing matters now but victory," is also held to be a factor in the increasing movement to the divorce courts.

While most members of the ministry feel that broadening of the divorce laws—adultery is the only ground for divorce in Canada — would lead to more ready acceptance of divorce as a solution to domestic difficulties, other authorities on social problems feel that rigid laws often aggravate an unhappy situation.

Law Revision Proposed

Among the advocates of more liberal divorce laws, modelled after the recently revised British laws, are social service workers, some members of the judiciary and many members of Parliament. Desertion for three years, cruelty and incurable insanity are among the grounds for divorce in Britain.

Revision of the Canadian law to conform to the British system would eliminate "chicanery and trickery" being practiced to obtain divorces, is the opinion expressed by a justice of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Broadening of the divorce laws was also advocated by F. N. Stapleford, general secretary of the Neighborhood Workers' Association. Inability to obtain a divorce often leads to desertion by the husband Mr. Stapleton said.

Of the wartime picture, he felt that in most cases returning servicemen, helped by the loyalty and abiding affection of their family, will readily adjust themselves to family life.

An analysis of divorce statistics for the last three months reveals that the duration of the marriage of estranged couples range in the majority of cases from five to 10 years. However, several of the marriages, which ended in the divorce courts this year, go back as far as 1920 and even 1901.

He was taken to Mrs. Cummins' hospital, and later removed to hospital in Peterborough for X-ray. Inter-Club Golf Play Saturday

The principal activity in the golfing field over the coming week-end should be the first round of the Glover-Dobbin Trophy wherein the Peterborough Golf and Country Club will visit the Kawartha Club and attempt to earn a few points which may be carried into the second round to be held August 19 at the Peterborough Club here a valiant effort will be made to bring home the trophy which is now in the possession of the Kawartha Club players.

The Glover-Dobbin Trophy was presented some years ago by Ross Dobbin and Roly Glover to be competed for annually by both Peterborough clubs. Each club is required to visit the other's course taking with them their strongest team. The tournament is match play with one point awarded to the person winning the greatest number of holes in the first nine and another point for the greatest number of holes in the second nine and an additional point for the player winning the greatest number of holes in the eighteen holes. No handicaps will be used but the matching handicap committees of both clubs endeavor to match the players as closely as possible with opponents of approximate ability.

Peterborough Club players are asked to be on hand at the Kawartha Club at 1:30 Saturday afternoon, July 22. If plans are such that they cannot attend until later in the afternoon they should advise Andy Rutter of the matching handicap committee of their intention to play later on in the day.

The courtesy of the Kawartha Club is extended to the Peterborough members for the day and likewise in the return match no green fees will be charged to Kawartha members when playing at the Peterborough Club in the Glover-Dobbin trophy.

Six of his accredited enemy aircraft were shot down, while three were destroyed on the ground. He shared another with a fellow pilot.

Ontario Employers Asked To Release Workers To Help In Harvesting Crop

OTTAWA, July 21—(CP).—National Selective Service Thursday appealed to Ontario employers to allow workers temporary leave of absence to assist in farm work.

The appeal want out from Arthur MacNamara, national director, who in a letter to most Ontario employers asked that wherever it was possible without interfering with essential production men be released for harvesting and women for fruit-picking.

Similar letters were being prepared and addressed to employers in other provinces. The immediate need was for workers in Ontario, but plans also were being made to operate harvest excursions to the Prairie Provinces late in August and early in September. Return tickets for these excursions would cost the workers $10.

Most urgent need was for men with farm experience, but services of others would also be useful. Mr. MacNamara asked that workers who were given leave of absence be provided with a letter to that effect.

BEWARE OF MISFITS

SHOWING OF freakish distribution around the table, with apparently neither pair having a suit which fits in the hands of the two partners, sounds a warning to all veteran players. They have seen so many such deals cost them large numbers of points that they are extremely wary of the trick-taking power of their own cards. Not only are they fearful then of bidding too high themselves, but they are not anxious to double the other fellow except at a pretty high spot, or when they can count sure winning defensive tricks in their own hands.

North: ♠ None ♥ None ♦ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ A 7 6 5 4 3 2

West: ♠ None ♥ A K ♦ A 6 5 4 3 2 ♣ K Q J 10

East: ♠ A 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♥ Q J 10 9 8 ♦ None ♣ 8

South: ♠ K Q J 10 9 8 ♥ 7 6 5 4 3 2 ♦ K ♣ None

(Dealer: West. Neither side vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
1♦	2♣	2♠	Dbl
3♦	Dbl	3♥	Dbl

That was the bidding at one table of a duplicate game. Warned by hearing North's showing of diamond and club strength, West decided that his top doubleton in hearts made that suit probably the very best fit his side could find. Hence, he was very happy to pass, unless North would be foolish enough to stick his neck out by reopening the bidding, perhaps with a club rebid. In that event West would have been primed to sandbag him with a double.

The least experienced one of the four players made the greatest mistake he could when he failed to lead a trump, thereby making it possible for the contract to be made for a game which would be impossible if it had to be bid. That poor worthy was South, who led his spade K. When North discarded on it and the A won, the situation was marked for East. He ruffed the spade 2 then with the heart A, scored the diamond A for discard of the club 8, led the club K, covered by the A, and ruffed it with the heart Q, ruffed the spade 3 with the heart K, the club Q with the heart J, then scored the heart 10, 9 and 8. Thus he got the first nine tricks, making the doubled contract. If South had led a trump, it would have been sure to go down one.

If South gets into the crazy contract of 4-Spades on this deal and West leads the heart 4, what should the declarer do?

Service Personnel To Vote Direct

FREDERICTON, July 21 — (CP) —Dr. J. Miles Gibson, special returning officer for active service electors in the New Brunswick election August said last night that the names of candidates, with their political affiliations, would be made available to service men and women by the "quickest and most convenient means" after Nomination Day, August 14.

This probably would mean cabling the list, in the case of electors overseas. In Canada, the list would be telegraphed or airmailed, according to the location of the various armed forces establishments.

The same practice will apply in the case of naval establishments, said Dr. Gibson. Sailors at sea would be in the position of "any sailor in any election' and unable to vote. These men would represent only a small proportion of the armed services electorate.

Results of the service voting will be transmitted to Dr. Gibson by the fastest available method and then, it is expected, will be communicated to the returning officer for the constituency involved. Final details of this have yet to be settled.

Dr. Gibson announced previously that there would be no proxy voting and that in some theatres of war voting might have to be deferred pending arrangement of the proper polling facilities.

Armed service electors will vote for candidates in their home constituencies and these returns will be added to the civilian vote.

Plan Insurance For War Veterans

OTTAWA, July 21 — (CP). — Finance Minister Ilsley gave notice on Thursday in Commons Votes and Proceedings that he would introduce a measure to provide life insurance on the lives of veterans of the present war. The Bill would provide conditions for payment of insurance to beneficiaries.

Another resolution standing in the name of the Finance Minister forecasts a measure extending the Civil Service Superannuation Act to persons employed by the Government, who do not at present come within its provisions.

The new Veterans Insurance Act is expected to be along the lines of the one which provided insurance for returned men following the First Great War in which some 48,000 veterans were insured.

Under that Act the Government provided insurance for returned men without any medical examination at approximately the same rates as a life insurance company would insure physically fit men of the same age.

The State provided this insurance so the veteran incapacitated by the war would not be at a disadvantage in obtaining protection for his family because of war service.

The measure was not designed to cover physically fit veterans, but they could take out insurance under it if they wished. Insurance could only be taken out after the veteran was demobilized.

Petawawa Fight No Idle Rumor

OTTAWA, July 20.—(CP).—Defence Minister Ralston said today in the Commons a court of inquiry investigating disturbances at Petawawa military camp had found that on at least two occasions disturbances had involved more than 150 men.

Col. Ralston said he wished to correct a previous statement made in the Commons in reply to Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, who had asked for information on reports of clashes between active soldiers and members of the home army.

Col. Ralston recalled that he said at that time that only two altercations involving two men had taken place. He said today that information was based on a hurried telephone call.

Since then he had received the report of a court of inquiry which showed there had been at least two disturbances which started out as a fight btween two soldiers but which grew in proportion until more than 150 men were milling about before order was restored.

He said the two disturbances had occurred near a canteen on June 25 and 26.

Col. Ralston said that in the 75 military training camps throughout Canada there had been "remarkably few" disputes between general service and home defence troops, but in Petawawa there were more differences than in any other camp.

Col. Ralston said:—

"In Petawawa, which is our second largest camp in Canada, there are more differences to be taken account of than in any other camp in the Dominion. We could hardly expect that there would not be strained relations at times between N.R.M.A. (Home Defence) and General Service personnel, but it is not by any means the only cause of quarrels, especially in camps of that size where so many differences of various kinds exist.

"I am not going to minimize these episodes, but on the other hand I do not think that we should add to the difficulties of loyal and faithful officers who have to deal with men of all sorts and make them soldiers, but undue emphasis on incidents like these might occur in any camp, especially around canteen closing time.

"I think the Petawawa Camp has made on the whole an excellent reputation for order and for good work and I am sure that both officers and other ranks want to help to keep it that way. I would ask the House and the country if we would try to leave them to do it."

He added that it was not unusual that a crowd of 200 or 300 men would gather at canteen closing time in a large camp such as Petawawa where there are between 9,000 and 10,000 men.

He said that by virtue of the original misinformation he had given as the Petawawa incidents he was not prepared at this time to comment on a disturbance at a Calgary camp recently.

"I am not going to furnish any information prematurely again," he added.

Advance Infantry Units Are Within 16 Miles Of Florence

By NOLAND NORGAARD—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, July 22—(AP).—British 8th Army and Allied 5th Army troops closed steadily in on Florence from three directions today, with advance infantry elements reported 14 miles directly south of the historic Italian city. South African and British forces pushed five miles north of Radda to a point less than 16 miles from Florence, Canadian Press War Correspondent Doug How said in a dispatch last night, while farther east British infantry and Eastern Canadian tanks (possibly the Three Rivers, Que., Regiment or the Ontario Regiment of Oshawa, Ont.) advanced on San Giovanni, 18 airline miles southeast of Florence on the main highway from Apezzo.

Tavernelle Captured.

In the closest thrust to Florence the Fifth Army captured Tavernelle and the neighboring towns of Barberino dal D'Elsa and Capanne.

On the west coast American patrols probing the enemy's new defences in the Arno valley reached a point within four miles of Pisa. Artillery duels raged between large concentrations of German guns on high ground north of the river and the 5th Army's long-range guns.

On the Adriatic end of the battle-line Polish troops rushed forward two or three miles and made contact with the retreating enemy four miles from the fishing port of Senigallia, at the mouth of the Misa River.

Two New Divisions.

Interrogation of newest prisoners showed that two or more Nazi divisions which were formed originally for the Russian front, had been brought to Italy and broken up to supply reinforcements for the battered remnants of the Germans' 10th and 14th armies, Allied Headquarters said.

These two brough to six the total of fresh enemy divisions rushed to Italy since the opening of the Allied offensive on May 11. This was roughly the equivalent of one-fourth of the number alrady availabl in this theatre.

One new battalion was thrown into the line to rescue the 278th

Nazis Hammer Canadian Lines

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 22.—(CP Cable). — Canadian formations in the area southeast of Fleury Sur Orne, 2½ miles south of Caen, and in St. Andre Sur Orne, 2½ miles farther south, held firmly last night to dug in positions, while the Germans hammered at them with mortar and artillery fire.

The enemy, seeking to drive the Canadians back from newly won ground in this sector on the east bank of the Orne, counter-attacked in one case with armor, but was repulsed.

Western Canada troops firmly ensconced in St. Andre, on a tree-dotted ridge overlooking the river, resisted one German counter-attack in driving wet weather yesterday morning after repelling a number of enemy assaults on the down during Thursday night. The Canadians had entered St. Andre Thursday afternoon.

The Germans used tanks and infantry in their counter-attacks and they have good anti-tank positions which made it difficult for Canadian armor to retaliate. A few German tanks succeeded in infiltrating around the west side of St. Andre but Canadian anti-tank guns forced them to retire.

A mopping up attack by other Western Canada troops against a town in the bend of the Orne River southwest of Caen is continuing.

FOUR MILES FROM PISA

ROME—Americans of the Allied 5th Army now are four miles from Pisa, and Polish troops of the British 8th Army have advanced two to three miles beyond Ancona along the Italian coast.

Soviets Push On Warsaw In 3 Thrusts

Red Army Pushes Within 90 Miles Of Poland's Capital

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 22.—(AP).— Red army tank and infantry forces, making a supreme bid for Warsaw, rolled back German rearguards today on a jagged 200-mile battle line, and front dispatches said some Soviet forces were only 90 miles from the Polish capital.

At the same time the German position in the Baltics grew worse hourly, as Col.-Gen. Ivan I. Maslennikov's troops captured Ostrov, cleared 17 miles of the Ostrov-Pskov railway, and left Pskov, 35 miles north of Ostrov, in an untenable salient. Tishina, seven miles from Latvia's northeastern boundary, was occupied.

Three Big Thrusts.

After cutting the Bialystok-Brest Litovsk railway at Czeremcha, 95 airline miles northeast of Warsaw two days ago, Soviet units now were reported, to have advanced at least five miles.

Other Red army forces were forging a ring of steel around Brest Litovsk, 90 miles east of Warsaw, after mopping up German pockets to the southeast, including Vielkoryta, 18 miles distant on the Brest Litovsk railway.

Leaving the western Bug nine or more miles behind, Red Army veterans routed the Germans from Sawin, 36 mils east of Lublin, and a fortress 62 miles from the head waters of the Wisla (Vistula) and 124 miles southeast of Warsaw.

Strongpoint Outflanked

German-Finnish forces were ousted from more than 20 settlements as the Karelian offensive was renewed north and west of the road and rail junction of Suojarvi by Gen. Kyrill A. Mertskov's troops.

The long-static sector south of Tarnopol was the scene of another Soviet push which reached Buczacz, northeast of the mountain passes into Hungary.

The Moscow communiue told of continued successes in the assault of tottering Lwow, with one Nazi Infantry Division defeated north of the town and one tank battalion whipped with a loss of more than 60 tanks.

Senator Truman, Is Winner Over Wallace

By C. R. BLACKBURN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHICAGO, July 22.—(CP).—President Roosevelt and Senator Harry Trumann of Missouri, to-day face the responsibility of leading the Democratic party to the country and the polls at the next national election, Nov. 7.

Their candidacy as President and Vice-President respectively was sealed during a furious, eight-hour, non-stop session which ended the Democratic national convention last evening.

Mr. Roosevelt's nomination, a foregone conclusion for months, was adopted Thursday with only small resistance from rebellious southern Democrats.

But the Vice-Presidency brought out a hectitc fight on the convention floor between supporters of Vice-President Henry A. Wallace and 60-year-old Sen. Truman, two of the 14 candidates whose names were put in nomination.

Wallace Led First.

Two ballots were necessary. Mr. Wallace led the first ballot but was far short of the necessary 589 votes to win, while some votes were cast for all the 14 candidates.

On the second ballot both Mr. Wallace and Senator Truman started to gain support previously given to favorite sons. More than half way through they were almost neck and neck until New York's 96-member delegation gave its support to Senator Truman.

Then it was a mad rush by other States to get on the band-wagon as they shifted rapidly to swell Senator Truman's ultimate vote to 1,100 of the 1,176 votes possible.

The general impression seemed to be that the Roosevelt-Truman ticket would be powerful in spite of the fact that Senator Truman has been a sharp critic of many Administration Acts.

In his role of chairman of the Senate Investigating Committee which bears his name the Vice-Presidential candidate has bitterly assailed a number of government projects particularly the expenditure of $130,000,000 in the development of the Canol Oil project in northwest Canada.

But for months he has been declaring in public speeches that the election of Mr. Roosevelt for a fourth term was an essential to efficient conclusion of the war and the making peace.

Guam Push Is Ahead Of Schedule

American Units Are Being Steadily Reinforced On Island

PEARL HARBOUR, July 22 — (AP) — The liberation of Guam—avenging the tiny American garrison overrun by Japanese hordes in December, 1941—was pushed ahead of schedule today by steadily reinforced American units swarming off ships onto that former U. S. outpost.

They threatened to pinch off and quickly capture Port Apra, core of Guam's defence system on the west coast. From milelong beachheads easily won north and south of the fine harbor, Marines and Soldiers moved inland to scale heights dominating its rear.

Communiques and eyewitness reports from the scene of Thursday's invasion told of swift progress and light casualties.

Tokyo radio, belatedly announcing the invasion to a homeland already beset by a war cabinet shake-up, said about 12,000 men and 150 tanks landed in the vicinity of Asan north of the harbor and about 6,000 men at Agat, to the south.

10,000 Tons Fired

John R. Henry, representing the combined Allied press, reported from a flagship of the landing areas 10,000 tons of explosives had spread over the island through 17 straight days by warships and planes. In the last eight minutes before the first invaders landed at 8:28 a.m., Thursday, the warships alone poured more than 60 tons of exploding steel each minute on the enemy.

"We simply blasted the Japs to hell out of there and up into the trees," said Rear Admiral Richard W. Conolly, commanding operations.

The Americans encountered stiffening resistance inland But they had tanks to lead them and artillery at their backs. Offshore, battleships, cruisers and destroyers held unchallenged command of the seas. Above, American planes apparently mopolized the skies.

Henry characterized the Guam undertaking as the smoothest amphibious operation of the Pacific war. Less than four hours after the landings, the beaches "were crammed with incoming necessities of warfare, like ammunition, rations, water and medical supplies and gasoline."

HITLER IS CONGRATULATED

LONDON, July 22.—(CP). — A Tokyo broadcast said today that Emperor Hirohito of Japan had sent a message to Adolf Hitler congratulating him on escaping assassination.

TO FORM CABINET—General Kuniaki Koiso, Governor-General of Korea, who with Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, has been selected to form a new Japanese cabinet, according to an announcement made by Japanese Domei News Agency.

Mud Bogs Down Allied Drive In France

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 22 — (AP) — The vast Allied military organization in Normandy bogged down in the mud of France to-day without a single advance being reported to Headquarters in the past 24 hours.

The war's briefest communique for an operation as great as the Allied invasion summed up the situation in five words: "There is nothing to report."

Loss of Esquay.

Only change reported was the los of Esquay, south-west of Caen, between the Orne and Odon Rivers. The official report did not state whether the loss was through German action or whether the town merely as abandoned to No Man's Land because it is in low ground.

In the lull the Supreme Command checked battle reports and found that conflicting field dispatches had led to some erroneous beliefs which were passed on to press conferences.

The re-checks showed the Germans still held Maltot between the Orne and Odon, that is not clear whether St. Martin de Fontenay is in Allied or German hands, that Noyers still is held by the Germans as is nearby Monts, and that the Germans still are astride the Bayeux-St. Lo road at Berigny.

Minor Change.

All these points represented minor changes from previously-reported positions and had no effect on the battle front as a whole. A Supreme Command spokesman stressed these towns were not lost through enemy action, but that reports of their capture had resulted from garbled or misinterpreted field advices.

Many Arrests In Berlin Reported Nazis Through Various Broadcasts Claim To Have Suppressed The Revolt

LONDON, July 22—(CP).—Adolf Hitler asserted in an order of the day to German troops today that an attempted coup d'etat by "a small circle of unscrupulous officers" had been crushed, and expressed confidence the army "will fight with exemplary obedience and loyalty until victory is ours in spite of all."

His order, an obvious attempt to reassure his own followers in army ranks and to discourage any further revolt, came as press and eye-witness accounts indicated that nowhere had the enemies of Hitler succeeded in seizing power or taking over key positions.

A rapid, bloody and ruthless purge apparently had stamped out the rebellion. Reports reaching Stockholm said that perhaps 100 generals or high officers had been executed. Travellers to Sweden said more than 1,000 persons had been arrested through Friday.

(An NBC broadcast from London declared Field Marshal Rommel had been forced to change two armored division commanders in Normandy for "political reasons." The two divisional generals were replaced, before the Thursday attempt on Hitler's life, by "two juvenile political colonels, both under 33, who have a record of fanatical Nazi loyalty," the broadcast said.)

A welter of rumors concerning the attempted coup persisted, and reliable information was difficult to obtain through the cloak of Nazi secrecy.

12 Reach Stockholm.

Indicative of this, 12 Germans reached Stockholm by plane from Berlin today, but were put under close watch by two Gestapo men attached to the German Legation. The Germans avoided questioning by newspapermen.

Two reports, wholly unconfirmed, indicated unrest in the German Navy as well as the Army.

Radio France in Algiers quoted reports from Basel that it was generally believed there that naval units at Kiel and Stettin had rebelled. The Brazzaville radio reported unrest among naval units in Norwegian ports and said an organization called "The Fraternal Association of All German sailors" appeared to be behind the movement.

Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels put out a story last night that insurgent generals attempted to grab vital lines of communication at the height of the plot—including lines direct to the front — and troops actually marched on government buildings in Berlin under "false" orders. According to Goebbels, the intervention of Hitler himself was necessary to calm the crisis.

The whole German press this morning, a Berlin broadcast said, carried stories declaring steps were being taken so that such an "attempt (on Hitler's life) of July 20 will in the future be an impossibility."

And in a succint warning to the strife-ridden Reich, Hitler's own Voeklischer Beobachter asserted that Himmler's appointment as commander in chief of home front forces "guarantees that this task will be accomplished."

Here in London, after nearly two days of sifting and examining a flur-

Big Oil Plant Is Fired In R.A.F. Raid

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 22—(AP)—Between 500 and 750 American heavy bombers roared out from Italian bases and attacked the Ploesti oil area of Romania today, after R.A.F. night bombers had struck into Czechoslovakia and Germany.

The U.S. 15th Air Force heavies were escorted by fighters in the 11th blow of the war by Mediterranean-based planes against Hitler's oil resources in the Ploesti area. A number of enemy fighters were met and flak was intense, the Allied announcement said.

By night, R.A.F. Mosquitoes bombed Berlin, and Italian-based bombers struck into Czechoslovakia for the second time in less than 24 hours, hammering an oil refinery at Pardubice, 60 miles east of Praha (Prague).

A large explosion and fire was reported seen in the Pardubice refinery, the fifth largest in Europe outside Romania

Bad flying weather across the English Channel apparently grounded the heavy home-based bombers of the R.A.F. and threatened to bring to a halt the week-long series of massive day raids from the west.

Claims Revolt Has Collapsed

By THOMAS F. HAWKINS
Associated Press Staff Writer

BERN, July 22.—(AP).—A Berlin correspondent for Der Bund said to-day that the government quarter in Berlin was blocked off yesterday "by troops of the army and the armed S.S. for many hours, presumably to carry out purge measures," and that any effort to revolt could be considered to have collapsed.

His dispatch to the Swiss newspaper, the first received here directly from the Reich capital since the Germans announced the attempted assassination of Hitler Thursday, described the city as quiet.

The reserved tone of the dispatch indicated that the correspondent either did not yet know all that had occurred, or was restricted to official information. yd

Metal Removed From Heart

Delicate Operation Performed on Canadian Soldier

OTTAWA, July 22.— (CP). — A young infantryman sergeant who carried on his duties for four months after being treated for a chest wound caused by an exploding grenade came to a Canadian army hospital complaining of chest pains and increasing difficulty in breathing.

He didn't know a piece of steel weighing a half ounce was still lodged in his heart. He could move only with extreme caution, and spoke with studied slowness in a voice little above a whisper.

Offiers of the army's medical services recall that the sergeant's trouble was disclosed by X-ray. A diagnosis was made of a fragment of shell in the pericardium—the tissue-like sac which encloses the heart.

The surgeons wne to work. They cut down more than three inches below the surface of the patient's breast. Finally they reached the pericardium, but when they opened it could not see the fragment. A surgeon skilfully held the soldier's bleeding, wildy jumping heart in his hand and with sensitive fingers groped for and found the jagged chunk of metal.

The wounded heart was eased through the pericardium. Silk threads passed through the muscle, held it in place. Next the surgeon worked the fragment as near the apex of the right ventricle as possible.

Then, holding it firmly between his thumb and three fingers, like a stone held inside a thin rubber tube, he made a swift incision and deftly removed the piece of steel. There remained the painstaking job of closing not only the wound in the heart but also all the man-made wounds inflicted to reach it.

Three months later, the sergeant walked out of the hospital fully recovered from a dangerous wound which not so many years ago would have been a death sentence.

Canadian Planes Hit Big Convoy

LONDON, July 22 (CP) — The R.A.F. Coastal Command reported today that Canadian Beaufighters had attacked an enemy convoy of 40 vessels off Helgoland, hitting four merchant ships with torpedoes, two of which were left sinking, setting five escort vessels afire and damaging most of the other ships in the convoy.

The operation was carried out shortly after dusk last evening, an Air Ministry communique said, adding that the British planes pressed home their attack despite a heavy barrage of rockets and flak sent up by the enemy ships.

Lloyd P. Tainter announced today. Two six-volt schocks brought sleep and temporary relief one respite lasting three hours, and heavier shocks were planned, the Doctor said.

What Effect Has Revolt On War?

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

The big question in all minds naturally is whether Hitler will be able to control the rebellion against his authority—in other words, what effect this revolt is likely to have on the duration of the war.

The important factor now is how great may be the strength of the Nazi party, of which the Fuehrer has been not only political dictator but spiritual leader.

Perhaps no head of government ever had such absolute control as Hitler has had—and may still have—over his youthful disciples. We don't know what their total strength may be. If we did we might hazard a guess as to how long he could survive.

We get no aid from comparison between the present situation and the German revolt which helped end the last war so speedily. In 1918 the old kaiser didn't hold in his hand such countless thousands of youths who were prepared to sacrifice their lives in senseless and suicidal fighting as Nazi boys have done so many times. Also, the kaiser's Reich was hungry, whereas Hitler's Germany still is comparatively well-fed. A full stomach can stand a lot of adversity.

Depending On Fanatics

It's upon the young fanatics that Gestapo chief Himmler is depending in his bloody purge of those who oppose Hitler. Himmler's big army is composed of hand-picked Nazis. Under Hitler he is military ruler of Germany, with power of life and death over the population, military and civilian. Opposed to him are the powerful Prussian militarists and their adherents, who have their bellies full of war they know is lost already.

Only time will tell where the greater strength lies. Maybe Hitler will collapse, but we have no right to assume this yet.

Because it's clear that Hitlerdom is disintegrating, and that the position is so critical that "anything can happen at any time," we must recognize that this is the appointed hour to throw everything we have into dealing the death blow. As the London Times says, so long as Nazi leadership combined the efficient organization of food supplies with efficient methods of repression, there is no serious doubt of its ability to hold the situation at home. For the United Nations, adds the Times, the key still lies in military victory and in that alone.

Parole System Working Well

OTTAWA, July 22—(CP).—Only two or three per cent. of the men released on parole from Canadian penitentiaries "fall by the wayside while out on ticket of leave," Justice Minister St. Laurent said last night in the Commons.

The figures seemed to justify the policy of granting paroles to men of good behaviour, the Minister said.

Attempts were made by penitentiary staffs to make prisoners feel on their release that something they did not deserve had been done for them. Attempts were made to see that prisoners left in a grateful and not a disgruntled frame of mind.

Replying to J. G. Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre), Mr. St. Laurent said that in the last three years four men, who had death sentences commuted to life imprisonment, had been released from penitentiary.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the system of releasing men on parole was a good one. One of the men, whose death sentence had been commuted to life imprisonment, was released and now was overseas. The man was making good and he intended to continue to do so.

When the man had entered penitentiary he was an illiterate, but during stay of 12 or 15 years in penitentiary he had gone through all grades leading up to entry to a university course.

Only Nazi Army Can Revolt

Revolt Only Comes When War Lost Badoglio Says

ROME, July 22—(AP).—Marshal Pietro Badoglio, commenting on the present events in Germany in an interview almost a year to the day after the coup which overthrew Mussolini in Italy, said today that "if a group of officers has revolted against Hitler it is because Germany has lost the war."

The veteran Italian soldier said there seemed to be no doubt that Germany had reached a turning point for two reasons — first, that evidently the German army no longer is able to stop the Russian offensives, and second, that Germany has no more reserves to throw into the fighting in Italy and Normandy.

Referring to the announcements that on the Russian front one army general and 22 other generals, among whom were corps commanders, had surrendered, Badoglio declared:

"If generals of that rank are caught, it is because the masses of troops in front of them either went over to the enemy or ran away."

Badoglio, one of the most prominent figures in Italy's surrender, said he believed a German revolt may have been planned by Field Marshal von Rundstedt and others of the same military tradition. He discounted the possibility of a people's rebellion.

"The only people in Germany are women, children, old men, and 10,000,000 foreigners, such as prisoners and forced laborers. All other Germans are in the army and a revolt must come there."

Badoglio said he was too seasoned a campaigner to predict when a German collapse would come.

Cadet Corps Attached To Mounties

Help In Checking Juvenile Crime St. Laurent Claims

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 22 — (CP) — Formation of a Cadet Corps attached to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is under consideration, Justice Minister St. Laurent said last night in the Commons. The purpose is to help in checking the current increase to juvenile crime.

During discussion of his estimates the Minister was asked about plans for penal reform and he said it was not possible to launch a full program during the war and that in any case it would require some consultation and agreement with the provinces, since it would be desirable to extend it to provincial institutions as well as Federal institutions.

Recently, he said, it was thought the high regard in which the R.C.M.P. is held might be used to deter youths from crime. Units of the R.C.M.P. voluntary reserve had been set up in many cities and were composed of leading citizens.

Big Brother Organization

Besides considering the possibility of a Cadet Corps Commissioner S. T. Wood had been conferring with units of the reserve with a view of setting up some sort of a big brother organization.

"The youth of Canada together withour adult population hold that Force in high regard," he said, "and it may be that if we could have Royal Canadian Mounted Police Cadets who would have to be well behaved to remain members of the Corps, we would give to the boys of the cities and towns an interest that would keep them out of mischief and would develop in them a desire not only not to break good order but to contribute to the maintainance of good order in their respective communities."

In a day spent on estimates the Departments of Justice, Fisheries House voted some $19,000,000 for the and Public Works.

Fisheries Minister Bertrand, a Montreal lawyer before he entered the Cabinet, was praised by British Columbia members for his handling of west coast fishery problems, often a subject of sharp comment during similar discussions in other sessions.

Fashion For Members To Pose As Aloof From Election Storms

By JAMES McCOOK
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, July 22 — (CP). — It's the fashion for members of Parliament these days to pose as being aloof from the election storms which rattle about them. Some of them point — with pride — to the statement of Prime Minister Mackenzie King who said he was too much occupied with external affairs to worry about provincial matters and had not talked about the Quebec election with Premier Adelard Godbout of that province.

But the competitive spirit of the parties bubbles through this restraint in House discussions.

Examples:

J. F. Pouliot (L-Temiscouata): "I know very well that the Conservative Party is dead and has been buried for a long time. They do not call themselves Tories, these remnants of the Party; they call themselves Progressive Conservatives."

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre): "In this House the Liberals still have a huge majority of 70 per cent, elected in 1940. In the nine Legislatures of Canada their seats represent only 40 per cent of the total."

Karl Homuth (PC-Waterloo South) said there would be a Progressive Conservative Transport Minister after the election.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie: "You are getting funny."

Mr. Homuth: "There's nothing funny about that. You will be inside the tiger."

"What do you call them—is it 'Thomases?'" he asked.

Karl Homuth (PC-Waterloo South): "It was Peter who doubted. Your Bible is wrong."

Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC-York Sunbury): "No, the honorable member is right; Thomas was the doubter."

Pensions Minister Mackenzie: "He better read it again."

Stanley Knowles (CCF-Winnipeg North Centre)—addressing Mr. Homuth: "What church did you say you belong to?"

First Clover Honey Brings Brisk Sales

New crop honey sold on the market this morning at 40 cents a comb. Several producers had fairly large offerings of the first run of clover honey that was almost "water white" and apparently of fine quality. Demand was brisk, and sales of the comb supply were unrationed.

Potatoes were 30 and 40 cents the six quart basket and 50 cents a peck to 60 cents. Peas in the pod at 40 cents the six quart basket, and string beans 11 quarts for 50 cents, carrots two bunches for 15 cents or four for 25 cents and beets at 5 cents a bunch were plentiful.

This morning's market was the largest of the season and also the busiest. Fine weather brought out a surge of buyers.

Eastward in the Sentino River Valley the town of Perticano, Seegia and Sassoferrato were occupied.

STOCKHOLM, July 22. — (CP-Aneta). — Bent on escaping from their forced labor in a German armament factory, an undisclosed number of young Netherlanders recently swam the 3½ miles from Helsingor, Denmark, to Halsingborg, Sweden, the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet said today. Battling tides and rough water, the young men took six hours for the swim.

Mitchell Says Quebec Given No Favors

OTTAWA, July 22 — Existence of secret directives on the enforcement of mobilization regulations, giving mobilization boards in Quebec the right to depart from the terms of authorized regulations for election purposes, was denied Friday by Labor Minister Mitchell in one of the sharpest exchanges of the session.

The question was asked by John G. Diefenbaker (P.C., Lake Centre, Sask.), based on a press statement by B. J. Pare, mobilization registrar for the Quebec City district, on July 12. The argument flamed into a general verbal melee after Mr. Mitchell said no secret directive has been sent to any Province—not even to Saskatchewan—and was given the blunt reply from Mr. Diefenbaker: "Oh, yes, there has, to the Province of Saskatchewan."

The debate was carried on by Jean Francois Pouliot (L., Temiscouata) when three times he pressed Mr. Mitchell to say whether or not he had advised Quebec Premier Godbout by letter or otherwise that farmers were protected under the regulations.

No Difference

The Labor Minister first said there was no difference whatsoever in any Province. "The same protection in the agricultural industry is being given to every Province in Canada, irrespective of whether it is east or west," he said.

Mr. Pouliot didn't deny that. But the Minister had not answered his question, and he repeated it.

"I would say this," said Mr. Mitchell, "that the protection given to national industry in this Dominion is probably better than in any other country of the United Nations."

Mr. Pouliot again said his question had not been answered. "I asked the Minister if he had written that to the Premier of Quebec."

Spare Them Trouble

Mr. Diefenbaker stepped into a barrage of protests from the Government the moment he started to summarize the Pare statement that if any person willingly and voluntarily "violated the mobilization regulations, the registrar is always ready to study their requests attentively, and spare them trouble if they admit their error."

Pensions Minister Mackenzie, unofficial Government director of debates, by this time had given Liberal members the lead. There was a nod of his head and a command for "order," and a group of members immediately responded in chorus and drowned out Mr. Diefenbaker.

There is a growing conviction in Parliament that Speaker J. Allison Glen is none too happy about this volunteer and amateur support of his office. Of this, there is no doubt: Mr. Glen today, after he had calmed the Liberals, simply and quietly advised Mr. Diefenbaker that he might "lay the foundation for his question, but must not go further than that."

"It is," submitted the Lake Centre member, "very difficult to ask a question without epitomizing what has been said. However, I shall ask my question in this way: 'Is it a fact that the Minister has given direction that persons employed in industry or business, even if their work is not essential to the war effort, may be granted postponement?'

"Furthermore, have confidential letters recently been sent out by the Minister, or have confidential directives been given to certain mobilization boards, giving those boards the right to depart from the terms of any of the regulatons which have been passed?"

"I am well aware," retorted the Labor Minister, "there is an election going on in one of the Provinces in this country at the present time. But let me say this: that there is no distinction made in any part of this country as to the application of mobilization regulations."

"More Tory Candidates"

Opposition Leader Graydon wanted to know why there was a difference in interpretation between this Government and the Government of Quebec. A member claimed there was no difference and Pensions Minister Mackenzie taunted: "Get more Tory candidates in Quebec."

"Well," said Mr. Graydon, "there will be no Liberal candidates after the election is over; don't worry about that."

Mr. Mitchell: "I do not often speak in this way, but the fact is that these questions are being asked for purely political reasons and no other reasons."

Speaker Glen, on his feet, was suggesting the incident was closed. But over the noise Mr. Graydon could be heard: "We cannot say anything about politics. We have not any candidates down there and you will not have any either, after it is over."

Persistent Mr. Mackenzie had the last word: "Save your deposits you lost in Saskatchewan," he told Mr. Graydon.

Pare Quoted

The Chronicle-Telegraph of Quebec quoted Mr. Pare in part:

"All persons of military age, in good faith, are treated with respect, even if they may be in fault. As to those who have voluntarily and willingly violated the mobilization regulations, the registrar is also ready to study their requests attentively and spare them trouble if they admit their error. This is the policy which was followed in the past and which will be followed in the future, even during this electoral campaign."

The Montreal Star, in a Canadian Press despatch of the same day, said Mr. Pare stated false rumors were being spread around that no postponements would be granted. The despatch said that persons employed in industry or business also may have their training postponed "upon demand," even if their work is not essential to the war effort, "as long as it is in the public interest not to disturb them."

UNBELIEVABLE SIGHT—BSM. Edward Blodgett, whose wife resides in Norwood, has just arrived in France. In a letter written July 9 he said: "We had a grand trip across with no sign of enemy activity. As for the number of ships, one wouldn't believe it unless he saw for himself." BSM. Blodgett is serving with a heavy artillery unit. He enlisted in September, 1939, and went overseas in September, 1940.

Floor Price Is Placed On Ontario Wheat

OTTAWA, July 22—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon announced last night in the Commons that the government will provide a floor price for Ontario wheat during the 1944-45 crop year, beginning Aug. 1.

The Canadian Wheat Board has been empowered to purchase No. 1 grades of Ontario winter wheat in terminal positions at $1.25 a bushel, basis Montreal.

(The Wheat Board now pays $1.25 a bushel for western No. 1 northern wheat, basis Fort William).

The minister said the decision to establish a floor price for Ontario wheat was a "stabilization measure."

"It is the hope of the government that Ontario winter wheat will be purchased by mills at the ceiling priced during the present crop year, and that it will not be necessary for the board to purchase wheat in volume in order to guarantee a minimum price of $1.25 per bushel for No. 1 grades, Montreal basis," said Mr. MacKinnon. "However, should prices weaken, or should supplies of Ontario wheat offered for sale during the crop year exceed requirements of eastern mills, the board will exercise the special powers granted to it for the present crop year and will maintain minimum prices on the basis of $1.25 per bushel for No. 1 grades, basis Montreal.

"Insofar as the board becomes a purchaser of Ontario winter wheat in 1944-45 it will do so in respect to standard grades of wheat in store in terminal elevators and will do so as a market stabilization measure. Any loss resulting from board operations in this respect will be a charge upon the treasury.

"I wish to point out that this stabilization measure will be operated in the place of an initial advance to producers with participation certificates hitherto provided under the Canadian Wheat Board Act.

"With the ceiling at $1.25, it is the considered opinion of the government that Ontario winter wheat producers will realize more from the support of the terminal market prices of their wheat than under the system of producer deliveries to the board which was formerly in effect."

Clerk's Grab At Thief Saves $350 Fur Coat

The fact that Mrs. W. J. Dalliday, a member of the staff of Barrie's Limited, kept her eyes open and acted promptly prevented the theft of a $350 Persian lamb coat from that establishment Friday afternoon.

During the afternoon a man who was a stranger to James Richardson, manager of the store, came in and said that his wife wanted some repairs made to her fur coat and that he was to meet her there. He hung around the store for some time and then, remarking that he would go and see what was detaining his wife, left the place.

Shortly after 5:30 o'clock when Mr. Richardson had left for the day the stranger returned, telling Mrs. Dalliday that his wife wanted her coat re-lined and that he wanted some samples. These were given him and he started out of the store when Mrs. Dalliday's attention was attracted by the fact that there seemed to be a bulky object concealed beneath the raincoat the man was wearing.

She grabbed at the stranger and as he broke away from her the fur coat dropped to the floor of the store and the man ran out the front door and had disappeared before the alarm could be given.

Born in the Isle of Skye, Scotland, on July 21, 1839, Mr. Campbell came to Canada at the age of 19 and first settled in Argenteuil County, Que., before moving to this town, 50 miles south-east of Ottawa.

Godbout Fails To Complete Election Speech

MONTREAL, July 22 — (CP). — For the second time in a week, Premier Godbout left the platform of an election campaign meeting without giving his scheduled address when a group in the audience at the Chicoutimi, Que., Arena last night howled down two preceding speakers.

Monday night at Lauzon, Que., the Premier left a meeting after speaking for 20 minutes amid interruptions. He reprimanded the group which was creating the disturbance at the time.

The Premier left the Chicoutimi gathering last night, 25 minutes after Rosaire Gauthier, president of the Chicoutimi County Liberal Association, had called the meeting to order. J. A. Hamel, another speaker, could not make himself heard above the noise of the crowd.

After the meeting, Premier Godbout issued a statement in which he said that "as a party chief" he forbade his supporters to use the same methods "which are being used against us." He asked them to "keep the peace and listen to our opponents" as he did not want the province to get the impression that his party needed to use these tactics.

The statement said that the Premier was "fully convinced that the 15,000 people inside and outside the arena disapproved of these methods and perhaps fear for the future," he added:

"I will speak to the population of Chicoutimi some night next week. The population of the Province will not be prevented from learning the truth and, on voting day, our opponents will realize that these methods increase the majority of a group which wants peace and order."

An address at Sherbrooke, Que., Andre Laurendeau, Quebec leader of the Bloc Populaire, said the ideals of his party were not based on "racial bitterness or hatred" and that peoples of all races would benefit from the party's social and economic program "if it is elected to power Aug. 8."

He said the "two old parties"—Liberals and Conservatives—were influenced by the trusts and were at the call of the "Ottawa politicians." In 30 years, these parties had led Canada into two wars and through a 10-year depression.

He appealed to women voters to support the Bloc Populaire as this would be "a vote against conscription, similar to the vote cast in the plebiscite when the women, who realized what was at stake, did such a wonderful job."

272 Candidates In Quebec Field

MONTREAL, July 22—(CP)— A total of 272 candidates have already been named to contest 91 seats in the Quebec general elections Aug. 8 Official nomination day is Aug. 1 in most constituencies.

The Liberal party of Premier Godbout has named 90 candidates and has yet to make its choice only in Charlevoix-Saguenay where voting is deferred to Aug. 24.

The Union Nationale opposition, led by Maurice Duplessis, has chosen 86 candidates, while the new Bloc Populaire, led by Andre Laurendeau, has named 53.

Other parties do not plan to run enough candidates to win a majority.

To date the C.C.F. has named 21, Quebec's Social Credit (Union des Electeurs) nine, Labor-Progressives four, and there is one Nationalist and eight Independents of various designations.

Sixty-four of the 78 members who were in the last Legislative Assembly at dissolution last month, are offering again, while five federal Members of Parliament have shifted to the Provincial Field, three of them Liberals and two Bloc Populaire.

Premier Godbout and nine ministers who were in the last assembly are running again, along with two new ministers without portfolio.

No women have been nominated yet.

Attacked by 500 Bombers

Black smoke drifted today from the Great Synthetic Oil plant at Brux in Sudetenland—the largest producer of synthetic motor fuel in German-occupied Europe — which was attacked yesterday by up to 500 American heavy bombers.

R.A.F. bombers made the first attack of the war last night on the Pardubice refinery. Seventeen Italy-based planes were missing from these and other operations against enemy communications in Northern Italy and Yugoslavia and 12 enemy aircraft were destroyed.

The rain which has bogged both air and ground operations on the Normandy battle-front continued intermittently through the forenoon today and midday there had been no reports of air activity over the English Channel.

While the weather cut the air activity in Normandy, it also hampered the Channel defences against German flying bombs, many of which clattered into London and other Southern England sectors last night and early today.

Latest advice on ground held by Canadian units of the British 2nd Army came late last night in a field dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent Louis V. Hunter. He said they were firmly dug in at positions south-west of Fleury Sur Orne, 2½ miles south of Caen, and in St. Andre Sur Orne, 2½ miles further south, and were resisting German mortar and artiller fire.

Repulse Counter-Attack.

He said Western Canada troops were entrenched in St. Andre along a ridge overlooking the Orne River, and had driven off one counter-attack.

Combat patrols were active overnight along the American sector of the front, and U.S. troops reported inflicting casualties on the Germans in numerous small clashes.

The Germans, also weather-bound, made no attempts to advance, although the cloud cover gave them opportunity to bring up more reinforcements.

Nazi Labor Head Blames Jews

LONDON, July 22 — (CP) — Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi labor chief, in an address today before several thousand armament workers at a factory somewhere in Germany attacked Jews Plutocrats and foreigners as the instigators of the attempted assassination of Hitler.

In a speech broadcast directly from the scene by the German radio Ley said:

"While German workers labor 12 to 16 hours without a Sunday or holiday, an idiotic nobility has nothing better to do than plot against our Fuehrer."

Ley asserted that a "mine of the heaviest type imported from Britain" was used in the Assassination attempt, but did not explain how the explosion of such a powerful device only a short distance from Hitler would result in but minor injuries.

"The fact he was saved does not mean that the battle is won," Ley shouted.

He implored fate to "give us battles—war until we succumb to exhaustion. Give us bombs and grenades. Everything we are ready to bear and endure. Only preserve Hitler for us."

Normandy Casualties Arriving In Canada

HALIFAX, July 23.—(CP).—Canadian casualties who were wounded during the early phases of the battle for Normandy were included among the passenger list of the hospital ship Lady Nelson which docked here to-day. Close to 500 Canadian casualties and low category men from the battlefronts and bases overseas were aboard the ship but this was the first time that wounded from Normandy were brought to Canada in a group.

While a band played the service men ashore, trains waited at the pierside to take them into central Canada and to the coast.

ry of Nazi reports, there seemed to to be general agreement that there was no question but that Germany was in the throws of a crisis—although every new report was treated with careful reserve.

The conservative London Times commented:

"Whether a conspiracy has failed and been suppressed or is still in being and may yet succeed, a momentous event has occured. It would still be a portent even if the enemy had for his own purposes deliberately fabricated an imaginary coup d'etat. That supposition, however, may be dismissed."

A Madrid dispatch said one report from a German embassy source there indicated certain army elements had revolted in southern Germany and that fighting still was continuing.

Word emerged through Sweden of mass arrests in Berlin with large forces of SS troops ringing the capital and patrolling the streets in armored cars.

While the Nazis, through various broadcasts, claimed to have suppressed the revolt, with at least two of the alleged ring-leaders dead — Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, former chief of the German general staff, and the Count von Stauffenberg, accused by Hitler of placing a bomb—a voice on the Frankfurt radio wave length, purporting to be that of an officer in the Wehrmacht, announced this morning that "action is continuing."

The speaker urged fellow-officers to offer continued armed resistance to the Heinrich Himmler's Gestapo. Identifying the man who paid for his life for planting the bomb as Col. Count Claus von Stauffenberg, the broadcaster declared:

"Let Hitler know this much for certain—there is more than one Stauffenberg. Stauffenbergs are here in the thousands."

Whether speaker actually was broadcasting from Frankfurt or from an underground station posing as Frankfurt was uncertain, but the Associated Press listener in London said it sounded authentic.

Drew Is Backing Bracken As National Leader

TORONTO, July 22 — (CP) — Premier Drew of Ontario said last night that anyone who states that he has been directly or indirectly connected at any time with a movement to supplant John Bracken as National Leader of the Progressive Conservative Party is "a contemptible and malicious liar."

Speaking over a Toronto radio station, the Premier said: "I find it necessary to say these things because statements which were quite frankly admitted in the press reports to be based upon rumors have been repeated still further, as recently as today."

The Premier said further that he had "no thought" of leaving the Ontario political field. "My one ambition in the political field in Ontario is to see an end as soon as possible of the weak and incompetent government in power at Ottawa today, and to assist in every way I can to assure that John Bracken is the next Prime Minister of Canada."

Glad To Be McCullaugh's Friend

Speaking of George McCullagh, publisher of the Toronto Globe and Mail, whose name was coupled with his in recent press reports about a Toronto clique supposed to have ambitions to dictate Progressive Conservative Party Policy and supplant Mr. Bracken in the leadership, Mr. Drew said he wished "we had a lot more like him in Canada today."

He said Mr. McCullaugh's friendship with him "is mentioned as though there were in that fact alone some sinister significance."

"We are friends. We have . . . not always agreed on public issues, but we have been close friends for some considerable time and I am proud of his friendship.

". . . I assure you that I am very glad to have my name associated with his, and I will be glad to have my name associated with other newspaper publishers who show the same integrity of purpose, the same courage of their convictions, and a willingness to let it be known where they stand at this critical hour. George McCullaugh has never left any doubt about that."

The Premier said he did not question the good faith of the reporters who originated the stories concerning he and Mr. McCullagh but "unless someone is prepared to honor the foundling rumor with their name, then it should be regarded as unworthy of recognition by decent men and women."

The so-called "Toronto clique," he said, had not been "even mentioned" at a Progressive Conservative party caucus in Ottawa as reported by one newspaper (Ottawa Citizen). The Premier did not name the newspaper.

Assumes Responsibility

"I believe that free speech and a free press are absolutely necessary if freedom itself is to live," said Mr. Drew. "I think I have given ample proof of my own belief in the right to criticize. But", he continued, "may I remind you that whenever I have seen fit to criticize what others have done I have never hesitated to assume the full responsibility for what I have said.

"I think there is one fair test which should be applied to stories such as these to which I have referred. It is a simple thing and a proper thing to ask: who makes this statement?"

The Premier told of his efforts to have the federal government convene a Dominion-Provincial Conference and "in spite of repeated letters and published requests . . . the province had no idea whether one would ever be held."

"The people of Ontario have offered their co-operation and will cooperate in the improvement of conditions in every part of Canada. We are Canadians first and we will do all in our power to build a strong Canada.

"But we have heard once too often the defiant claim that the present government at Ottawa must submit to the demands of one province in the dominion. That is a situation which the province will never accept.

"Let that be understood by the shameless politicians in Quebec who have been asserting so loudly in the past two weeks that they alone have rights which must be respected."

Up To Big Three

BOMBAY, India, July 22 — (CP)—Mohandes Gandhi, Indian Nationalist Leader, said at a press conference yesterday a world free of international strife would be possible "only if Great Britain, America and Russia contemplate such a world peace."

Part Played By Woman In National Life Studied

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL.

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for July 23 is Judges 4 and 5, the Golden Text being Esther 4, 14, "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?")

Once more we have an account of the unfaithfulness of the Israelites to their God who had so blessed them. It is an ever recurring story.

For their wickedness they were sold into the hand of Jabin, king of Canaan, that reigned in Hazor. The captain of Jabin's host was Sisera, "which dwelt in Harosheth of the Gentiles." This captain had 900 chariots of iron, and for twenty years he mightily oppressed the children of Israel.

Now Deborah was a prophetess and the wife of Lapidoth. Her husband doesn't enter much into the picture. It was Deborah who was the strong one and the inspiration of her people. She dwelt, the story says, under a palm tree between Ramah and Bethel in Mount Ephraim. "And the children of Israel came up to her for judgment." For years there were two trees in this vicinity, both named after Deborah, one an oak and the other a palm.

Deborah Calls Barak.

Deborah "sent and called Barak, son of Abinoam, out of Kedesh-naphtali and said unto him, Hath not the Lord God of Israel commanded, saying, Go and draw toward Mount Tabor, and take with thee ten thousand men.....And I will draw unto thee to the river Kishon Sisera, the captain of Jabin's army, with his chariots and his multitude; and I will deliver him into thine hand."

Deborah had no doubt that the Lord was on the side of the Israelites and that they would win the battle, but Barak had not her faith and answered, "If thou wilt go with me, then I will go: but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go." Deborah promised to go with him, but said the battle would not be for his (Baraks) honor, because "the Lord shall sell Sisera into the hand of a woman."

There was one traitor in camp, a man named Heber, the Kenite, who informed Sisera where Barak and his forces were. Sisera gathered all his chariots—900 chariots of iron—and all his people to the river of Kirshon.

"And Deborah said unto Barak: Up; for this is the day in which the Lord hath delivered Sisera into thine hand: is not the Lord gone out before thee?" So Barak went down with his men, and utterly defeated Sisera and killed all his men. From Josephus, and from Deborah's song we learn that "the stars in their courses fought against Sisera. The river of Kishon swept them away." A great storm came up and the river overflowed, bogging down the chariots and no man escaped slaughter.

Sisera Seeks Safety.

No man, that is, but Sisera, who fled on foot from his chariot and ran to the tent of Heber the Kenite, the traitor. Heber's wife Jael was in the tent, and Jael was no traitor. She invited him into the tent, gave him milk when he asked for water; when he slept soundly from exhaustion, she took a nail of the tent, a peg, and a hammer, and going softly to Sisera, she drove the nail through his temple and hammered it in, and so died Sisera.

Jael is described as "a true child of the desert," in excuse for her deception and murder of her peoples enemy. When Barak came to the tent, seeking Sisera, she showed him the body.

"So God subdued on that day Jabin the king of Canaan before the children of Israel."

The fifth chapter of Judges, which is part of our lesson, is the song of Deborah in praise of the Lord for avenging His people, and a recital of the events which took place during the battle, concluding with the triumphant cry:

"So let all Thine enemies perish, O Lord.

"But let them that love Him be as the sun when he goeth forth in his might."

Canadian Birds

Among the characteristic markers of the season's advance, the flicker takes a definite place. His ringing call becomes a feature of this time of year, without which the spring would not seem the same. The flicker is a woodpecker, larger than a robin, with a fondness for eating ants. In fact, contrary to woodpecker custom, a flicker is usually seen hopping along the ground.

The flicker is known by many different names. Two of the commonest are golden-winged woodpecker and yellow-shafted flicker. The first name is due to the yellow under-wing surface, which is noticeable when the bird is flying. The latter name refers to the fact that the midribs of nearly all the feathers are yellow. This yellowness is of course very pronounced on the large flight feathers of the wings and those of the tail, but it is also true of the smaller and softer back and breast feathers. The red-shafted flicker of the far west has scarlet shafts instead of yellow, as well as this, there is a sort of reversal in color pattern in the heads of these two species. The gilded flicker is a third species which combines the characters of the other two, having the head coloration of the red-shafted flicker but the yellow shafts and wing linings of the eastern bird.

The yellow-bellied sapsucker is coming through now also. This bird has acquired a bad reputation for its habit of boring into living trees and girdling them. This provides the bird with variety in its meals, for not only does it enjoy the sap thus set running, but various insects attracted by the sap, become stuck in it, affording a candied bug course on the menu. Sapsuckers have a mewing, rather cat-like call.

Hermit Thrush

In stretches of woods and bushes, a bird flies up ahead and quietly perches on some stump or branch. With head slightly up, it remains still. Its actions seem shy and secretive. A close look shows the back to be olive brown shading into a bright chestnut on the tail. This tail is a very expressive organ in the hermit thrush, for it gives it a peculiar flirt immediately upon alighting. It rises rapidly to an angle of about 45 degrees then sings slowly.

Birds Have Strange Characteristics

It is interesting to see the way some species of birds characteristically flirt their tails in particular ways. Some wag it up some down from the resting position. Some do it with a regular rhythm, others are spasmodic about it. It seems to suggest either temperament in the bird or a method of communication.

Usually most birds are to be seen neither right in the woods, nor right out in the open fields, but along the border line of a stretch of woods. Here little bands of open country birds such as sparrows and juncos, will be feeding in the cover of the bushes; besides such woodland birds are downy woodpeckers and chickadees. Fence-rows and narrow stretches of trees seem to harbor most birds in migration.

Birds of different groups are now beginning to be represented by new arrivals. Of the woodpeckers, there are the flicker and sapsucker, of the finches, the fox, swamp, vesper and savannah sparrows, of the blackbirds, the rusty blackbird and cowbird and so on.

The pied-billed grebe, the only one of the "hell-divers" which remains to nest with us in southern Ontario, is putting in an appearance. Here is a bird with a remarkable ability. It can submerge itself partially, or wholly, at will and it is quite a sight to see nothing but a head and neck above the water or watch one gradually sink until head and neck and a small of island of back are all that is visible.

Christian Idea of Money

By REV. E. R. JAMES.

"But God said unto the rich man: Thou fool."—St. Luke 12, 20.

In bygone days the insane person was said to be "possessed.' God said unto the rich man whose ground brought forth plentifully: "Thou fool." The man had great possessions yet because he was possessed by his wealth God called him a fool. Naturally the heart searching question arises. An ancient Litany contains this trinity of supplications: "In all time of our tribulation; in all time of our wealth; and in the hour of death—Good Lord, deliver us." The wise and experienced Christian placed wealth between tribulation and death. Does this make you think?

A group of ordinary people are listening to the great Teacher. He tells them this story sketched from everyday life. All knew such a man. He is a capable farmer, hard working and prosperous. Yet God calls him a fool.

The parable deals with money that most interesting subject. We all need it. At the same time the Master warns us of its peril. To a handful of Apostles, Jews with the instinct of making money, He utters this astonishing comment: "How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the Kingdom of God?"

"Riches." What is your idea of it? You may have a little cottage and garden with a small pension. You are not rich in the popular sense of the word; but you are comfortable. The question is: "Are you putting your trust in that little wealth? Let us think upon God's verdict.

The rich man has forgotten God. It is not hard. Mr. Hardy, a famous novelist, writes of one of his characters: "He was getting toward the dead level of middle age when material things increasingly possess a man.' Centuries ago Moses wrote: "When thy herds and flocks multiply and all that thou hast is multiplied, then thine heart be lifted up and thou forget the Lord thy God." The farmer should be the last man to forget God. He is so dependent upon God for the growth and development of the crops. Truly the farmer is dependent upon God.

Like a wise surgeon our Lord probes deep. "He thought within himself." It is a revelation of character. He is a self made man. How many there are in this land of Canada' He is a man of thought and action. He is self reliant; independent. Notice the pronouns: "I' and "Myself." He is not thinking about God, Who gave him the power to get wealth. He desires to feed his soul with money. "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry." He is starving his own soul. Have you ever read this startling, searching comment: "The Lord gave them their desire; but sent leanness withal into their souls." You met a promising youth years ago. You saw him yesterday — prosperous and well-to-do. At the same time you see that there is leanness in his soul: He has no desire for the things of the spirit and the better life.

The rich man does not know the value of money. Christ utters no word of condemnation against riches in themselves. He points to the spiritual danger. The subtle growth of idolatry. "Covetousness is idolatry."

If God gives you some measure of prosperity it is that you may help others in these terrible days. Do not forget to cultivate sympathy and compassion, which means moving with the outstretched hand. Such an act is for your soul's health. There is a grim Spanish proverb, "There are no pockets in a shroud."

Scripture—Judges 4 and 5

By Alfred J. Buescher

For their sins against the Lord the children of Israel were sold into slavery to Jabin, king of Canaan, whose captain was Sisera.

Deborah, a prophetess, who judged the children of Israel, sent for Barak, and told him to bring 10,000 men to fight Sisera and his men.

The Israelites fought with the Canaanites and slew thousands of them, but Sisera fled on foot from his chariot to the tent of Jael.

When Sisera was asleep Jael took a long nail and drove it into his temple, killing him.

Who Missed Hitler?

For several months it has been possible to infer trouble in high circles in Germany from the reports of neutral countries and from a careful study of German communiques. But now that an attempt has been made on Hitler's life much is made clear that we could only guess at before. When General Edmund Hofmeister, commander of the 41st German Tank Corps, was captured on the Russian front he talked bitterly of "the talentless command of Hitler". No doubt other officers of high rank shared this low opinion of Hitler's ability as a militarist, and the indications are very strong that the attempt on his life came from a group of disaffected officers. Who else is left in Germany who could attempt anything so ambitious? Who else could get near enough to the Fuehrer to throw a bomb at him?

It is clear from Hitler's own radio address on the subject that he does not know who are plotting against him. He roared about a small clique of traitors and conspirators whom he pretended to know, but immediately afterward he warned the people to take no orders from usurpers; so clearly he does not know how widespread the plot may be. But he has given Himmler a free hand with both civil and fighting forces, to purge them of traitors, so he must suspect a general revolt against his regime.

• • •

The relationship between the Nazi party and the German professional militarists has never been a cordial one. The High Command is made up primarily of aristocratic Prussians who look upon the Nazis as lower-class scum, and Hitler as a military buffoon. They have worked with the Nazis because they were the party in power, but they have resented most bitterly the Nazi intrusions into the fighting forces. It has been shown time and time again that political interference is death to an army, and the Russians greatly strengthened their army when they got rid of it. The Nazi generals have always had to fight two enemies—the United Nations and the Gestapo. Now it looks as though the High Command had decided to get rid of Hitler and end the war as best they can.

• • •

This is all excellent news for us. But if another attempt on Hitler's life should be successful we must not decide that the war is over. It cannot be repeated too often that we are fighting the German people, and not Adolf Hitler or the Nazi party. If Hitler should be killed it would shorten the war and strike a terrible blow at German morale, but it would not mean that Germany had been defeated. Only when the Germans — through whatever power is able to speak for them—surrender unconditionally will we be able to say that we have defeated them, and we shall not have won the war even then. We shall not have won the war until at least ten years after the cessation of hostilities, when we are reasonably sure that Nazidom is dead, and the German passion for aggression sternly repressed.

The Bretton Woods Conference

Among the most promising omens for the future of the world are the three great conferences which the United Nations—and a number of other nations who have seen fit to associate themselves with us—have undertaken to make plans for the post-war world. The first one was a discussion about food and agriculture and standards of nutrition; the second was a discussion on relief and rebuilding; the third, at Bretton Woods in New Hampshire, has been about money. These conferences have not been love-feasts; they have been sober and business-like discussions of what can be done to lessen problems which face the whole world; they have had satisfactory, though sometimes rather vague, results and they have established an admirable precedent.

It is obvious to everyone that the war has stood the economic structure of the world on its head, and it is likely to stay that way for many years unless we do something to set it right. Britain, for instance, confesses freely that she is absolutely broke as a result of the war, and the occupied countries will many of them be in the same position. These countries are broke, but they are not bankrupt. Given a chance they can re-establish themselves. The discussion at Bretton Woods concerns what kind of chance they can have.

It is clear, too, that countries like our own which are in a good financial position cannot remain so after the war if several other countries are ruined. It is humane and it is businesslike for us to give them what help we can. If we made a greedy attempt to profit by the hard times of other countries it would not be long before we faced another great depression, for it is not economically possible for one group of countries to profit exorbitantly at the expense of another group.

• • •

The conferees of Bretton Woods — economic experts who have been asked by their countries to discuss ways and means—have produced two schemes which they hope will make post-war economics simpler. One is a Stabilization Fund to take care of currency and keep it from dropping or soaring immoderately, and the other is a United Nations Bank for Reconstruction and Development. We cannot pretend to explain either scheme in detail, because at present only economists of the Bretton Woods standard fully understand them, but their names give some clue to what is proposed. It is still a question whether the schemes will work or not, but there is goodwill behind them, and that is the important thing.

• • •

The three conferences have sometimes dealt with very ticklish subjects, and they have all included a good deal of talk about 'national sovereignty'—which means the right of any country to do as it likes, whatever the consequences to other countries. But the conferences themselves show that the important nations of the world are changing their definition of national sovereignty, for they realize that they can get on better if they consider one another than they can if they compete on a dog-eat-dog level. Understandably international agreements have to leave a great deal of freedom to individual nations, but the principle of helpful co-operation for the good of all seems to be making excellent headway.

A Dainty Dish

Persons of sardonic disposition get a great deal of pleasure these days out of reading the Nazi propaganda which is designed to allay the fears, stir the valour and dry the tears of the German people. Hitler always said that he would never fight on two fronts; now he fights on three, and if you care to count an important northern sector as an extra, four. Germany, which was to expand until it included all that was worth having of Europe, is now contracting toward its pre-war size. To put as good a face as possible on these facts the Berliner Boersen Zeitung writes thus:

"Today we know that Stalin had planned for years to assault Germany and prepared with the greatest secrecy. Thus we Germans advanced on a not yet completely concluded Russian deployment, and although our troops in the course of difficult disengagement movements have again reached their starting point, the last three years of fighting had the important result of weakening Soviet strength so decisively that today, only by means of overwhelmingly superior forces are they able to take up the fight with Germany".

There's logic for you! The Germans gave the Russians such a beating that the Russians have had to make themserves stronger than ever in order to win! Isn't that a dainty dish to set before a bewildered and fearful people?

NOTE AND COMMENT

A scientist points out the similarity between the brains of eels and humans. The eels, of course, spend their lives in schools, and presumably improving their minds.

There is a movement on foot in Kansas City to organize a thinker's union. If it comes to anything, may we take out a card? We have had an uneasy suspicion for some time that thinkers are being grossly exploited by the I.W.W.—the International Witless of the World.

The Dominion Government has very properly taken up the case of a soldier's wife in Toronto who has been threatened with eviction. But, as the Ottawa Journal points out, nobody has yet spoken up in Parliament for the thousands of landlords who are at present restricted from treating their property as their own. Isolated instances of chivalry are admirable, but a measure of widespread justice looks well, too.

Diary Of A Heat-Hoarder

By SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

SUNDAY: Talked this evening to a lady who tells me that the Japanese press used to have a clever device for interviewing passengers on liners headed for Tokio. The reporters and camera men would board the ship at Yokohama and prepare their interviews and pictures. These they would attach to a carrier pigeon, which would rush off to Tokio with the news. Thus, if you were interviewed on your way to Japan you would arrive in Tokio just as the paper with your words of wisdom appeared on the street. The Japs may look funny, but they are full of clever tricks....It was too hot today to be comfortable out-of-doors, and I stayed behind drawn blinds from dawn till dusk, like a Mohammedan beauty. Perhaps I am mistaken, but it seems to me that it is many years since summer was as hot as this. But I am not complaining; I am storing up heat for the long bitter winter which is to come.

MONDAY: To the movies and saw a British film about submarine warfare. Dr. Johnson said: "A ship is worse than a jail. There is, in a jail, better air, better company, better conveniency of every kind; and the ship has the additional disadvantage of being in danger". What would Ursa Major have said about submarines, I wonder? There a man is enclosed in a steel sausage with a number of his fellows and a great quantity of machinery and explosives; at almost any moment he may find that he is under the sea and has no chance of getting to the surface again. Still, if there were no men willing to do submarine duty we should be in a quandary....I have always understood that submarine crews get the best food of any men in any of the services. This is ironical, for who wants to stuff himself with Burgundian beef, truffles, vol-au-vent, ice cream, pie, lobster salad, angel cake and champagne when he is in the best place in the world to be seasick, and when he cannot move without squeezing past somebody or something?...An American sanitary officer in Cherbourg has destroyed 10,000 Camembert cheeses, because he thought that they were rotten. Of course they were rotten—that is, in prime condition to eat. Somebody ought to instruct that sewer-sniffer about food.

TUESDAY: Received a letter today from a gentleman who suggests that the high incidence of insanity in Canada is attributable to the way in which our society is dominated by women. "The average man", he writes, "goes home from his work to help his wife with the dishes, the children and whatever else she has saved for him, and he is not free then to go out unless she consents. In England he goes out when he likes to his pub, or his labour club, or his sporting club and is accepted as the master in his own home"....This recalls the ferocious attack on the women of this continent which Philip Wylie made about a year ago in his book "Generation of Vipers". My correspondent continues: "The Americans put women on a pedestal years ago, and here in Canada we have not had the courage to de-pedestal them". There are those, of course, who maintain that a civilization may be judged by the kindness which it shows toward its women. But there is a difference between kindness and a weak-kneed spoiling of the whole sex. What I particularly detest in our Canadian situation is the way in which women try to impose their moral and aesthetic judgements on the nation. As women are never adventurous thinkers, but incorrigible play-safers, this makes for a weakness of intellectual fibre.

WEDNESDAY: Rain today, so I have abandoned any idea I ever had of watering my lawn. My neighbours all water their lawns faithfully, and as a result they are beautiful, and green and thick; I rarely water my lawn, and it is beautiful, and green and thick, too, and I can walk about on it without getting my feet wet. I know that this should not be so; virtue should be rewarded and sloth and desuetude punished, but it has long been clear to me that I am the darling of Providence, and my lawn will not suffer however much I neglect it. As a matter of fact, I am thinking of marketing grass seed from my lawn under the trade name 'Marchbanks' Camel Grass: Need Not Be Watered'. It would be the very thing for golf courses. ....After the rain I discovered that my lawn had grown a couple of inches; if I watered it I should live in a perpetual jungle.

THURSDAY: Talked to a lady today who used the word 'disgusting' several times with reference to women who wear shorts on the streets. Although she pretended that her objection was aesthetic she revealed clearly that it was moral; women who displayed their charms (or what they believed to be their charms) in shorts were 'disgusting'. As I am all for women making themselves as attractive as possible, I could not agree. True, many women look funny to me in shorts, but they are probably visions of delight to somebody else; for instance, a fatty with a pronounced bottom wearing a pair of shorts makes me laugh uproariously, but there are men of Oriental tastes who consider her a goddess. Good taste must be the guide in these matters, and good taste is to a great degree a question of individual taste——About twenty years ago there was a silly fuss about girls who wore rolled stockings; in those days skirts were longer and the daringly bared knee was sometimes visible and sometimes veiled. Everything was attributed to this Babylonian exposure, from blindness (really caused by prohibition gin) to thrombosis in elderly males.... After consideration, I am in favour of shorts, just as I am in favour of dresses with trains and feathers in the hair, when occasion demands. In brief, I like women to dress as attractively as possible and shorts, discreetly worn, are attractive.

FRIDAY: A flourishing racket has been nipped in the bud, I see; it is no longer permitted to sell Bibles and prayer books with steel covers. Apparently great numbers of these objects were sold to be given to soldiers as gifts, the special appeal of the gift being that if it were worn over a soldier's heart it would protect him from a possibly fatal wound....This is part of a modern superstition which I have watched for some time—the worship of the Bible as an object, and not as a book, and the belief in its powers as a talisman. If a man reads the Bible intently, and ponders it deeply, it may make him wise; merely carrying it in his pocket will not ward off evil. However, the world is full of people who put more faith in charms than in brainpower....The addition of the steel cover gives a touch of pathetic humour to this form of self-deception; it seems to be a feeble attempt to have the best of both worlds. Actually a bullet which hit a steel-covered book would spread, and create a very ugly wound.

SATURDAY: Passed the afternoon scraping wallpaper off a room which I am going to redecorate....There is something deeply satisfying about ripping off old wallpaper. It feeds man's deep-seated lust for destruction. Civilisation is based in a great degree on man's carefully fostered ability to build things up; it is not often that we have a chance to tear things down and be admired for so doing. Indeed, many of man's deepest desires have to be denied in the interest of society. W. C. Fields (a deep student of human frailty) once said that every man cherished a thwarted desire to kick a baby. I know a quiet and scholarly man who was transformed into a raging demon when a curious chance made it necessary for him to break up a grand piano with an axe. Nothing relieves the nerves more pleasantly in moments of tension than breaking china. This appears to be a natural desire which some people (the whole German nation, for instance) have permitted to become an obsession. The Germans have raged all over Europe, smashing whatever they could not steal. Could world peace be guaranteed if every German were permitted to smash a certain amount of cheap crockery every day of his life, thereby working off steam and hatred?

Farmers Have Too Many Accidents

(COLLINGWOOD ENTERPRISE-BULLETIN)

THE cold truth is that the ratio of preventable accidents in agriculture is higher than in any other industry. Many hundreds of farmers, members of their families and workers on farms are killed and many thousands injured every year in Canada as the result of accidents, most of which could have been prevented.

With the farm labour shortage just now so acute and when all our production of food is so essential to the war effort, the accident toll is particularly serious.

A survey has disclosed that machinery is the chief source of farm work accidents; that livestock runs a close second and that falls are in third place. The wise farmer is he who learning the cause of accidents on his farm takes steps to eliminate such causes and all possible hazards. For example, the fact that loose clothing causes one-third of all farm accidents involving machinery should make anyone avoid that particular hazard like a plague.

And the ever-present threat of fire, which annually destroys millions of dollars' worth of rural property ought to be enough for a farmer to justify devoting at least a part of one morning per month to looking round the farm for fire hazards, too.

Prevention of accidents means avoiding making an acute farm labour shortage more acute and also means an even bigger contribution to food production.

Safety first is a good slogan for any farm.

Their Music of the Sea

"Age cannot wither her nor custom stale her infinite variety" could have been spoken of the sea as well as a beautiful woman. For the poetry of the sea is as old as the memory of man. From Homer's "wine-dark sea" to the shuddering open fifths that begin "The Flying Dutchman" or Debussy's resplendent Dialogue of the Wind and the Sea, there must be as many descriptions as poets who knew the ocean.

The Hebrides Overture (or "Fingal's Cave" as it is also called) was inspired by Mendelssohn's trip to the Islands of the Hebrides off Scotland. A good part of the music came to him when he saw Fingal's Cave. It describes not only the great pillared vault itself but also the cries of the sea birds that inhabit it, the wail of the wind and the lonely waste of sea.

Mendelssohn's trip to the Hebrides was essentially sightseeing. Wagner's experience of the sea was terrifyingly in earnest. The trip across the North Sea which inspired "The Flying Dutchman" threatened to end in shipwreck and drowning all on board. For many reasons, Wagner's overture was bound to be different from Mendelssohn's....

The sea which Rimsky-Korsakoff describes in the first movement of his "Scheherazade" is yet another: a sunlit, perfumed sea, colored like a jewel, travelled by legendary barks of the East. The story of the Sea and Sinbad's Ship is told by the Sultana Scheherazade, whose voice we hear in the high, florid notes of the solo violin....

Rimsky-Korsakoff had known the sea as a young officer of the Russian Navy. Debussy knew and loved the sea off the coast of France. "You may not know," wrote Debussy once, "that I was intended for the fine career of a sailor, and that only the chance of life led me away from it. Nevertheless I still have a sincere passion for the ocean." The sea music of "Pelleas et Melisande," his third nocturne, "Sirenes," "La Mer," and many passages in his letters all bear out his words.

"Here I am again," he wrote in 1906, the year after finishing "Le Mer," "with my old friend, the sea; it is always endless and beautiful."....

"La Mer" consists of three symphonic sketches: "From Dawn till Noon on the Sea"; "Play of the Waves"; and "Dialogue of the Wind and the Sea." There would be little point in analyzing the score, even if that were possible and Debussy had not pronounced himself unalterably against it. First we have an impression of the immense resting power of the ocean at dawn. Gradually the waters awaken. A lazy wisp of foam is cast aloft. A simple, two-toned figure from "Sirenes" is the starting point of a development of astonishing imagination and mastery. Debussy is less concerned with conventional melody than with the play of minute fragments of rhythm and tonality, ever changing reflections of sky, clouds and sunlight on his flashing, tossing orchestral sea. Toward the end, the depths themselves are set in motion with a brief but impressive chorale phrase, which is to return at the climax of the last movement.

In the "Play of the Waves" the ocean lashes itself into a sportive fury. Rainbow colorings appear and vanish in the fountains of spray.

A deep, threatening voice, as of approaching storm, opens the Dialogue of the Wind and the Sea. A shiver of anticipation runs through the orchestra; there is a swift gathering of forces and the tempest seems about to break. Instead, there is a sudden lull, and from afar we hear a nostalgic call, like the sirens of Debussy's imagination. The siren song is repeated and now it is answered by Tritons' horns; the clamor grows and the creatures of the deep hold high carnival. The chorale of the first movement returns in an exultant climax till at last a curious, unresolved harmony ends the never-ending tale of the sea.—From "Adventures in Symphonic Music," by Edward Downes.

Signs Come Back

SIGNS on shops and vehicles in Britain giving place names can be used again. Mr. Morrison has lifted a war ban.

When invasion threatened in 1940 display of any sign having the name, situation, direction, or distance of any place was prohibited, if the sign could be read from a highway, train, or low-flying plane.

Under the new order the prohibition is limited to signs which can be read from low-flying aircraft.

This will allow re-election of large numbers of signs on shops and other business premises, although large-scale sign on prominent buildings will still be ruled out.

If a sign is in a prominent position so that an uninterrupted view of it can be obtained from a low-flying plane, the lettering has to be not more than 6 inches high.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

It is a far cry from the bedraggled bumbershoot dripping disconsolately in the ante-room at Munich to the colossal umbrella of Allied bombers and fighting planes now wide open over Hitler's Europe. Ask Adolf.—Los Angeles Times.

THE THINGS YOU SEE!

Right on our main street we encountered a young woman wearing shoes, an abbreviated skirt, and some kind of a backless affair above which left, in front, what we may delicately refer to as her midriff exposed to view. A few moments later we encountered another young woman—not a child—wearing sandals, a pair of very short shorts and what we believe is called a brassiere; nothing else whatever.

Our steps took us indoors at that moment, else we might have proceeded a few yards farther and come upon another young woman in the sort of costume that Eve wore.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

THE HUN IS SURPRISED

German prisoners marching ashore at a south of England port blinked and stared round them in puzzled bewilderment, for this place is not supposed to exist.

"We must be somewhere else," said one of the first ones to his comrades. But then they saw the name of the town painted up as large as life on a municipal dust-cart, and an interrogation officer confirmed it to them.

This is one of the ports which Goebbels says is a sea of flame and a pile of ruins as a result of the robot 'plane raids.

As each new group came out of the ship you saw the same reaction. First puzzled bewilderment, then disbelief, then reluctant conviction, and finally a look of crestfallen seriousness.

But he was at once hushed down by his friends. They still seemed to feel there must be some mistake.

Four Luftwaffe personnel were shocked and indignant when they learned where they were. They argued lengthily among themselves, trying to discover where was the catch in the whole story.—Transatlantic Daily Mail.

A Bible Message

O SEND out thy light and thy truth: let them lead me; let them bring me unto thy holy hill, and to thy tabernacles. Then will I go unto the altar of God, unto God my exceeding joy: yea, upon the harp will I praise thee, O God my God.

Why art thou cast down, O my soul? and why art thou disquieted within me: hope in God: for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance, and my God. (Ps. 43: 3-5.)

Remember the word unto thy servant, upon which thou hast caused me to hope. This is my comfort in my affliction: for thy word hath quickened me....

Let thine hand help me: for I have chosen thy precepts. I have longed for thy salvation, O Lord; and thy law is my delight. (Ps. 119: 49, 50, 173, 174.)

No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.

Therefore I say unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? (Matt. 6: 24, 25.)

Unconsidered Trifles

This anecdote is culled from Collier's:

Heading home after delivering a load of American soldiers somewhere in the Pacific, a U.S. army transport picked up a bevy of Japs, drifting around after their ship had been torpedoed. The little men giggled and chattered for a while, but then became gloomily silent. None of the Japs could speak English; no one on the transport could speak Japanese. "Why don't you teach them to sing?" an American officer suggested to a sergeant who worried about the heavy brooding.

The sergeant found he could think of the chorus of only one song. Trying it out, he gesticulated invitations to the Japs to join in. A few tried to sing and seemed to feel better. By evening all were learning the song.

Military authorities felt dizzy when the transport reached a West Coast port. The Jap prisoners shuffled down the gangplank, radiating delight as they carolled lustily: "Gaw Bress

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, July 23

Sunday's horoscope makes for an exciting and disruptive day, with sudden changes and astonishing adventures, perhaps of an unprecedented character. This upheaval might prove to be constructive eventually if judiciously and conservatively met and manipulated, and not with panic and erratic moves. The disturbance is as likely to manifest in the social, mental and emotional life, where restraint is recommended. Keep down nervous tension.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of astonishing developments with sudden devastating adventures, involving unforseen changes, travel and many thrilling experiences. These should be accepted with as much composure and balance as is compatible with bewildering and breathtaking disturbances. It may be possible to hold to secure and firm foundations, since there is a sign of a stabilizing force. Hold firm check on emotions and health and attain happiness and success.

A child born on this day should have a successful, progressive and happy life, if it will control its emotions.

For Monday, July 24

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of continued progress in out of the routine programs, with faculties, forces and emotions under high tension under which it may be possible to achieve several unique or startling objectives. The mentality will be keyed to unusual matters, but carried to excess there may be reactions on the health and a nullification of desirable aims. There should be splendid stimuli for scientific invention, dramatic composition or acting.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of unusual experiences, under pressure of highly stimulated forces, energies and creative abilities. It may bring forth unusual results in literary, dramatic or scientific invention, or other exceptional or spectacular expression. Unless this tension can be properly restrained or wisely directed there may be reactions.

A child born on this day should be exceptionally talented, original and independent, with a temperamental disposition.

Girls Are Flown To Nelson To Boost Morale

FORT NELSON, B.C., July 22 — In the control centre at the American army air base here the operations officer bellowed through the loudspeakers to Nelson's lonely soldiers: "They're coming in, boys!"

The Americans at this stop on the Alaska highway, some of whom hadn't seen a pretty girl in months and months and months, raced to the runways, straightened their ties as they watched two big transport planes settle down and then welcomed 55 of the prettiest girls the American air force could find at its Edmonton and Dawson Creek offices.

"Girls! Girls! Girls!" the men shouted as the doors of the airplanes swung open and girls with freshly powdered noses trooped out. It was the start of a glorious weekend for the lonely fellows.

Busy Week-End

One of the airplanes had carried 27 girls from Edmonton; the other brought 28 from Dawson Creek They arrived early on a Saturday evening and were homebound Sunday night. In between were a dinner, a dance, a church sevice Sunday morning, a picnic in the afternoon, and a Sunday night dinner. The girls from Edmonton travelled more than 500 miles to reach Fort Nelson and joined the girls from Dawson Creek to keep their weekend date with a bunch of guys who wanted to show some girls a swell time. And the fellows who check on the morale of the men in lonesome corners on the Alaska highay decided that this long-distance dance-and-picnic experiment was a success and that it should be done again some time soon.

The men had word about a week in advance that some one had arranged to bring two airplane loads of girls to Fort Nelson, Mosquito centre of "The Road." Between then and the arrival time the men cleaned out a barracks building to house them, set up a powder room, decorated a hangar, had their hair cut, and cleaned their finger nails. And they fixed it so that they had a corsage of fresh carnations for every one of them. The flowers had been flown from Edmonton in the same plane in which the girls travelled, but they didn't know about it. The girls almost wept as they stepped from their barracks with the corsages on their dance gowns, and the men from Texas and Brooklyn and California said with a huskiness in their throats: "Oh, gosh, are we ever glad to see you."

Cooks Did Share

The cooks and the officers cooperated. The cooks put their minds to one of the best dinners they could produce. They had a mountainous buffet lunch for the dance. And the officers decided that the week-end belonged to the enlisted men, rolled up their sleeves and got behind the tables to serve the food and the cold drinks. No girl sat for more than a minute while the orchestra, described as small but good, played the latest tunes.

In the moonlight the men escorted the girls back to their barracks, said good-night, and impatiently awaited for breakfast time. After the morning church service there was a picnic. Some of the visitors were taken over to Fort Nelson "town" to see the trading post and buy souvenirs. Soldiers and girls waded bare-legged in the river. The girls collected mosquito bites and sunburn. And half a dozen of them got a ducking in the river when their boat upset.

The officers who arranged the week-end had felt just a little uneasy about taking a bunch of girls to the base. After all, some of the men had been "away up in the sticks for months." But as the girls left for home their spokesman announced: "The only wolves are the real ones you fellows say are out in the forests around here. We like you guys. And we're going to come back for another picnic if you can fix it."

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Today we have some different ways of serving meat, appetizing ways of using leftover bits from the-day-before roast. It is so much nicer to sit down to a meal of leftovers made up in some tempting fashion, rather than to just see cold sliced beef, or other meats.

Beef Mironton

Sliced cooked beef, 1 cup bouillon, or 1 cup water mixed with canned tomato juice, salt and pepper, 6 onions, 1 to 2 tablespoons fat 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons vinegar, bread crumbs. slice the onions and brown them in fat in a frying pan, add the flour and brown, then add vinegar and the bouillon or tomato sauce. Cook together until slightly thickened, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Smother the slices of beef in the sauce for a few minutes. Pour into a baking dish, sprinkle some bread crumbs over top and bake for 10 minutes in hot oven.

Beef Balls

3 cups cold roast beef, 1-3 cup bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons fat, 1 cup stock, 1 egg, flour salt and pepper 1 teaspoon lemon juice, nutmeg. Put the meat twice through a food chopper, add bread crumbs, salt, pepper and lemon juice, a little nutmeg and the beaten egg. Shape into balls lightly and let them stand for half an hour to become firm, then roll in flour and brown in a frying pan with fat. These served with home fried potatoes and a vegetable salad make a very tempting dinner.

Stuffed Steak

2 pounds round steak, 1 cup crumbs, ½ cup water, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon chopped onion, 1 small turnip, diced, ½ cup chopped celery, 1 carrot diced, flour.. The meat should be cut from ½ to 1 inch thick. Wipe the steak, remove the skin, and lay the meat out flat on a board. Make a dressing of the crumbs, water, salt, pepper, chopped onion, and a small amount of celery and spread it on the meat. Place the diced vegetables in a roasting pan and put the roasted steak on top. Add two or three cups of water cover, and bake in a slow oven for three hours, or until tender. If you prefer to cook this meat on top of the stove, melt ½ cup suet in the bottom of a flat bottomed iron kettle, flour the meat thickly and lay the roll in the kettle. Turn from side to side until it is well browned, then almost cover with hot water and simmer slowly for 3 hours. When the meat is cooked, remove from the kettle or roasting pan and thicken the broth using 1 to 2 tablespoons of flour to each cup of gravy.

INVESTMENT FURS—In 1943 the American public spent $450,000,000 on furs. The U. S. Government received $45,000,000 in taxes from this expenditure. This year, with the tax doubled, the purchase of furs will be carefully planned with emphasis on the durable and classic rather than the novelty type of fur coat. Esther Dorothy, famous for her handling of magnificent mink, uses fur like a fabric, as can be seen from the accompanying picture. It is amply cut for long wear, has a full blouse and full swing back, extra wide sleeves and generous turnback cuffs.

STRIPES ARE STARS—The last dresses of summer show their stripes and are likely to be fashioned of fine cotton, right for town or country, according to the accessories. Halpert makes this model of finest Sea Island cotton. The middy top blouse is in white with a thin black stripe, the skirt in black with a white stripe, the stripes in contrasting formation to lend additional interest. It has a neat bow-tied neck and brief, cool sleeve.

"I've just been sitting here in the car watching people walk by," said Mrs. D. W. Barmon, Buffalo, N.Y., "and truly I think the girls in Peterborough are most attractive. The working girl particularly keeps herself right up-to-date on hair styles, and clothing ideas, and I can honestly say the girls I have seen this morning are just as appealing and smartly-dressed as the girls I've seen in Los Angeles or New York City," she said.

In Peterborough with her husband, who was interviewed by this column a week ago, Mrs. Barmon says shopping here is pleasant, and one of the shopping highlights, she thinks, is being able to buy such a wide variety of goods—many of which are unavailable in the United States. The Canadian system of rationing allows people much more than does the American method although in some cases it is just about the same.

"Weve managed to get everything we need though," she said, "and if you ever came to the States, I think youd find you receive a little more liberal rations than we do."

On the way hometo Niagara Falls, N.Y., after an enjoyable vacation at Buckhorn Lake, Mr. and Mrs. S. Jarzad and daughter, were in Peterborough this morning to do a little last minute shopping before hitting the road.

"Although I didn't have any occasion to get one of your temporary ration books, judging from people I've spoken to, you people seem to get off a lot easier than we in the States", she said.

"I've noticed you're not rationed on meats or cheese, or shoes either", she said, adding, "but we definitely are restricted on those articles. We can only get a certain amount of cheese for our points, and the point value is so high, if you buy one thing like that, you lose out on another food, such as butter."

Mr. Jarzad said the fishing was very good where they were, and the first day there, the family enjoyed a beautiful fish dinner, consisting of a five-pound bass he hooked.

"There are plenty of articles in your stores that we couldn't buy in the States", observes William Burch, from Cleveland, Ohio. Mr. Burch is staying with Mrs. Burch and Patsy, out near Cumbermere, and says he's having a grant time.

Patsy said she thought the girls here are just as up-to-date on clothes, and just as stylish on hair-do's, as anywhere she's been. "While I haven't bought any misses' clothes here yet, I have noticed they seem to be much more inexpensive than in Cleveland, and the fashions are just the same, too."

Mr. Burch pointed out Americans can take Canadian shoes back with them, if the shoes have been worn in Canada.

WIFE WITH JOB A HOME PROBLEM

Instead of Emancipation, Woman Finds Husband—Expects Housekeeping Same as Other Mates.

A woman correspondent urges me to tell girls to give up their jobs when they get married because, if they don't, they are going to have to help bring in the bacon as well as fry it the balance of their lives.

"When I was a starry-eyed young bride," she says, "I insisted on keeping on with my work because I thought it would be so romantic and noble to help my husband get a start in the world, and when I had done that I expected to retire to the vine-wreathed cottage of which every woman dreams and take life easy.

"Well, that was twenty-five years ago and I am still punching the office time clock and holding down the same job, and when I tell my husband that I am tired of working outside of the home and want to go domestic, he asks me what do I expect to do for money if I give up my pay envelope?"

Marriage Comes Sooner.

I deliver the message as it was given to me, but it plumps us right down in the middle of a problem to which no one knows the answer. For if every girl waited to marry until the boy friend was able to support a wife all by himself, there is no denying there would be a great decline and falling off in matrimony. It is only by Arabella adding her salary to Percival's that enables them to finance love's young dream.

On the face of it, it seems an ideal arrangement. Two young people working together to build up their fortune. The wife a real helpmate instead of a burden to her husband The husband, spurred by his desire to make life soft for his wife, putting forth super-human efforts to succeed. Marriage, at last, a real partnership.

But, alas, it doesn't always turn out that way. Only too often when a man finds out that his wife can support the family, he steps from under and lets her do it. He regards the money he earns as ear-marked for his own personal pleasures and indulgences, and lets her wrestle with the bills and stand off the tradespeople. Also, knowing that he is sure of a comfortable place to sleep and three square meals a day, he becomes temperamental about work and hoity-toity with employers.

Wife Expected To Do Housework.

And the working wife discovers that instead of marriage having emancipated her from her old job, it has added another to it, and that she not only has to be a competent business woman, but a crackerjack cook and cleaner and scrubber. For her husband expects her to tidy up the house and cook him a good dinner, while he reads the evening paper and rests up so he will feel like stepping out.

All of which leaves unsolved the question of whether a wife helps her husband, or hinders him, when she works outside of the home as well as in it. The only answer one can give is that it all depends upon the kind of man she marries. There are men to whom responsibility is a goad in the side that drives them on into being go-getters. There are men who love their wives so tenderly that they are willing to work their fingers to the bone to keep them soft and save them the hardships of life. And there are other men who marry to get wives to support them.

And the trouble is there is no way for a girl to tell beforehand which one she is getting, so she doesn't know whether to give up her job when she marries, or to hold on to it with both hands.

Five-Run Rally In Ninth Saves Aircraft

Outboard Marines threw a bad scare into the Aircraft camp in a Ladies' Softball League game Friday evening at Ashburnham Bowl, before the Aircrafters staged a five-run rally in the ninth inning, to break a 13-13 deadlock and take the verdict 18 to 13.

Although behind in the early stages, the Marines fought back gamely, until they sewed up the game in the eighth, and the teams went into the ninth frame on even terms. But the aircraft girls had enough punch left to come up with a final splurge, and with Norma Strickland sending the losers down in order in the final half, it was more than enough to win the game for them.

Six-Run Inning

Aircraft headed the Marines 10-3 at the end of the sixth inning, but the Marines fought back with a 6-run surge in the seventh, paving the way for them to tie the game. Bertha Phillips singled to first, Rita Barnes was issued a walk, and Eileen Young was safe on an error. Ollie Smith walked, bringing home Miss Phillips. Vera Mitchell popped to third base, Helen Mark was safe on an error, and in the ensuing confusion, Miss Barnes stole home. Maxine Monson flied to third. Miss Young scored on a wild pitch. Viola Martin tripled to deep right field, scoring Misses Smith and Mark. Miss Martin compelted the run on a high throw to the plate. Edna Smith batted one into short centre, and was ousted on a throw from second to first.

Aircrafters turned in two runs in the seventh, totalling the count 12-9. Marg Batley tripled to left, Annette DeCarlo shot one through short stop, scoring Miss Batley and Norma Strickland was put out on a bunt. Annette DeCarlo stole second base, but was out on a try to third, Irma Perdue bunted for a base, and Marg. Selkirk bunted safely. Pat Wilson singled to centre, scoring Miss Perdue.

Aircraft started the eighth inning with Lavina Whetung safe on a bunt. Emma Roberts singled to left, and Marg. Selkirk socked one into right field, scoring Miss Whetung.

Marines made a desperate bid for victory in the eighth, when four runs crossed in quick order, tieing the game.

A large crowd was on hand to witness the game, and the Marines played good ball most of the time. Aircraft was at its fighting best, but came very close to suffering defeat by the red-garbed newcomers.

The teams:

Also on the bill are Toar Morgan and Dr. Len Hall in the semi-final and Pierre DeGlane and John Swenski.

SPORTS - Day by Day

Oshawa Colts, one of the best-balanced softball machines that this section of the province has ever known, will be here this evening for a game at Riverside Park with Switchgear, leaders of the City Softball League, and the game should be one of the big attractions of the season. The class of the Motor City club, winners of the intermediate A provincial honors for two seasons in a row and this year gunning for the senior B title, is recognized on all sides. They have two fine pitchers, the veteran Preem Whiteley, who has plenty of swift, and Dean McLaughlin, a twirler with less smoke but a variety of stuff, including a drop-ball that is baffling to an extreme. A veteran infield that plays steady ball in game after game and an outfield that can go and get them support this superfine hurling, and on top of that the Colts have the ability to punch in runs. Switchgear have been playing good ball all season in the local loop, and they will go all out tonight in an effort to knock off the classy visitors. The batteries will be Whiteley or McLaughlin and Hurst for the colts, and Akers, Harrison or Elliott and Mowry for Switchgear. The game is called for 6.45 o'clock and one of the season's best crowds should attend, especially in view of the fact that this is the only battle of the evening, the Aircraft-Westclox fixture scheduled for tonight having been postponed.

At last the setup for the City Softball League playoffs has been definitely decided. Soldiers' defeat of St. Peter's last night eliminated the Saints and handed fourth spot to U.E.W., which means that the Union team will battle the first-place Switchgear in one bracket of the semi-final round, while the second-spot Plazas and Soldiers, who finished third, will meet in the other. The playoffs will get under way on Monday night when Switchgear and U.E.W. clash. The second game of that series will be played Wednesday night and the third on Friday. Plazas and Soldiers will battle on Tuesday and Thursday nights in their series. Both brackets should produce a lot of exciting ball before the finalists are decided. In Monday night's game U.E.W. will have either Haddy Eakins, the Lindsay smokeballer, or big Mac McPherson, the Millbrook pitcher, ready to toss in against Switchgear, with Don Isaac in a relief role and Girard doing the catching. Manager Murph Chambers of Switchgear has Ronnie Akers, Bert Harrison and Freddy Elliott all in good shape for the opening game and Holly Mowry on hand to do the backstopping. The game will get under way at 7 o'clock and should be a thriller. Last time the two teams met U.E.W. beat the Switchgear 5 to 3 with Eakins holding the leaders to three hits and the Union team are confident they can turn the trick again.

Ken Colling comes forward with some more comment in his Belleville sport column on the attempt being made by Peterborough enthusiasts to organize a junior rugby league in this part of the province. The Belleville scribe thinks that 21 years is too high and that the loop should be confined to younger players, and he may have something on the ball in that respect. Anyway here is what he says: "Yesterday we made mention of a letter received from Mr. J. D. Miller of the Canadian General Electric Company of Peterborough, suggesting the formation of a junior rugby football league for the Central Ontario zone. The idea has its merits and would prove valuable in the training of material for the post-war period when rugby football will again be played in the smaller centres. However, Mr. Miller suggests an age limit of 21 years before September 1st of the playing season. This seems rather high when it is taken into consideration most boys are going into some branch of the armed services by the time they reach 18. If Mr. Miller would make the age limit 18 years before the 1st of Sept. of the playing year then he might come closer to the wartime junior age. At that the football period when coaching means the most is between the ages 17 and 20, following which the player should be of senior timber, if at all."

* * * * * *

Tiny Hermann, well-known Ottawa football star, has been promoted to command one of the new corvettes the Canadian Navy has just received from Great Britain, and rugby fans all over the country will be delighted to hear of the appointment. Hermann, who must be one of the biggest men physically in the R.C.N.V.R.—he weighs well up into the 230 class—has been at sea since early in the war and has conducted himself so admirably that his promotion as skipper of a corvette has been richly earned. If his ship hits the enemy as hard as Tiny used to buck an opposing line, and if his guns shoot as straight as he kicked goals from placement during his palmy days with the Ottawa Rough Riders, the Hermann-skippered corvette cannot fail to make a name for itself in the history of the Canadian Navy. Tiny always was a credit to Canadian sport, and it is good to see that he is distinguishing himself in the bigger and tougher game he is now playing.

Jim Bagby is coming back to the pitching wars, and as many expected, he will stay on the roster of the Cleveland Indians, says Bill Gaynon. Pre-schedule sayings of the big righthander were anything but complimentary to Manager Lou Boudreau, but such ideas cut little figure when juicy contracts are waved in the direction of the criticizing individual. It would be bad business for the Cleveland management to allow such an established hurler to go to any other team, and by the same token, Jim would be showing poor judgment by shying off a lucrative contract. So what Bagby thinks of Boudreau and how the manager feels about the mound artist matters little when they are out there on the diamond. The higher the club finishes, the more recompense it means for each, so you can wager personal differences will be forgotten during playing hours. A major league star once explained this point to the writer, claiming a player may detest his pilot, but as long as the squad was a contender, the hating individual would play his best, but if the outfit was hopelessly in the cellar then it was another story. So the Bagby-Boudreau feud will hardly develop into a mutual admiration society either way, but neither will it create any intentional bad work during game time.

Lex Robson of the Kawartha Golf and Country Club has battled his way into the semi-finals of the Millar golf competition and was billed to meet Gordon DeLaat, the red-hot Dutch-Canadian who eliminated Bobby Burns on opening day and disposed of Jack Litler, last year's Ontario open champion, yesterday. Toronto reports said that Robson, who has won the Millar six times and was runner-up last year, was picked "as the lad to beat for the biscuits today." The Kawartha pro knocked off Les Franks in yesterday's play, and Verne DeGeer in his comment this morning remarks: "Bill Lamb eliminated Gordie Brydson, 3 and 2, in the morning, while Lex Robson disposed of Les Franks, bringing two of Ontario's veteran campaigners into the third round. It was a sharp tussle between two talented operators. Robson birdied the second to go ahead and the seventh and ninth, while Lamb was going bogey, to be three up. Robson won four up at the 13th. Then Lamb took two holes in four and they halved the next two, leaving the Peterborough marksman winner by two up."

Nick Wisnock Captures Amateur Crown

TORONTO, July 22.—(CP).—Nick Wisnock of Hamilton's Burlington Club wrested the Ontario amateur golf championship from Phil Farley of the Toronto Scarborough Club in a play-off here yesterday over the Royal York Club course. Wisnock finished the 18 holes in 70, two under par, against Farley's 71.

Wisnock won the title from the five-times champion by sinking a 20-foot putt on the 18th hole for a birdie four after the two had played a hard-fought steady match throughout.

The two tied with scores of 149 at the end of the 36-hole championship flight here last Tuesday.

The two played all the way after starting off with birdie threes on the first hole. They finished the first nine with 33's, two under par. Farley fired birdies at the fifth, sixth and seventh to go two strokes up and Wisnock got them back with a birdie at the eighth.

Farley went ahead again at the 10th. Wisnock caught him at the 12th. They matched stroke for stroke until the 18th when Wisnock canned a neat 20-footer for a birdie four and the title.

TORONTO, July 22—(CP)—Concern for the physical future of Canadian youth is felt by Petty Officer Ted Morris, sports officer at the Navy Training establishment in Toronto, H.M.C.S. York. PO. Morris, who will be remembered as the diminutive iron man with the old Toronto Argonauts when they were a power on the gridiron, says he has encountered a woeful lack of knowledge of team sports among the men he trains, and he is wont to view the situation with alarm.

Fully 75 per cent of the men passing through the Navy station are dead losses as far as co-ordinated sports are concerned, and Ted thinks something will have to be done or else Canada will have a "bunch of Dopey Dans in the next generation."

Ted suggests more emphasis on high school sports, with qualified sports instructors posted at each school, and rotated occasionally to keep them from getting in a rut. High schools should cater to the masses rather than to the individual athletes as at present, he says.

Incidentally:

Laird Watt former Canadian Davis Cupper, is with the R.C.A.F. in Ottawa, and turns out on the courts for an occasional set. Brother Bob is in Britain with the armed forces, but still gets invitations to play in Canadian tourneys . . . Whatever the reason, some of the west's better horses have been disappointing the customers lately. First it was Teeworth who ran in the ruck as the anguished fans kissed $15,000 goodbye. Now Franworth has joined the moaners' club mascots by virtue of his disappointing showing after he was made an odds-on favorite at Vancouver's Hastings Park. First thing we know, they'll be forming an anti-favorite club in the west . . . The Marsh brothers of Montreal, Joe and Doug, hold a family compact monopoly on the light-heavy and welter boxing titles of the Canadian forces in Britain. . . . Harry Young, star English rugby player with the old Halifax Wanderers, has been promoted to major overseas. This is Harry's second time out, since he enlisted in the first Great war when only 17 . . . Mayor Cyril Kennedy, Canadian Bisley team member and regarded as one of the best shots in the British Empire, has lost his right arm as the result of wounds received in France.

6 Clubs Change Places On Day's Games

By the Associated Press

Six clubs changed places in the International League standings as a result of yesterday's games in the hottest, closest race the league has had in many years.

Though the Baltimore Orioles split with the Newark Bears in a double bill, winning the first 5-1 and losing the second 8-5, they moved into first place when the Buffalo Bisons took both games of a twin-bill from the Montreal Royals, 3-2 in 10 innings and 9-2. The double victory elevated the Bisons from fourth to third, while Newark's split dropped them from fifth to sixth.

The Toronto Maple Leafs changed places with Newark by taking both ends of a double-header from the Rochester Red Wings, 6-3 and 6-5, and the Jersey City Giants fell from third to fourth by dividing two games with Syracuse, winning the opener, 5-4 and losing the nightcap, 3-0.

Al Unser, recently sent by the Detroit, hit two homers, one each game to help the Bisons win both games over Montreal and climb to within 1½ games of the league lead. Joe Orrell, another recent acquisition from the Tigers, won his first start in the nightcap, holding the Royals to nine scattered hits.

The Maple Leafs established early leads in each game to win. They tallied five times in the first inning to take the opener, and scored five runs in the first three innings of the nightcap, never to be headed. Tony Castana, league-leading hitter, paced the first-game Toronto attack with three hits, while Johnny Zontini led the Leafs in the finale with two triples.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Jack Dempsey, travelling the comeback trail, knocked out Jack Sharkey in the seventh round before 84,000 spectators in Yankee Stadium 17 years ago to-night. Defeated by Gene Tunney in September of the same year in the famous "long count" fight at Chicago, Dempsey announced his retirement. He tried another comeback in 1931 that ended when Kingfish Levinsky defeated him.

Saints Put Out City League U. E. W. Meets Switchgear

Soldiers eliminated St. Peter's from the City Softball League race last night when they defeated the Saints 6 to 2 and thus gave the U.E.W. team fourth place and qualified the Union outfit for a playoff berth.

It was St. Peter's last chance and they failed to take advantage of it. Soldiers, owing to the absence of a number of regulars had to field an emergency lineup but they played good ball and it was the defence of the Saints that fell apart at the seams.

Pete Procyk pitched effectively for the winners, spacing out ten hits and giving only one base on balls. Behind the Winnipeg boy Soldiers fielded smartly with Ossie Anderson sparking the outfit by handling nine chances at shortstop without anything that resembled a miscue. Bill Moorhead was steady for the losers, failing to issue a single pass but as on numerous occasions this season his support cracked up in the pinches.

Procyk helped his own cause along by batting in three runs while Joe Dunkerley with three hits for five also swung a potent bat for the Military Training Centre outfit.

There was no scoring until the first of the third. Soldiers threw away two doubles in the opening frame and Saints wasted a pair of hits in the second. Finally to open the third Caccavella opened with a single to centre, was sacrificed to second by Conroy, went to third on Murphy's infield out and scored when Courneya's roller got away from Revoir at third.

Soldiers' evened it up in their half of the fourth Kavanagh was safe on Murphy's fumble. Dunkerley flied to Carlson in centre. Procyk doubled past third and Kavanagh scored on Conroy's low throw to the red light corner.

St. Peter's took the lead again in the first half of the sixth. Courneya opened by beating out a bunt, Hollingsworth singled and they advanced on a wild pitch. Condon rolled to Revoir at third and Courneya was trapped but scored when Revoir tossed high to the plate.

Soldiers came right back in their half with a rally that gave them the ball game. Anderson flied to Conroy but Kavanagh beat out a roller to short and Dunkerley singled to right. Procyk's double to left scored Kavanagh and Dunkerley also registered when Conroy's throw to third got away. Paris got an infield hit, Procyk holding third, and Clapp bunted safely filling the bases. Procyk was forced at the plate on Mortimer's roller to Murphy. Caccavella threw wide to first on Tomlinson's rap to second and Paris scored. Revoir rolled to Caccavella.

Soldiers added two more in the seventh. Anderson bunted safely. Kavanagh flied to Courneya. Dunkerley's double sent Anderson to third and he scored while Murphy was tossing out Procyk. Dunkerley registered the second run of the innings on Courneya's error and that was all for the night.

Robson Enters Semi-Final Of Millar Play

TORONTO, July 22—(CP)—Gorden DeLaat, former caddy at Toronto's Lambton Club, today faces his toughest battle in his quest of the Eastern Canada Professional Golf championship when he plays Lex Robson of Peterborough, Ont., six-times winner of the title, in a semi-final match.

DeLaat, 26-year-old Holland-born linksman moved into the semi-final bracket yesterday at the expense of two pre-tournament favorites. He routed Jack Littler of Kingston, Ont., 1943 Ontario Open champion, 4 and 3 in the morning, and followed up by knocking out veteran Jules Huot of Quebec City, 7 and 6.

A former professional at the Toronto Lakeview club and now a member of the Host Club, DeLaat began his march to the championship when he eliminated Bob Burns, Weston, Ont., professional, former Ontario Open champion and recent winner of the Kawartha Lakes invitation tournament at Peterborough.

Lex Robson, picked as the one to beat because of his previous record, entered the semi-final round by defeating Willie Lamb of the Lambton Club, 2 and 1.

Bill Kerr made the other semi-final bracket against Horne by eliminating Bobbie Cruickshanks of Richmond, Va., 1 up in the morning and Bill MacWilliam of Toronto St. Andrews, 4 and 3 in the afternoon. MacWilliam eliminated the defending champion, Bob Gray of Toronto, 1 up in the first round.

Browns Bow To New York 8 to 2

BY JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

Jim Bagby who once vowed he'd never pitch another game for Cleveland under Manager Lou Boudreau today stood out as the man who may boost the tribe into the thick of the pennant scrap.

When Bagby joined the Merchant Marine after last season, he said he was through with Cleveland. But after being rejected by the draft earlier in the week, the 17-game winner of 1942-43 hustled to the tribal wigwam and last night stopped Philadelphia with five hits as Boudreau's Indians took a 4-1 decision over Luke Hamlin to sweep the series.

While the Yankees and Browns took turns knocking each other's brains out, without disturbing St. Louis' 2-game margin, Cleveland and Detroit made motions toward serious contention. The St. Louis-New York series ended yesterday when Atley Donald outpitched Al Hollingsworth for an 8-2 Yank victory and an even break.

Detroit took four straight from Washington, all by one-run margins, to keep pace with Cleveland in a four-place tie, 1½ games back of Boston and 5½ off the top. Dizzy Trout captured No. 13 at the expense of reliefer Early Wynn of the Senators as Roger Cramer hammered home two Detroit runs and scored the other in a last of the ninth rally for a 6-5 edge.

Boston lost ground by falling before Chicago, 5-3, for the second time in 14 starts.

Brooklyn's long losing slump finally dumped the Dodgers into the basement, tied with Boston, after dropping a 3-2 game to Cincinnati's Ed Heusser.

Although the Phils outhit the Pirates, Frankie Zak's three hits were a big factor in Pittsburgh's 5-3 victory.

Dom Dallessandro's two-run homer in the eighth broke a 2-2 tie for Chicago's 4-2 margin over the Braves after Bill Nocholson's 16th round tripper had given Chicago an early lead.

Canadian Unit's Scouts Receive Praise

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 22—(CP Cable)—The exploits of the daring scouts of a Western Canada infantry regiment, who worm their way into German positions for last-minute reconnaissance before the attack, are the talk of Canadians around Caen today.

It was one of these tough little groups that headed across the River Orne in broad daylight on Tuesday into the Faubourg (suburb) of Vaucelles on a patrol that opened up the main Canadian thrust across the river from Caen.

(The Royal Winnipeg Rifles, the Regina Rifles Regiment, and the Canadian Scottish, Victoria, were identified previously as participating in the Normandy invasion.)

Lieut. Lorenzo Bergeron of Montreal led the file of Canadians through 150 yards of German-held buildings on the east bank of the Orne before the Nazis perked up. They slugged it out with enemy machine-guns until help could arrive and held their ground until the leading companies of Canadians started crossing the 60-feet-wide river three hours later.

Held Their Ground.

Bergeron's patrol filed into the German positions at about 2 p.m., guided by a member of the local French resistance movement. One German machine-gun opened up on them shortly after the crossing and was followed by a second. The scouts held their ground and sent a call back to the battalion for snipers.

Snipers came over to aid the lone patrol and at five in the evening, nearly three hours after the scouts had set out, the battalion's leading companies started moving across the river at two.

A concentrated artillery barrage poured into the German positions on the east bank to protect the crossing and the battalion's carrier section, commanded by Lieut. J. S. Nelles of Regina, provided covering fire with Bren guns. The carriers were strung in line between the two crossing points and snipers took up posts by the railway bridge to help keep the Germans low while the riflemen made their difficult way to Vaucelles.

By 8 o'clock the companies were digging in.

The battalion saw little excitement during the night and other Canadian troops moved around them. Sappers were at work at the river, and under the protection of the westerners' forward position were able to start assembling bridges.

The westerners had won their positions and Canadians sweeping down from the north joined them in Vaucelles, completing the occupation of all Caen.

MARINES FALL UNDER JAP SNIPER FIRE WHILE LANDING ON SAIPAN—Two U.S. marines fall to the sand after being hit by enemy snipers when this Yank mopping-up party landed on a Jap-held section of the beach during the last stages of the fighting on Saipan Island, one of the Japs' most strategic strongholds in the southwest Pacific. American forces now control the entire island.

Perths Find Pursuit Battle Is Tiring Business In Drive North In Italy

BY BILL BOSS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 22 — (CP) — A pursuit battle is a tiring business. It's a different sort of warfare from storming a fortified feature such as the Hitler Line and fighting a fierce, concentrated action.

It's a long drawn-out business; a severe endurance test—long days and weary nights of marching; constant shelling and mortaring from an elusive enemy; infrequent meals.

Th Perth Regiment of Stratford, Ont., knows all about just how tough it can be and their record under such conditions is not matched anywhere in Italy.

The Perths began their pursuit battle after they crossed the Liri River east of Ceprano, ferrying across in relays an entire regiment in one assault craft, a feat not in keeping with military methods.

They took three towns, Ceprano, Pofi and Arnara and except for four miles "foot-slogged" 35 miles in six days. And that's really marching in these rugged Italian hills.

The enemy retreated so fast there were few times the Canadians and Germans came to grips. But when they did fighting was grim and bitter.

Milbrook Officer.

There was stiff fighting, for instance, east of the Melfa River, on a bluff overlooking Ceprano. And in Ceprano itself, things were "thick" at Pofi, where the Germans had the road leading up to the town "taped' there was another "do" before Capt. W. J. (Sammy) Ridge, Milbrook, Ont., and his company entered the town.

Casualties during the pursuit were not so very much lighter than those suffered by some regiments which broke the Adolf Hitler Line.

Crosing the Melfa River on May 25, the battalion fanned out to the left of a Maritime Highland regiment, moved down the west bank of the river, struck inland and took up positions about three miles from the day's fording place. The leading company, under Maj. J. E. Tipler, Fort Erie, Ont., lost three men when it ran into small arms and mortar fire. The opposition was cleared out however, and a linkup efected with one Maritime regiment on the right and another on the left.

The next morning, supported by tanks of the 8th New Brunswick Hussars, a self-propelled battery from a Canadian field regiment, and a troop of Engineers with bulldozers, the regiment advanced toward high ground on the east side of the Liri River overlooking Ceprano.

The route took them north of the reservoir above San Giovanni. Lead companies under Maj. H. A. Snelgrove, St. Mary's, Ont., and Capt. Ridge encountered heavy shelling from self-propelled 88 mm. guns. The road was heavily mined, and infantry and tanks were separated until the Engineers could sweep a path for the armor.

Mortars under Sgt. W. J. Hansford, Stratford, Ont., put down a smoke screen and the infantry pushed forward.

Just south of the high ground, the battalion's objective, Maj. Tipler's company pased through the leading two and went on to seize the point. Ceprano, two miles away across the Liri river was clearly visible, and Lieut. Lorne F. Jones, regimental pioneer officer, was sent to find a spot suitable for an assault boat crossing.

Maj. Snelgrove's company had orders to make the first crossing and establish a bridgehead. Mounting tanks, the infantry made for the river bank the next morning amid heavy shelling. As the tanks approached the bank, the intensity of the enemy fire was so great the infantry was forced to dismount, and sneak up on hands and knees.

Seventy-one Cubs, Scouts Enjoy First Joint Camp

The camp is located on Lake Katchacoma, about 17 miles north of Buckhorn, on grounds donated by R. H. West, of the West Steel Casting Company, Cleveland, and W. W. Cole, 587 Downie street, Peterborough. Transportation has been arranged free of charge to the camp, and Dr. B. Young has volunteered to give free medical examinations to Scouts and Cubs, including heart, lungs and chest. While at camp no boy will be allowed to sleep on a ground sheet, or on the ground, as there will be regulation cots for every member.

The boys range from 8 to 16 years of age, and while at camp, will carry through an extensive program of athletics, continue with lessons, and have plenty of fun.

All facilities have been provided for, including a hospital bay, completely equipped, open 24 hours a day. There is also a doctor within a short distance of the camp. A large tent will serve as a recreation hall, where on rainy days all types of indoor sports will be played; ping-pong, checkers, darts; and outside, baseball, horseshoes and volleyball, will be the chief sports.

There will be two skiffs, a canoe, and a punt, however, these boats will only be manned by Scouts and Cubs holding "First Class Rescue Badges."

A large tent serving as a dining hall will be available and a bona-fide chief-cook, will preside in a kitchen complete with two refrigerators and two stoves. Trained supervisors will be guarding all swimming; five on shore and two in boats.

Busy Schedule

In Camp Katchacoma, Scouts and Cubs will find their day beginning at 7 a.m., when they will get up, and wash and go for a swim. Between then and 9.30 p.m., when the "lights out" order comes, every moment of the day has been planned, and equally lengthy periods for sports, swimming, rest, or reading have been set aside. A period of P.T. precedes breakfast, after which, they will raise the flag, and have a rest. A mid-morning clean-up of tents and a subsequent inspection of tents and uniforms follows, and after this, games take the place of the cleaning period.

Also, classes in regular scout and cub work will be held; a canteen will be open to serve in-between-meals refreshments, and at the closing of the day, just before lights out, a campfire period will be held, wherein strange tales will be related, and favorite songs sung. All through the night, there will be at least one leader making the round of tents, checking each one every hour.

The last day of camp will be Parents' Day, and a combination open camp and Field Day will be held. Competitive sports will be carried through, and it is expected that boys from neighboring camps will visit the Scouts and make the sports more exciting.

The boys will each pay $4 to go to camp, but most of the huge expense of operating the camp, has been off-set by financial help from the Parkhill Youth Federation under the chairmanship of W. D. McDougal and efforts by the boys themselves to raise money.

Supervisory Staff

The supervisors are: R. H. Perks, Scoutmaster; S.-J. Lambert, Assistant Scoutmaster in charge of Scouts J. P. Hallihan, Cubmaster in charge of Cubs; M. F. Pontin, Assistant Scoutmaster; R. W. Willis, Cubmaster; R. Pearson, Assistant Cubmaster; B. Young, Essistant Cubmaster; P. Jodrell, chief cook.

The above committee of senior supervisors will be assisted in turn by 5 junior leadsrs: Ralph Goodfellow, Acting Assistant Cubmaster; E. McDougal, Troopleader; K. Gordon, Assistant Troopleader; G. Elcombe, Senior Sixer; C. McCullaugh, Senior Sixer.

R.C.A.F. Airmen In Past Week In On Big Raids

By DOUGLAS GREEN

OTTAWA, July 22 (CP)—RCAF heavy bombers attacked targets ranging from "flying bomb" installations in Northern France to synthetic oil plants in the Ruhr in the week ended 9 a.m. yesterday, while Spitfires destroyed "at least" 34 enemy aircraft, Air Force Headquarters said last night in the weekly summary of operations of RCAF squadrons stationed in the United Kingdom and France.

Canadian heavies were out on five nights and one day during the week. They hammered German fortified positions in the areas east of the Orne River, the Wesseling synthetic oil plant in the Ruhr Valley, and made two night attacks against "flying bomb" installations, with crews reporting only "slight" enemy opposition.

Helped Open Corridor

All RCAF bomber squadrons participated in the great air bombardment Tuesday which opened a corridor east of the Orne River through which tanks and infantry were able to pass into open country south and southeast of Caen. The Canadian group's targets were strong points at Mondeville and Colombelles. Both were destroyed.

During these daylight attacks the bombers encountered a "moderate amount" of flak, but met with no enemy fighter opposition. Crews reported good results from concentrated bombing of the Wesseling synthetic oil plant during a night attack. Enemy waters were mined on two nights.

RCAF Spitfires flew many sorties during the week, covering the beachhead, protecting Allied shipping between England and the Continent and carrying out numerous offensive patrols behind enemy lines in France.

Down 10 Without Loss

Their outstanding success was scored July 13, when fighter on patrol near Laigle, encountered 11 FW190's and destroyed 10 without loss to themselves. Canadian pilots also attacked gun and mortar positions, strong points, troop concentrations and vehicles south and southeast of Caen.

RCAF Mosquitos provided cover over the beachhead and for Allied shipping during the week, and flew night offensive and defensive sorties, including anti-flying bomb and intruder patrols. They destroyed three enemy aircraft, one over Germany and two over France.

Anti-shipping and anti-submarine patrols were carried out by RCAF squadrons of Coastal Command. On Tuesday Beaufighters braved intense flak fire to attack a heavily escorted enemy convoy southwest of Heligoland, and left one vessel burning and another with her starboard side blown out.

Hits were scored on five escort vessels, one of which blew up. Another was set afire. Six RCAF combers and one Wellington of Coastal Command are missing. Reports from Normandy-based squadrons are incomplete but available information is that eight fighters are missing, the summary said, and "at least two pilots" are safe.

Young Highlander Dies Overseas

L.-Cpl. John Ernest Lewington, the youngest of the three sons of Mr. and Mrs. William Lewington, 66 Auburn street, all of whom are in the Canadian Army, has died in France serving with the Glengarry Highlanders, word received by his parents revealed Friday. The cause of his death or the date on which he lost his life have not yet been made available; though a letter received from the 23-year-old soldier last week-end and posted on July 6 would seem to indicate that his death occurred around the same time as many other fatalities that have brougth tragedy to Peterborough families.

John Ernest Lewington was born and brought up in the city, attending Queen Alexandra School, and working at the Curtis Brick Yard for nearly five years before his enlistment. He joined the Highlanders on June 24, 1940, the first day that regiment was recruiting in Peterborough and went overseas in July of the following year. His brother, Spr. Sidney Lewington, R.C.E., is now in France, and the other brother, Gnr. Stanley Lewington, R.C.A., is at present stationed in England. The father of the three boys, who works in the packaging department of the Quaker Oats Co., is a veteran of the First Great War, having enlisted with the 93rd Battalion and seeen action in France, where he was wounded. A sister, Mrs. J. E. Steadman, 70 Auburn street, also survives.

HE LIKES ICE CREAM.
It's a well known fact that children adore ice cream cones, and to see a tot with one clenched in his fist these hot days is not out of the ordinary. But when one little boy has both hands occupied with the frozen treat, it may mean anything. In this particular case, a youngster was seen at George and Hunter streets calmly munching on two ice cream cones, one in each hand. Asked why he had two, the younugster said he was hungry. "If you had another hand would you buy another one?" "Yes," the little boy replied.—D. M.

TWO BROTHERS SERVING—Two sons of Mr. and Mrs. N. E. James, 785 George Street, LAC. Dellemier James (Left) and Pte. Ward James (Right) are serving in the forces. LAC. James is stationed in the Western Air Command and he enlisted three years ago in August. Before joining the R.C.A.F. he worked on a farm. Pte. Ward James recently was one of a guard of honor at Ottawa for the visit of General de Gaulle. He enlisted two years ago in the infantry and was discharged for medical reasons. He re-enlisted in May and is now at Cornwall. Pte. James was formerly employed at the De Laval.

Poems Read At Breyfogle Funeral Testify To Deep Religious Faith

In the large attendance of citizens at his funeral Friday afternoon Peterborough repaid in terms of bowed and silent respect to his memory its debt to William R. Breyfogle, founder in this city of the DeLaval Company Limited, its general manager for thirty-two years and latterly its vice-president and treasurer.

Above the severance of personal and fraternal friendshops was a broader sense of finality to a relationship with this community by Mr. Breyfogle when unheralded and unsought he brought to Peterborough a manufacturing industry which has contributed so much to its prosperity and growth, and continues on today and in the days to come the operation and output and employment which he had so long and successfully directed.

It was remembered in grateful tribute that W. R. Breyfogle had come to Peterborough in 1912 with an idea and a trust, and that the years had witnessed their abundant fulfillment, helping in the expansion of the city and providing of the substance for new homes here, and meanwhile yielding toll to those years and all that effort and major work of his manhood. W. R. Breyfogle had become one of the builders of Peterborough during that long span since 1912.

Mayor Hamilton and members of the city council and of other municipal bodies attended the funeral service at the family home, 593 Weller street, with representatives of industry and business, the professions and other sections of the city's life.

Deep Faith

Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe of Murray Street Baptist Church of which the late Mr. Breyfogle was a valued member from his first coming to this city, made special reference during the service to the deep religious faith and conviction "of our departed brother" as reflected in pastoral associations and also in some volumes of verse, written by Mr. Breyfogle, but not generally known to his friends. Mr. Breyfogle was a man of natural simplicity and of a personal dignity and an integrity that greatly influenced his living and his principles of life. "Plain living and high thinking," Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe quoted from Wordsworth as applying in summary to the dominant notes and aspects of Mr. Breyfogle's character.

Speaking of the certainty expressed in the fourteenth chapter of the Gospel of St. John, "Let not your heart be troubled...." Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe accented the positiveness of the words—"...if it were not so I would have told you." Jesus knew whereof He spoke and was the possessor of an infinite confidence. Others might speculate and doubt and question but Jesus used the simple and calm words "if it were not so I would have told you."

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe said that Mr. Breyfogle had an abiding confidence in the reality of the unseen world. "He, too, knew, and was guided by a great faith. If you had had the privilege of knowing our late brother as I had, and of reading his poems which were the expression of his spirit and ideals, you would have known whereof I speak. The life beyond this world was not a matter of speculation with him."

Own Poems

Quoting three stanzas from a meditative poem sensing the tangible things of this world, the soft grass under foot, the cold shade, breezes and sweet smell one of them was a declaration of faith as composed by the late Mr. Breyfogle, Mr. Sutcliffe said:

"And then I wonder as I gaze,
Into the heavenly blue,
Why any one should have a doubt
That there is rest there, too."

"And he knew men's foibles but realized that they were usually not the true and inner man, as in these verses:

'Stand not too close to the picture
Or but a daub 'twill seem;
The light and shadow will be lost
And so will the artist's dream.

Then, look from a true perspective
On the lives of fallible men,
Let not the shade their graces fade,
Nor dim their lives again.'

Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe also recalled fidelity of Mr. Breyfogle as a churchman and his place in Masonry and of deeps of personality which only closer associates knew. He concluded by reciting one of Mr. Breyfogle's poems entitled "Tryst," revealing a faith and tenderness that offered a pleasant note of parting with a great departed soul:

"When the skyland call, my dear,
Then His spirit will attend,
Through those reaches fair and clear,
For this world is not the end.

As we no longer impulse leaps
Weary grown from task and chore
Like the strength from billowed deeps
Breaking spent upon the shore.

So we wait our great rebirth
And a service—none the less,
When unleashed from things of earth
We rejoin our happiness.

When the skyland calls my dear,
If you are, and I'm not here—
I shall meet you on the strand
In our Hope and Glory Land."

The pall-bearers were business associates of Mr. Breyfogle, men who had helped him in the upbuilding of the De Laval industry and its farspread reputation as a great manufactury, as follows: C. L. Upper, general manager in succession to the late Mr. Breyfogle; George A. Macdonald, G. Douglas Carlisle, G. H. Cutmore, William S. Derry, and E. J. Ruiter.

Among those present at the funeral were Arthur Breyfogle, brother, of Detroit, accompanied by his wife, and G. S. Stoddard, New York city, vice-president of the De Laval Separator Company. E. Bruce Fowler represented D. G. McIlwraith, Supreme Commander of Scottish Rite 33rd degree.

War—4 Years Ago

(By The Canadian Press)

JULY 22, 1940.—Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax answered Hitler's peace offer with declaration that Britain "will not stop fighting until freedom for ourselves and others is secure." Maj.-Gen. H. D. Crerar appointed chief of Canadian general staff.

JULY 23, 1940.—Britain recognized new government of "Free Czech-Slovaks" headed by Edouard Benes; German bombers ranged from England to Scotland; U.S. Senate gave approval to compulsory training of 42,000,000 men.

Personal Gifts Aid Victims Of Robot Bombs

In this safe part of the earth's compass, it would perhaps be quite difficult to visualize just what it must be to live in hourly peril of the latest type of destruction being hurled from Europe at the civilian population of south and southeast Britain, which also encompasses the great city of London with its teeming millions of population.

A young R.C.A.F. corporal recently returned to this country, who had lived under this type of warfare, says: "They are just like a motorcycle tearing down the street at top speed," and went on further to say: "They're the darndest things—you never know just where they're going to land, because some cut out before and others keep on roaring until they explode." He told of how the nearest bomb to him killed 59 in a truck, and wounded more than 100 in a nearby building.

Some of this was sensed in the latest cable received by His Worship Mayor Hamilton from the Lord Mayor of London; and then it was felt that a special appeal should be made for those who could well afford to do so, to come forward and help these unfortunate victims of such a devilish type of warfare in a personal way, for there are large numbers of such who hardly ever find opportunity to give a hand in the many co-operative efforts that from time to time have been held on behalf of the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund which operates on their behalf.

A fortunate foresight on the part of the authorities in Britain had prepared large accomodation deep underground for people to take a safer place of night abode, but these bombs have been coming over in large numbers during the daylight hours, and no matter how safe they might be in person, their homes have been smashed, which in many instances will mean the loss of everything their owners possessed.

Already some 170,000 women and children have been evacuated to safe regions, so there would appear every justification for his wroship the mayor in making this special appeal at this time, particularly when the loyal residents of this city and district have heretofore taken a foremost position in giving assistance for the same cause for over three and a half years immediately past.

Today the fund acknowledges another entire list of personal gifts, the third of such to appear in less than two weeks' time, which could very well go on and extend itself in quite a considerable manner while the need exists, if others could but catch the vision of their tremendous power for doing some good in this manner, as those who have already assisted have given every practical evidence of so doing.

The fund management would once again stress the fact that the smallest of donations are most welcome indeed, individual receipts being issued for any amount whatever, and they may be acknowledged in precisely the manner in which any donor expresses his or her preferance. It is hoped to report further lists of personal gifts in the very near future, so why not plan now to have yours included at that time.

Vacation Club's Program Ends

The Y.M.C.A. Vacation Club completed its two-week program yesterday afternoon with a games period in the gym followed by a swim. The morning was spent at the filtration plant and the zoo, the boys leaving and returning from and to the "Y" by bus.

The visits to the different plants of the city were highly interesting and educational, including the Canadian General Electric Company, Quaker Oats and CHEX. Alex Kay gave the club some valuable information on the bird observation hike. Two speakers addresesd the boys at the assembly period, Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe and Major Wood of the Salvation Army.

C. D. Munro kept things running smoothly for all concerned and the high percentage of attendance was evidence of the keen and sustained interest of the 126 boys who enrolled. Miss Patricia Martin served as painist each morning and the director was assisted by Don Lech, Tom Rush, Ronn Knapp and Len Moore. Swimming Champion Bill Lech gave a demonstration of his powerful breast stroke Thursday afternoon and also assisted with the games in the gym yesterday. The 1944 vacation club goes into the record as one of the best of the seven years since this very welcome program was started by the Y.M.C.A.

German Ace Missing

LONDON, July 22 — (CP). — The German radio said last night that Capt. Heinz Weber, German air ace credited with 136 kills, was missing. He was fifth Luftwaffe ace admitted lost by the Germans within the past two weeks.

DESTRUCTIVE RODENTS
It is estimated that rats destroy as much food every year as 200,000 farmers can produce.

Neighbors Unite To Gather Harvest Yield

With neighbours, friends and relatives helping out as much as possible, market-gardeners and farmers in the Peterborough district have adopted a "we'll get by" attitude—and so far, are doing very well by it.

There has been no large migration of high school students to the farms, but most farmers feel that a doubling up on jobs, plus aid by friends plus an extra long working day will look after the main portion of their crops.

"No, there haven't been any high school boys out to help us yet" said Mrs. H. Tripp, R.R. 1, Douro, "but with neighbours helping we should be able to manage. After we help a neighbour with his haying, he comes over and helps us get our hay in," she explained.

"Sure, we need lots of help, but we just can't get it, so we'll work it out ourselves," she said.

Do Good Job

Mrs. E. Palmer, Bridgenorth, thinks boys from the city do very well considering their inexperience with farm work, and she said it just takes a little patience at first, but after, the boy usually turns into a valuable worker.

"There's lots of work, and no one to do it", she said. "We've had a boy from the city for about three months, but he's leaving soon, and I think he did very well under the circumstances", she added.

"Well, there's just my husband and myself to work the farm", said Mrs. R. Mundell, R.R. 3, Peterborough, "so I guess we'll have to rely a little on the help we've been getting from neighbours".

"I don't know about any scarcity of eggs", she added, "but our hens are just beginning to lay, and we'll have plenty before long".

Doesn't Like Students

One farmer's wife said there was enough work on her farm to keep a person busy from 5 in the morning until 10 at night, and said she'd rather do the work herself than have high school students come out and do it for her.

"Although they can become good workers if they want, too many of them take a half-baked attitude to farming, and usually you have to go over any jobs they do if you want them done right," she said.

"Some people may get a chance to have fun during the summer, but it's so long since I've seen a chair on the verandah to sit down and rest, I've forgotten what they look like," she said.

She has one son in the armed forces, and misses the help he gave on the farm, she said. This farmer's wife lives in Millbrook.

"We'll get by", said Mrs. E. Morton, R.R. 1, Fraserville, "and although help is scarce, the way friends and neighbours are co-operating will see us through."

ROWE—In fond and loving memory of a dear brother Royden Rowe, who passed away 2 years ago today.

Quickly and suddenly came the call,
His sudden death surprised us all,
Dearer to memory than words can tell,
The loss of a brother who was loved so well.

—Brother, C.S.M. James E. Rowe of Ottawa.

ROWE — In loving memory of our dear husband an father Royden Rowe who passed away two years ago July 22, 1942.

He is gone but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In my lonely hours of thinking,
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness will come o'er me
Friends may think the wound is healed,
But they little know the sorrow.
That lies within the heart concealed.
Just when your life was brightest,
Just when your years was best.
You were called from this world of sorrow
To a home of eternal rest.

—Ever remembered by his loving wife and family.

DWYER—In loving memory of Norman Dwyer, who was killed in Sicily July 22, 1943.

Of the loss of one we loved so well.
And while he sleeps a peaceful sleep
His memory we shall always keep.

—Ever remembered by sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Masters.

CARD OF THANKS

Mining Features

Leitch Gold Mines reports production for the June quarter totalled $159,836, compared with $195,039 in the preceding three months and $233,273 in the June quarter last year.

Granby Consolidated Mining and Smelting had a net profit of $24,501, equal to 5 cents per share, in the quarter ending with June 30. In the same 1943 period, net was $36,325, or 8 cents per share.

May production at Negus Mines, Yellowknife district, amounted to $80,030. This compares with $75,537 produced in May, last year and with $102,457 in April, the best month on record for the mine.

O'Brien Gold Mines produced $237,933 in the second quarter of this year, compared with $228,030 in the like period of last year.

Profit Is Lower

Matachewan Consolidated Mines for the three months to June 30 reports production of $129,522 or $2.77 a ton from 46,806 tons treated and profit of $17,274. No tax provision was set up as it was deemed probable special write-off arrangements would render tax liability negligible. In the June quarter last year the company produced $183,144, or $2.98 a ton, from 61,365 tons milled and profit was $39,732.

Preston Profit Up

Reflecting the seasonal decline in number of men available, mill tonnage at Preston East Dome Mines in the June quarter dipped to just above 700 tons daily from 742 tons in the first 1944 quarter. Higher grade of ore treated resulted in a small increase in bullion recovery and operating profit.

Cash Position Better

Annual financial statement of McMarmac Red Lake Gold Mine for the fiscal year ending April 30, 1944, will show a net operating profit, before writeoffs, of $44,548, equal to approximately 2.2 cents per share, and will reveal the new current position to have improved to $186,000 from $152,000 the year before, an increase of approximately $34,000.

MEDICAL AID AT SEA—Among the many duties which befall the coast guard craft on convoy work is that of supplying medical aid to seamen aboard the merchant vessels whenever needed. The above series of photos were made by a coast guard photographer as a destroyer escort, one of the protecting vessels, answered a call for medical aid by one of the ships. Top: Chief Gunner's Mate George E. Drew of Seattle, Wash., shoots a light line to the merchant ship by means of a lysle gun. This line will be used to draw heavier lines to bridge the gap between the two vessels. Centre: James E. Todd of the U.S. public health service crosses the turbulent sea between the ships by means of a travelling block rigged to a heavy line. Bottom: the ill seaman is drawn to the destroyer escort in a litter after his illness was diagnosed as acute appendicitis.

First Donor At Clinic Opening Gives Blood While On Furlough

Navy men believe in keeping up the good work they've begun on a job. Frederick Marlow Banks, R.C.N.V.R., was the first donor at the Peterborough Red Cross Clinic when it opened in July, 1942. Wednesday morning when the clinic reopened after a shutdown, he was the first man to make a donation. The sailor is at present home on furlough.

For the past year clinics have been held Monday and Wednesday mornings and Friday evenings, the latter for soldiers and district donors. It has been announced that beginning next week a clinic will be held Thursday night instead of Friday night.

Townships Adopting School Area System

LINDSAY, July 22 — (ENS). — Following the urge of the Department of Education and the special efforts of the Hon. L. M. Frost, Provincial Treasurer, to have the rural municipalities adopt the school area system, Inspector Colin W. Lees of West Victoria, has announced that all but two townships in the inspectorate (Eldon and Ops) have adopted the idea.

Carden Township school area includes four sections, Dalton four sections, Laxton, Digby and Longford 5 sections, Fenelon 3 sections, Mariposa 3 sections. It is expected that a by-law outhorizing the system will be passed in Bexley, with two sections involved.

Inspector Lees said: "No schools are being closed, but the number of Boards and administrative bodies is being greatly reduced. (The Department is making increased grants to school areas and we hope to have the entire inspectorate in the school area system in 1944."

Photographing letters to diminish their weight for airmail is not new—it dates back to 1870 when letters were photographed to a small size on thin paper such as a pigeon could carry.

Reject Posts

Ottawa, July 22—(CP).

JUSTICE Minister St. Laurent said last night in the Commons that there were several vacancies in Canada's "high courts," and he hoped they soon would be filled.

Mr. St. Laurent said he had a long list of names of men recommended for the posts. However, three of the men recommended were approached and asked to accept appointment to the Supreme Court of Canada, and all three had declined to accept for personal reasons.

Other vacancies existed in the courts of British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Ontario and New Brunswick.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

WHEN ALL JOIN IN

IT IS AMAZING what can be accomplished on certain deals when all four players co-operate. That is, if one side is doing its best in the play and the other its worst. Contracts can get made then, or beaten, as the case may be, when it is next to impossible to figure out later on just how such a result could have come except by deliberate connivance. These cases testify further to the fact that hope should never be given up so long as there is a vestige of doubt about your defeat.

"No wonder he ran away," thought South as his partner hustled into the adjoining room after laying down that dummy. But he didn't say it out loud and tip off the opponents to the fact of how bleak his outlook seemed. Instead, he went to work and hoped for luck, which he got. And how!

The heart 4 was the lead. Taking it with the A, the declarer led the club 3. East played low and the singleton K won. The spade 2 was led, and the J won it. West returned the club Q, which was ruffed by the spade 7. The heart J was led to the Q, and the diamond Q finessed. On the heart K the diamond 6 was discarded, and East ruffed with the spade 6 for his side's second trick. His club A now was trumped by the spade 8 and the spade A scored, then the diamond A, and the diamond 2 was ruffed by the spade 9. The club J, now good, was taken, and the final trick given up to the spade Q, only the third trick for the defenders.

Thus was made a contract on which it seemed possible to lose three tricks in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs, a total of six. Even after seeing the defenders' hands, you would be inclined to say South would surely lose at least two in spades, one in diamonds and one in clubs, no matter what happened. North's hop into 4-Spades was really terrible, with only three cards in what was almost surely only a four card trump suit for South, and with nothing like enough strength in general, but it paid a profit, thanks to South's effort and rabbit's foot.

Your Week-End Lesson

If you are one of the defenders and win an early trick from the declarer, what is the very first thing you should do in your planning before your next lead?

Purge Of 1934 Child's Play To Nazis' 1944's

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
(Chief of The Associated Press Bureau in Berlin for 21 Years)

Adolf Hitler's days are numbered. His purge of 1944 is something from which he, his party and his army will never recover. The purge of 1934 was child's play compared with it.

This time the split goes through the entire nation. The alleged conspirators whose bomb barely missed Der Fuehrer are but symbols of what millions of Germans are hoping and praying for. Disarmed, disfranchised, terrorized, they looked to do something to end Hitler's tyranny.

Failed This Time

The conspirators chose the way of assassination. They failed this time. Hitler's will be guarded more closely than ever. Many officers have been purged and more will yet be purged. Hitler and Himmler always seize upon occasions of this kind to square accounts with everybody who ever dared cross their paths.

We shall probably never know whether Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck was guilty of conspiracy or not. For Hitler it was sufficient that this former chief of staff resigned in 1938 to protest Hitler's march into Austria and his rape of Czechoslovakia. I knew many of Beck's closest associates. There is no doubt but that he foresaw disaster from the very beginning of Hitler's war upon civilization and was never carried away by the blitz victories of 1939 and 1940. Nobody should be surprised to hear that Beck's successor, Col.-Gen. Halder, or that Field Marshals von Rundstedt, von Beck, List, or Cols.-Gen. von Falkenhausen or von Blaskowitz—I name but a few of them—have been "liquidated." When the Nazis get started on a blood purge, they wipe out everybody who's inconvenient at the moment.

Measure of Despair

This purge, however, is not a sign of strength. It is a sign of weakness, a measure of despair, an expression of hysteria.

In the immediate future there may be internal peace and quiet, at least on the surface.

If the civilian population decides to support the army in general revolt, the greatest bloodbath in history may result. For, Hitler's fanatics will shoot down friend and foe—anything to maintain power.

During the next hours and days, mass meetings of loyalty to the intuition corporal will be held throughout the Reich. Goebbels will tell the world the German nation is united in its love for the incomparable Fuehrer.

These meetings will mean absolutely nothing as far as measuring the real feelings of the people is concerned. Those who hate nazism most will probably shout loudest, to hide their real emotions and intentions.

That's one of the things that the attempt upon Hitler's life has shown: He has no way of knowing where his friends and where his foes are. The colonel who planted the bomb rendered lip service, as did others. He could not have been suspected even by the ubiquitous Gestapo, for he planted the bomb unnoticed. Hitler owes his escape only to the accident of being slightly late.

Hitler has always been an exceedingly suspicious person. This attempt is bound to have a shattering effect upon his already jarred nerves. The thought will haunt him that this or that man whom he trusted may be carrying a lethal weapon.

Rodney has had in its spectacular wartime service. Lt.-Commander A. J. Dent, R.N., is the raconteur while the keen listeners are Squadron Leader Wally McLeod, D.F.C. and Bar, of Regina, Canada's top-scoring fighter pilot on current operations, Extreme Left; Squadron Leader Harry Dowding, D.F.C., of Sarnia, Ont., and Flight-Lieutenant Dean Dover of Toronto, Extreme Right. Touring the floating fortress on a day off from their airfield in Normandy, the fliers later heard and saw these same three guns hurl shells into German-held French territory.

People Forget Importance Of Citizenship

Chaos, discontent, and sometimes even an absolute disregard of the fundamental prinicpies of citizenship exist among many people in this country at the present time, "it is a serious problem and getting more serious," Gordon K. Fraser, M.P., told a luncheon gathering of the Kiwanis Club Friday.

The speaker, who travelled from Ottawa for the occasion, gave a brief address emphasising the great responsibilities that citizenship carries with it, especially in the task of making the world a better world for all after the war and this war truly one that will end all wars. He laid stress on the necessity of helping others and of people setting an example of neighborliness.

A successful peace, Mr. Fraser declared, would be based on the Atlantic Charter, which was often supposed to be something new but which in actuality was the meaning of the Ten Commandments translated into modern phraseology.

More Pride Needed

"We should do more boosting for Canada," the speaker said. "We have here today the highest standard of living of any country in the world, not even excepting the United States. This we owe to the pioneers who built up Canada, each in their turn accomplishing something in laying the foundations of its factories and farms. We must be as good citizens as those pioneers, each of us unselfishly doing our share to accomplish something for the ultimate good of all."

Introduced by Gordon Miller, Mr. Fraser remarked on the attitude of soldiers overseas and their expectation of returning to a Canada with better opportunities for them than the country they had left. "The main question I am asked by servicemen is this: Will there be work for me near my home when I return?" He mentioned also that many persons in Ottawa had commented to him in recent weeks on the fine performance of Peterborough boys on France and the way they had gone ahead as spearhead forces even though suffering serious losses.

Japanese Base At Meiring Raided

KANDY, Ceylon, July 22—(CP)—British troops have raided the Japanese base at Meiring, 26 miles south of Ukhrul and an important link in the Japanese withdrawal system in the Indian frontier region, and have captured much equipment, headquarters announced today.

Monsoon rain restricted activities in the Tiddim and Palel sectors to the south.

No Domination Permit None Bracken Says

SASKATOON, July 22 (CP) — John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative Party Leader, Thursday night told a dinner meeting of Federal and Provincial party executives that no domination of the party had been attempted and none would the permitted.

"I did not leave the Premiership of Manitoba after more than 20 years to be dominated by the views of any group—unless those views had merit and would benefit all the people of this Dominion," he said. No newspaper had attempted to dominate and no newspaper would be permitted to dominate party activities.

In an intervew earlier, Mr. Bracken said Canada's Home Defence Army was composed of men conscripted for a "useless purpose" and that they now were being "bullied" into active service by government agents.

"The government's back-door method of conscription is proving extremely costly to the nation, degrading to the men affected and is unworthy of a self-respecting government.

"I have never criticized the Home Defence Army," he said, "but I have criticized the government which created it; the government which is taxing the people to maintain it—at a cost of $150,000,000 a year; and the government which is hiding behind the uniforms of recruiting officers to drive conscripted men into the active forces."

THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS A RUBBER TIRE!

● In these days of change in the rubber industry . . . from plantation rubber to synthetic . . . remember that rubber is just one part of a tire. Remember, too, that while rubber IS important it isn't ALL important . . . that with ANY kind of rubber, a tire's strength, safety and trouble-free performance STILL depend largely on the many materials in and under the tread. In turn, the skill with which these materials are used depends on the knowledge and experience of the maker.

We give you this information so that YOU, the user of tires, will know that the next Goodyears you buy won't be "completely different" . . . or "experimental". They'll possess the many qualities, in even greater measure, that have made Goodyear Tires first choice of Canadian motorists for 29 years in a row.

In addition, the new Goodyears will incorporate all the benefits of our experience in the field of synthetic rubbers—experience springing from a research program which saw development in 1927 of basic patents which led to Goodyear's construction of this continent's first all-synthetic rubber tire and first commercial synthetic rubber plant.

Today, Goodyear Synthetic Rubber patents have been contributed to the Government for the common good – but the experience gained in developing these patents and in continuing research is part of the "hidden value" in tires made by Goodyear.

Hitler Lost Trousers

Stockholm, July 24 (AP)

THE Berlin correspondent of the Stockholm Dagens Nyheter said yesterday "very concrete rumors" in Berlin were that a German "teller mine" placed under a map desk in Hitler's headquarters caused the explosion that slightly injured the Fuehrer Thursday.

Another Swedish correspondent telephoned that the explosion blew off Hitler's trousers as well as those of the whole party of 14 standing around the map table. Hitler, said the correspondent, changed his uniform, and when Mussolini arrived a short time later for a conference he held up the ragged pants to show the Duce what had happened.

Russian Army Drawing Near Warsaw

Germans In Flight Through Poland 23 Generals Captured

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 24 — (AP). — The German army fled in disorder through Central Poland to-day as the Russians advanced within 70 miles—the German radio said 50 miles — of Warsaw and fought through the streets of Lublin only 25 miles from the Wisla (Vistula) River line Hitler must hold to stave off a direct assault on the Reich.

In Stalin's juggernaut offensive entering its second month with increasing momentum, the Red Army has captured 23 German generals and knocked out possibly 50 of the Germans' 250 divisions in the east —perhaps 500,000 or more men.

The battle of Poland, already assuming castrophe consequences for Hitler's eastern front, was shaping into a struggle in the near future for Prussia itself.

Move in Baltic.

The Red Army moved deeply into the Baltic Republics and in the south struck close to the Carpathian defences of Hungary and Czechoslovakia, but it was over the wide, rolling Polish plains that Stalin's war of movement hourly gained new decisions.

Brest Litovsk was by-passed in a pocket 40 miles deep. Soviet troops mounted a frontal attack which battered into that Bug River city's suburbs.

Red Army columns spearing from rail lines north-east and south-east advanced as close as 20 miles from Siedlicet, 50 miles east of Warsaw.

Seventy miles to the south, despairing and trapped Germans were being driven street by street from Lublin.

The German radio asserted today that Russian troops had advanced within 50 miles of Warsaw and had broken into Lwow and Lublin, great Polish rail centres.

Marshal Rokossovsky's vanguard of cavalry and tanks was within 25 miles of the Upper Wisla (Vistula) River on a steadily widening front. Red Army engineers rushed bridging materials and prepared to span this river line as swiftly as the Bug was crossed last week. On the Wisla (Vistula) defence zone is turned, the way would be opened to outflank Warsaw from the south

Grave Signs Of Weakness, Earlier End Of War Is Hinted By Churchill

Prime Minister Churchill Returns To Britain After Tour Of Normandy Fighting Front; Gestapo Has Spread Purge To Battle Lines

By JAMES F. KING—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 24—(AP).—Two German generals, one chief of the air force general staff, have died of injuries from the Thursday bomb-blast aimed at Hitler's life, Berlin radio announced today. Gestapo squads meanwhile were reported carrying forward a vast blood purge to quell what Prime Minister Winston Churchill termed a revolution in Germany.

Berlin listed the dead officers as Col.-Gen. Guenther Korten, chief of the German air force general staff, and Maj.-Gen. Heinz Brandt, first officer in the army general staff's operative section. This brought to three the announced death toll of the explosion. The Nazis already had announced the death of "the Fuehrer's collaborator" and double, whose name first was given as "Berger" but was reported today as Heinrich Bergner.

Another Berlin broadcast declared the "Hitler salute" had been introduced in place of the army salute in the German armed forces—apparently as another step to assure loyalty of the troops to Hitler and Nazidom.

Won First Battle.

On the German frontier the Associated Press learned from reliable but secret channels that the Himmler purge has barely touched the rebel leaders and organizers of resistance to Hitler, even though the Nazis apparently had won their first major battle with well-organized internal opposition.

Superficially, Germany today was quiet with SS and Nazi-officered units in apparently uncontested control, but the leadership of the internal opposition to the Nazis, except for a very few gaps created by the blood purge, has remained intact, the frontier account said.

These secret sources declared the only member of the "high committee opposition" caught was Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, taken by accident after he had been warned of impending arrest, and that Himmler "doesn't even know who the members of the committee are."

"The committee and resistance organization has existed in Germany more than half a year," this information sid. "Members include not only the Military but also representatives of the German Evangelistic and Catholic Churches. The attempt at Hitler's life was designed not to overthrow the Nazis, for the opposition organization was well aware that it would take more than liquidation of the Fuehrer to oust the Nazis, but was designed to show the people of Germany that it is possible to act against Hitler despite the SS and Gestapo."

Reports from France pictured Adolf Hitler's purge of rebellious army officers as having spread to the fighting fronts in Germany, France and possibly Italy. These

Beurling Quits RCAF To Take Civil Air Post

OTTAWA, July 24—(CP)—Flt. Lt. George (Buzz) Beurling, Canada's leading air ace from Verdun, Que., will be a civilian and a war veteran at 22 in three weeks.

That's how long it will take to complete the formalities launched Saturday when the R.C.A.F. announced approval of the Maltese Falcon's request that he be permitted to resign his commission "to facilitate his rehabilitation in civil life." There was no immediate statement from Buzz himself on his future, but the official air force statement indicated a civil-aviation post was in prospect. It spoke of his rebailitation to civil life, his desire to obtain permanent employment, and said certain opportunities for civilian employment had been made available to him.

Dislikes Instructional Work

However, there was a report from Montreal that Buzz was considering offering his services to the Chinese Air Force. It is known he didn't like instructional work in Canada. He has emphatically told a Canadian Press reporter on many occasions that he did not relish the idea of some day piloting a commercial transport on peaceful air routes and he described this as "truck driving."

Allied Prisoners Murdered In France

TORONTO, July 24. — (CP). — Rfmn. Fred Cooke of Renfrew, Ont., a repatriated D-Day casualty, to-day declared many soldiers had told him "they had evidence that Allied prisoners had been murdered in cold blood behind the lines by the Germans."

Cooke lost a foot when he stepped on an anti-personnel bomb a mile inland three hours after he had landed on French soil. Brought to Canada on the hospital ship Lady Nelson, Cooke was one of a group of six officers and 93 men who arrived here to-day.

Included in the group were several wounded whose injuries were caused by Nazi robot bombs.

Allies Mass for New Drives

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 24—(CP).—The Allies were massing their forces today for new drives to push beyond the Normandy beachhead and only two minor engagements were reported all along the 100-mile front following earlier small gains by British and Canadian units. Eight miles east of Caen British Tommies pushed into the western edge of Troarn, ran into stiff resistance and fell back to the railway station just west of this gateway to the great port of Le Havre. South of Maltot, five miles southwest of Caen, artillery successfully engaged German tanks and armored troop carriers, a headquarters spokesman said, adding there was nothing more to report.

Earlier, British troops in sharp local engagements took important ground west of the newly-retrieved town of Maltot, and captured a wood 500 yards south of Canadian-held Etavaux, a mile to the east.

The Germans resisted stiffly and launched a counter-attack with tanks. At last report fighting was continuing in the area.

With the mop-up of Maltot and Etavaux, the British and Canadian troops tightened their hold on both sides of the Orne River south of Caen.

Taken From Germans.

Emieville, five miles east of Caen was wrested from the Germans yesterday. The Nazis had been directing heavy fire from this town against Allied tanks thrusting down the road toward Paris.

The salient which Lt.-Gen. Bradley's forces drove across the Little Seves River toward the German stronghold of Periers last Saturday was shoved back to the north bank

New Gains Are Registered Along Entire Italian Front

By EDWARD KENNEDY—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, July 24—(AP).—Allied 5th Army units held the southern district of historic Pisa today while other forces wiped out virtually all enemy positions on the southern banks of the Arno River from the sea to near Empoli, and additional columns pushed north from Poggibonsi to within 12 miles of Florence.

In the Upper Arno valley the British 8th Army made new gains north of the river, clearing Terranuova of the enemy and reaching a point almost as far as Mount Marchiano. Advances were slight in the Arezzo sector.

British troops advanced three miles in the Upper Tiber valley after the capture of Cittadi Castello by Indian troops.

The enemy still was holding out in the mountain fastness east of the Tiber valley where the German commander has threatened to turn the monastery of Saint Ubaldo near Gubbio into another Cassino. The monastery contains a German garrison, and 300 women and children.

20 Miles From Florence.

Week-end operations established the 5th Army firmly along the Nazi Gothic line water barrier to a point less than 20 airline miles from Florence.

Advance elements crossed the Arno Canal and occupied Cascina, 10 miles east of Pisa.

Latest official reports said the Americans had not crossed the Arno at Pisa, but held that part of the city on the southern side.

They occupied also the towns of San Miniato, Ponte a Evala, San Romano and Angelica and cleared the entire wooded area of Tenuta del Tombolo on the west coast.

East of Pisa, where the river forms an inverted U, some enemy strongpoints remained. The Germans launched a determined counter-attack about two miles south of San Miniato, using a number of self-propelled guns, and there were numerous encounters along the south banks of the Arno in the 5th Army clean-up of most enemy positions south of the river along the length of its right and central sectors.

Hitler Is Winner In German Revolt

By CHARLES S. FOLTZ
Associated Press Staff Writer

MADRID, July 23.—(Delayed)—(AP).—The revolt of German Generals according to reports direct from Berlin, has given Adolf Hitler and Heinrich Himmler the opportunity to snatch what power German army leaders still held within the Reich. It also has enabled them to impose the last word in police terror rule upon Germany.

With the re-opening of telephone communications between Berlin and Madrid it was learned that the S.S., the Gestapo, Hitler youth and the whole Nazi home guard of gunmen now stand in the last-ditch position planned long ago against the day when the German military machine showed signs of a crack-up.

Hitler and the Nazis, in short, have won the latest dog-eat-dog battle of German militarists, who apparently know defeat is near.

Minister Asked To Probe Speech

OTTAWA, July 24 (CP) — The Quebec election campaign entered the Commons again today when Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, clashed with Justice Minister St. Laurent in connection with two political speeches.

After some verbal exchanges Mr. St. Laurent promised to read press accounts of a speech by Jacques Dumoulin, Liberal member of the Quebec Legislature, who was reported to have told a political rally on the Isle of Orleans that he had assured military exemption of farmers in his riding.

Dumoulin also was quoted as having said: "I have done everything possible in order that you may forget that there is a war on and that we have got mobilization."

Mr. St. Laurent said that in the meantime investigation was continuing in connection with a speech made by Jacques Sauriol, Montreal newspaperman, quoted as having told a Bloc Populaire rally that English soldiers were "the rottenist on earth" and that Canadians were forced to fight Britain's battles.

Toronto Man Is Drowned In Stoney Lake

When the small outboard motor boat in which he was a passenger swamped in a heavy sea on Stoney Lake Saturday afternoon, John Jessup, 70, of 16 Kilbarry Road, Toronto, was drowned and two other persons had a very narrow escape from sharing the same fate.

The two, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Beighton, Buffalo, N.Y., were saved when the overturned boat, buffeted by big waves for over three hours finally drifted into an island. Mrs. Beighton owes her life to the courage of her husband who repeatedy pulled her out of the water and placed her back on the top of the capsized craft.

All three were guests at Wantasa Inn, McCracken's Landing, where the Beightons have been summer visitors every year for over a score of years.

On Saturday morning the elderly Jessup accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Beighton on a fishing trip to the Upper Stoney Lake. The weather was calm when they started out but when it came time to return home a strong west wind was blowing, rolling the water of Stoney Lake into a heavy sea.

Wave Stops Engine

All went well until the party had passed Ship Island and headed out into the wider part of the lake which between Eaglemount and Boschink Narrows expands into a three-mile stretch of open water. The boat was bucking a head-wind and crashing into big rollers. One large wave broke over the craft and stalled the engine and another one soon after filled the boat with water and it swamped and rolled over, throwing the three occupants into the lake.

Beighton acted courageously and promptly. First swimming to his wife he managed to place her on top of the boat which was floating upside down. Then he grabbed Jessup and succeeded in getting him partly out of the water and hanging to the bottom of the launch. Finally he dived under the capsized boat and secured the anchor rope with which he proceeded to tie his wife and Jessup as securely as possible to the craft.

Usually at this season of the year there is considerable traffic past the scene of the accident but the heavy wind Saturday afternoon kept boats off the lake and the only one that did pass, some distance away, kept on its way. Apparently its occupants did not see the over-turned craft.

Bombers Drop 2,800 Tons On Kiel Base

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Julfy 24 — (AP) — A maximum of 500 United States heavy bombers attacked German airdromes, harbors and other objectives today in southern France, northern Italy and Yugoslavia.

A great fleet of R. A. F. and R.C.A.F. bombers cast 2,800 tons of explosives on the great naval base of Kiel before dawn and R. A. F. planes from Italy bombed the Romanian capital of Bucharest.

British heavy bombers attacked flying bomb installations in northern France for the third time in about a day's span. This was the only daylight operation reported from England up to late afternoon. Weather worsened over Normandy with only a few small breaks in the virtually complete overcast.

Airdromes were hit in the south of France.

Italian Port Bombed

The leading Italian port of Genoa, 85 miles up the west coast from the battlefront at Pisa, was struck. Four German troop concentrations in southern Yugoslavia were targets across the Adriatic from Italy.

Other objectives included tank repair shops and a ball bearing factory. A few enemy interceptors were encountered.

Churchill Views Robot Base

EQUEURDREVILLE, France, July 24.—(AP).— Prime Minister Churchill, mud-spattered from an inspection tour in Normandy, took time to look over the most elaborate German flying-bomb base thus far discovered in Allied-held territory.

He called for his chief military adviser, Gen. Sir Hastings Ismay, who came to listen in.

Lt.-Col. Frank Reed, an Oklahoman, said of 35 bombing positions found on the Cherbourg peninsula, this was the only one apparently intended by the Germans to be bomb-proof.

"This one pointing at the west country (of England)," Mr. Churchill remarked.

"In another year or six months they would have completed these things."

Col. Reed said the one they were inspecting was about 60 per cent. completed. He explained that one underground chamber was 250 feet long, that there were inter-connected caves with eight tunnel entrances, and that even a gas escape port had been built.

Gen. Ismay, chief of staff to Mr. Churchill in the latter's capacity as defence minister, described the installation as "utterly fantastic."

Movement Of Supplies Bogs Down In Germany

STOCKHOLM, July 24 — (AP). — The Germans acknowledged today that recruiting and supply for the war fronts had bogged down, and they blamed the "bureaucracy in the staff of the German home army," which Heinrich Himmler took over last week.

The Berlin correspondent of Tidningen cabled:

"One of the most important details in the current purge concerns conditions in the German home army, especially in the staff charged with recruiting and supply."

Action Jammed Sixty Minutes In French Village Of Fleury

By MAURICE DESJARDINS
Canadian Press War Correspondent

FLEURY SUR ORNE, Normandy, July 24—(CP Cable)—This is a factual report of what happened in a thrill-packed tour in this village on the mossy banks of the Orne River just south of Caen, though it sounds more like the mad dream of a Hollywood script writer.

Here's what could be seen and heard during these action-jammed 60 minutes on Saturday:

1. A British tank force attacking and recapturing the village of Maltot across the Orne to the west.

2. A Canadian infantry push in the rich wheat fields towards Verrieres to the southeast.

3. A cordon of our big guns just outside Fleury hammering enemy positions with ear-splitting ferocity.

4. German shells landing in the Orne River, forcing French refugees who were watching the tank show to scamper inside the deep quarries where they had lived since D-day, June 6.

5. A sergeant of the Royal Canadian Engineers helping two R.A.F. bomb removal experts disengage an unexploded mortar shell from a rubble pile.

6. A Canadian padre saying mass for soldiers and civilians in a dark grotto under the only brewery in the Calvados department of France.

Lift Shell From Debris

As we left Caen we saw Sgt. Robert J. King of Winnipeg help the two R.A.F. men in the dangerous job of lifting the unexploded mortar shell from the debris of a house.

We were hiding behind a big bulldozer 50 yards back during the performance. When they came back with the shell, an R.A.F. sergeant told us there was no need to worry as he had been doing this work for nearly four years.

King said he was helping the R.A.F. men because they helped him earlier in the day in his specialty, defusing German teller mines.

South of Fleury we found the relay post of a French-speaking battalion. As we talked to mud-caked infantrymen coming back from the front they pointed to the flat plains ahead, saying: "There's our battlefield and all hell's breaking. Our slit trenches are full of water and mortar shells are falling everywhere."

One didn't need binoculars to see two farms which our battalions recaptured and were defending successfully against severe armored onslaughts. We left the observation posts when the conversation became

Military Might Surpasses

Infantry Remains Force That Has to Put Fight Over

By LLOYD STRATTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE ALLIED FORCES IN NORMANDY, July 24.—(AP). —The pattern of war in France follows much the outline of the First Great War, but the comparison ends there.

I saw nothing massed on the western front in 1918 that in magnitude and power equalled the concentration of military might that in this short time already is bulging the relatively small Normandy front. Whether in troops, equipment or rolling stock, the stupendous proportions were evident.

Despite the striking strength of armor, heavy guns and aircraft, however, the infantry has shown it still is the force that puts it over. In no other branch of fighting is the comparison between the two wars so distinctly the same.

The fury of the Air Force, whether in combat or employed as artillery, prostrates the enemy as completely as the prolonged barrages flattened him before.

The size, number and firing power of artillery batteries in many sectors resembles more the lay-out of machine gun emplacements in the other war.

The mechanized aspect of the Allied armies at no single front has been so impressively exhibited as here. Throughout the entire area not one animal was in Allied military service. Every man and woman was riding motor vehicles right up to forward positions.

Inspection of the two principally-defended beachheads on the coast quickly disclosed the navy punch—a punch that so heavily contributed to the success of the landings.

Viewing the fortress-like emplacements so strategically located, the elaborate system of communication trenches deeply imbedded, solid concrete pill boxes interspersed through miles of underground passages, there were many expressions of wonderment how the fortifications were silenced. There was nothing like this in the last war.

And more of all material is on the way. It seemed one could walk from ship to ship across the channel. Traffic is as dense as a Sunday motor car caravan in pre-war days.

Planes Save Yugoslav Babies

Hospital Ships Fly From Partisan Territory To Italy

By JOSEPH MORTON
Associated Press Staff Writer

AN ALLIED AIRPORT IN EASTERN ITALY, July 23.—(AP).—The hour hand on the lieutenant's watch had moved past midnight and was coming up on one o'clock when he saw the red light.

"Start rolling," he said.

From the shadows on the far side two ambulances moved out.

The red light grew larger. Soon, in a great cloud of dust, a troop carrier plane in war paint rolled down the runway of the airport.

The cabin door popped open, and a youthful American pilot announced:

"Sixty-nine passengers."

Somebody whistled — 30 would have been a full load.

The pilot spoke again.

"Sixty-six of them are babies, the rest are nurses."

There were babies on the seats, babies on the floor, babies in baskets, babies in arms.

The ambulance backed up to the plane and the young pilot carefully supervised the transfer of his cargo.

"They are the best passengers I have ever had," he said. "Once I got off the ground they all went to sleep, there wasn't a whisper after that."

The pickup had been a top secret "special" operation—one of a number carried out to assist Yugoslav Partisans orphaned by the bitter struggle in their homeland. The babies had been collected under the very noses of the Germans, and were taken to a hidden airport.

Then the American planes gathered them aboard and flew them to where they could be cared for properly.

Wounded Partisans also poured in by the planeload, but there were others, too. A small group, its secret mission completed, stepped out of the transports as calm and unruffled as if they had just come for tea. Behind them, somewhere deep in the Balkans another bridge lay in ruins or a train in smoking destruction.

By dawn all the planes had landed safely. From no man's land on the other side of the Adriatic, several hundred wounded Yugoslavs had been brought and at least 120 babies. The greatest mass air evacuation ever undertaken from Yugoslavia had been completed without a hitch.

Nazis Extend Purge To War Fronts

AT THE FRENCH FRONTIER, July 24.—(AP).—Reliable reports tonight said Adolf Hitler's purge has extended to the fighting fronts in Russia and France and at least eight eastern front commanders have been arrested or replaced. A number of divisional officers in France have been arrested or are in hiding.

Minor fights have occurred at Bordeaux, Limoges, Nimes and Naples, in France, between the elite SS and army men.

So far the SS has held the upper hand and most of the fights were fisticuffs.

While there has yet been no revolution or revolt of major proportions in the Reich, the following account from France, through trustworthy channels reveals the widespread extent of the army groups which wanted to kill Hitler.

Blaskowitz Missing

Gen. Johannes Blaskowitz of the Bordeaux sector ordered his troops to prepare for emergencies last Monday. The order was recalled Friday morning after announcement that the attempt to kill Hitler had failed. Blaskowitz has been absent from his headquarters since then, and is presumed to be under arrest.

One officer attached to the staff of Field Marshal Guenther von Kluge, directing operations in Normandy, said "this is only the beginning" when the Hitler attempt was announced. He has disappeared.

Heinrich Himmler has sent new liaison officers to headquarters of all Wehrmacht divisions and regiments in France, and presumably also to the eastern front. Arrests continue on the slightest suspicion.

Kesselring Executed

Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, commander in Italy; Field Marshal Fritz Erich von Mannstein; Gen. Baron Alexander von Falkenhausen, and Gen. von Fromm are among those Germans said to have been arrested and possibly executed.

Field Marshal Gen. Hugo Sperrle, Field Marshal Erhard Milch, general inspector of the air force; Field Marshal Siegmund Wilhelm List, and Field Marshal Maximilian von Weichs are among those whose fate is not definitely known.

Two Berlin bankers reportedly were among those purged.

Bordeau reports said two German military couriers were caught by SS men en route to Spain, presumably on a contact mission for the anti-Hitler clique.

Bombers Drop

Five Forces Sent Out

Five separate bomber forces were sent out from Britain last night by the R.A.F., the largest, from the R.C.A.F. group, raining destruction at the rate of 150 tons of bombs a minute. Other heavyweights bombed two large oil storage depots at Donges, near St. Nazaire, in an effort to reduce further the enemy's dwindling fuel supplies, and another force hit German flying bomb sites in Northern France.

At the same time squadrons of R.A.F. Mosquitos attacked Berlin with 4,000-pound block-busters for the 13th time since D-day and formations of these speedy, all-purpose planes also provided overnight support for Allied ground forces in Normandy by pounding enemy troop movements ni the Rouen and Amiens district.

CARRICONNA

Main showings have been opened up over lengths and widths unusually important for even the flourishing Red Lake camp. General conditions have been found typical of those in which the district's gold producers find their big ore bodies. Mineralization occurs widespread in characteristic ore-bearing zones and discovery of spectacular free gold gives promise of high-grade values at depth. Engineers and mining men familiar with Red Lake conditions have been greatly impressed by results achieved so far.

Jessup had not been in good health for some time and eventually after hanging on for some time he lost his hold on the boat and slipped out of the rope and into the water. He sank immediately before Beighton could reach him again.

The other two mantained their precarious hold with difficulty as heavy seas broke over them and the minutes passed with no sign of rescue. Nobody in any of the cottages commanding a view of that section of the lake noticed their plight.

Saved Five Times

Mrs. Beighton gradually weakened. Five times she had to let go her hold and slip into the water and five times her husband managed to place her back on the boat. Finally after the two had clung to the capsized craft for over three hours while it drifted in a south-easterly direction toward the Dummer shore the boat was carried to Moore's island near the mouth of Gilchrist Bay and the man and woman, by that time more dead than alive, were rescued.

They had taken in a quantity of water and were prostrate from shock and the effect of their long immersion. The two were put to bed in the Moore cottage and a boat was rushed to the summar cottage of Dr. A. Moir, several miles east. Dr. Moir applied restorative remedies and on Sunday the Beightons were able to return to Wantasa Inn, although Mrs. Beighton had to be brought there in a stretcher and was still in bad shape.

Mr. Beighton's watch had stopped at ten minutes to 2 o'clock, indicating that that was the time of the accident and it was a few minutes afer 5:00 Saturday that the drifting boat finally reached land.

Provincial Constable Price Morris was notified and went to McCracken's Landing Saturday night to investigate. Early Sunday morning a search for the body of the drowned man was started and it was kept up all day without success. It was difficult to locate the exact spot at which Jessup had gone down and the water is deep over a large part of the area where the dragging was done.

John Jessup had been manager of the casualty department of Edwards and Angas, adjusters, Toronto, for the past five years. He was formerly manager of the Union of Canton Insurance Company, Toronto, and at one time manager of the casualty department of the Royal Exchange, Montreal.

Mr. Jessup's wife died only two months ago. Surviving are a son, J. Arthur Jessup with the Tank Corps, overseas, and a daughter, Muriel Jessup, Toronto.

The search for the body Sunday was carried on under the direction of Provincial Constable Price Morris and Joseph Asteis of the fire department. To-day dragging operations are being continued in charge of Provincial Constable Archie Grayling of Havelock. Many visitors at the lake are assisting.

Minister Asked

came up when Prime Minister Mackenzie King answered a question by Mr. Graydon on the subject of a speech June 21 in the Upper House by Senator T. D. Bouchard (L-Quebec). The Senator had said the Order of Jacques Cartier in Quebec was working toward the setting up of a separate Catholic State.

Soon after he made this statement Senator Bouchard was dismissed from his $18,000-a-year post as chairman of the Quebec Hydro Electric Commission—a provincial government appointment. Mr. Graydon had protested the action against the Senator as an infringement on the right of free speech.

Mr. King said that Mr. Graydon seemed to forget that the remarks to which he referred were made by an official of a provincial government which had responsibility for its officials.

"It has taken that responsibility and is exercising it in its full rights and this House of Parliament should be the last to seek to invade the jurisdiction of a province by criticizing the action of a government in dealing with its own officials."

Mr. Graydon said the provincial government was interfering with the right of freedom of speech.

Mr. King asked: "Is my honorable friend laying down the doctrine that a member of parliament can exercise freedom of speech to the extent of making any statement he plases in regard to any situation or any relationship and thereby be exempt from other sources than his own parliament in reference to the consequences?"

Mr. Graydon: "He ought to be free to speak his mind."

Mr. King: "He did."

Mr. Graydon: "He should be able to do it without penalties— that is the point."

Dumoulin Speech

A brisk exchange developed when Mr. Graydon asked Mr. St. Laurent whether he had any report to make on the progress that had been made in the investigation of statements alleged to have been uttered by Mr. Dumoulin.

Mr. St. Laurent replied that he was not having investigation made "nor have I ever stated that I was going to."

Mr. Graydon said this was not the proper answer as he said that he recalled the justice minister had made an undertaking to investigate.

Pensions Minister Mackenzie interjected: "Why don't you fight the Quebec election down there?"

Mr. Graydon retorted: "May I say to the official interrupter (a name he has called Mr. Mackenzie on other occasions) that I have no objection..."

Mr. Mackenzie interjected before he was finished with: "Get some Tories down there."

Mr. Graydon replied: "I realize that the honorable gentleman is attempting to move closer to the clerk's seat all the time, but that will not help him very much."

(It was reported several months ago that Mr. Mackenzie might resign his parliamentary seat to become clerk of the House of Commons when Dr. Arthur Beauchesne retires.)

98 Of Mass Wedding Couples Observe Fifth Anniversary

MONTREAL, July 24.—Five years to the day since they were married in a unique mass ceremony in Montreal's baseball stadium, 98 established man-and-wife teams attended a solemn Pontifical High Mass celebrated on the lofty steps of St. Joseph's Oratory here Sunday. Although some of the husbands provided corsages as wooden anniversary presents, the couples looked pretty much like any five-years-marrieds going off to church together. Not much different, in fact, from the thousands who crowded the sunny terraces to watch the service.

The celebration also marked the fifth anniversary of the Ligue Ouvriere Catholique, adult division of Jeunesse Ouvriere Catholique, and a fair cross-Canada representation of the L.O.C.'s 15,000 membership was on hand to parade up to the altar, led by divisional flags.

Four Deaths in Group

Of the original 105 couples, four have been parted by the death of two wives and two husbands. In the other families, who represent about 60 trades, and who live all over the province, there are 204 babies—including one set of twins. And, talking to the happy families, you find that the children are just about the most important thing in their lives.

Take tanned, blue-eyed AC.1 Paul Chayer, for instance. Now in training to be an air gunner (one of four of the husbands serving in the armed forces in Canada, England and Italy), his first move on leave is to make a bee-line for his two winsome gurgling young daughters. And they accordingly make a bee-line for him—shy little Monique to sit on his knee; 2-year-old Susie to be hoisted in the air, balancing like an accomplished acrobat by one fat knee on her father's brawny arm.

Like many of the couples, the Chayers live in the same apartment they took when they were married, with parents only a few blocks away recipients of frequent family visits. Their flat, five rooms, is on the second floor, reached by an outside staircase. So they won't have to come down the inside staircase to open their front door, the Chayers have rigged up a string attachment which opens the lock from the top of the stairs at 4592 Messier street.

Keep Records For Group

Inside the flat, a visitor is likely to find them working in off-time on L.O.C. records, for it is their duty to keep track of the progress of the 101 marriages—and their card file shows that they're on the job.

For a year and a half before his marriage and for four years after, Paul, now 28, drove freight trucks for a railway cartage service. His wife, pretty and dark, aged 27, worked in a factory before her marriage, and has two brothers in the armed forces—one in India, a pilot in the R.C.A.F. Their favorite off-duty entertainment is taking the children for a picnic in the park.

In a second floor apartment at 3965 Berri street live George Gince, 33, his gay little wife, who was a former section president of the L. O. C., and a domestic before her marriage, and his three daughters—Marie Andre, 3; Monique who will be 2 in September; and 6-months-old Therese, still in her carriage, but taking an interest in her father's teasing for all of that. M. Gince, who was a bread salesman before he was married, now works with his father in the family grocery store.

Lucien LaFontaine works seven days a week unloading freight cars in the harbor, while his plump wife looks after three fair-haired sons—Andre, 1½; Jacques, 2½, and Yvon, 3½—and little girls from next door peer in their ground floor doorway window calling the boys to come outside into the street and play. They live at 1487 Lagauchetiere avenue, where their apartment usually has at least one relation in visiting.

A foundry worker for the last 10 years, Henri Lapage met his diminutive wife on a blind date. When he's on night shift, the three children are tucked into their small white beds in an airy room long before he gets in—though brown-eyed, curly-haired and self-assured Raymonde, 4, says she often stays up till "dix hours." Bernard, 2½, is shy; Denise, 9 months old, doesn't speak English or French yet, but she still has a lot to say for herself.

Had Many Vocations

Other wives were before their marriage maids, dress-makers, or operators in trades; two were nurses; two were teachers. Their husbands, most of whom have the same job today as they did five years ago, are mechanics, grocers, butchers, chauffeurs, opticians, cleaners, launders, milkmen, streetcar motormen, sign painters, telegraph operators, barbers, insurance agents, restaurateurs, accountants, loggers. Ráoul Roland, a baker, repeated his triumph of five years ago, and made a cake four feet high and three and one-half feet wide for today's celebrations.

Marines Land On Tinian Island

PEARL HARBOR, July 24—(AP)—The day-old invasion of Tinian Island, moving smoothly from firm beachheads, rushed American conquest of the strategic Marianas today while other invading forces isolated key objectives on Guam, 130 miles southward.

Admiral Nimitz' communique last night said landings, begun at dawn Sunday, were being "continued against light opposition" on Tinian, three miles south of conquered Saipan. The invasion was made under protection of carrier and land-based planes, warship guns and land-based artillery.

American forces on Guam suffered 1,958 casualties in three day's fighting. They have isolated the island's best airdrome and finest harbor in closing their grip on Port Apra.

The Tinian assault, the third invasion in the Marianas, was launched four days after the Guam landings. The Tinian invaders were supported by planes based on Isley Field on Saipan, only four miles from the northern tip of Tinian.

The majority of defence installations around Tinian's beachheads had been neutralized by bombing and artillery fire across the 2½-mile channel separating the island from Saipan. The Tinian airfield also was disabled during the constant attack on the island since the Marianas campaign began June 10.

Fighting was expected to be stiffer as the invaders proceeded inland. Tinian is not as rugged and mountainous as Guam and Saipan, but it has several ablelands which should afford the Japanese excellent defence positions.

Nimitz also announced that Lt.-Gen. Holland M. Smith, V.S. Marine Corps has been promoted from commander of the 5th Amphibious Corps to Commanding General, Fleet Marine Forces of the Pacific, a new position. Presumably, this was a reward for his role in directing Saipan's conquest and an indication of imminent other operations.

Before the German counter-attack the Americans had pushed to within two miles of Periers.

Bulge Ironed Out.

Capture of Maltot, together with earlier Canadian capture of Etavaux, ironed out an enemy bulge in British-Canadian positions.

German attempts to dent the Canadian-held section of front from St. Andre Sur Orne to two miles to the east halted after three days of furious counter-attacks which cost the enemy an estimated 55 tanks, Louis V. Hunter, another Canadian Press war correspondent, said in a dispatch last night.

(The Germans reported British forces had renewed attacks north and west of Troarn where the Tommies were stalled 48 hours after the start of Gen. Montgomery's big drive just a eek ago.)

Weather Improves.

impossible due to our own artillery barrage.

We got away from the din by walking 500 yards to an underground grotto where Maj. M. J. Dalton of Windsor, Ont., was celebrating mass to the accompaniment of the frail voices of French children singing Latin hymns. Three carbide lamps provided lighting and you could hardly distinguish the altar from the entrance, near which a refuge was getting a haircut from a civilian barber.

In the narrow passageway leading to the underground we saw a tricolor flag which had been assembled the morning the Canadians took Fleury, from a blue gardener's apron, a woman's white slip and a red bandanna handkerchief.

We crossed the main road to reach the grassy banks of the Orne. To the far right we could see the still-beautiful skyline of Caen with the tall twin spires of Saint Etienne Cathedral defiantly dominating the ruins.

As we talked to the men of an anti-aircraft battery one pointed to the right of the church in Fuery. We saw two long clouds like a smokescreen arise and through field glasses we could see British tanks, firing as they advanced through the smoke rising from Maltot.

Enemy shells were bursting among the tanks but they kept going forward.

led at the Soviet genius in maintaining supply services for an army that has raced 320 miles in 31 days.

Field dispatches gave no indication that the Nazi high command had been able to halt, or even slow down, the rapid progress of the Russians, who announced advances from west of liberated Pskov, at the Estonian border to Galicia in the south. Fall of Pskov was announced by Premier Marshal Stalin yesterday in a special order of the day.

The greatest gain toward Warsaw was south-east of the city, where the Red Army captured Parczew, 87 miles from the Polish capital. This as expected to be the very core of the Nazi defence before the Wisla and Warsaw.

The manner in which the Germans were crumbling was illustrated best by official announcements of Russian accomplishments in the past 24 hours—more than 1,400 towns and villages captured, and gains registered of 30 miles and more along the entire front.

It appears that any front the Germans held in the Soviet Baltic Republics was lost after yesterday's great advances, and today the Nazis were reported hurrying for seaports in order to escape capture or death.

Churchill At Home.

Mr. Churchill, now back in Britain after a three-day tour of the Normandy front, gave the first official Allied word on the crisis in Germany. an end earlier than we have a right to say."

Declaring the Germans were not happy on the fighting fronts, Mr. Churchill remarked:

"And now, suddenly boiling up in their stomachs, has come a deadly quarrel at home. It is not a nice thing for a man to hear of a revolution going on in his own country when he is being attacked."

Of the attempt on Hitler's life, Churchill said with a grin:

"They missed the old bounder (rough approximation)—but there's time yet."

Berlin was silent on the countermeasures taken against the German officers whom Hitler said had planned to kill him. German uneasiness was underscored in these things which were left unsaid:

1. Not a single general on the eastern front, where the German armies have been reeling back toward their own borders, has come forward personally to pledge loyalty to the Fuehrer, although the Nazis claimed a blanket pledge.

2. With the exception of Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck, former German general staff chief, the names of the plotters—the "mad generals" described by Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering—still have not been announced.

3. Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels, the most effective and probably the shrewdest of all Nazi orators, has not appeared once on the radio nor has he been reported at any meetings with Hitler.

Associated Press War Correspondent.

CAEN, France, July 24 — AP).— Newly captured German prisoners, commenting on the attempted assassination of Hitler, said they long had known of a bitter quarrel between the Fuehrer and the German high command

"The generals want to get Hitler out and make a quick end of the war," said Cpl. Werner, 19, of Munster, a member of an Elite Nazi Division, who was captured near Cagny.

"Of course the whole thing may be a fake to whip up sympathy of the German people for Hitler. Many of our people are sick to death of the war, but when they hear the leader narrowly escaped death they say, 'What a terrible thing to attack our poor, dear Fuehrer.'"

Asked how he felt personally about Hitler, Werner stiffened his shoulders and a fanatical gleam entered his eyes.

"I put everything on him," he said. "Things look bad for us, but I still think the Fuehrer has some secret great weapon that will win the war for Germany."

Afraid of Gestapo.

He added that the German people were too afraid of the Gestapo to voice their feelings.

Commenting on the announcement that Heinrich Himmler had taken control of the home armies of Germany, the prisoner said "I've got to admit I don't think much of Himmler. He's a butcher. If anybody steps out of line, it's on the wall—they'll be shot."

Some of the prisoners have not heard the news, but they were eager to discuss it when I met them trudging back along the muddy road near th front to the prisoner-of-war cages.

"If Hitler were assassinated it would be a bad blow for Germany, butGoering could immediately take over,' said Karl Eighhsen, a lanky youth who once served as Hitler's bodyguard and fought on the Russian front.

He agreed that the assassination attempt might be the first sign of breaking up inside Germany, as happened at the end of the First Great War.

"But I think it is mostly a quarrel between the high officers and the politicians," he said. "High general staff officers are furious over the way the war is going. They believe they have been hindered and hamstrung by the politicians and they want to oust Hitler."

BROTHERS CARRY ON FIGHT — Although Pte. Eddie Dorrington, an ambulance driver, was injured in the fighting in Normandy, his three brothers are carrying on the fight against the enemy on land and on the sea. They are the sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dorrington, 52 Victoria avenue. C.P.P. "Bun" Dorrington (Left), R.C.N., while not in the invasion battle, is at sea guarding convoys and keeping the shipping lanes open. C.P.O. William Dorrington (Centre) was aboard H.M.C.S. Milltown, a corvette which led the way into France on D-Day. Sgt. "Chuck" Dorrington (Right), R.C.A., has been fighting along with the S.D. and G. Highlanders in France. He has unlimited praise for the way his men have conducted themselves in battle.

Three Dorrington Brothers In On Invasion Of France

By JEAN STENTON

As the tension mounted in the hours preceding D-Day, three brothers in different sections of the Allied armada went to their stations —each thinking of the others and saying a prayer that God might bring them through safely. One brother was on H.M.C.S. Milltown which led the way into France, the second took his artillerymen into action in the Canadian advance, and the third drove an ambulance caring for the wounded.

In the six weeks that have elapsed, none of the three have had any messages from one another and their fate is shrouded in silence. Two are still there handing out everything they've got against the enemy, but the third boy lies in an English base hospital, fighting hard so that he may walk again.

This is the story of the Dorrington brothers, William, Charlie and Eddie, sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dorrington, 52 Victoria avenue. It is typical of what all Canadian soldiers are doing and thinking in the bloody fight which is raging across the once peaceful fields of France, for the second time in thirty years.

While a hand-to-hand battle raged inside a partially demolished building June 8, Eddie Dorrington left his ambulance and crawled over to the wall, to see what was going on and if his services might be needed. As he climbed to the top of it, he heard a shell and jumped. When he regained consciousness several days later he was in an English hospital suffering from a head injury and a spine injury which had paralyzed his legs. The following is his story of the time between June 6 and July 10.

Prayers Help

"Mother how I would love to be home with you and Dad tonight. You will no doubt be having anxious days from now on, but with your never failing prayers for the safety of your sons, we'll come through O.K. There is not much point in telling you not to worry, because there is cause to worry. Jerry will throw all he's got at us. It will be a bitter fight from now on. I'm proud to say I am a good Canadian soldier and I will do my best. My first day in France has been terribly noisy. The racket and commotion wear you out.

"I haven't seen Charlie yet, but guess he's along. I would love to see him and only hope I don't meet him in this ambulance I drive. Give my love to Dad and tell him I wish I was a kid again, because I knew that when the going got tough he would see me through. I am driving an ambulance so you may know what I am up against. There are pitiful sights which nearly break your heart. Some of the young lads, who only 24 hours ago were jumping around camp without a care in the world except being lonesome, are gone."

A letter written early in July told of the progress he was making. He had been able to take two or three short walks, even though he found it difficult to maintain his balance. He, along with other patients, spends many hours out on the lawns of the hospital drinking in the sunshine, which he says the wounded call "Canadian sunshine."

A few days prior the invasion, Eddie Dorrington was transferred to the ambulance section with the Third Division and he wrote that nearly all the boys he went overseas with are now in France.

"I saw a lot of things happen that I will be glad to forget and you must forgive me if I don't tell you too much."

Loses Everything

War is no respector of belongings and this soldier lost everything he had, including his uniform in France. When the men left in the barges, they were issued with a chemically treated uniform, which they found unpleasant because of the odor. The loss of his uniform is not worrying him unduly, because he has grown so thin that it is several sizes too big for him.

"I was in hopes they'd send me back home, but I'm doubtful now. I am going to be sent back to base transport when I leave and I only hope they don't ask me to drive again as my nerves are shot. I hope when I get back to Canada my nerves won't bother me too much. I have no wounds, but apparently I injured my head when I jumped, because I still get crazy ideas once in a while, which they assure me will pass.

"The raids over here are very bad. You have no idea how the Germans are laying it into the people. The sirens seem to be blowing all the time lately and have for weeks. We get outside occasionally on fine afternoons and you can feel the ground shaking from explosions. Some nights the bombs fall around us just like hail stones.

No Relaxing Yet

"I suppose there are gullible people ready to believe that the Germans are beaten. I hope the people back home don't take the view that it is a mere matter of time now and lay down on the job. If you had seen the enormous amount of equipment and stuff that was sent across to Normandy you would understand how big an undertaking it really was to plan and make the second invasion of France a success. It would be a tragic mistake on the part of the Canadian people and Government to ease up now."

There has been a lot of discussion of plans for rehabilitating the returned soldiers, particularly those who are crippled and scarred for life. That is one of the biggest worries, according to this soldier, that the men have. He points out they may be given some thought now before the war ends, but what assurances have they, that they will not be looked upon as worn out humans, to be discarded when the tumult and the shouting dies.

Already, although the hospital staff have assured him he will walk again, this Peterborough boy is spending most of his time worrying about the fate in store for him, if he is invalided out of the army and returns home, nerves disorganized, crippled in mind and body. What will happen to him and to thousands of others, who must come back and take a place in the world, from which they feel they will always be apart and in which they are handicapped?

Soldiers Wonderful

Even in the midst of action, the men are taking time out to think about the future. Sgt. Charles Dorrington, attached to the Royal Canadian Artillery, has been fighting with the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders. He writes that he has met a few of the boys from home and that they talk a lot about "after the war." They all wonder what it will be like and are anxious to finish the job and return to their homes and families.

"Outside of needing some sleep, my health has never been better. I got your box and split it up with the boys, and we all had a good share. In the past two weeks I have seen things I will never forget. As far as I am concerned, I can't do enough for my men. I have the grandest bunch of boys in the world and since we invaded France, I have found out what they are made of. We had a little brush about a week ago and I lost four of my men and was darned lucky to get off so easy. Here's hoping our luck holds out.

"The Canadian is surely making a name for himself here. What fighters. They are neither scared of God, man or devil, and the Germans are the closest things to the devil I have ever met. They can think up some hellish contraptions, but they are taking one awful beating. Our Air Force rules the skies and how well the Germans know it. It is a great feeling to see Spitfires over your head and it really puts pep into us, to know that they are backing us up.

Tyrants Punished

"It is pitiful to see the people driven from their homes. What they have suffered, God alone knows, have been through, I am ashamed and when I see them and what they have been through, I am ashamed when I feel down. The Nazis are paying a terrific price for their wrongs and we are not through with them yet. I have seen lots of them—the big majority mere boys, 16, 17 and 18 years old. How anyone's mind could be so twisted I do not know. They certainly have faith in their little paper hanger. But we have more than faith and are slowly sticking them to the wall."

Sgt. Dorrington writes that it is hard to understand how the world could be so crazy. It makes a soldier wonder sometimes whether he is sane or not. He emphasizes that since the Canadians started their advance, they have really put fear into the Germans about taking on Canadian units.

Since the early part of the invasion, Mr. and Mrs. Dorrington have not heard from their son, C.P.O. William Dorrington of the corvette Milltown and they expect he is still doing a job, wherever they are needed most. A fourth son, "Bun" Dorrington is also at sea with the Royal Canadian Navy.

100 Newsmen From New York Visit Cobourg

COBOURG, July 24 (ENS) — Cobourg's two weekly papers, The Sentinel Star and The Cobourg World, were hosts on Saturday to about 100 members of the New York Press Association, a weekly papers group of New York State, when they visited here after coming over on car ferry Ontario No. 1. Local citizens donated the use of their cars which met the ferry when it docked in the afternoon, and after a tour of the town, the visitors were driven out to the Cobourg Golf Club were they were officially welcomed by Mayor Jack Burnet. Before embarking on the ferry they were taken through the local newspaper offices.

"We welcome you most heartily to Cobourg," declared Mayor Burnet. "Perhaps you might be interested in knowing that Cobourg is about the second oldest community in Ontario. You might also be interested in knowing that before you started getting your iron from Pennsylvania, it came from up around Madoc and went across the lake from Cobourg. However that trade fell off when your own iron deposits were developed. I might say that the barley for your beer used to come from over here and went across from Cobourg. Then you started to use your own barley and we lost that trade too.

"We have a relationship that has been most cordial for the past century and a half," continued the mayor. "We have stuck together through two wars, although we didn't stick together long enough after the last war. May we adhere very closely when this war is over, so that another one can never occur.

"We in Canada might regard ourselves as a child of both Great Britain and the United States and I like to think of Great Britain holding one of our hands and the United States holding the other, and we, the son, providing the common interest that links the two in perpetual friendship. I think we all can agree that Great Britain saved the world and the United States saved Great Britain," declared the mayor.

A. R. Alloway of Oshawa, president of the Mundy-Goodfellow Printing Co., owners of The Sentinel Star, informed the Press Association that Mr. Charters of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association and Mr. Hepgrave of the Class A. Weeklies, sent their regrets that they were unable to be present to join in the welcome to the New York Press Association. Frank Lapp, publisher of The Cobourg World and Tom Wilson, manager of the Sentinel Star, along with Judge J. C. M. German, also welcomed the visitors.

Read Clarke of Perry, N.Y., president of the New York Press Association and William J. Oertel, manager of the N.Y.P.A., expressed the thanks of the visitors for the reception tendered them in Cobourg.

About ten of the U.S. party missed the boat but Mayor Burnet recalled that car ferry Ontario No. 2 had an excursion from Oshawa to Port Dalhousie that day and it was arranged for the ten visitors to catch the boat at Oshawa for the return trip to Rochester. Before leaving they were guests of Mr. Alloway at dinner at the British.

SHAPING GERMAN SETTLEMENT—On the heels of the De Gaulle declaration in Washington concerning the French attitude on the western boundaries of Germany and the Polish statements concerning the eastern boundary, comes the proposal by Sumner Welles, former U.S. Secretary of State, in his book, "The Time for Decision," with a plan to divide Germany into three parts, as shown on the map. Gen. de Gaulle abjured any claim to annexation of land held by Germany in 1939 but wanted the Ruhr and Saar valleys under international authority. The Polish government seeks to annex East Prussia and probably have Danzig as a seaport. The Welles division of Germany would be, as shown above: (A) "A new state of South Germany" including the Rhineland, Bavaria and other nearby states; (B) a northwestern state made up of old German subdivisions; (C) a state made up of small political subdivisions to include Saxony and Prussia minus East Prussia (D), which would go to Poland.

Gunnery Devices Made In Canada

MONTREAL, July 24.—Highly specialized Royal Navy gunnery devices which were used by warships and auxiliary ships in the Normandy invasion and in sea service before that were made at the Angus shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company here on a million dollar contract whch ends late this month, it is now permissible to reveal. Other work for the navy still is proceeding in the munitions department of the huge east-end shops with the exact details being withheld by the censor.

The gunnery devices, on which the cloak of secrecy imposed for security reasons has now been lifted, are rangefinder directors, director control towers and range transmission units which are especially effective in sea fighting against ships and fast-moving planes. They cost from $4,300 to $48,500 each.

There manufacture in a shop regularly engaged in ordinary railroad repairs is a tribute to the organization headed by H. B. Bowen, chief of motive power and rolling stock, and to the versatility of the skilled craftsmen of Angus Shops who were able to meet the close tolerances and fine finish demanded by the Admiralty after special Canadian Pacific training.

The first naval fire control unit was turned out of Angus Shops in the darkest days of the Battle of the Atlantic at the same time as a contract was going forward there to make more than 1,400 Valentine tanks for the Russians. In the latter stages the gunnery devices have been completed while another section of the shops manufactures main marine engines and condensers for Royal Canadian Navy escort vessels, a contract which is continuing.

The entire naval fire control order was for $1,192,000 for 120 units with the last of them to be delivered before the first of August, it is revealed by Mr. Bowen in a report on this phase of Angus Shops' war effort.

Forming Polish Committee Draws Fire

LONDON, July 24 — CP). — Establishment of a Committee of National Liberation to take over civil administration in Russian-liberated areas of Poland under the Polish National Council was announced this week-end by the Moscow radio, and immediately it drew the fire of the Polish Government in London.

A spokesman for the London Government described the Liberation Committee as a "body of Left-wing radical intellectuals" and declared it would not receive the backing of the Polish people.

"They have no representative of the Polish masses among their number," the spokesman said.

Moscow said the Liberation Committee would be headed by Edward Osuska-Morawski as chairman and director for foreign affairs. Among the vice-chairmen as Wanda Wasilewska, President of the Union of Polish Patriots in Moscow, which has challenged the authority of the exile government in London.

The Moscow broadcast said the Polish National Council would take over the Union of Patriots and "also organization, cultural and welfare activities in the Polish colonies in the Soviet Union."

Greater Growth In Education

The death of William James Sidis has attracted a good deal of attention, although he passed most of his adult life quietly and died in obscurity. He was the son of an eminent psychiatrist, and he was the subject of his father's most interesting experiment. Young Sidis was scientifically crammed with learning from his infancy and for a time it looked as though he would be a mathematical genius; he produced a treatise on anatomy when he was 5, and a new table of logarithms when he was 8; he also had some very interesting ideas about the fourth Dimension when he was 11; he graduated from Harvard when he was 16, and then he suffered a nervous collapse, although this was not of an alarming nature. But he drifted into obscurity after that, working at minor clerical jobs, and producing nothing but a book on street-car transfers, which was witty and exhaustive, but not precisely what was expected of him. If anyone asked him why he had not pursued his mathematical career he would say: "It's strange, but you know I was born on April Fool's Day". Presumably Sidis did not choose to become a genius.

He rebelled against the false growth which his father imposed upon him, thereby asserting his right to live his life according to a pattern of his own choosing. But his history raises some questions about education which are interesting: do we expect enough of our children during their early years? Does our educational system tend to hold back their naturally rapid growth? Nowadays we educate more children than ever before in the world's history, but we educate them with deadly slowness. Go back a hundred years and read any Victorian biography, and we find that children in those days learned much more quickly than they do now. It was not uncommon for them to be able to read at four, and to have good command of Latin grammar by the time they were ten. Their classical studies were extensive, and they were expected to have opinions worth hearing by the time they were seventeen or eighteen. Why have we assumed today that children must learn slowly, and not too much?

Between the rigorous training of Sidis and the easy-going methods of modern education there must be some happy mean, and we should seek it. There is never any danger of anyone knowing too much, but it is very common nowadays to find university graduates and others less extensively educated who quite obviously know too little. Education is a bulwark of democracy, and every child should be given all that it can assimilate.

Racism In Canada

Parliament's discussions of the amendments to the Dominion Elections Act has revealed an element of racism in Canadian thinking which is dangerous to democracy. Racism is one of the most vicious elements of the totalitarian mode of thought, and like most evil things it is hard to destroy where once it has taken root. Our Houses of Parliament have had a brisk engagement with racism, and it cannot be said that they have defeated it entirely. However, the outcome was better than it might have been.

For more than fifty years Japanese citizens living in British Columbia have had no vote, and this has been a precedent for the government practice of depriving citizens of the vote in the Dominion elections who have no vote in provincial elections. Now, in making arrangements for the soldier vote, members of Parliament who want to advance racism in Canada have tried to huddle through an amendment which would take the Dominion vote from every racial group with which we are now at war, provided one province could be found which would deprive them of a provincial vote. This would have meant that Japanese, Romanian, Hungarian, Bulgarian, Finnish and German and Italian citizens of Canada might have lost their votes—a serious and undemocratic matter.

The Commons apparently did not notice what was being done under its nose, but the Senate sensed the danger in the amendment and spiked it; the Senate proposed that the disfranchisement be restricted to Japanese citizens for the duration of the war only, but it did not seek to restrict the principle of discrimination by a single province affecting the Dominion. Now the Commons has decided that Japanese citizens who had the vote before 1939 should continue to enjoy it.

It is easy to raise a cry against giving any privileges to Japanese while we are at war with them, but it must be pointed out that a vote is a right as well as a privilege, and that right is one of the foundation stones of our democracy. The people in Canada who believe in racism have shown that they would not only deprive Japanese of the vote, but several other races as well; they open the way to very serious abuses. Nobody wants to coddle the Japanese. But it is important that we should keep faith with ourselves. If, in wartime, we let down our standards of honour and democracy we are no better than those we fight. Expediency and vengeance are poor policies in war and peace, and if we give way to them we encourage the undemocratic elements in Canada, who need no encouragement whatever.

Decline Of The Dipper

The American Department of Labour has announced that field-workers on farms must be provided with water from a covered container, and that they must drink from paper cups. The pail and the tin dipper, it says, must go because they are unsanitary.

We have always known that pails and dippers were unsanitary, but we never cared much about it. All our life we have been doing unsanitary things that we liked doing, and we are still here to tell the tale. Of course, some things are less savoury than others; a granite cup chained to a pump always takes away our thirst. But a dipper and a pail in a field have never looked unsanitary to our eyes.

Beer tastes better drunk from a pewter pot than it does from a glass; and we insist that when a man is working outdoors water tastes better out of a dipper than it does from a paper cup. The man is thirsty; the dipper is large, generous, of an interesting and pleasing colour, and it imparts a delicious metallic flavour to the water. We shall not give our views about paper cups.

A friend of ours who visited Greece told us that he made a pilgrimage to the mountain range of Helicon, and there drank from the fountain called Hippocrene; that fountain is said to have sprung up in the hoofprint of the winged horse, Pegasus, and whoever drinks from it becomes a poet, in feeling if not in expression. Our friend said that the spring was in no way remarkable, but its water was the sweetest he ever tasted. So it is with water out of a dipper, drunk in a field on a hot summer day. There are matters which are far above mere considerations of sanitation.

NOTE AND COMMENT

To many a married man a stitch in time comes as a surprise.

Several girls are finding that the hot weather isn't so bad if you undress properly for it.

Lots of people, when they have an hour to spare, insist on spending it with someone who hasn't.

Officers in the Dental Corps, we understand, find that pull is of absolutely no use in gaining promotion.

War advances many sciences, including zoology. Now we know, for instance, that a Nazi general can live in captivity.

A member of Parliament is trying to arrange a system of rest for our overworked doctors. Why not tell them to eat an onion a day to keep the patients away?

A Toronto dog-lover is indignant because her pet cannot ride on the elevators at the City Hall, and threatens Controller Saunders with reprisals:

Heaven has no rage like love to hatred turned,
Nor Hell a fury like a dog-lover scorned.

Now that it is obvious to everyone that Germany is breaking up, our elusive friend Turkey has developed a sudden attack on belligerence. There is a word for this sort of political whistletricking, but in the interests of international friendship we shall not use it.

Farming News and Views

By HON. DUNCAN MARSHALL

WITH July over half gone, as I write this, there is a great amount of hay still in the fields and much of it to cut. This fortunately does not mean that many barns are not full of well-saved hay. Farmers who were short of help last year seeded more of their land to grass and clover so as not to have too much seeding to do this pring. This was not the best plan as grain can be seeded quickly by getting a tractor for a few days, which is generally possible, and power binders and combines can usually be hired for a few days' cutting. There will be some hay standing too long to make really good feed, and where it is fairly free from weeds it will be a good plan to cut it for seed. It can be threshed at a time when work is not as pushing as it is now, and it looks as though grass seeds of all kinds will sell for stiff prices. If the hay is a mixture it will not matter so much just now, but the greatest of care should be taken to get the weed seeds cleared out. This can be done by first putting it through a clipper or other good small mill, and then shipping the cleaned product to some better mill where it can have the balance of the rubbish removed, as it is the worst possible farm practice to sow weed seeds. There is some excuse for a farmer who gets weeds on his land by winds or other means from adjacent fields. There never was a more dangerous time for the inroad of weeds on farms than the present. Labor is scarce, and proper treatment of the land to eradicate weeds, or even keep them in check, is very difficult; consequently, planting weed seeds just now is an extremely bad business.

AS I drove through the country recently, I saw a good many fields being prepared for fall wheat and, as far as I could see, the mold board plough was still in active use in spite of Mr. Faulkner's edict, supported by a few agricultural advisers who are easily led. As ploughing for wheat is in order for a month yet, and as many people have been impressed with what Faulkner deemed the dangers of the mold-board plough, I wish to quote a few brief comments upon this matter from Professor Emil Truog, head of the soils department of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, in July Harper's Magazine.

Professor Truog points out that Mr. Faulkner bases his statements on the claim that crop roots tend to develop very near the surface of the soil, which is not true, as wheat and corn are often very deep-rooted, particularly in a dry district where they penetrate deeply in search of moisture. His article is a fairly long one, but he sums up briefly a few reasons for the value of ploughing, which might be condensed, as follows:

1. The plough, because of the shape of its moldboard, produces a sheering action in three directions on the thick layer of soil that is lifted and turned over. The turned furrow is thus pulverized, and so makes the most satisfactory seed bed.

2. Ploughing helps to improve and rejuvenate soils by bringing up deeper layers near to the surface where the desirable process of aration and oxidation takes place through alternate freezing and thawing and greater exposure to the atmosphere.

3. By ploughing under organic matter it is possible to maintain an active soil layer deep enough to provide favorable conditions for growing plants.

Professor Truog refers to Faulkner's mention of the fertility of the Nile Valley, cultivated only by the hoe, but points out that the Nile overflows very year and leaves rich deposits of silt, so that the people living there have a new layer of rich new soil to grow crops each year. Professor Truog also adds that Faulkner makes a mistake when he mentions China as having rich soil not cultivated by ploughs, and points out that a great many of the Chinese are suffering from malnutrition, due to an exhausted soil, and that the primitive agriculture of India, mostly hand cultivated, has an average yield of only five to six bushels of wheat to the acre.

This article in Harper's is well worth the price of the magazine, and farmers should get a copy and read it. The plough has one of the most important places among farm implements. It can be used too much on semi-arid land, but to abolish it from our tillage machines would be to act very foolishly indeed and to court disaster in our farming methods. The plough will survive many such attacks as that of Mr. Faulkner, who based most of his proposals upon what he found in a garden patch instead of a field, and based them largely on theories rather than proven practices. "One swallow does not make a summer."

I WAS fortunate on July 13th and 14th to drive through the country. I found fall wheat riper as I went north and saw the first field cut near Hanover on the Bruce side. Rains had come in time and the whole countryside was fresh and green. Cattle have abundance of pasture and a good winter's feed to look forward to, if they are to see another year. Pigs are plentiful and care has been taken to breed for good-sized litters and a good type of bacon pig. Lloyd Marshall had on our old farm in Elderslie two litters, four weeks old, one of fourteen and the other eleven, that had the appearance of health and promise which makes for good bacon. The youngsters spend half the day in pasture and the other half under shade and have two-year-old mothers that are typical of what is wanted in bacon hogs. The pigs in the neighborhood are of the same type and quality. Spring crops promise well in what I saw in Bruce and Grey. I came across through Durham, on to Hanover. Later, down to Walkerton, and the prospects around that town and Mildmay are very good.

There are always some of the smaller things on the farm overlooked. I recollect, as a boy, that we never failed to have new potatoes, up in Elderslie, on the twelfth of July. We also had beans, beets and green peas at approximately the same date. The only new potatoes I saw came up from Southern Ontario. Farmers are entitled to live on the best of the land, and fresh vegetables are one of the greatest luxuries one can have. They are expensive to buy and a farmer can have a full supply at an early date, at an insignificant cost. No food is more healthful at any time, but particularly in summer; a good kitchen garden should be highly prized. I know there are many such; I've been in them, and ate off them, but I am quite certain there are not enough of them.

I came down through Harriston and Arthur; then southeast into Hillsburg, which is a potato centre, and the fields were showing a fine prospect for "Murphies" this year. Erin, Hillsburg and Orangeville is one of the good potato districts in Ontario, and farmers are taking more than ordinary care this year to protect their crops from blight and other enemies of the tubers.

Why I Shall Remember England

(By ROBERT ARBIB in the LONDON DAILY EXPRESS)

I MAY be leaving England, perhaps never to return. Before I go, I want to tell you some of the things I shall never forget—the scenes and episodes that have impressed me during my two years as an American soldier in Britain.

It has been an exciting time, not only because we have been in a strange land, with new sights to see, new friends to meet, and a new way of life to learn. But also because we have been watching and helping the growth of Allied fighting power on this armed-camp island, ready now to implement the greatest military adventure in history.

I remember that first night in England, standing in a wheat field in East Anglia and watching cascades of green incendiaries drifting down. This is it, we told ourselves. We are in it at last.

But it was hard to convince ourselves, for here were these crazy English standing in their gardens watching the raid as if it were a Fourth of July spectacle. It was hard to boast about our own experiences when all around us were five-year-olds who had lived through more than we had ever known.

The blackout astonished us. It was so oppressively black. It still gives us a feeling that the houses behind the staring windows are abandoned, lifeless.

The atmosphere of rural Suffolk, the workers in the fields, the stillness, the emptiness of the roads, the quiet of the village streets—these things made us feel that we had come to a country where all but a remnant of the people had moved away.

We changed our mind when we saw the teeming towns on market day, and walked the streets on Saturday evenings, and when we saw the hordes of people in London and other big cities.

Memorable days....Watching our first cricket match on the fields of St. Albans, within sight of the Roman ruins, and later having a beer with Eric, the Warwickshire soldier.

Boxford, where two girls waited at their window every morning for eight months to wave as we drove past. We never once spoke to them, but we were friends.

I shall remember a Sunday in June punting on the river at Cambridge, and talking to the don who badly needed a shave, haircut and press, but who had (we later learned) just been knighted.

Biking to Lavenham with Vivian for a look at that perfect Tudor village and a drink at the Swan....Walking across the meadows with Joan to listen to the skylarks, those most irresponsible of sunstruck birds.

I shall not forget the friendly evenings at the Unicorn, where we would buy each other rounds of ale and argue through the blue haze, and settle all the problems that baffled the world....

Derby Day at Newmarket, where 9,000 came to see a race that was run behind a hill, and the same 9,000 tried to get back to London on one train.

There were churches....the don who spent hours showing us Durham, and the woman verger in Canterbury....Lincoln and Peterborough and Ely, and the beautiful smaller churches....Above all, Boston Stump, lit by the last rays of the setting sun, and shining across the fens like a white sword.

We shall remember Piccadilly Circus after dark....the milling swarms of people, the men who pretend to sell newspapers, the 50 different uniforms....The drunks, the pedlars and the police....

The girl who sang operatic arias on the Bakerloo platform, as everyone cheered....the sailor who played his violin and danced in the Morden train, when everyone joined in "Dear Liverpool." This was England with its hair down.

But we shall remember, too, our Christmas parties for the orphans and evacuee children. No one could ever forget those parties, with the kids yelling and gobbling ice cream, sitting on our shoulders, and singing for us....going home along the lane clutching armfuls of toys and candy, chewing gum and biscuits. Fifteen hundred we had at one party.

It was not all fun. There was the mud of the airfield building, the tents that leaked, the north wind that blew, and lots of rain.

There were trains that did not arrive on time and telegrams that did not arrive at all....

We got stranded in the overcrowded towns. One night it was Hull and another night it was Chesterfield (the police helped us here) and again it was Grantham. But we always seemed to find a bed somewhere, a friendly welcome, and the month's egg ration on our breakfast plate, no matter how loudly we protested.

There were haunting scenes—the mist hanging on the silent mountains round Loch Lomond that day when everything dripped, and the solitude of the place heightened by the wail of a bag pipe far up in the hills....

The steady drone of the bombers going out over the coast at night, a prayer on our lips for each....and above all, the doleful moan of the air raid warning carried along by the wind from one hill-top to another.

Sombre pictures, too. The shelterers each night in the London Underground; the faces of the children sleeping on the floors under the feet of passers by, in draughts of dusty air.

The battered face of Hull, and Bristol, and London, with their exposed, embarrassed scars. You who have lived here and watched the damage grow cannot know the shock to one who suddenly comes on it around a corner.

There it is, or a small part of it anyway. There you have the face of Britain as we have seen it, these two years.

We have met you all now, the workers and the dons, the teachers and the deans, the bishop and the soldiers, young girls, farmers, miners, publicans, and children, an earl or two, and an M.P.

We thank you all for your hospitality, for opening your homes to us, for smiling at us and dancing with us, for marrying some of us, for being patient with our faults, for listening to our talk and tolerance, for struggling with our quaint tongue and then adopting it.

For playing host to this vast army of foreigners without letting it get you down. For showing us quiet courage and stamina and the patience that is your greatest virtue and worst handicap. We will remember England.

Singeing Hitler's Moustache

THE story of Britain's volunteer blockade runners to Sweden, revealed today, brings out vividly the following leading points:

(a) First is the amazing daring of these men, all volunteers, who rode the storms of the North Sea to penetrate into the teeth of German defences. The Germans have everything in their favour. Air patrols covered the entire five hundred and sixty-mile voyage from Britain to Lysekil of British ships. Dense minefields studded the last one hundred and sixty miles to and from Skagerrak. Fire from German coastal guns in Denmark and Norway could almost meet across the seventy-five-mile channel. A few miles towards the south German ships patrolled the forty-mile entrance to Kattegat. Less than fifty miles to the north German warships buzzed in and out of Oslo Fiord. In fact, the task facing the British seamen was scarcely less in distance and hazards than if a German land patrol in East Prussia had run the gauntlet of Russian defences right back towards Moscow as far as Minsk; this raid would represent the Skagerrak voyage alone.

(b) Against these hazards stood only a handful of about one hundred British volunteers the average age twenty-five. The names of their ships—Gay Corsair, etc.—themselves give the clue to their success, namely Elizabethan Daring symbolised by a picture of Drake in the captain's cabin in every ship. Like Drake in 1572 when from the Isthmus of Panama he sighted the Pacific, they "resolved to sail an English ship into these seas". Like Drake in the winter of 1577, they had only five small ships (though they themselves were fewer than Drake's one hundred and sixty-six men). But like Drake's men when they braved the Straits of Magellan next year, they braved the even greater hazards of Skagerrak Straits. Like Drake, when he forced Cadiz nine years later and burnt the over ten-thousand-ton Spanish Armada, they performed a vital service to the free world.

(c) Behind these British seamen was one other decisive factor—the excellence of their ships. Crews—who came mostly from Hull with a seafaring tradition dating back to Edward the First's charter of 1299—lived amidships where, in 1920, British designers placed the accommodation of the famous merchantman, Feliciana, thus being among the first in the world to win the maximum capacity in forward and after holds. Diesel engines came from British marine engineers who pioneered the first turbine ship (1894), first motor ships with internal combustion engines (1912), first all diesel trans-Atlantic liner (1925), first large oil-engined passenger ship (1926), etc. The ships were built by men with the same unrivalled experience as seventy-seven-year-old riveter, Thomas Smith, who retired a few days ago after fifty-four years with the Mercantile Dry Dock Company, Jarrow. In conclusion: such was the British flotilla which, just as Drake "singed the King of Spain's beard" at Cadiz, sailed to Lysekil (as the Daily Telegraph Stockholm cordrespondent says today), "singed the Chancellor of Germany's moustache". With their ships and their daring, they, like the whole British people, are modern Elizabethans.

FIRST, THE IDEA

One of the greatest superstitions of the illiterate is the belief that writing is an easy task for those who write, although the truth is that there is nothing so difficult. The illiterate themselves ought to be aware of this from the difficulty that most of them have in composing an ordinary letter to a friend. But they are not. They have heard somewhere that "the poet is made, not born", and probably they reason much as Dogberry did when he said that "To be a well-favored man is the gift of fortune; but to read and write comes by nature".

Because a man has the ability to do a thing does not prove that the thing is easy to do. Even the ditch-digger knows that digging a ditch is hard work. But many a writer would aver, if his muscles were in sound condition, that digging a ditch would be, even for him, an easier job than the writing of a treatise which he hopes will influence an age, or the ages.

The first requirement of a writer is to have something to say.—San Francisco Argonaut.

A Bible Message

O LORD, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. For thou hast been a strength to the poor, a strength to the needy in distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall....

And in this mountain shall the Lord of hosts make unto all people a feast of fat things, a feast of wines on the lees, of fat things full of marrow, of wines on the lees well refined. And he will destroy in this mountain the face of the covering cast over all people, and the vail that is spread over all nations. (Isa. 25: 1, 4, 6, 7.)

In that day shall this song be sung in the land of Judah; We have a strong city; salvation will God appoint for walls and bulwarks.

Open ye the gates that the righteous nation which keepeth the truth may enter in.

Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee: because he trusteth in thee. (Isa. 26: 103.)

◇ ◇ ◇

I exhort, therefore, that, first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks, be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty.

For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour; who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth. (I. Tim. 2: 1-4.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Said the cowboy: "My pardner and I are taking a trip through the desert next week. He's taking along a gallon of whiskey for rattlesnake bites."

"And what are you taking?"

"Two rattlesnakes."

◇ ◇ ◇

"Aren't people funny?"

"Yes. If you tell a man that there are 270,678,934,341 stars in the universe he'll believe you—but if a sign says 'Fresh Paint,' that same man has to make a personal investigation."

"Listen, Horace, everybody knows that Grape-Nuts Flakes are a super-delicious, nourishing breakfast cereal."
"You mean that they're gloriously crisp, curly, golden-brown and have a heavenly malty-rich, nut-like flavor?"
"You guessed it, chum. And Grape-Nuts Flakes supply such good nourishment as carbohydrates and proteins, useful quantities of iron and phosphorus and other food essentials. Better tag along with your mother next time she goes marketing and get yourself some Grape-Nuts Flakes."

South Africa Is Place For Romance

JOHANNESBURG, July 24 (CP)—About 300 Canadian military nurses have come to South Africa in batches since the end of 1941, and between 40 and 50 of them—nearly one-sixth—have married here, mostly South Africans.

Nearly half of the 300 have since returned to Canada. Seventy-five are at present working in South African hospitals all over the country and recently 25 others left for the Mediterranean theatre as members of the South African military nursing service.

Marriages between Canadian nurses and South Africans "are a small but very pleasant way of doing a lot to promote good feeling between the two dominions," said a Canadian nursing official. Most of the marriages started as hospital romances.

Several French-Canadian girls who could barely speak English when they married in the Union have married into Afrikaans families. They have learned to speak excellent English and a fair amount of Africaans.

One Canadian nurse now is the wife of Col. Douglas Haigh Loftus, D.S.O., D.F.C., well-known South African fighter pilot Another has married a newspaper editor.

Canadian nurses here two years automatically receive the courtesy of Union nationality and also can claim a South African passport. If they marry South Africans they still retain Canadian citizenship, but this is not the case if they marry men of foreign nationality.

Fife-Hope Vows Taken At Keene

Ruth Lenore Morin Is Wed At St. Peter's Cathedral

St. Peter's Cathedral, set with Canterbury Bells and Hydrangea, was the setting for a pretty wedding Saturday, when Ruth Lenore Morin, daughter of Mrs. M. Morin and the late Mr. Morin, 651 Donegal street, became the bride of Joseph Michael Primeau, son of Mrs. Leo Francis Primeau, 270 Rubidge street. Rev. K. F. Malane officiated, and William Primeau and Cary Wolff, cousins of the groom, served at the mass. At the organ was Miss Marion Best, A.T.C.M., and Mrs. Michael Duffus sang "Ave Maria" and other hymns during the ceremony.

Given in mariage by her uncle, A. M. Hargrove of Lindsay, the bride was charming in a floor-length gown of white satin, trimmed with embroidered lace. The fitted bodice, finished at the back with tiny self-covered buttons, was made with a Sweetheart neckline, and long sleeves, coming to points over the hands. Her veil and train of white silk net fell from a Queen Elizabeth halo, and she wore a cameo locket and carried American Beauty roses.

Following the ceremony, a buffet breakfast was served at the home of the groom's mother, where the bride's mother received in a blue and white silk crepe frock, white hat and accessories, and a corsage of red roses. Also receiving was the groom's mother, in mauve brocaded sheer, with white hat trimmed with mauve, and white accessories, and a corsage of red roses. The event came as a complete surprise to the guest of honor, who upon arrival was seated in a large chair, trimmed in pink and white, over which was suspended a cluster of silver bells, and from these presently there descended a shower of confetti upon the head and shoulders of the bride-to-be. Preceding the miscellaneous shower of gifts, Miss Bernice Hibbard read an original poem, punctuated with the presentation of something old, a handkerchief, by Marian Harkness; something blue, a bouquet of cornflowers, by Mrs. Crough of Peterborough; something borrowed, a small china dish, handed to the guest of honor by Mrs. H. Whyte, and something new, when Mrs. Paulson and Miss Bernice Smith brought in a beautifully-decorated wheelbarrow piled high with parcels.

The opening of the gifts, which included fine linens, china, pyrex ware, aluminum and granite ware, was followed by the reading of the enclosed cards.

A quiz contest led by Bernice Smith created much merriment and the service of lunch, with the hostesses assisted by a number of the guests, concluded an enjoyable evening.

DOROTHY DIX . . . . .

CAREER HELPS DATELESS GIRL

Full, Useful Life Possible Without Boys and Petting Parties; Should Develop Mind

DEAR MISS DIX: We are two high school girls and we find that the girls who get dates obtain them by asking the boys, and as we are too dignified to do this we have no boy friends. Are boys too shy now to ask a girl for a date? Boys may be scarce during the war, but we do not feel that we should ask them for dates unless it is compulsory.

TWO DESPERATE GIRLS

War May Have Spoiled Boys

ANSWER: Boys are never too shy to ask for what they want, and so if you have no dates it is for some reason other than their timidity. Probably it is because they have been spoiled by the supply being so scarce that they have passed into the luxury class and they no longer have to run after the girls, the girls are chasing them.

In such cases the bold, aggressive grabbers get theirs, while the modest ones get left. And this is as true of men as it is of apples or anything else in life. If the war goes on much longer, maybe the government will have to ration boy friends as well as groceries to make them go around.

Undoubtedly these are sad days for girls who have a normal desire for dates and yet who are too much ladies to be able to use the strong-armed method of acquiring them. But since there is no miracle by which the visible man supply can be increased, the best thing that you little Janes can do is forget about them and devise some way of making for yourselves an Adamless Eden.

For there are a lot of interesting things in the world besides boys and petting parties, and if you will turn your thoughts on developing your mind instead of your emotions, and espousing a career instead of a husband, you will find that you can have a very full and useful and comfortable life.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have a husband who is loving and kind. He works at night and sleeps practically all day. His one and only free day is Sunday and I feel that he should devote that to me and the children, but he often makes dates with other people for that day. I don't begrudge him wanting to go out, but I feel that his family should come first, considering that we have only one entire day a week together.

DISCONTENTED WIFE

Some Men Need Outside Diversion

ANSWER: Not all men are domestic-minded. There are men whose whole interest in life centres around the house and listening to their children's babble, and going with their wives and kids for a walk around the block. But there are other men who are never completely house-broken. They have to have some masculine society. They must fish, or hunt, or play golf. And the wives who tie them too tightly to their apron strings do so at their own peril.

My suggestion to you is not to try to deprive your husband of all of his days off, but to compromise. Go half and half with him. Let him stay at home with you and the children one Sunday and go fishing the next.

DEAR MISS DIX: Is it proper for two girls of 17 and 18 to go to see their boy friends at their training camps? The boys want us to come, but our parents object.

TWO JANES

ANSWER: Your parents are right unless you are going properly chaperoned.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

We will turn our attention today to a few ways for preserving fruit and making conserves that are so nice in the winter to serve for breakfast on toast, or with hot breakfast rolls.

Grape Conserve

5 pounds blue grapes, 4 pounds granulated sugar, 4 oranges, 1 pound seeded raisins, ½ pounds shelled walnuts, cut fine. Pulp the grapes and cook until the seeds are loosened, then put through a strainer to remove seeds. Add skins to pulp, also sugar, juice of oranges, and grated rind of one orange, raisins. Cook slowly for two hours. At the end of one hour, add the walnuts. Bottle and seal in small sterilized jars.

Peach Conserve

1 basket peaches, 1 pound sultana raisins, 4 oranges, grated rind of 2 cut fine, 1 pound blanched almonds, sugar equal to weight of fruit. Boil until thick. Bottle and seal with parafin.

Spiced Plums

Make a syrup of 1 pounds of sugar to 1 pound of plums. To every 3 pounds of sugar use a scant pint of vinegar. Allow 1 ounce each of ground cinnamon, cloves, alspice, maise, to one peck of plums. Add the spices to the syrup and pour boiling water over the plums. Let stand three days, then skim out and boil down the syrup until quite thick. Pour hot over the plums and seal.

Fruit Relish

20 ripe tomatoes, 8 pears, 8 peaches, 4 cups of white sugar, 2 teaspoons salt, 2 red peppers, 2 teaspoons whole spice tied in cheesecloth bag, 4 cups vinegar.

Wash vegetables and fruit. Blanch tomatoes and peaches and remove skin. Peel pears and remove tongue and seeds from peppers. Chop (not too finely) and add sugar, vinegar, spices and salt. Boil slowly for two hours, and seal while hot.

Black Currant Jam

Wash currants, remove stems. Place fruit in preserving kettle, add water and bring to the boiling point. Simmer for 20 minutes or until thick, stirring constantly. Seal in sterilized jars.

Citron Preserves

1 lb. citron, 1 lb. white sugar, 1 teaspoon ginger. Slice citron, peel and remove seeds. Cut into cubes, add sugar and let stand over night. Bring to the boiling point, add ginger tied in a bag and simmer until clear. Remove the ginger and bottle while hot.

The Stars Say . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, July 25

A LIVELY and interesting day is read from a conflicting state of dominant planets, in which shrewd, sagacious and above board dealings may be needful to set aside baneful, introguing and undercover situations, difficult to fathom. Credit, standing, reputation and security seem to be in the balance, with direct and aggressive action as the main remedy. With frustration and sinister attack vanquished there is hope of definite success and happiness, affecting the personal as well as business life. Friendship and closer ties may prove of significance.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may have the disposal of their present as well as future happiness and security, to be rescued from sinister and undercover circumstances, largely by direct and decisive blow at undermining dangers. Beware subtle and intriguing alliances, safeguard finances, reputation, social standing by open and above board policies and tactics. Stick to facts and adhere to the demands of duty, obligation and responsibility, and all should be well, bringing personal happiness as well as increased prestige and popularity.

A child born on this day although subject to subtlety and craft, with temptations and snares, may adhere to the code, with integrity and honor, thereby winning the approbation of its superiors and influential friends, social and business.

SWIFT'S WEEKLY FOOD HINTS

by Martha Logan

Summer Lunches

In the job which we, the women of Canada, have undertaken, of seeing that our families get proper food, summer presents very special problems.

Hot weather frequently causes poor appetites. Many people don't feel they need as much food. What we must remember is that they do need just as much of the protective foods. Only maybe they should get them in lighter, more appetizing forms.

Now cured pork products are—of all meats—among the richest in nutritional values. They contain many of the essential elements that we may normally get from just these "stodgier" foods we don't fancy in hot weather.

And of all the cured pork products in tins, none leaped quicker to universal popularity than Prem. This summer there will be more Prem available, so look out for it on your dealer's shelves. Besides its extra food values, Prem is a wonderful time and labour saver because it is all ready to eat. Serve Prem often. Keep a tin or two on hand.

Kawartha Team Defeats Peterboro Club

The Kawartha Golf and Country Club team defeated the Peterborough Club team 53 to 30 in the first round of the Glover-Dobbin Trophy. Thus they carry a lead of 23 points into the second and final round which will be held at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club Saturday afternoon August 19.

Sixty-four players teed off and being well paired everyone enjoyed a very congenial game. The Kawartha members being better acquainted with their course held the edge in most of the matches but Peterborough players are biding their time until they meet the winners on their home ground.

Charlie Low, playing for his home team turned in the best score of the day with a very brisk 74 to take three points from Bob Abbott, the Peterborough sharpshooter who could not do better than a gross 80. Stan Payne the Peterborough champion nearly gained these points back by shooting a gross 81 against Stan Whiddon's 86. Harley Weir put together two rice nines for a gross 83 which will merit a little consideration by the match and handicap committee. However Harley garnered all his pars the hard way taking a veritable Cook's tour from tee to green but as his opponents were picking raspberries most of the time Harley brought home the "bacon" with very little trouble.

Hy Caverley, R. Jones and H. Mandell also turned in gross 86's, followed by E. Asker with 87. R. Hay, R. Buckman and Bert McLeod with 89s.

For the visitors, Joe Watson showed up well with an 83 to win two points. Hugh Waddell likewise took home two points with a gross 86 but Jim Wharry with an even 88 was not so lucky losing all three points to R. Hay although he shot an 89. Players from both clubs are asked to keep the above date open

San Francisco Swimmer Captures Two Titles

VANCOUVER, July 24 — (CP). — Roddy Andrews, San Francsco, was classed most outstanding swimmer at the Canadian championship swimming meet which closed here Saturday. Already holder of seven American swim records, he took with ease two Canadian championships Saturday, the senior men's 150-yard medley and the 440-yard free style senior.

Toronto teams won the 400-yard senior men's relay and the servicemen's 150-yard medley relay.

Two more Canadian titles were captured by Shirley Muir of Vancouver, the 800-yard free style senior and the 100-yard free style. She had won two champonships previously.

Fresh from their fine showing against the Oshawa Colts Saturday night Manager Murph. Chambers' Switchgear team will open its bid for the City League championship this evening when the leaders meet the fourth-place U.E.W. team in the first game of the playoff semi-final series, a best-of-five affair. The second game will be played Wednesday night and the third on Friday. Both teams will be hustling this evening in an effort to get a jump on the opposition by winning the first game, and it should be quite a battle in spite of the fact that the Switchgear finished at the top of the heap with ten wins and the Union had to be satisfied with fourth and three victories. U.E.W. are facing the gun tonight encouraged by the fact that Pitcher Hatty Eakins of Lindsay held the leaders to three hits the last time he faced them, and that the Switchgear were beaten 5 to 3 on that occasion. Union hope to have Eakins to toss in against the leaders this evening, with Mac McPherson and Don Isaac also available, while Manager Chambers has not tipped his hand as to which of his three twirlers he will call upon. The game is called for 7 o'clock and should attract a big crowd.

Tomorrow night the old rivals, the second-place Plazas and the Soldiers, who finished in third spot, will meet in the first game of the other semi-final series, and that should fire the first gun in another memorable series. For the past two seasons the clashes between the two clubs were an outstanding feature of the softball season and were crammed full of excitement. There is every reason to look for another red-hot series of games, for the Soldiers come into the playoffs riding the crest of a six-game winning streak, while the Plazas' strength is generally recognized. Some of the regulars may be missing tomorrow night because of holiday absentees, but both clubs will be able to field strong lineups, and the opening game should be packed full of excitement. Terry Woods is away on a vacation trip so that Plazas' pitching choice for the opening battle narrows down to Dave Wilson or Frank Stokoe, while the Soldiers will fire either big Earl Revoir or Pete Procyk, the Winnipeg boy, in at the secondplacers. There shouldn't be many dull moments when the old rivals tear into each other in the initial tilt in what should develop into a decidedly lively series. Neither team has announced its lineup for tomorrow night, but it is intimated that both will be strong.

It Was a Treat

Peterborough softball fans have Switchgear to thank for staging the best-played softball game of the season Saturday night when the fast-moving Oshawa Colts had to go eleven innings to get a 5 to 4 verdict over the City League leaders. That was softball at its best, with effective pitching, steady fielding and enough hitting to keep folks on the runways and build up excitement. The famous Colts were a bit lucky at that in being able to go home with a victory, for Switchgear had the winning run on third in both the eighth and ninth innings with only one out, and McLaughlin was good enough or lucky enough to get out of the hole both times. A hit, an error, a passed ball, an infield out or a long fly to the outfield on either occasion would have meant a loss for the Campbell clan. The fine pitching of Ronnie Akers, the all-round playing of Ossie Anderson and a circus catch by Frank McCormick were features of the Switchgear playing. The two teams staged an exhibition that made new friends for softball here and sent the fans away talking. Thanks are due to the flashily-clad Colts, replete in maroon monkey-suits, for bringing a full team here. They had all their regulars and that helped to make the battle the success it was.

Says the Belleville Ontario-Intelligencer: "They may be slinging 'eyes' at the Italian signorinas, and slinging anti-aircraft shells at Jerry, but these fighting softball buckaroos from Belleville, headed by Sergt. 'Lum' Carson, haven't forgotten how to heave that mushball around the lot. Such local and district softball luminaries including Leo Goyer, Harold 'Bingo' Reid, Ray Reid and Walt Gerow, backing up sterling chucking of Lum and his pitching mates of the 5th Light Anti-Aircraft Battery, won for their unit the championship of Italy. Previous to this they knocked off several smart squads to annex their divisional title. And lest we forget. None other than that redoubtable diamond arbiter, Sergt. Don 'Ducky' Thomas, went right back into character behind the plate, and between meals and strafed coached the ack-ack gunners along the finer points of softball. The Gunners team defeated a crack Royal Canadian Army Service Corps squad, three games to one to win the Italian title. In the final game, with the opposition leading, 'Lum' went in in the 5th and held them to one run, while his mates pounded out a barrage of hits to win by a 15-8 count."

Junior Rugby Organized

The Peterborough Junior Rugby Association was organized Friday night at an enthusiastic meeting in the U.E.W. hall, and officers were chosen and plans made for what it is hoped will be a successful junior rugby season. The offers elected were: Honorary executive members, Mayor James Hamilton, Ald. Adam Sands and F. D. Craig; president, Rich. Jackson; secretary, Bill Anderson; treasurer, Harry Pearce; manager, Edgar Roberts; publicity manager, Doug. Miller, Jr. All players will be automatically on the executive as well. The U.E. members have kindly consented to assist the association by giving them the use of the Union hall for meeting purposes, and in acknowledgement of that assistance the team will wear the Union colors, red, blue and gold. It is proposed to seek donations of prizes for a draw and dance to secure the funds for equipment. Every effort will be made to organize a junior group in this section of the province, but if plans toward that end do not succeed a series of games will be arranged anyway to keep the game alive and give young players a chance to play their favorite game. Incidentally in reply to something Ken Colling had in his Belleville column the other day, the Peterborough junior club is not sponsored by any particular company or group. While they will wear the U.E.W. colors, the team is not operating under Union auspices.

Cleveland Indians were the biggest gainers in the American League yesterday when they won a double-header over the Washington Senators and thereby climbed into fourth place. The two leading clubs, St. Louis Browns and the New York Yanks, could not do better than an even split, the Brownies and Boston Red Sox dividing a double bill, with Tex Hughson of the Sox winning his 15th triumph of the season and New York and the Chicago White Sox dividing a pair of free-hitting affairs. The biggest losers were the Detroit Tigers whose spurt for the top was suddenly checked by the Philadelphia Athletics, who slapped them down twice Sunday. In the National League there was nothing of moment. St. Louis Cards, making the race a runaway, grabbed off two games from the Boston Braves, with Mort Cooper picking up his 12th win of the season. The Pirates took two from the helpless Brooklyn Dodgers. And at New York the Giants and Chicago Cubs set some kind of a record when they used 14 pitchers in the second game of a double-header, won by the Giants 12 to 10.

Bill Kerr Wins Millar Trophy Defeats DeLaat

TORONTO, uly 24 — (CP) — A new name is to be added to the Millar Trophy—Bill Kerr.

On Saturday, Bill, 33-year-old professional at Toronto's Cedar Brae Club, realized a long-time ambition by winning the Millar Cup—emblematic of the Eastern Canada professional golf championship, by defeating Gordon (Dutch) DeLaat 6 and 4 in the 18-hole final over the Islington Club.

It was his first "big" title win although he has played in Millar Cup competitions for many years. Bob Gray of Toronto's Scarborough Club has been champion for the last two years.

Kerr began his march to victory on the second hole and after winning it with a birdie four while DeLaat had a par, went on to win the third, fourth and ninth to hold a four up lead at the turn. Bill then won the 10th and 11th, they halved the 12th DeLaat won the 13th and Bill ended the match with a win on the 14th.

This Was Bill's Year

Through one twist of fate and another Kerr had never got beyond the quarter-finals in the match play classic. Back in 1941 brother Sam captured a title that had been denied Bill so long. Last year it would have been Sam against Bill in the quarter-finals of the Millar if Sam had conquered Bob Gray, the ultimate winner.

There was no denying Cedar Brae William this year. Friday he prepared the way by disposing of Bobby Cruickshanks, the visitor from Virginia, 1 up, in the morning. In the afternoon he knocked off Bill Mac William, the St. Andrews pro who had created the first tournament upset by eliminating Bob Gray. Saturday morning Bill fired 13th and 14th hole birdies at Stan Horne of Montreal's Islemere to brush aside another trophy threat. That brought him to the final stage against Dutch DeLaat, the most surprising campaigner in the long history of the Millar.

DeLaat's Amazing Golf Shots

DeLaat had followed up his wrecking tour of Thursday and Friday by coming from behind to defeat Lex Robson of Peterborough's Kawartha Lakes course, 1 up, Saturday morning. DeLaat was two down to Robson after nine holes, and would have been four down if he hadn't started the big gallery by canning chip shots at the 8th and 9th in spectacular succession. He birdied the 13th, won the 15th with a par three to square the match and then won the match with a birdie four at the 16th, the same hole where he knocked off Bob Burns of Weston in a first-round upset.

"The Robson match," quiet, unassuming DeLaat confessed above the Millar final excitement, "took too much out of me. I was tired, and Bill Kerr had too many good golf shots left."

Robson, six times winner of the Millar, and runner-up to Gray last year was regarded as the shotmaker to end DeLaat's amazing string of successes against players older, heavier, and gifted with much more experience than the former Lambton caddy. When Lex failed it looked as if there was no stopping the march of the 126-pound Hollander, who lost 10 pounds on the way to the final.

Hour Late Starting

A gallery estimated all the way from 2,000 to 3,500 swarmed Islington's tees, fairways, roughs and greens for the title match Saturday afternoon. The finalists were an hour late teeing off. Runnymede Lions Club officials, sponsors of the most dramatic Millar Trophy tournament in history, said the responsibility for the late start rested with the Toronto and District P.G.A., which had charge of the competition arrangements.

The big crowd was badly handled and frantic marshals tried to take care of traffic with a single piece of rope that looked like a couple of shoe laces knotted together.

Kerr hit a girl with his drive at the first hole. At the second DeLaat coned a customer on the head with his tee shot, and it took Chairman George Wagner of the Lions Club tournament committee more than an hour to get a doctor to administer first aid to the casualty. At the same hole Kerr's second shot landed in the crowd when the ball was headed for a trap. Bill won this hole with a birdie four, and DeLaat never caught up.

Count Fleet Retired

The illustrious racing career of Count Fleet, "the horse of the year in 1943" and the colt many thought would better Whirlaway's money-winning record of $561,161, is ended. Don Cameron, trainer of the only three-year-old to sweep the five major stakes in that division, announced Saturday at New York that the Count had been retired because of a wrenched ankle.

Horse Of The Year

Whether or not Twilight Tear competes in the $50,000-added Arlington Park Handicap at Chicago this Saturday, Warren Wright's amazing filly already has clinched "horse of the year" recognition. The fleet three-year-old daughter of Bull Lea did that in no uncertain manner Saturday by waltzing off with the $80,600 Arlington Classic for her 11th straight victory, a feat believed unprecedented among American fillies.

Oshawa Colts Win 5 to 4 Over Switchgear

Switchgear, leaders of the City Softball League battled the classy Oshawa Colts, twice Ontario intermediate A champs, for eleven innings at Riverside Park Saturday evening before bowing out 5 to 4 in an exhibition tilt that was the best-played ball game of the season.

For seven innings a run scored Oshawa represented all the scoring. Colts, who had their full team along, opened the eighth by driving in two more and with a 3 to 0 lead at that stage looked to be well away.

Switchgear were not through, however, and they roared back in their end of the inning to chase in three runs and sew up the game. It was still 3-3 at the end of the orthodox time and the teams fought until the eleventh. Oshawa pushed two runs across in the first of that frame but Switchgear fought back in their half to score a marker with two out and they had the tieing run on third when the game ended.

It was that close. In fact Switch-

Four Home Runs By Nicholson In Doubleheader

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer.

Bill Nicholson, Chicago Cubs' greatest slugging outfielder since Hack Wilsson, may become the first player in National League history to lead the circuit in home runs and runs batted in for two successive years.

He hit four home runs and drove in seven runs to take over or share in the leadership in both departments, as the Cubs and the New York Giants divided a doubleheader yesterday, the Cubs winning the opener 7-4 and the Giants the nightcap 12-10.

Nicholson's four homers in twin bill tied a major league record and deadlocked him with Mel Ott of the Giants for the league lead with 21 each. It also gave Nick six homers in four games, tying another National League mark, held by four players. Big Bill's seven RBI's give him a total of 64, tops in the majors.

Each club tied a loop record when both the Giants and Cubs used seven pitchers in the wild and woolly second game. The total of 14 hurlers is a new major league record, displacing the old one of 12 set by the Cubs and Cincinnati Reds in 1942.

The league-leading St. Louis Browns bounded back after a 12-1 lacing to defeat Boston Red Sox 9-3 in the second game, aided by Vernon Stephens' grand slam home run in the fourth inning.

Cardinals Increase Lead

St. Louis Cardinals increased their first place lead to 13 games by sweeping a double-header from Boston Braves, 3-2 and 5-2.

Two streaks were snapped when the Philadelphia Athletics took both games from the Detroit Tigers, 13-3 and 3-2. It marked the end of the Mackmen's eight-game losing streak and snapped the Tigers' inning skein at six straight. The double loss dropped the Tigers into fifth place.

Brooklyn Dodgers sank deeper into the National League cellar by dropping both games of a twin-bill to the Pittsburg Pirates, 7-5 and 9-4 in 11 innings. It marked the Dodgers' fifth straight loss, and their 21st in the last 23 games.

New York Yankees and Chicago White Sox divided their two games, the Yankees winning the opener 7-6, and the Sox taking the second game 10-6.

Philadelphia Phillies continued their jinx over Bucky Walters of the Reds when they knocked him out of the box and overcame a six-run deficit to in the opener 7-6. Cincinnati won the second game 2-1, when Catcher Ray Mueller homered in the seventh with one on.

Cleveland went over the .500 mark for the first time since May 11 by taking both games from the Washington Senators, 4-3 and 9-5, to move into fourth place.

Weepy-time For Flatbush As Dodgers Drop 21 Of Their Last 23 National League Games

By MICHAEL O'MARA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BROOKLYN, N.Y., July 24—(CP)—As Brooklyn's once-beloved Bums stumble deeper and more hopelessly into the National League cellar, and as the frenzied citizens of Flatbush contemplate the Gowanus canal with near-suicidal intent, there rise over the lesser wailings the soil-felt dirges of the bard of Brooklyn.

He is Roy Richard, the singing newsdealer long familiar to fans arrived by subway at Ebbets Field, home of the impotent Dodgers, currently shamed by a record of 21 losses in their last 23 games.

In the infrequent seasons when Brooklyn has had first-division clubs or pennant-winners, Richard has lifted his tremulous tenor in recitatives of praise for the heroes. This year his paeans have halted. Instead he heaps contumely upon players and management.

Emerging from the subway at Empire Boulevard and Flatbush avenue, one is greeted dolorously by the bard who flaps his copies of the Brooklyn Eagle and sing-songs: "Oh, the Dodgers need an undertaker no-o-o-w-w-w. It's too late for the doctor no-o-o-w-w-w. Oh, it's weepytime in Flatbu-u-u-sh!"

This helps sell newspapers, for Richard is something of a local celebrity, and the fans like to listen to his chants. But Richard isn't in business just to sell newspapers. He regards himself as the minstrel of the Dodgers—their best friend and severist critic.

THEY REMINISCE ON OLD RIVALRY—Connie Mack, Right, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, stops to chat about old times with Johnny Evers, famed former second baseman in the great Chicago Cub double-play trio of "Tinker to Evers to Chance." Occasion was the A's-Red Sox game in Boston which Evers, paralyzed for two years, watched from his car. Evers helped put a gray hair or two in Connie's noggin when Evers and the amazing Boston Braves of 1914 knocked the vaunted Athletics kicking in four straight world series games.

Baltimore Hands Toronto Leafs Double Defeat

(By The Associated Press)

The Baltimore Orioles hold a firmer grip on the International League lead today, and their success is due in no small part to Sherman Lollar.

Lollar is the Birds' catcher, and he was instrumental in the double whipping Baltimore handed Toronto yesterday, 3-1 and 6-0. He blasted four home runs, two in each game, and batted in six of the Flock's nine runs.

Stan (No-Hit) West let the Leafs down with five hits in the opener for his 11th win as Red Embree followed up in the nightcap with a three-hit shutout—his 11th triumph.

The battling Buffalo Bisons have belabored their way to second place on the strength of a five-game winning streak which was climaxed yesterday by a double win over the Red Wings, 4-3 and 8-5. Eddie Kobeskay provided the margin of victory in the first game with his 18th home run, to tie him with Montreal's Moe Aderholt. Mike Roscoe climbed to the top of the league by winning his twelfth game.

Syracuse Chiefs swept a twin bill from Montreal Royals, 8-7 and 6-4. The double victory marked the first time the Royals have lost a bargain bill at home this year.

Butch Mele was the hero of the first game, clouting a home run with two on in the ninth with the Chiefs behind, 6-5. Bob Katz won, although relieved by Bob Mally in the ninth.

Cruickshanks Is Highly Pleased With His Golfing Trip To Canada

TORONTO, July 24—"Greatest holiday," said Bobby Cruickshanks, "I've had in years. I hope to live to enjoy many more like them."

The Scotland-born and United States adopted professional golf star had this to say after the finish of the Millar Trophy golf tournament Saturday afternoon. He competed in the event at the invitation of the Toronto and district P.G.A.

"One of the finest bunch of boys I ever met," Cruickshanks said. "Canada and Toronto are fortunate in having such outstanding hosts, and such keen golfers. They are a credit to a grand, old game."

Born at Grantown-on-Spey, Scotland, Cruickshanks was a classmate of Lex Robson at Stewart's College, Edinburgh. Robson, Cruickshanks and Sandy Armour, an older brother of the celebrated Tommy, were members of the Stewart's College two-ball foursome team years ago.

In 1919 Cruickshanks won his first major golf title, the Coronation Trophy in Edinburgh. The year previous he was beaten in the first round by his old school chum, Lex Robson.

Between golf rounds Saturday Bobby huddled for an hour in reminiscent vein with George Cumming, Toronto Golf Club veteran pro and Nichol Thompson Sr. of Hamilton's Ancaster.

"We played sub-par golf back 20 years," Bobby said, "and I really enjoyed it."

Talking about the big Millar final crowd, Cruickshanks was reminded of his experience at Inwood Club, Long Island in 1923. He and Bobby Jones had tied for the American Open title, and an 18-hole playoff was arranged the next day.

In the excitement Bobby forgot to take his identification badge along when he showed up at Inwood for the playoff. A conscientious gatekeeper refused him admittance, despite Bobby's insistent plea he was trying to keep a date with the famous Bobby Jones. He had to cool his heels at the gate for an hour while a messenger was despatched to the club-house for a tournament official who could identify the presumed gate-crasher.

"What a match," Bobby said. "Never forget it. I took a six on the last hole and Jones a four to beat me."

Another time Cruickshanks and Jones hooked up again. A big crowd was following them. At the edge of the green Cruickshanks paused to take a practice swing. A burly policeman rushed over, grabbed him by the arm.

"Listen, little guy," said the policeman, "this is no place to swing one of those sticks. There's a big match on. And don't let me catch you walking on that green with those spiked shoes, either."

Bobby had a time convincing the law he was one of the big match principals and must hurry away to make his next shot.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 24 — (CP) — You won't find many people complaining about the war-inspired boom that has struck most branches of professional sport, but west coast baseball fans definitely are not happy about the whole thing.

Vancouverites were all built up with the hope they might have a Pacific Coast League franchise next year, since Sacramento was in danger of losing its seat on the Board. But attendance has perked up so at Sacramento that the Club bids fair to make ends meet, and at the same time leave Vancouverites still hoping for big-time ball.

Incidentally, the Sacramento revival was a justification of the faith of some 200 Joe Plians who gambled their savings on the chance the Solons would make a come-back. Their faith saved ball in the city where only a year ago it looked as though interest had died completely.

Incidentally:

The historic Royal Canadian Henley at Port Dalhousie this coming week-end bids fair to be one of the best since the war came on and thinned the ranks of contestants. It was originally expected the meet would be only a two-day affair, but the bulk of the entries justified inclusion of an extra part-day. Before the war, the Regatta used to take a full three days . . . The Balmy Beach Football Club of Toronto has gone commercial to become the second sponsored team in the game's history. The beaches have gone under the wing of a tailoring company (Tip Top Tailors) and will be known as Balmy Beach Tip Tops. Sarnia Imperials, sponsored by an oil company (Imperial Oil), was the first commercial team. Imperials have disbanded for the duration...Neil Colville former New York Rangers star now in the R.C.A.F., has finished a Navigator's course at a Saskatchewan air station...Sgt. Duncan McFarlane, prominent rugger star with Vancouver Rowing Club a few years ago, has been wounded in Normandy...Toronto Maple Leafs are sponsoring a baseball school for promising youngsters who may be future pro loop calibre. Several of the Leafs turn out for each session to give advice and help the boys correct their faults. From this school may develop players to match Phil Marchildon, Dick Fowler and Frankie Colman who will all hit the major leagues.

NEW YORK, July 24. —(AP).— Population of Freedom, N.H., soared to 394 to-day....Mr. Fullerton, this column's erudtie editor, and family arrived there for a two week's vacation. Ossipie river trout are looking for their annual feast on frantic fisherman Fullerton's bati.

The 64-Cent Questions

No fair peeking until you try to answer 'em, but you'll find the answers to these baseball questions (first of a series) down at the end of the column.

No. 1—What pitcher beat the great Walter Johnson six times by a score of 1-0?

No. 2—What pitcher lost the most games in the majors one season, and the following year won the most?

Press Box Banter.

After watching Danny Gardella in some quaint centre fielding for the Giants....The antics including a couple of misjudged fly balls.... a sympathizing scribe said:

"Maybe the guy needs new glasses."

A callous colleague chimed in: "The only thing that'll help him is radar."

Dissa and Data

Art Sampson, drum-beater for the Boston National Football League club, wants one and all to know the team's nick-name is "Yanks"—not "Yankees"; since Secretary - Treasurer William J. Manley married the only girl employee in the International League offices 24 years ago, there hasn't been an office girl, stenographer or secretary of the weaker sex employed there.

Answers to the 64-cent questions: No. 1—Babe Ruth; No. 2, Adolph Luque, of Reds, lost 23 in 1922, won 27 in 1923.

YANKS SAVE "BUSHIDO" VICTIM—This tiny Jap baby, being held by an American soldier, was one of the few survivors of "Death Valley," in the hills of Saipan, so named by our troops because the Jap soldiers killed hundreds of their own troops and families rather than surrender to the Americans. The baby was found almost entirely covered by dirt and was rushed to a hospital in a jeep.

Two Hold-Overs In Jap Cabinet

NEW YORK, July 24—(AP)—Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, former Governor-General of Korea and long an advocate of Japanese expansion, has been named Premier of Japan in a new Cabinet in which Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai bcam Navy Minister, it was announced in a Domei News Agency dispatch broadcast from Tokyo Saturday.

Heading the first new cabinet in Japan since that country entered the war, Kioso succeeds Gen. Hideki Tojo, whose government resigned five days ago almost simultaneously with the first Japanese acknowledgment of the loss to American forces of Saipan, a base that puts U.S. Superfortresses within bombing range of Japan's main cities.

Besides Koiso and Yonai the broadcast, recorded by the Associated Press, listed these other cabinet members:

Belong to Same Army.

The new 64-year-old Premier was Chief of Staff of the Kwantung army in Manchuria before he became Governor-General of Korea. This is the same army group to which Tojo belongs.

Koiso was Overseas Minister in Admiral Yonai's Cabinet that held office from January to July, 1940, and in the Kiranuma Cabinet.

Tokyo previously announced Emperor Hirohito had ordered Yonai, a former Premier, to co-operate with Koiso in the forming of a new government. It intimated the two would serve as co-Premiers.

The U.S. Office of War information interpreted Yonai's presence in the Cabinet as presumably lending full navy aproval to the government jointly selected by the to men. Yonai served as Commander-in-Chief of the combined Japanese Fleet in 1935-36 and was the Navy Minister form 1937 to 1939.

Shigemitsu, who remains as Foreign Minister ,takes over the additional portfolio of Greater East Asia Minister formerly held by Kazuo Aoki. This portfolio, hitherto kept apart from that of the Foreign Minister, encompasses the problems connected with the administartion of Japanese-occupied areas.

Bewdley Boy, 17 Drowns In Rice Lake

BEWDLEY, July 24 (ENS) — A 17-year-old boy, a non-swimmer, was drowned Sunday evening in Rice Lake about a mile off Bewdley, after the anchor rope to which he was holding parted from the row-boat, and the boy sank immediately. The dead boy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. Falls, who live about one mile north of Bewdley. Dragging operations were begun Sunday evening, and continued today.

Falls' 18-year-old companion, Ross Metcalfe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Metcalfe Bewdley, unable to swim, sat by helplessly, while Falls sank to the bottom, and hailed passing boats to the rescue. The water where the drowning took place, is 14 feet deep, with a muddy bottom. After a passing boat remained by the spot to help direct dragging, help was sent for, and Provincial Constables R. Pollard, of Port Hope, and Alex McLeod, Cobourg, arrived to investigate.

F. Metcalf, father of the rescued youth, said he didn't know anything of the tragedy until neighbours told him, and he went to the scene immediately.

The two boys were not believed to have been fishing, but both wore swimming-suits. The drowned boy was first hanging on to the bow of the boat, and it was when he transferred his grip to the anchor rope, it broke, and dropped him into the water.

One of a family of eight, two of his sisters are living in Peterborough, Mrs. George Saires, and Mrs. Harry Stewart.

Couple Urged To Make Peace

At the suggestion of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., who remarked that the dove of peace might consent to visit the parties, a charge against John Joseph Burns of non-support was adjourned in police court this morning after the wife had given her evidence.

Burns was arrested in Lindsay last Thursday and brought down here to face a charge of having failed to support his wife and children during June, July and August of last year.

This morning after considerable bickering, at one stage of which Magistrate Gee threatened to have the accused placed in the cells for contempt to court, Burns offered to make a home for his wife and children on the farm near Bobcaygeon on which he has been working and the case was adjourned to give the parties a chance to get together.

Another family argument was settled amicably this morning when Betty Hull, wife of Leo Hull, of Douro township, asked have a charge against her husband of beating her withdrawn.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., offered no objection and the case was dismissed.

"You have a fine looking wife there," commented Magistrate Gee to the accused. "She is better looking than you are and you had better take care of her."

Council To Meet Friday Due To Holiday

Recommendation of a site for the new City Hall will be received from special City Planning Committee at the meeting of the Council on Friday, July 28, which has been advanced from Tuesday, August 8 by Mayor Hamilton.

In the notice from the City Hall to-day Mayor Hamilton is urging chairmen of committees to arrange for their preparatory meeting at least a day prior to Friday.

Several members of the Council have been casting their eyes across the corner of Simcoe and Water Streets, diagonally across to the north-east angle, commenting that a large section of that block was attracting them, partly because it was central and convenient to the residents of both sides of the river.

One attitude repeatedly mentioned was the wish to avoid expenditure on property if tht city owned a suitable site. The opposite pole of opinion is to the effect that purchase of a centrally located property would entail the razing of some old building, long part of the local scene, and no longer much of an asset in both appearance and utility.

It is expected that the report from the Town Planning Committee will focus Council attention upon the question of site. At any rate, some early action on that detail is an early prospect.

WOUNDED IN FOOT

Word has been received that Major Archie Hamilton of Peterborough, previously reported wounded, was injured by shrapnel in the foot. Major Hamilton is second-in-command of the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders.

India Has Provided For Allies World's Largest Volunteer Army

WASHINGTON, July 24 (Special to The Examiner)—With her vast resources in men and materials, her rapidly expanding industrial capacity, and her strategic position both by land and sea, India is not only the main reservoir of supplies for the entire war zone extending from the Eastern Mediterranean to China, but also the pivot of the United Nation's war activities in the Eastern Hemisphere.

Her war effort is not local but forms an intregal and vital part of that of the United Nations as a whole.

30,000 Volunteers Monthly

India's Army—2,000,000 strong—is the largest army ever raised in Indian history and the largest volunteer army in the world. It is now absorbing recruits at a monthly rate of about 30,000 men, its limiting factor being not lack of volunteers but the amount of equipment available to the United Nations as a whole.

Nearly a fourth of India's Army has been on active service overseas. Indian troops have fought brilliant actions on many of the war fronts. It was they who were largely responsible for the overthrow of Mussolini's African Empire, and they have played an outstanding part in the campaigns in Eritrea, Abyssinia, the Western Desert, Tunisia, Italy, Iraq, Syria and Iran, and in the defence of Hong Kong, Malaya and Burma.

Field Marshal Lord Wavell has stated: "Without the assistance of India, both in troops and in material we certainly could not have held the Middle East, which has been, I think I can claim, the Keystone of our present successes".

To take only one example, up to the battle of El Alamein in October 1942, the Fourth Indian Division had already suffered some 15,000 casualties or one hundred per cent of its strength, but had captured over 100,000 Italian and German prisoners. They had also accounted for numerous enemy tanks and aircraft, not to mention innumerable casualties inflicted on the enemy. After that this famous division was in the forefront of General Montgomery's army in Tusisia, and crowned its achievements by capturing the Nazi General von Arnim. It is now in Italy where the Eighth Indian Division is also doing fine work

In the words of General Sir Alan Hartley, late Deputy Commander-in-Chief of the Indian Army: "The record of the Fourth and Fifth Indian Divisions, the Third Indian Motor Brigade and others in the war in Africa as a whole has been outstanding, and one for which India and the United Nations have reason to be grateful."

The mechanisation of the Indian Army has been rapid and successful as evidenced by the many decorations won by Indian armored forces on all fronts.

India produces the latest types of artillery and her factories and arsenals are well-equipped for all types of repair.

A training school for parachute troops was established early in 1942. The response for volunteers has been excellent. Both Indians and Gurkha soldiers have been found to make first class parachutists.

Navy's Personnel Expands Thirteen-Fold

The Royal Indian Navy has now a personnel thirteen times greater than at the outbreak of war.

Ships of the Royal Indian Navy have played their part in the battle of the Atlantic, in the operations against the Italians in East Africa, the campaign in Iran, the operations in the Dutch East Indies waters, the defence of Singapore, the battle of Burma, and in the major operations of the invasion of Sicily. Today, they are engaged in the duties of escort, patrol and mine-sweeping throughout the Eastern, Middle Eastern and Mediterranean waters.

A feature of India's navy today is the large and increasing number of Indian officers who are in command of ships or other important appointments ashore or afloat, including key staff appointments.

Indian Air Force Spreads Its Wings

The Indian Air Force, expanded ten-fold since the war began, has now spread its wings far afield to the East and to the West. Its planes have taken a large share in protecting India's 5,000 mile coast-line and the many ships leaving or approaching her shores with vital war supplies and troops. Its units have carried out many important raids on enemy territory.

The extent of expansion of the Indian Air Force and its activities may be judged from the fact that in the course of the war, more than 1,000,000 men have been engaged day and night, for months on end, in aerodrome construction.

War Industries All-Round Expansion

For the first two and half years of the war, India was almost wholly responsible for supplying the bulk of the war materials for the strategically vital Middle East.

By July 1943, Indian industry had executed war orders to the value of $1,917,000,000. Output today is several times any comparable figures of the last war, while an enormously larger range of products is evolved, amounting to nearly 20,000 different articles.

The output of India's ordnance factories is now many times the pre-war figures. The production of rifles has increased ten times, that of machine-guns twelve times, bayonets seventeen times, small arms ammunition four times, gun ammunition twenty-seven times, and guns and carriages nine times.

The manufacture of armored fighting vehicles in India has become well established since the Indian steel industry succeeded in producing an armored plate of the required specifications at an early stage of the war.

Extensive demands for structural steelwork of all kinds, both for military purposes and expansion of industry, have been satisfactorily met, and an outstanding achievement has been the successful construction of a floating dock which ranks amongst the largest in the world.

In 1941 an aircraft factory in India turned out the first indigenously assembled aeroplane and thus marked the beginnings of an aircraft industry in India; the factory is primarily engaged in the servicing and repair of aircraft.

Before the war there was no shipbuilding in India. Today, Indian shipbuilding yards are working to capacity on the construction of ships for anti-submarine and general patrol duties, minesweepers, motor launches and other craft. The number of vessels launched in Indian shipyards during 1942 was two and a half times the combined total of 1940 and 1941.

Over 4,000 sea-going vessels of all types were repaired in Indian shipyards during the first two and a half years of the war.

War supplies of textiles produced in India up to June, 1942 amounted to $360,000,000 in value. By the end of 1943 supplies were expected to total $660,000,000.

Thirty-five per cent, of India's cotton textiles production (excluding handlooms), which runs to some 5,000,000,000 yards yearly is now ear-marked for war supply.

The value of Army tents to be supplied n 1943 was $54,000,000 and of Army blankets $9,000,000.

The output of Army clothing in 1943 was over 10,000,000 garments per month, and that of Army footwear over 16,000,000 pairs per year.

HOME ON FURLOUGH—Lieut. J. W. Davey, only son of Rev. J. Davey and Mrs. Davey of Hastings, is spending a furlough at home. After graduating from the University of Toronto in 1939 he enlisted in the Navy and received his commission at King's College, Halifax. For a time he was attached to Naval Intelligence Headquarters at Ottawa, and later was posted to the corvette Trail. While on duty in December, 1943, he was injured and since his recovery he has been on duty at H.M.C.S. Stadacona 2 at Halifax.

Mayor In Last War W. Buller Did Good Job

Surviving members of the council of 1914-15, during the mayoralty of the late W. H. Buller, are Senator Duffus, A. A. McIntyre and William Langford. Other aldermen of that time included the late A. H. Stratton, George H. Duncan, John Anderson, Joseph Saunders, William J. Johnston, G. Walter Green.

Mayor of Peterborough when the last war broke out, Mr. Buller called a public meeting to organize a citizens' committee for the purpose of raising funds for the assistance of dependents of men volunteering for service. The following general committee was appointed to proceed with arrangements: J. H. Burnham, W. H. Bradburn, W. G. Morrow, Vincent Eastwood, A. W. Cressman, John Crane, R. J. Soden, James Lynch, James Kendry, A. H. Stratton, W. J. Johnston, B. D. Hall, Judge Huycke, Harry Rush, E. A. Peck, K.C. with Daniel O'Connell as chairman. The majority of these men have passed away.

Mayor Buller said farewell on behalf of the citizens to the volunteers of the 2nd Battalion who left Peterborough in September for the military rendezvous at Valcartier for training before going overseas. He promised the soldiers that the members of their families would be cared for in their absence, and that pledge was fulfilled in the subsequent administration and financing of the Patriotic Fund down to the end of the war.

Driver Facing Two Charges

George Dodson, 69 Howden Avenue, faced two charges in police court this morning as the consequence of an accident on Highway 28 on the night of July 15.

The accused was charged with reckless driving and also with drunken driving, and at the request of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., the former charge was proceeded with first. Dodson was defended by John A. Bradshaw.

Dr. J. C. Smith, Lakefield, swore that on the Saturday evening in question he was driving his car toward Lakefield and was driving on the east side of the road, when he noticed the lights of a sound-bound car coming around a curve near Gill's butcher shop.

"I noticed that this car seemed to be well over on my side of the road," said the witness, "so I slowed down. As it drew closer it made a sudden swerve toward my car and I stopped with my left front wheels at least four feet east of the centre line of the road. Then the left front side of the other car struck the left front of mine, doing about $50 damage."

Testifies Driver Drunk.

Dodson, Dr. Smith said, was the driver of the other. "Did you notice his condition?" asked the Crown Attorney. "He was suffering from acute alcoholism. He was intoxicated," replied the witness.

Provincial Traffic Officer L. A. McClure told of investigating the accident, several hours afterward. He said that there was a flat front tire on Dodson's machine, and in his opinion that had been caused by the accident. The tire, he said, had not been driven on in a flat condition. Dodson, he said, was under the influence of liquor when he saw him at the scene of the accident.

Sobering Effect.

To Mr. Bradshaw, Officer McClure said that later on in the police station he had remarked that he couldn't hold Dodson on a drunk driving charge. The man, he said, had sobered up considerably by the time he was brought into the station.

Mrs. Jessie Sarrison, who was a passenger in the Smith car, corroborated Dr. Smith's evidence as to the accident and as to the condition of Dodson.

Chief Garnet Samis of Lakefield who investigated the crash, said that Dr. Smith's car was four feet from the centre line of the road on the east side and the debris on the road was under the front fender of the Smith car.

Mr. Bradshaw asked the witness to take apart the tire from Dodson's car that had been produced by Officer McClure and examine the tube.

Crown Attorney McElderry objected, declaring that it was not right that the witness should be called upon to open the tire but defence counsel insisted that he had the right to insist upon the examination being made.

"The Crown will call an expert and have the tire examined," Mr. McElderry promised and it was decided to adjourn for luncheon at that stage to allow the tire to be inspected.

Dieppe Hero Wounded On Return To France

His mother's friends in Peterborough have been following with increasing interest the military fortune and career of Colonel Denis Whitaker of Toronto, grandson of the late W. H. Moore, K.C., for many years prominent in legal and municipal affairs in this city.

Col. Whitaker won the D.S.O. at Dieppe, where he landed with the first wave of Canadian assault troops. He enlisted a month after the outbreak of war went overseas in June, 1940, was promoted to captain in August, 1941. In the invasion of Normandy he was injured about the face, but a cable to his wife in Toronto indicated that he was not seriously injured.

CIVILIAN MAIL

Suspended for more than three years, some civilian mail has been coming through from the southern area of Italy, which Allied forces have cleared of the enemy.

W. H. Buller Dies At Week-End Mayor In 1914-15

William Henry Buller, former mayor and alderman of Peterborough and a well-known figure in the city where he spent all his life, passed away on Saturday morning at Nicholls Hospital after a short illness. He was in his 83rd year.

For two terms mayor of Peterborough, in 1914 and 1915, Mr. Buller had also served as an alderman during eight years, and during his long and active career was associated with many enterprises looking towards the welfare of the city. He was long a member of the Charity Board, was an ardent supporter of the Hydro, and in the last war served as chairman of the Patriotic Committee.

In his commercial life, Mr. Buller was for many years engaged in the fuel and cartage business; and latterly had held the position of collector of inland revenue for 20 years, until his retirement 12 years ago. He was a member of All Saints' Anglican Church, was its first warden and was ever active in church work. His home was at 274 King street.

Mr. Buller was born in the city the son of the late Joseph Buller and Nancy Mason, and was educated in the Public and High schools of Peterborough. His wife predeceased him in May, 1928. He belonged to Peterborough Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Otonabee Lodge, I.O.O.F., and was a member of the Orange Order.

He leaves to mourn his loss two sons, C. M. Buller, of Brantford, and E. F. Buller, of London; two daughters, Mrs. Harold Burns (Blythe) and Hazel at home; and three grandchildren, Mrs. Gordon Adams and Miss Mary Buller, of Brantford, and William K. Buller, of London.

The funeral will be held on Tuesday at 2:30 p.m. from All Saints' Anglican Church to Little Lake Cemetery for interment, Rev. W. A. Filer will officiate.

Delay Sentence In Driving Case

Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning reserved judgment for a week in a charge against Donald Lloyd of having been drunk in charge of a car, after the argument of counsel had been heard.

Evidence in the case was heard last week and the case had been adjourned until this morning.

W. J. Arthur Fair, for the defence, argued that the case came squarely within the judgment of His Honor Judge Smoke in Rex vs. Armstrong case in which the county judge had quashed a conviction made by Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. on the ground that the evidence showed that the accused had been so hopelessly drunk that it would have been impossible for him to have driven an automobile. Mr. Fair contended that the facts in the Lloyd case were similar.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C. referred His Worship to a decision of the Nova Scotia Appeal Court in which he claimed that the court had ruled that mens rea was not an essential ingredient in charges of this nature.

Magistrate Gee announced that he would reserve judgment until next Monday in order to give him a chance to read over the cases mentioned.

Two More

A drunken driving charge against Rollie Saltern of Dummer township was adjourned for a week at the request of W. J. Arthur Fair who is defending the accused.

George Connelly, charged with having been drunk Saturday night, succeeded in getting a week's adjournment.

"This man was charged in court Saturday morning with being drunk, was allowed to go and was arrested against Saturday night, Inspector Reid told the court.

"That was probably all one drunk," Magistrate Gee remarked.

SERVING OVERSEAS—Lieut. J. J. D. Londerville, R.C.A.P.C., is serving overseas. His wife lives at Cricket Place, and he is the son of Mrs. J. S. Londerville, 33 Reid street. He was a member of the Prince of Wales Rangers (R.F.) before going active a year ago, and prior to enlisting, Lieut. Londerville was on the staff of King Edward School.

KILLS ADDER — Eugene McLaughlin, farmer in Belmont township, recently killed a blowing adder, 3 feet 2 inches in length and 2½ inches thick, in his fields. It is believed to be the first snake of its kind found in this district.

Belmont Farmer Kills Blowing Adder

HAVELOCK, July 24. —(ENS).— Eugene McLaughlin, a well known farmer who resides about a mile west of Havelock, in Belmont township, found a blowing adder measuring 3 feet 2 inches in length and 2½ inches thick, which he killed when returning to his house after stacking hay in the barn.

The adder was directly in his path and was puffed up ready to strike when he noticed it. He immediately gave battle wtih the hay fork which he was carrying and killed it. Mr. McLaughlin stated that to the best of his knowledge it is the first snake of this kind to be found in this district.

Sgt. Frederick Brisco Now Believed Dead

Sgt. Frederick Brisco, R.C.A.F., reported missing December 20, 1943, after several operational trips out of England, is now for official purposes presumed dead, the latest casualty list of the Air Force revealed today. The 21-year-old air gunner is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Brisco, 28 Chester street.

Before enlisting in August, 1942, Sgt. Brisco was employed in the Switchgear Department of the C.G.E. He trained at Manning Pool, Jarvis, at Trenton, and won his wings at Macdonald, Man., in May of last year.

An only son, he attended May's School and played some hockey on school teams and baseball in the church league. He also attended the Collegiate.

Garden Meeting Of Club Gives Fund Aid

This is the season of the year when picnics and outdoor pleasures are very much in vogue, although it is not often that a morning Coffee Club would be able to indulge in such a one as occurred recently on the grounds of a local residence, only a few minutes walk from the centre of the business district of the city.

After a long winter indoor season, it is no small wonder that the vast majority of people love to get out into the open, and enjoy to the full the beauties of creation which speak to a Christian professing people of the bounties that are theirs through the work of an Almighty hand.

For the second year in a row, the morning Coffee Club held a regular session on the lawn at the home of one of its habituees, and there was considerable interest in a well kept garden which had as great a variety of flowers and produce as one could see in any similar one of its size.

This session however differed from most of those regularly held each week day morning, for instead of the usual 10 cents a cup, all those present for the occasion each gave one dollar that would come to the Peterborough and District British War Victims Fund, and a number of the members who were unable to be in attendance, also sent a dollar, with the net result that today the fund is able to record a donation of $15 in their name.

Perhaps the recording of this effort might be of inspiration to others to similar deeds for such a worthy cause, for there is at the moment a largely increased need, up to the minute reports telling of even greater numbers of robot bombs being hurled against the civilian population in Britain, than that which occurred in the early days when the enemy first began to use this cowardly and devilish means in an attempt to stave off the day of retribution.

To apply for the amount you need just tell us about your problem and choose a convenient payment schedule. No endorsers or guarantors are ever required. Household Finance loans are made largely on character and earning ability.

Choose your own payments

Notice that you may repay your loan in monthly instalments which can be made with only a small part of your current earnings. Twelve monthly instalments of $9.46 each—a total of $113.52—will repay a $100 loan in full. The cost of this loan is $13.52. If repaid in six monthly instalments a $100 loan costs only $7.10. You are welcome to repay on the schedule that's best for you—and to repay ahead of schedule at any time to reduce the cost. Payments shown repay principal and charges. Our rate of charge (see below) includes all costs. You pay nothing more—no hidden charges, no extras of any kind.

Money for most any purpose

Don't hesitate to bring your problem to Household whatever it may be. Household makes loans to pay old debts, taxes, doctor bills, insurance, to lay in coal, help relatives—for most any purpose. Phone, write or visit Household Finance today.

IN MEMORIAM

BURFIELD—In loving memory of our dear son Pte. Arnold N. Burfield who died in Sicily, July 23, 1943.

Somewhere in Sicily in a soldiers grave
Lies our dear son, among the brave
He never shunned his countries call,
But gladly gave his life, his all
He died the helpless to defend
A faithful soldiers noble end.
—Sadly missed by Mother, Father, sister Gillian, brothers Jack and Bruce.

BURFIELD—In loving memory of our dear brother, Pte. Arnold N. Burfield who died in Sicily one year ago July 23, 1943.

We often think we see his smiling face,
As we bade his last good-bye.
In a distant land to die.
—Ever remembered by his sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Downer.

BURFIELD—In loving memory of Pte. Arnold N. Burfield who died in Sicily July 23, 1943.

For you who answered duty's call
We deeply grieve to-day.
You who went forth to win or fall—
Yours was the warrior's way.
Where-er you lie—'tis honored dust.
Or you be truly said:
Our comfort is the old time trust
God rest his own brave dead.
—Lovingly remembered by his sister and brother-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone Forsyth.

Mining Features

Scarab Yellowknife Syndicate is acquiring two groups of claims in the Yellowknife district, according to R. B. Stuart, syndicate manager. As soon as the properties are acquired management intends to start exploration work.

◇ ◇ ◇

Mining Research Corp. is reported making arrangements to locate a resident engineer and staff in the Yellowknife area.

◇ ◇ ◇

Diamond-drilling has been started at West Shore Malartic Gold Mines. Two holes were spotted by J. P. Norrie.

◇ ◇ ◇

Latest drill hole completed by Orpit Mines on its McCauley-Bridge property in the Porcupine district has returned very impressive results, it is reported, returning a wide intersectin of medium grade ore. It is the most westerly hole yet drilled on this zone, which now has an indicated length of about 500 feet and an average true width of least 30 feet.

The price tendency was downward on light volume in the early session of the Toronto stock exchange to-day and turnover totalled 337,000 shares for the first three hours. The golds dipped in the opening period and recovered in the average before noon.

A gain of 80 cents for Pioneer to 4.25 off-set weakness in other gold issues. Buffalo - Ankerite, Kerr - Addison, MacLeod-Cockshutt and Teck-Hughes were other strong golds. Weakness ruled for Frobisher, Giant Yellowknife, Dome, Hollinger, O'Brien, Powell-Rouyn, Negus and Conwest.

In the base metals Nickel ruled a bit higher while losses appeared for Hudson Bay, Noranda, Smelters and Steep Rock.

Trading was light in the industrial section and prices were lower for the Liquor, Utility, Senior Oil and Paper groups.

Canada In Van To Save World

LONDON, July 24 (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill told Canadian airmen at an all-Canadian airfield in Normandy that hopes of victory "are sure" and said "we seek nothing that is not our own."

"We have fought for honor and we seek no reward," he said, according to a despatch to the Daily Mail from Courtenay Edward. "We seek no territory; we desire no oilfields; we seek nothing that is not our own."

"But what is our own in the Commonwealth—that we don't want any other people to express an opinion about. That we will firmly retain."

In Right Direction

The despatch said the airmen he addressed, during his three-day visit to the Normandy bridgehead, included Wing Cmdr. J. E. (Johnny) Johnson, English-born leader of an RCAF fighter wing.

"Over the ocean, over the seas and over the fields of France lies the victory that will send you back to your great country," he told the Canadians. "It is a long way from Canada, but it is in the right direction."

"I have no hesitation in saying that the British Commonwealth, with Canada in the van with our old country, saved the world and has given other countries time to rearm or time to recognize where their place was in the struggle.

Hope of Victory Sure

"Now I think that hopes of victory are sure, but whether it is coming soon or late I cannot tell."

Edwards' despatch said that RCAF officers and ground crews were waiting for Mr. Churchill at a dispersal point near the end of the runway of an advance airfield not many miles from the enemy lines.

Bracken Denounces Attack On Bouchard

OTTA A, July 24—(CP).—John Bracken, National leader of the Progressive Conservative party, Saturday dissociated himself from an article attacking Liberal Senator T. D. Bouchard in the party's Quebec Provincial organ. Mr. Bracken said the article referred to Senator Bouchard as a "quisling."

(Senator Bouchard charged in his maiden speech in the Senate that the Order of Jacques Cartier was plotting to establish Quebec province as an independent, Catholic state.)

Mr. Bracken made public a telegram to Bona Arsenault of Quebec, publisher of L'Opinion Publique, describing the article as a "particularly virulent attack," and said that unless there was in future to be "complete authorization" for all statements he did not wish to be associated with the publication either personally or on behalf of the party.

"We cannot and will not adopt one policy in Quebec and another for the rest of Canada," he added.

Small Boys Driving Bluebirds From City

Fewer bluebirds than usual have been around the city this year, and Alex Kay remarked to the Examiner to-day that he felt concern about their absence.

"They were here early in the spring, all right," Mr. Kay said, "but that was only for a few days of their stay here in migration. Many of these beautiful birds, among the first to come and also late in going, used to be seen all around the city, but their number has been decreasing and especially to the south-east of the city."

Starlings and small boys share the blame for the noticeable decline in the bluebirds in this area. Positive evidence points in both directions, and the public that loves this senstive and beautiful bird has present cause for joining in Mr. Kay's uneasiness.

two season ago....Soup Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe, will probably retire on his laurels now. He batted once in a league game this season and got a hit. He came back with two for two here Saturday, and now with a season's record of three hits in three times up he will probably figure that is enough for a good talking point and stay on the bench for the rest of the campaign....Oshawa Colts brought all their regulars here Saturday, except Preem Whiteley. They figured McLaughlin could get through without help, and he just did manage to do that....Lex Robson was eliminated in the semi-final of the Millar Trophy Saturday by DeLaat, who was defeated in the final by Bill Kerr....Bill Spittal, of Peterborough, also lost out in the consolation semi-final....Mountain View Bomberettes will play Westclox here Saturday in two games at 3 p.m. and 7 p.m. at Riverside Park.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

On Wednesday, July 26 will be an off day at the bowling club. By that we mean it will be an "off day" for the greens and an "off night" for our bowlers. There is nothing particularly scheduled for that date. The greens will be available for any one who wishes to arrange for a postponed game or for a friendly match. In others words it gives the members of our organization, the ones who are working quietly behind the scenes, just a little holiday.

On Friday afternoon of this week we are to have the provincial playoffs for District No. 14 played on the local greens. This is the first time for many years that our club has been so favored. The games are well worth seeing and no doubt many of our local bowlers will be around during the afternoon. The games are scheduled to start at 1:30 p.m. Our representatives are:

Singles—C. Renaud.

Doubles—H. Coleman and W. Jeffries.

Rinks—C. Williamson, S. Williams, Judge S. Smoke, Geo. Gimblett, skip.

If our boys are fortunate enough to survive the afternoon game they will play the finals in the evening. These games will in no way effect our Friday night tournment. There is room for all.

At Kew Beach Lawn Bowling Club on Saturday, C. Renaud, N. Routley and H. Darling were successful in winning three games. They were placed third, only three points behind the trophy winners. Each received merchandise credit slips.

Another nice crowd came out on Saturday night for the usual weekend mixed tourney. The three 7-end games seem to be just about right.

Winning rinks:

First—Mrs. G. Nimmons, A. Mauder, Mrs. L. Campbell, R. Burns, skip.

Second—Mrs. Douglas, R. Brown, T. Doughty, R. Downey, skip.

Oshawa Colts

gear could just as easily have won as lost for after scoring three in the eighth, they had runners on second and third with only one out and a hit there or even a long outfield fly would have meant victory. Again in the ninth Anderson tripled with only one gone and once more the the winning run was on third, to remain there when the next two batters failed.

A Pitching Duel

It was a neat pitching duel between Dean McLaughlin, drop-ball pitcher of the Colts, and Ronnie Akers for Switchgear and honors were about even. Akers allowed 13 hits as against 10 registered off McLaughlin, but on the other hand the Peterborough pitcher walked only one batter while the Colt hurler passed four.

Both pitchers were backed by smart fielding and the three miscues recorded in the box-score played no part in the run-getting.

Ossie Anderson, borrowed from the Soldiers, sparked Switchgear offensively and defensively. In the field he handled nine chances at second base flawlessly while at bat he led the homesters with a triple and two singles in six trips to the plate. The feature fielding play was contributed by Frank McCormick, centre fielder for Switchgear in the eighth when he made a diving catch of Little's low liner to short centre.

Hall and Dean McLaughlin sparked the Oshawa attack with three hits each while George "Soup" Campbell who got into the ball game in the seventh had two for two and his second safety drove in the run that put Colts ahead in the eleventh.

Oshawa got the only run in the first seven innings in the second frame when Dean McLaughlin led off with a sizzling single through short and went to second on Magee's sacrifice. Demerse flied to Anderson but Barker shot a triple down the right field foul line to send Dean McLaughlin in after which V. McLaughlin rolled to Akers.

A Big Inning

That was all until the eighth. Both teams had chances but the needed hits were not forthcoming.

Dalton opened the first half of the eighth by drawing Akers only walk of the game. Hall beat out a bunt, and the two advanced while Akers was tossing out Trewin. McCormick made a circus grab of Little's line drive to centre. Dalton scoring after the catch. Dean McLaughlin singled to short. Magee ripped a double to right, scoring Hall, after which Demerse rolled out.

That left Switchgear down 3 to 0 but the homesters wiped out the margin with a sudden uprising in their end of the frame. Anderson opened by beating out a slow roller to third. Carpenter walked and Ashmore dropped a single into centre, filling the bases. McLaughlin uncorked a wild pitch, scoring Anderson. McCormick bunted safely, filling the bases again. Mowry flied to Trewin in right, the runners being held. Brockley then blazed a double into left centre, scoring Carpenter and Ashmore and sewing up the game. There was a good chance for more but Holmes flied to short centre and Nicholls rolled out.

Switchgear had a great opportunity to win the game in the last of the ninth when Ossie Anderson tripled to deep right field with one out and then stood on third while Carpenter fanned and Ashmore flied to Little in left.

Oshawa won out in the eleventh. Magee singled to right, went to second while Akers was tossing out Demerse and scored on Campbell's single to short left. V. McLaughlwin struck out but Dalton slashed a double to right to score Campbell with the second run of the inning.

As it turned out the Colts needed them both. In Switchgear's half, Nicholls struck out and Akers rolled to second. Anderson singled off Hall's shins and Carpenter boomed a long triple to deep right centre, scoring Anderson. He might have stretched the rap into a homer to tie up the game but he was held at third and was still there with the tieing run when Ashmore struck out to end the game.

ACT LIKE A DECLARER

PLENTY OF players do a thorough job of planning when in the role of declarer, sizing up the situation in each suit, counting the number of tricks apparently destined to be won or lost, or both, and looking for the places where additional ones may be developed or the means of cutting down losers. Many of these same players refuse to do the same work when on the defense, whereas they really should go through about the same processes before making a move.

Pass	1♥	2♣	2♦
3♣	Pass	4♣	4♦
5♣	5♦

West led the club 3, East winning with the K and returning the A, which South ruffed with the diamond 2. The diamond K was taken by the A, and East fired back a third club, which South ruffed with the diamond 3. Two more diamonds cleared the trump suit, and North's four hearts then enabled South to discard his two losing spades, making the contract.

East bungled his only chance to defeat the contract because of mental laziness. When he won the first trick, he should have figured out the details of each suit. Clubs would have been clearly hopeless, had he done this, as West was marked with four cards from the bidding, and South therefore with a singleton. Obviously no trick was possible in hearts, and only one in diamonds. By that elimination process, East should have seen that the only possible chance for the setting trick was in spades. That in turn depended entirely on West having the K.

With such an analysis, East would have seen the absolute necessity of a spade lead, to preserve the only hope for his side. Actually, it made no difference what spade he led. Returning the suit to the second trick, while he had the diamond A as a re-entry, would have beaten the contract, producing a spade trick as soon as he scored his trump.

If South tries to sacrifice at 5-Hearts over the opponents' 4-Spades, why is it specially advisable for West to double on this deal?

Average American Pays $1.75 For War To Canadians $1.00

OTTAWA, July 24 — (CP) — For every dollar the average Canadian has spent on the present war the average American has spent $1.75 according to an unofficial analysis of recent financial statements by the Governments of the two countries.

Canada's total war expenditures up to the end of the last fiscal year, March 31, as reported in Finance Minister Ilsley's Budget statement, were $10,558,856,000. The total war expenditure of the United States to June 30, as disclosed in the Treasury's year-end report, was $199,940,000,000.

With the population of Canada taken as 11,500,000 and of the United States as 132,000,000, the per capita total expenditures of the two countries work out at $918 for every man, woman and child in Canada, and $1,644 for every man, woman and child in the United States.

The two periods covered are not strictly comparable as the United States figures include three recent months not covered by the Canadian figures, but Canada was in the war in 1939, and the United States not until 1941.

Last Year Compared.

For the last fiscal year, as reported by tht two Governments, the Canadian per capita expenditure was $402 and the United States $678. Total war and non-war expenditures, per capita for the last fiscal year, were $466 for Canada and $710 for the United States.

In raising money by taxation Canada did better in relation to United States figures than in total expenditure. The per capita receipts of the Canadian Government, less refundable taxes, were $234 in the last fiscal year while those of the United States were $250 per capita. Canada's deficit added to the per capita debt of Canadians the sum of $231 last year, while United States citizens added $375.

On the basis of these figures, financial authorities said no deductions could be drawn as to the relative intensity of effectiveness of the war effort in the two countries.

Greater Wealth.

The United States figures run to more dollars for several reasons. One is the greater wealth of the country which involves the employment of more capital.

A more significant reason, however, is the higher level of prices and wages prevailing in the United States. The total war expenditure covers the purchase of all supplies, weapons, ammunition, ships and other war materials bought by the Government, and covers all wages and salaries paid out either directly by the Government or indirectly to persons employed on Government contracts.

Thus wages and prices are a decisive factor in building up the dollar value of the war effort.

Western Infantry Unit Battles Germans In Fields Of Waist-High Wheat

By ROSS MUNRO.
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 24 — (CP Cable) — Western infantry led the Canadian thrust five miles south of Vaucelles between St. Andre and Bourguebus, and through fields of waist-high wheat fought German infantry and tanks in a violent action which preceded the capture of both towns Friday.

This fight of the westerners took place late Thursday afternoon and evening and softened up the German defence line for a new attack by other Canadian troops.

The regiment gained 2½ miles and although half a dozen German tanks overran some of its positions, it only yieded half a mile. The westerners made a rapid advance towards objectives between Bourguebus and St. Andre, clearing out every German position, and then meeting enemy tanks.

No Times To Dig In.

The Canadains hadn't had time to dig in, and there was confused fighting for several hours at the tanks milled around, one enemy tank was knocked out and the western unit took up positions which were held firmly until Canadian tanks came up to deal with the enemy armor.

Officers who led the men through some of the toughest fighting were: Majors Len Dickin, Abernethy, Sask., and John Edmondson, Estevan, Sask.; and Lieut. Frank Mathers, Estevan, Sask.

Edmondson, who commanded the leading company, said the 2½-mile avance was made "just as we wanted to do it," and then his men spotted tanks to the left.

"At first we thought they might be friendly, but when they got close sure found out they weren't," he said. "Before our men could dig in they were upon us, firing with high explosive shells and machine-guns.

"The tanks clanked right in among us, and we shot our Piats at them as we scattered through the wheat. The company had to crawl back several hundred yards through fields of wet wheat until we reached a better position, where we linked up with more of our regiment.

Lay Near Tank

"One officer was forced to lie within 25 feet of an enemy tank for an hour before he could get away.

"We dug in with the others and got a message through for tank support which came up later.

"Our men are quite happy and feel they have the German infantry beaten hands down."

Other companies were engaged in similar fierce actions. Here are some of the stories told after the battle:

Sgt. James Main of Winnipeg was operating on the left of Edmondson's forward company, and he and his platoon captured about 20 Germans.

"They came at us with their hands up from all over the place," he said. "Some of them were 200 yards away from us. They would shout "Kamerad! Kamerad!" and 'Don't shoot! don't shoot!'

"The infantry was a pushover for us, but the tanks were tough." Cpl. Angus Hamilton, a logger from Comox, B.C., led a platoon when its officer and sergeant became casualties, and he and his handful of men wiped out a German Platoon position.

Bagged 11 Germans

Cpl. Vernon White, a farmer from Wawota, Sask., personally accounted for 11 Germans, but said: "After all, they were only a bunch of schoolboys."

He was referring to Germans of 16 or 17 who were included in the force the Canadians fought against.

White broke his Sten gun over the head of one of the Germans and shot up a couple more of the enemy with his rifle, lost it and picked up a German rifle to shoot 10 or 11 more Germans.

He said of his comrades: "I guess the guys who went into this show were the best guys I have ever seen. They couldn't have done any better."

The ace shot of this outfit is Pte. Horace Badcock of Melfort, Sask., who used to work in St. Catharines, Ont., before joining the Army. He is a sniper and his score for the night's work was 19 Germans.

His running-mate was Pte. John Ducharme, Kagriver, Alta., who said:

"I guess I got 10 at least. We went in with 100 rounds each and came out with 13 each. Nothing was wasted."

Peterborough Visitor Hears Husband Missing

While visiting Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Northover, 280 Maude street, Mrs. G. W. Gardner, Petrolia, Ontario, received word Friday afternoon that her husband, Flight-Lieutenant George William Gardner, Petrolia, has been reported missing after air operations.

Flt.-Lieut. Gardner was attached to the Bison Squadron, and it was only recently he wrote his wife, telling her of wounds in the leg, received by shrapnel while on an operational flight, when his plane was badly smashed by flack, and the compass shot away. But the 28-year-old flier made a quick recovery, and was out on flights again within 12 days.

He has been in the Air Force more than three years, and was commissioned at Moncton in 1942. He went overseas in September, 1943. His year-old daughter, Gwynne, is with Mrs. Gardner in Peterborough.

Additional Information Refused On Slaying Of Allied Fliers

LONDON, July 24—(CP)—German broadcasts today said the Reich government had refused to communicate any further with Britain on the killing of 50 British and Allied fliers, including six Canadians, after breaks from German prison camps in March.

A statement broadcast by D.N.B. said the German government "most strongly repudiates" British charges that the men were murdered.

It added that in view of "the unheard of demeanor" of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden in making such charges in the House of Commons before receiving any final report from Berlin, "the German government refused to make any further communication regarding the matter."

Sir James Grigg, Secretary of State for War, informed the House of Commons this week that 33 more airmen had been slain by the Germans but gave no details.

The German statement said "in March this year British prisoners of war in large numbers escaped from various camps in Germany," and added that "steps taken to recapture them were completely successful."

"During the roundup it was found that certain action which had been planned had been foiled," D.N.B. said.

"This action had been prepared in contact with elements abroad.

"To recapture the prisoners from one of the camps German security forces, owing to attempts at resistance or escape, had in cases to make use of their arms.

"A number of the prisoners lost their lives in the process."

TONS OF FOOD ARE GOING TO WASTE IN THIS DISTRICT UNLESS YOU ACT NOW!

Men of Peterborough! It's up to YOU!

There is not available at this moment one half the farm help required to save the abundant food crops ready for harvest on farms in this community. Yet these crops must be saved to feed our invading armed forces—to whom food is as vitally important as ammunition. They can't win if they don't eat.

The success of our invading armies depends more and more upon us at home. As our armies advance further into enemy-controlled territory more supplies must be kept flowing to them. And particularly more food. Liberated people—starved under Nazi domination—must be fed. Canada is the storehouse which must provide much of that food supply.

But Canada's stockpiles of food have been drained and have to be replenished. After a light crop last year from Ontario farms, this year's abundant crops are doubly important.

Unless every available man in this Community will give his spare hours—evenings, week-ends, half-days, holidays—thousands of bushels of grain will waste in the fields of this district—food that is vitally needed for Victory.

★ Council — You can lend, effectively, the weight of your official influence by appeals to your townsmen; by proclaiming a "Help the Farmer" holiday when the situation demands; by permitting municipality vehicles to transport commandos to and from farms; by giving leadership in organization work.

★ Employers — You can give vital assistance by releasing a shift, or your entire staff, for a day or more; by impressing the urgency of their going to the farms for the period of release.

★ Merchants — You can organize to go in a body with your staffs on the weekly half-holiday, evenings and week-ends; or you could close your stores for an entire day once a week to assist during this critical period.

★ Clergymen — You can impress the need on congregations; call organization meetings of your men and boys; assist service clubs and other bodies to organize enlistments.

★ Mechanics — Also artisans, labourers, clerks, salesmen, students. You can provide the greatest service because you constitute the largest body of citizens. Assist in organization wherever you can, but particularly in pledging your spare hours to help on the farms.

★ Service Clubs — You can add to your laurels of social service by enrolling members for this most constructive task; by forming committees to work in co-operation with commando headquarters on many phases of the work.

Hitler Names Goering Defence Head

Council For Defence Of The Reich Set Up By Hitler

LONDON, July 25—(AP).—Adolf Hitler appointed Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering chairman of the Council for Defence of the Reich tonight and issued a decree ordering total mobilization of Germany and occupied territories.

Propaganda Minister Goebbels was appointed commissar for the total war effort of the Reich. Earlier, Henrich Himmler had been appointed commander-in-chief of the German home army in the aftermath of the announced bomb attempt on Hitler's life last Thursday.

A vast blood purge of the Prussian military leadership, from general officers down to majors, had been reported in progress in Germany since then.

The announcement by DNB, official German news agency, said the corpulent Goering will supervise German railways, the German postal service, all public institutions and industries with the view of limiting or simplifying all matters not directly connected with the war effort. He may issue directives to the highest Reich authorities.

50 Miles From Warsaw.

The governmental reorganization came with Russian army groups less than 50 miles from Warsaw, less than 150 from German Silesia, and within artillery range of East Prussia. In France, American and British armies were on the offensive. In Italy, two shattered German armies were reeling back toward the Gothic line in the north.

The announcement said Goering himself appointed Goebbels to the post of commissar for total war effort of the Reich and could in the future "demand information from and give instructions to the highest Reich authorities."

(The wording suggested that he might indeed give orders to Hitler or Himmler, becoming in effect the de facto German dictator. Reports in the past few months from neutral countries have suggested that Goering might eventually head the German government in a Nazi effort to secure something less than unconditional surrender.)

1,500 Bombers On One Mission

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 25—(AP)—Well over 1,500 United States heavy bombers, the greatest fleet of four-engined aircraft ever dispatched on a single mission, and an equal number of lighter planes were thrown against the Germans in the western sector of the Normandy front today to carve a path of advance for a new American offensive.

The bombardment, which began about 10 a.m. (4 a.m., E.D.T.) and lasted 2½ hours, was unleashed after R.A.F. medium bombers cracked down on enemy troop concentrations southeast of Caen in support of the new British-Canadian offensive. R. A. F. Mustang fighters lashed at ground forces in the same

Allied Armies Have Pushed Within 10 Miles Of Florence

By NOLAND NORGAARD—Associated Press Correspondent

ROME, July 25—(AP).—Steadily driving the Germans from one defensive position after another, Allied armies pushed within 10 miles of Florence and made limited gains elsewhere today along the Italian battlefront. Official reports from the battle sectors said the tempo of the fighting had dwindled as the Germans gradually gave ground while preparing their defences along the north bank of the Arno River between Florence and the west coast.

The greatest threat to the Nazi defenders of Florence was from the south. Allied 5th and British 8th Army units steadily drove the enemy back on an arc running southwest to southeast of the historic city.

Moving Up Highway.

Units moving up Highway No. 2—main artery to Florence from the south—seized the town of Strada and captured 60 Germans. To the east of Strada South Africans seized Monte Fili and their armored cars pushed on against brisk opposition.

British guardsmen fighting alongside South African troops gained the heights of Monte Domini, two miles from the town of Greve and 12 miles south and slightly east of Florence. Greve was found clear of enemy troops.

British in the Tiber Valley also advanced, a spearhead reaching the vicinity of Sansepolcro, 10 miles northwest of Citta Di Castello.

A dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent Doug How said last night British units were near Monte Marciano, five miles northeast of Nallen San Giovanni.

The Germans managed to stabilize the Adriatic front somewhat and brought up long-range cannon and shelled the port of Ancona but failed to prevent the continuation of the port repairs. Polish troops meanwhile brought up tanks for an assault on Ostra, 18 miles west of Ancona.

Marines Hammer Capital Of Guam

PEARL HARBOR, July 25.—(AP).—American forces have stormed almost a mile inland on Tinian and captured the western third of the island's main airdrome, while in another invasion of the Marianas at Guam, 125 miles to the south, they have isolated another major airstrip and are hammering at the approaches to Agana, capital of the former United States possession.

War Correspondent Clinton Green said Marines went ashore on Tinian after probably the greatest half-hour air, naval and land-based bombardment yet concentrated on a single island in the Pacific.

The Japanese did not open fire until the ninth landing wave, and then only with mortars and machine-guns—"lightly, compared to Saipan."

Only major island in the southern Marianas upon which Americans have no yet landed is Rota, midway between Guam and Tinian. It was attacked by carrier aircraft Sunday.

In British New Guinea, the vanguard of 45,000 Japanese trapped near Wewak, again three times attacked American lines east of Aitape in a desperate new attempt to break through to Japanese-held Dutch territory.

They drove straight into American lines in a column of companies, only to be mowed down by 75 MM. and 105 MM. artillery fire.

Russian Army 50 Miles From Warsaw

40 Miles Advanced In 24 Hours Made By Soviet Armies

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 25—(AP).—Swift Russian columns paced by churning tanks, Kuban Cossacks, and swarms of planes were less than 50 miles to-day from Warsaw after splitting German armies in the heart of Poland by capturing Lublin and Lukow.

The Russian drive over the dusty, unobstructed plains carried the Red Army 40 miles forward in 24 hours. More than 12 hours ago, they were on the approaches of Siedlce (which the Germans said they had evacuated), 50 miles east of the Polish capital.

The Soviets were less than 20 miels from the Wisla (Vistula) River, which flows by Warsaw and forms the last natural barrier to Germany itself. A swift crossing of the Wisla could outflank the Warsaw region and expose the garrison of the city of 1,265,700 to attack from the south.

150 Miles from Silesia.

Red pilots reported scenes of panic around Warsaw, with roads choked with transport. The main frontal assault toward Warsaw was 50 miles wide and indications were that other army groups from the north-east Bug River and from captured Lublin were about to join in a co-ordinated assault on the capital, 319 miles from Berlin.

60 Miles Behind.

(The German communique reported bitter fighting continuing inside Lwow, third city of Poland already bypassed and 60 miles behind Red army vanguards. The Nazis asserted thier Lublin garrison still was resisting "superior enemy forces attacking from all sides.")

Positions of other Russian groups as shown by communiques were:

Within two hours forced march of East Prussia.

Outflanking Kaunas in the Lithuanian republic.

Virtually at the border of southern Estonia after advancing nine miles northwest of Pskov.

108 miles east of Krakow.

120 miles east of Lodz and 42 miles east of Radom.

(The Germans said the Russians were preparing another offensive north of Iasi, 174 miles northeast of the Romanian oil centre of Ploesti).

Attack Resumed

Southeast of Narva, the Russians assumed their attack from their bridgehead inside the Soviet Estonian Republic in the 30-mile corridor between Lake Peipus and the Baltic Sea. This seemed to be an offensive along the Gulf of Finland toward the Estonian capital of Tallinn.

Russia's seven great Army groups moved westward with air support never matched in the east, brushing aside any obstacles encountered. It appeared that the next few hours would determine whether Hitler would attempt a stand on the Wisla. Fleeing groups of dusty, tattered Germans were declared rushing for the closest bridges on the River.

Break Completed

Washington, July 25 (AP)

THE recall to Argentina of Ambassador Adrian Escobar completes the diplomatic break between Washington and Buenos Aires which has been developing since the Farrell regime took office last January.

Diplomatic quarters here awaited with considerable interest tomorrows promised statement from Buenos Aires as a possible hint whether last night's action is to be followed by the withdrawal of Argentina's ambassadors to other American capitals or whether Escobar is to be the only one affected.

Polish Council Demands East Prussia

LONDON, July 25—(AP).—Russia announced tonight it would conclude an agreement with the Polish Committee of National Liberation, rather than the exile government in London, covering relations between the advancing Red Army and the civil administration of liberated Polish territory.

The Soviet's announcement, broadcast by Moscow and recorded by the Soviet Monitor, said the Russians have "no aims in acquiring any part of Polish territory" and gave the view that the Western Bug River is regarded by Premier Stalin's regime as the Polish-Russian frontier.

Russian forces are well across the Bug and are advancing swiftly.

In a manifesto released yesterday but dated at Chelm, Poland, July 22—the day the city was liberated from the Germans by the Red Army—the council said the "basic principle" of Poland's post-war foreign policy would be "a firm alliance with our direct neighbors, with the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia," and that the "blood shed in joint battles against German aggression will further consolidate our friendship and strength our alliance with Great Britain and the United States. . . ."

The manifesto further declared that the council would strive also "to preserve traditional friendship and alliance with a revived France and to co-operate with all democratic countries of the world."

20,000 Germans Died In Normandy Invasion

LONDON, July 25—(CP-Reuter)—The invading Allied armies killed about 20,000 Germans in Normandy up to July 16, Sir James Grigg, secretary of state for war, said in the House of Commons today.

In the same period some 57,750 prisoners have been taken, he added. Fewer than 5,000 of the prisoners were nationals of countries invaded by Germany since 1938.

Tank Battles Fought By Canadians

Ontario Troops Find Stiff Opposition In Verrieres Area

By ROSS MUNRO
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 25—(CP Cable).—At least four enemy tanks, probably the long-barrelled Panthers, and five German anti-tank guns have been knocked out this morning in small tank actions fought along the right flank of the Canadian front south of Caen, while troops from Ontario and the West supported by British and Canadian armor battled in and around the towns of May-Sur-Orne and Verrieres.

Fighting on the slopes of the green, wooded ridges and in the orchards and grainfields along the path of the newest Canadian advance is bitter and casualties are being inflicted on both sides.

German counter-attacks are growing in intensity on the towns of Tilly la Campagne and May Sur Orne, five and six miles south of Caen, on the east and west flanks of the Canadian advance, but all attacks to date have been repulsed.

Effective Aircraft Work.

The skies are overcast now, but Allied aircraft are still operating, doing effective work since the attack opened at dawn in halting the movement of enemy transport and attacking strong points blocking the forward push of our infantry.

The biggest of the tank battles is being fought on sloping ground midway between St. Martin de Fontenay, four miles southeast of Caen, and Verrieres, immediately to the east. British tanks are fighting an uphill battle against dug-in enemy tanks.

Stiff opposition is also reported by Ontario troops in the area around Verrieres.

On the extreme right flank, overlooking the Orne, Western Canada troops engaged in close fighting with the enemy are meeting with what a Canadian staff officer called "extremely heavy" mortar fire which has caused casualties.

They are supported by British tanks which also are battling against dug-in Nazi tanks. Troops from Quebec and Ontario are also up against a number of tanks and in one sector our progress is said to be slow but continuing.

Some enemy tanks have been attacked by aircraft and good results are reported.

There is no accurate count of the number of prisoners taken along the right flank of the Canadian front, and a Canadian officer said "There's far too much fighting for that."

Wolf-Pack Technique Beaten By Britain Killer-Packs

By FRANK LOWE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 25—(CP).—Death of Capt. Frederic John Walker, Commander of the Bath and holder of the D.S.O. with two bars, marked the end of an era in submarine warfare—an era which began during the First Great War and carried over into the current conflict, with vast improvements, to come dangerously close to beating Britain.

It was in 1918 that the Germans first used their U-boats in "wolf-pack" formations, the obvious answer to the massing of the submarines' prey in convoys under escort.

But such a drubbing was given these 1918 U-boats commanders that almost two years of this war elapsed before similar tactics were tried.

The wolf-packs were back, with 23 years of study and planning making them a deadly, efficient weapon. Making their task easy was an acute shortage of escort vessels.

Then came a group of tough, youthful naval officers who argued that dead U-boat crews sink no ships—that the only way to stop wolf packs was to hunt them down and smash them. So were born the "killer packs"—groups of speedy, heavily armed warships which didn't wait to be attacked; they went looking for trouble.

Almost immediately the results of this switch from defence to offence could be seen. The graph of U-boat sinkings spiralled dizzily during the last half of 1943 and continued to move upwards through 1944.

Tops among these killer packs was the pioneer one led by Capt. Walker. He and his ships—the Kite, Starling, Wild Goose, Woodpecker, and Magpie—through a combination of perseverance, skill and luck accounted for 17 U-boats and three probables to prove wolf-packs could be beaten.

Their system, followed by all killer-packs, was that they sailed no rigid traffic lanes and protected no convoys. Their hunting ground was the area vaguely defined as "the western approaches" where the shipping of the world converges on the way to Britain. They sailed wherever they thought U-boats might be found.

They beat the wolf-pack technique and brought to an end a means of underwater warfare that had terrorised shipping in two wars. But just as victory was complete, Capt. Walker died on shore of a heart attack. His body was buried at sea in the waters he helped clear of his country's biggest menace.

Conclude Argreement

Algiers, July 25 (CP-Reuter)

GENERAL DE GAULLE announced here today that an agreement would be concluded shortly with the British and United States governments for the cooperation of the French administration and the Allied authorities in liberated territory.

The sovereignty of France would be recognized, and France would give all the help necessary to the British and American armies, he told the French consultative assembly.

Italian Front Is Visited By King George

NAPLES, July 25—(CP)—King George of Britain began a tour of the battlefields of Italy today—a tour which will include forward fronts near the German gothic line north of Rome.

The King landed here Monday night after flying from Britain, ith bomber and fighter escort, in an R.A.F. Transport Command aircraft piloted by Wing Commander Henry Collins.

He was wearing a field-marshal's uniform as he steped on to the landing field of the bomb-battered airfield, and appeared fresh after his journey.

At the field to greet him were: General Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, Mediterranean theatre commander; Admiral Sir John Cunningham, Allied naval commander in this theatre; Harold McMilland, British Minister to the French Committee at Algiers; and Air Vice-Marshal G. B. A. Baker.

His Majesty is making his first visit to Italy since the start of the war.

Collins said the King and his entourage took off from Britain late on Saturday, arrived in North Africa on Sunday, and flew on to Naples after a three-hour rest. The trip was uneventful he said, and was made under favorable weather conditions.

Collins flew in over the volcano Vesuvius and carefully circled the field three times before landing.

Runways on the airport were smooth, but most buildings were shattered or flattened by Allied bombs while the Germans held it.

Before leaving Britain, the King signed a warrant under the Great Seal appointing five Counsellors of State to act for him during his absence from the realm. They are Queen Elizabeth, Princess Elizabeth, the Duke of Gloucester, the Princess Royal the King's sister), and the Duchess of Fife, widow of Prince Arthur of Connaught, who died in 1938.

Princess Elizabeth, who was 18 last April, acts as a Counsellor for the first time, in accordance with the amended provisions of the Regents Act of 1937, which was altered by Parliament at the King's request last year.

EXTRA!

ON THE ORNE RIVER FRONT—Canadian and British troops struck German defences south of Caen today and after 10 hours of the bitterest fighting the battle still was indecisive.

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY—British 8th Army patrols reported today that the town of Gubbio, about 30 miles northeast of Lake Trasimeno, and the old monastery of Saint Ubaldo on Mount Inguino behind the town had been cleared out of the enemy.

LONDON—Prime Minister Mikolajczyk of the Polish Government in London, and his foreign minister, Tadeusz Romer, called on Foreign Secretary Eden at the foreign office today to discuss the latest developments in Poland.

Big Offensive Launched In Normandy

British And Canadians Capture Two Towns In Heavy Fighting

By GLADWIN HILL
Associated Press War Correspondent

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 25—(AP)—Supported by a massive armada of some 4,000 aircraft, British, Canadian and American forces burst forth at both ends of the 100-mile Normandy front today, and shoved the Germans backward in probably the greatest coordinated ground drive since D-day.

Three thousand U.S. planes, including a record mission of 1,500 heavy bombers, smashed at the Germans opposing the new American offensive, location of which was not disclosed.

Hundreds of other planes supported the British-Canadian push south of Caen. In quick initial gains of more than a mile, British and Canadian tanks and infantry battling toward open tank country captured two towns, despite fierce resistance by at least two German SS armored divisions.

"Fighting continues very strenuously on both the British and American sectors," headquarters said.

Street Fighting Rages

The British 2nd Army, including Canadians, hammering along a four-mile front down the road to Falaise, captured St. Martin de Fontenay, four miles southeast of Caen, and Verrieres, 1½ miles to the southeast of St. Martin. Street fighting raged in May-sur-Orne, five miles south of Caen.

Fighting also swirled from the town of Tilly La Campagne. Front dispatches said there was savage, close-quarter fighting in indecisive battle after the British-Canadians cracked through the outer crust of German defences and ran into a bristling series of anti-tank positions and machine-gun nests. The Germans threw in batches of tanks to hold their lines.

The British and Canadian forces jumped off before dawn and the American attack opened shortly

Farm Products Floor Prices

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—The Commons today gave first reading to bills providing for the setting up of machinery which would keep floor prices under farm and fishery products.

The Bills were given the reading after resolutions to the measures were passed.

In explaining the Farm Prices legislation, Agriculture Minister Gardiner said the Bill would authorize the setting up a three-man Board which would study conditions during the years when there was a ceiling on farm prices. The Board would also study, when the time came, post-war conditions.

The Board would recommend what farm products should have floor prices under them. Final decision on what floor price would be set for the products would rest with the Governor-in-Council.

Mr. Gardiner said the Board would be authorized to buy the products at the fixed prices, or to assign others to make the purchases.

Mr. Gardiner said the Board would be appointed and the study of conditions started as soon as possible after the legislation was passed.

Woman Placed On Hot Stove

Three Men Are Arrested On Charge Of Murder

TORONTO, July 25—(CP)—Ontario Provincial Police headquarters here today disclosed the arrest of three unidentified men on murder charges in connection with the death of Mrs. Viola Jamieson of Flanders, Ont., from the effects of having been placed on a hot stove and otherwise burned in her home on the night of June 10.

Three men who entered her home attempted to make her divulge the hiding place of her money. When she refused they held flaming newspapers to her limbs and placed her on a hot stove. The woman died in hospital at Fort Frances, July 2 from the effects of the torture.

An Ontario Provincial Police Officer said the three arrested had been taken to Atikokan, Ont., and other places." He declined to divulge further information in the case, described as one of the "most serious and dastardly" in the crime history of Ontario. Further investigations are still going on.

Told Police Details

Police learned details of the case from Mrs. Jamieson before she died and from her two young sons who were witnesses. They said three men entered her home, threw a sheet over her head and demanded to know the hiding place of her money They tortured her and when she remained adamant placed her atop a hot stove in her kitchen.

After administering the torture, Police were told the men locked Mrs. Jamieson and her sons in a root house. One of the boys managed to escape and notify the townspeople. The men had left before help arrived, ransacking the house before their departure.

Mrs. Jamieson was brought to hospital at Fort Frances 80 miles west of Flanders, on a freight train.

Following Mrs. Jamieson's death the Ontario government offered a reward of $1,000 for information which would lead to the arrest of the trio responsible.

Britain-U.S. Discuss Post-War Oil Policy

WASHINGTON, July 25—(AP).—Anglo-American talks aimed at a common post-war oil policy get under way today with both sides expecting quick agreement.

Lord Beaverbrook heads the British delegation, which is talking with an American cabinet group led by State Secretary Hull.

The conversations are based on recommendations worked out by a group of British and American technical experts two months ago, and conclusions are to be set down in a signed agreement or exchange of notes.

The main goal is a permanent Anglo-American commission to study world oil resources and needs, so that production can be regulated accordingly.

Once an agreement is reached, other countries interested in petroleum, such as Russia and several South American nations, will be invited to similar discussions.

Present Struggle Hopeless

Captured Generals Call On Germans To Surrender

MOSCOW, July 25—(AP).—Moscow newspapers printed today over the names of 16 captured German generals an appeal to all German officers and soldiers to renounce Adolf Hitler and bring the war to a close by refusing to fight further.

Reproductions of the signatures of the generals were headed by that of Gen. Velkers, former commander of the 27th Army Corps.

The statement declared that the signers, through long service in the German army in two wars, had come to the conclusion that the present struggle is hopeless. They appealed directly to the German army to:

1. Break with Hitler immediately.
2. Denounce all orders from him or his henchmen.
3. Bring to an immediate end "this senseless bloodshed."

The generals said it was the duty of all German officers to explain this situation to their troops.

The Russians took care to see the statement would reach Germany, broadcasting it over shortwave radio and dropping thousands of printed copies from planes in German-held territory.

The generals declared their action was voluntary and was prompted by love of their country.

The statement asserted 30 German divisions have been destroyed by the Red Army's current summer offensive and that to continue the fight would be suicidal to Germany.

German Radio Describes Attack

LONDON, July 25.—(AP).—The German radio said to-day that the new offensive by British and Canadian troops southwest of Caen along the Falaise road, announced early to-day from General Montgomery's headquarters, was preceded by a terrific artillery and aerial bombardment.

A German war correspondent broadcast this description of the drive:

"A burning veil of destruction covers the land. Bomb bursts of diving enemy bombers mingle with fire from thousands of gun barrels. In this inferno the gray, haggard men of the SS. Panzer division 'Das Reich' are cowering in their slit trenches hugging the wet earth walls.

"At last they (the British) are coming. The barrage lifts and silence descends. Then the first brown hulk lumbers through the morning mist—a Sherman tank—followed by little khaki figures."

before noon. Huge artillery barrages supported both drives.

U.S. Drive Kept Secret.

Throughout the day, Headquarters kept secret all details of the American drive. The U.S. 1st Army has been strung along a winding front from fallen St. Lo to Lessay on the west coast.

(Berlin said the Americans attacked from the area northwest of St. Lo, and declared a small penetration had been sealed off.)

The Ridge highway which the British and Canadians were following leads to Falaise, birthplace of William the Conqueror and to Paris. In the early hours of the push, while the advancing troops still were shielded by ground mists, the British and Canadians reached May Sur Orne for an advance of 700 yards and Verrieres for a gain of 1,500 yards. They also reached Tilly la Campagne, nearly a mile east of the road. All these points are five miles or slightly more south of Caen. Bad weather checked Gen. Montgomery's offensive last week.

However, a limited force of R.A.F medium bombers hammered German concentrations a little more than a mile ahead of the British-Canadian lines last night and again this morning, and the ground mist provided a natural screen for the advancing troops.

Element of Surprise

Montgomery achieved an element of surprise—although the Germans for two days have been forecasting a drive—by shifting the weight of his attack during the lull five miles to the west. This shift was from the southeasterly highway toward Vimont and Paris, 120 miles away, to the more southerly highway to Falaise.

The weather today was described as good with virtually a cloudless sky.

It appeared Montgomery was sidestepping the hidden wall of anti-tank guns just southwest of Troarn which Field Marshal Rommel had managed to implant during the recent days of bad weather.

British troops yesterday pushed into Troarn, eight miles east of Caen, but met stiff resistance and withdrew to the railway station just west of the town. Troarn is a German strongpoint blocking the highway to the big port of Le Havre.

The assault along the Nalaise road was authoritatively described as a resumption of the push from Caen which started just a week ago today and bogged down after two days in the face of torrential rains, mud and the concentrated fire power Rommel had assembled.

Limited Objectives

Headquarters warned against premature interpretation of the new British-Canadian drive as a break-through and said it had "limited objectives," but this is a non-committal term which would cover a thrust as far as Montgomery's powerful and keyed-up fighting machine could press it.

The fact the initial announcement came from Montgomery's own headquarters only a few hours after the start of the attack apparently indicated he was sure of himself.

The Caen-Falaise highway is a 25-foot paved road running along a ridge between the Orne and Dives Rivers over rising ground and through fields somewhat larger than those to the west. The size of the fields gives promise the British and Canadians will have less difficulty with German hedgerow defences than the Americans have had in the St Lo area.

The fact the road is paved may mean that the attacking troops will not have great trouble with mines as they are more easily spotted and uprooted along a paved route.

area in support of the British 2nd Army's new thrust toward Falaise.

The American force surpassed the great armada of just under 3,000 which unloaded nearly 8,000 tons of explosives on the Germans south of Caen to support the Orne River drive a week ago today.

The bomb weight hurled on German strongpoints probably will not reach last week's total however, because the airmen used nearly all light and fragmentation bombs, designed to stun enemy troops and anesthetize them to a ground attack.

Both attacks were described officially as "most effective."

The attack on Berlin by the Mosquitoes with their two-ton block-busters was the second night running the Reich capital had been hit and the 14th time since D-Day.

Frankfurt and Aachen presumably were diversionary targets as the main weight of the night blows was directed at Stuttgart. Another bomber force attacked oil storage tanks at Donges near St. Nazaire for the second night in a row. Lengthening nights aided the raiders.

There was every indication that the Stuttgart attack at least equalled the previous night's raid on Kiel, which was hit with nearly 3,000 tons of explosives in its heaviest battering of the war.

Southern France also was under attack last night for the second time in less than 24 hours as Italian-based bombers struck a German airfield in the Rhone valley in a quick follow-up to daylight blows yesterday on airdromes in that area by M.A.A.F. heavy bombers, which also smashed at targets in Northern Italy and Yugoslavia.

'King' Louis XVI Arrives Home

OTTAWA, July 25 (CP)—A private who is a "king" to members of the famed Royal 22nd Regiment was among a group of 15 repatriated soldiers welcomed back from overseas last night.

He's Pat. Louis XVI, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis XVI of near-by Rockland, and he told a reporter his name was pronounced "Vee."

"But to save trouble I just call myself King Louis the 16th," he sail. "All the boys call me 'King Louis,' and I'm getting used to it. The only thing 'royal' that actually happened to me was the time I picked up a flush in a poker game. That, incidentally, was good for a bottle of vino."

XVI was one of six men of the "Van Doos" who captured 29 Germans in a straw stack in Italy without a shot being fired.

"We were fighting in a field, and the six of us were in a group," he said. "We became separated from the rest of the company, and the first person we came to was a German. We rushed toward him and he immediately threw up his hands. We started questioning him, and he told us there were other Nazis in a strawstack only a few yards away. We hollered for them to come out. The did—28 of them—with their hands up.

"That was the best 'royal salute' I ever received in Italy, incidentally." It was only a few days later that XVI's leg was hit by a machine-gun bullet.

From the heights of Montre Pisano to the northeast German guns shelled portions of Pisa, south of the Arno River, which the Americans occupy, and growing enemy activity was noted along the north banks of the river.

A brisk fight developed east of San Miniato when the Germans launched two counter-attacks in an unsuccessful effort to prevent the 5th Army from extending its lines eastward toward Florence.

American troops have cleared the enemy from the south side of the Arno along a sector from the west coast to a point within 18 miles of Florence.

Quebec Voters Urged To Oust Traitors

MONTREAL, July 25.—(CP).—Maurice Duplessis, leader of the Union National party, said last night in an election campaign address at Cabano, Que., where he spoke in support of the candidature of Andre Pelletier, that the population of the province of Quebec must oust "the traitors and the renegades who have been fooling you for the past five years.

He said it would be "a national calamity" to re-elect the Liberal Government of Premier Godbout, and the Union Nationale party had an "unsurpassed record of achievements."

At Montreal, Jean Drapeau, Bloc Populaire candidate in Montreal Jeanne Mance constituency, said that recent disturbances in Montreal between servicemen and civilians were "race riots" and were the same as the "old problem" mentioned by Lord Durham when he issued his report on Canadian conditions in 1839.

These "race riots" might have started over a dispute on the type of clothing worn by a civilian, but they later developed into "full-scale riots between English-speaking sailors and French-Canadian civilians."

Andre Laurendeau, Quebec Bloc Populaire leader, said the revolution sought by the Bloc was a "safe, sane and family-supported revindication of our rights" and the party would "shed the last drop of our blood for the success of that revolution."

Premier Godbout spoke twice yesterday.

Last night at Rigaud he said anti-war speeches in the province had given other Canadians the impression that Quebec citizens were "a crowd of scoundrels." He added that some people wished to destroy the war effort with their speeches against the Government which was conducting the country's defence.

"The war is over," the Premier said at Rigaud. "It is over now. Mr. Churchill has said as much."

News Photographer Is Awarded O.B.E.

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP).—Lieut. John Hodgson Smith, 33, a photographic officer with Army Public Relations and a former Toronto news photographer, has been appointed a member of the Order of the British Empire for "cool, courageous and fearless behavior" in the rescue of servicemen from a torpedoed transport, Defence Headquarters announced to-day.

The torpedoing took place more than a year ago in the early stages of the Sicilian invasion.

The large ship was carrying motor transport stores, gasoline, motorized equipment and ammunition. When the torpedo struck it caused highly volatile fuels to take fire and explosions within the ship trapped personnel below decks. Disregarding the inferno of flames all about him, Lieut. Smith pulled men out of a watery hold in the rapidly-sinking ship. Despite the fact he could not swim, he used his life-jacket to good advantage and saved another man who also could not swim.

Lieut. Smith was at one time on the staff of the Toronto Evening Telegram and later transferred to the Toronto Glove and Mail.

Gold Rush Has Established All-Time Record

TORONTO, July 25—The "biggest gold rush in the history of Ontario mining is on," according to officials of the Department of Mines. The activity is not limited to any one particular area of the Province, but affects all the known camps and newer sections, stretching across Ontario from Quebec to Manitoba and from North Bay northwesterly to the shores of Hudson Bay.

In the first six months of 1944, mining claims recorded numbered 5,570 against 1,799 for the comparable period of 1943.

"Millions of dollars of development money are involved in this new search for gold and since last autumn, an incredible number of new companies have been incorporated in Ontario for the purpose of developing gold properties. The search for strategic minerals is over and the public, through its shareholders, is taking an indirect but essential part in the Province-wide hunt for the yellow metal," it was stated yesterday.

Two Limiting Factors

"Were it possible to remedy the manpower situation and to remove development limitations imposed by Ottawa, the gold production would leap above the all-time record output of 1940.

"Areas of great activity, as reflected by the number of claims recorded or transferred, the diamond-drilling and surface development work by mining crews and prospectore are: All the territory from the Quebec boundary westward through Larder Lake, Kirkland Lake and southwestward into Matachewan; from the Quebec boundary to the west and northwest through Porcupine on what has been called the eastern extension of the Porcupine break; Missinabi, in Algoma; Red Lake in Northwestern Ontario and Dogpaw Lake, south of Kenora, where a wide area has been blanketed by claims since last fall.

Rich Finds Predicted

"Many hundreds of diamond-drills are in operation in all these camps and were it possible to get more machines and more experienced drill crews, mine-finding activity would be much more enhanced."

The officials predicted "that before the snow flies, stories or rich finds will trickle south and a concentrated rush into a specific area will be on." They pointed out prospecting parties have hit into many new areas this year and that, if hopes are realized, many new mines will provide jobs for men who are demobilized.

Reason for the unprecedented interest in mining, they said, was: "There's lots of money floating around; people believe the end of the war is close at hand and that gold is pretty well assured for the future."

Badly Battered Army's Leader Sends Congratulations To Hitler

BY JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 25—(AP)—A leader of the battered German Armies in the east, Field Marshal Gen. Walther Von Model sent a message of congratulations to Hitler today on his escape from assassination last week—perhaps in tacit admission that the Nazis at least temporarily control the Armed Forces of the Reich.

The message was broadcast by Transocean after the Nazis had hinted they were preparing even more drastic masures to tighten their grip on the war-weary home front and Hitler's henchmen apparently had gained complete mastery of the German Army.

At the same time Foreign Secretary Eden told the House of Commons the Reich government "had been at great pains" to prevent information of the upheaval in Germany from leaking out and that he was unable to estimate the full extent of the trouble "or to draw any inferences as to its likely development."

He added cautiously, however, that "we might justly draw encouragement from the recent news".

Commands Two Armies

Marshal Model, who was described as commanding two army groups, is of middle class stock and while he never has been actively identified with the Nazi party neither is he a representative of the blue-blooded Junkers classe.

(A London broadcast recorded by CBS said Fenz Von Papen, German Ambassador to Turkey, "has sent a telegram of loyalty to Hitler." The broadcast added that "following the bomb-attempt on Hitler's life, Von Papen had retired to his quarters by two days, declining to see any visitors." Von Papen was the go-between who negotiated the Alliance between Hitler and the German Junker Generals in 1933.)

Out of a maze or reports of seething turmoil gripping the Reich it has become clear that as long as the Nazis are directing the war—and without question they are in the driver's seat now—they are prepared to carry on even though Germany herself become a battle-ground.

Transocean News Agency in a broadcast from Berlin said there were indications "a great number of new decrees, some of them cutting deep into our everyday life, may be expected soon." It added the Germans "shall become a people of fighters in the most literal sense of the word."

Only Few Top Men Missing

There were indications the Gestapo's purge of army conspirators whom Hitler said had tried to assassinate him had wiped out only a few of the top men in the movement. A reliable report to The Associated Press from the Reich frontier said the only member of a "high committee of opposition" who had been caught was the executed Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, who had been warned of arrest and was taken by accident.

The crowning humiliation of the army, however, came in an order yesterday substituting the Nazi "Heil Hitler" salute for the regular military salute. This emphasized pointedly the army's subordination to the Nazi party.

From the immediate military standpoint the full significance of what is happening in Germany will come with the revelation of the new front commanders. There were indications that Hitler was substituting political generals of known loyalty to him for professional staff-college-trained commanders.

(In a broadcast quoting Swiss dispatches, Absie, American transmitter in London, said Hitler would confer at Berchtesgaden today to select new generals for the Russian and Baltic fronts. The broadcast was monitored by NBC.)

Commanders Replaced.

Two high commanders on the eastern front, Field Marshal Busch on the central sector, and Col.-Gen. Lindemann in the Baltic States, have been replaced by SS. men, the London Daily Mail said in a dispatch from the German frontier.

The whole Nazi counter-plot appeared aiamed at discrediting the old-line generals by attempting to place the entire blame on them for setbacks suffered by the German army in the east, south and west.

One thing stands out in the whole pictire. There has not been even a rumor of any attempt by the German civilian masses to rise against the Nazis through strikes or other demonstrations. This indicated that any organized opposition centred almost entirely among military men.

Soldier Said Wounded Back In Front Lines

L.-Cpl. Emerald Post, whose wife lives on Donegal Street, is back in the lines again, according to word received by his family. The young soldier was reported wounded on July 8, and although injured, it was slight. Apparently some mixup occurred, because, he wrote, when he went back from the front, he found authorities had written him off and his personal belongings and kit bag ready to be sent home. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Post, 133 Romaine Street.

"Just a few lines to let you know that everything is OK. A report has gone through that I have been wounded, but I am quite all right, and I am going back up the line to-day. I came back here four days ago, to give things a chance to heal (no explanation given). Anyway, there isn't anything that you or anyone else should worry about.

"I didn't intend to mention it to anyone and cause a lot of unnecessary worry. I was over to where all the casualties go through, and when I got there they had my kit and personal belongings all packed and tagged, ready to go to you. Then they told me what the score was. So, I decided to write and explain. Just disregard any cable or anything you hear about me being wounded."

keeping contact with the seat of the temporary governing body at Chelm. In each captured Polish town (9,000 square miles of German-held Poland have been captured), the committee opened recruiting offices for the Polish Army fighting beside the Soviets. Hundreds of administrations were established in liberated towns.

The fall of the rail city of Lublin was announced by Marshal Stalin in a special order of the day and shortly afterward a special communique was issued declaring that the Germans had lost 539,890 troops killed and captured since the Soviet summer offensive got under way June 23.

These casualties were reported inflicted by four Russian armies. At present there are at least seven Red armies battering the Nazis westward on an 800-mile front from the Baltic to the Carpathian mountains.

In the encirclement of Nazi forces at Brody, northeast of Lwow, the forces of Marshal Konev alone were reported to have captured 17,175 Germans and to have found 30,000 dead in the area.

9,000 Square Miles Liberated.

Since Marshal Rokossovsky's forces crossed the 1939-41 German-Polish border five days ago they have liberated over 9,000 square miles in their mighty drive toward the west.

The fall of Lublin, 91 miles southeast of Warsaw, after a little more than 24 hours of street fighting, was celebrated in Moscow by the firing of 20 salvoes from 224 guns followed by the playing of the Soviet and Polish National Anthems.

Lublin was the scene of some of the most shocking incidents of the Germans' anti-semitic terror programs and formerly had a population of 115,000, of which 30 per cent were Jews.

Thundering west of the shortest road to Warsaw, columns of Soviet armor and mounted troops passed through Lukow in hot pursuit of shattered German rearguards, leaving behind them 500 populated places which they had freed from the Nazis.

After capturing Lublin, Marshal Rokossovsky's forces seized Belzhitse, 13 miles southeast, to put Soviet troops less than 20 miles from the Wisla (Vistula) River—the last Axis natural defence line before Germany itself.

40-Mile Gain.

The seizure of Lukow represented a 40-mile gain in 24 hours by the Russians, and by its capture the Red Army cut off the German fortress bastion of Brest Litovsk far to the east, where street fighting was reported.

In the south the capture of Lwow appeared imminent as Russian troops swept around to its west side and took Jaworow, 30 miles to the west-northwest; Sadowa-Wisznia, 30 miles west and Moscyshka, 40 miles to the west. The fall of Sadowa-Wisznia and Moscyshka cut the Lwow-Krakow-German Silesia trunk railway. The capture of Moscyshka put the Russians 15 miles east of Przemysl. Other Russian forces are moving on Przemysl from the north.

Red Army troops southwest of Lwow crossed the Dnester River and captured Halicz, 14 miles north of Stanislawow, gateway to the Carpathian Mountain passes.

Northwest of Bialystok the Russians have captured Korycin, a railroad town 38 miles from East Prussia. By-passed Bialystok itself was in a precarious position, with Russian troops attacking it frontally.

Tank Battles

Sur-Orne the Canadians are clearing out enemy snipers. The country there lends itself to sniping activities and it probably will be a slow job to kill off the enemy troops or force them to retire.

Clear Out Snipers.

A barrage from hundreds of guns launched the new Canadian attack at the chill, pre-dawn hour of 3 a.m. today. Infantry fought their way into the enemy-held towns of May-Sur-Orne, Verrieres and Tilly La Campagne and there were fierce battles as the enemy clung tenaciously to his positions.

The weather was hazy but squadrons of fighter-bombers and rocket-firing Typhoons went zooming over the front while forces of medium bombers struck at the woods two miles southeast of Tilly La Campagne, on the Canadian left flank.

Canadians reported a lot of confusion among the enemy in the woods following the bombings—one before dark last night by 88 Mitchells, and another by a smaller force after dawn.

Canadian infantry and tanks are involved in this battle and British troops are working with the Canadians. The enemy is striving to hold a defence line running eastward from May-Sur-Orne on the Canadians' right across the highway leading from Caen to Falaise.

Trench Line

This line, consisting of trench systems and infantry defences with machine guns and anti-tank guns screens an important high ridge which dominates a great deal of the surrounding farmland. During the recent rainy weather the Germans have had time to improve these defences, and it will be no easy task to break through. Much of the opposition will be from enemy armor.

Western troops led the Canadian advance from St. Andre south through the adjoining town of St. Martin Le Fontenay, and into May-Sur-Orne.

St. Andre is four miles south of Caen and St. Martin immediately to the southeast of St. Andre.

The distance advanced was only about a mile, and it was hard fighting most of the way, with the enemy mortaring the attacking soldiers as they went through the fields and along the ditches.

At Verrieres, Ontario infantry were in the vanguard. Verriers is about five miles south and slightly east of Caen. All these villages are west of the Caen-Falaise highway.

At Tilly La Campagne, just east of the highway, Eastern Ontario troops were first into battle.

A ground haze limited visibility on the battle-field for a few hours after dawn. Later the sky was hazy and not entirely suitable for air operations, although they were carried out.

Canadian and British artillery pounded through the morning, concentrating on the immediate German defence line and strongpoints behind it.

Western Canada troops thrust into the village of May-Sur-Orne, on a cliff overlooking the river Three Milee south of St. Andre, shortly after daybreak. On their left, Ontario troops pushed into Verriers under heavy German mortar fire.

The Westerners who took May-Sur-Orne by-passed pockets of Germans in riverside orchards between their objective and the starting line. These were dealt with later.

Other Westerners fighting southwest of St. Andre reported they were engaged in "very heavy fighting" in the process of clearing an orchard. They were bombed and [illegible] after occupying the orchard.

In a dusk attack last night against a German-held farm north of Verrieres, French-speaking troops took the farm and captured a number of prisoners as they cleaned-up with rifles and grenades.

When enemy tanks and infantry were reported south of the Narm the Canadians withdrew, but the objective was re-taken later when Ontario troops pushed through and continued towards the main target of Verrieres farther south.

Kidnap Women Named Witnesses

DELAND, Fla., July 25.—(AP).—Lieut. Reid Clifton of the Florida road patrol reported he rescued Mrs Myrtle Jones Tate of Dade city and her two teen-age daughters last night from an island in the St. Johns river where she said they had been held prisoner for three weeks.

The officer said the woman related she and the girls were held on the island by a 28 year old man and a 16 year old boy—whose names were not disclosed — because she was a witness in a cattle theft case in Dade city.

Clitfon said he confirmed by telephone with the sheriff of Hernando county that Mrs. Tate was a witness in a grand larceny case pending here. She and her daughters were put on a train for Dade city last night.

Clifton said Mrs. Tate scribbled a note on the back of an automobile driver's license and gave it to three fishermen who were passing the island. They brought the note to him, he continued, and he and another officer went to the island and brought the woman and her daughters back to land.

Indian Problems Handled With Great Care

CAMPBELLFORD, July 25 (ENS)—Prefacing his address by expressing thanks to the Rotary Club for the steady supply of magazines sent to the school during the preceding year, C. W. Stephens sketched the geographical and historical background of Christian Island.

He commented on the criticism levelled against the government in recent months in their treatment of the Indians and by pointing out the various methods by which the government endeavors to assist, showed clearly that this criticism was unjust. No effort was spared to make the inhabitants self sufficient. Encouragement is given to develop the industries native to the island, namely, agriculture, wood-cutting, fishing and the manufacture of lumber and shingles. The government appoints an agent who resides there and forms a link between the Indians and the Department of Indian Affairs at Ottawa. The general administration and enforcement of law and order come under his jurisdiction and all are given the opportunity to make a decent living, the speaker affirmed.

It is felt, and sincerely hoped for, that the Indians who are serving in the armed forces, on their return to the reserves, will do a great deal toward educating their own people to accept a higher standard of living for even the natives are gradually coming to understand that this is necessary if they are to survive. At present every boy and girl is given the opportunity to receive an elementary school education but the indifference of the parents is the chief reason why so little progress has been made. On entering school the children speak Ojibway only. They cannot read nor write their native tongue, so it is the teachers first duty to teach them to read and write their native language. Every effort is made to give them some instruction in health practices. Manual training such as sewing and home carpentry and also to use the English language. For some reason they are reluctant to speak it, much preferring to write.

Deeply Religious

The speaker paid tribute to the loyalty of the Indians to the church. They have one service each week in their own language and the singing of the hymns has a remarkable appeal. Many earnest Christians are found on the island.

Concluding with a brief reference to the fine community spirit shown in many of their activities and co-operative enterprises, he said that it gives a new conception of neighborliness to those who live in other parts of the Dominion.

Among the visiting clergy were Cy. Churchley, H. Rosevear, B. George, F. Belyea, H. Williams of Port Hope; Alf. Cassan, Peterborough, and J. Bennett and Eli Brunelle, Toronto. Rotarian Arthur Loucks introduced the speaker and a vote of thanks was moved by Rotarian H. N. Carr.

Men Eat Pills To Evade Army

QUEBEC, July 25 (CP) — Judge Achille Pettigrew Monday adjourned until Aug. 1 preliminary hearing of Bernardin Lavigne, 32, and Augustin Verrault, 36, both of Sorel, Que., on charges under the Defense of Canada Regulations in connection with an alleged draft evasion conspiracy recently uncovered by Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

Lt.-Col. Sylvio Leblond of the RCAMC testified today that doctors examining young men reporting for military training are used to handling men who eat "all kinds of pills in order to be rejected." The examineres know how to deal with these men and keep them under observation to see if their sickness is temporary or permanent.

"Very often we find these young men are fit for the army and they are classified accordingly," he said.

Friday, two soldiers testified that Lavigne and Verrault gave them pills which the accused said would have prevented them from being accepted by the army when they reported for military training. Both men were later classified A-1.

Few Members Expect Early Election

BY FRANK FLAHERTY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 25 — (CP) — Members of parliament, spurred by continuing good war news and three provincial election campaigns have become election-conscious these days.

When Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday casually mentioned he had considered an adjournment of parliament at the end of this month in order that members might come back in October to complete the business of the Session his hearers started to think of the remark in terms of election prospects.

There is no indication when the present session will end, but it is known that opposition members as well as the government are shooting for adjournment Aug 5. But whether business can be cleaned up by that date of course, depends upon how much argument develops on legislation still on the order paper.

It was generally assumed that a Dominion general election would come either late this year or next spring or early summer. An adjournment of parliament would not affect the choice of these two dates or indicate a decision to postpone it until next year.

Two Things Stand Out

On the basis of Mr. King's statements on other occasions two things stand out: First, he is opposed to extending the term of parliament beyond its constitutional five-year term; second, he does not want an election before the end of the war.

That means if the war does not end before the five-year term runs out some time late in 1945 he would have to consider what should be done.

It was believed Liberal party strategists desire a considerable period of preparation for the election and for that reason few members expect an early appeal to the people. This desire springs from the feeling that while members of the Government have been busy with heavy wartime administrative tasks, opposition party leaders, free from responsibility, have been able to get an advantage of travelling, speaking and organizing.

It also springs from the idea that the Government's post-war program of social legislation and reconstruction is not widely understood by the people and needs to be sold.

Two of the important measures still awaiting disposal by the House can be expected to figure in the election campaign. They are family allowances and floor prices for farm products.

If Parliament adjourned without disposing of these the Government would still be free to call an election at any time. Should the war in Europe end the election might be called before Parliament met again.

Family allowances and floor prices would then become an issue in the election in advance of action by Parliament. Mr. King earlier in discussing family allowances said one of the reasons they would not start until after July 1, 1945, was because in the normal course of events there would be an election before that date.

Affleck, local barrister, who leaves shortly to enter an Ottawa law firm, was the guest of the Northumberland and Durham, Bar Association at a dinner Monday night at Cobourg Golf Club. Judge J. C. M. German, counties judge, was chairman, and presented Mr. Affleck with a pen and pencil set on behalf of the bar association. Out-of-town lawyers present were F. Douglas of Campbellford, M. O'Shea, Hastings and K. Langdon, of Brighton. Mr. Affleck came here from Campbellford about two years ago and took over the practice of the late Colonel F. D. Boggs, K.C.

Another fire during the week-end at the ferry dock brings the total to three in the same place within the last few weeks. It is believed that a carelessly-dropped cigarette by excursionists boarding the car ferry might have caused the fire in each case. Little damage was done.

175 Canadians Confirmed In Rome Church

ROME, July 25.—(CP).—In lovely old All Saints' Church of England on Viadel Babuino here, 175 Canadians were confirmed in the Anglican faith today by Rt. Rev. Edward Woods, Bishop of Lichfield.

The ceremony was arranged by Major J. I. McKinney of Brandon Man., when he heard that the English bishop was visiting Italy.

One week ago 400 soldiers had a one-day religious retreat on the shores of Lake Matese, the highest lake in Italy, and were received into the denominations of their choice. Padres instructed and accepted the candidates in services held simultaneously around the shores of the lake and then all the denominations united in a service of thanksgiving.

Dr. Woods said today was the first time he has confirmed Canadians and the first time Canadians had been confirmed in this war theatre.

Each class of candidates was presented to the bishop during the service by the chaplain who had prepared them. The chaplains included Major F. A. Smith, Trenton, Ont.; Major R. O. Wilkes, Rainy River, Ont., and Winnipeg; Major Roy Durnford, Prince Rupert, B.C.; Capt. Larry Wilmot, Winnipeg; Capt. C. M. Maclean, Alliston, Ont.; Capt. E. S. Davis, Pembroke, Ont.; Major William Prior, Toronto; Capt. Tom Hipp, Vancouver, and Capt. Derwy Owen, Toronto, son of Most Rev. Derwyn Owen, primate of all Canada.

Pte. William Harding of Minto, N.B., had a special private confirmation following the public one. By accident he was ushered into the wrong section of the church and was overlooked when his classmates were ushered forward.

Capt. Ernest W. MacQuarrie of Toronto and Ottawa, padre of Harding's regiment, though not an Anglican, was present and noticed this. He arranged with the bishop for a private ceremony in the chapel later.

SOVIET WILL AVENGE TANNENBERG — Scene of a Russian debacle in 1914, Tannenberg (1) again promises to assume a vital historic role—but this time the Russians see little chance of walking into a trap. Rather, the victories around Grodno, Brest-Litovsk and Kaunas and the stiff assault against East Prussia give indication that Tannenberg will be put through the usual Red Army outflanking routine and terrific defeat of another war will be avenged. In 1914, however, the Russians met one of the most crushing defeats of the war in the area marked by the numerals 1 and 2. About 100,000 men were lost.

Prime Minister King Warned By Douglas Prince Albert Seat Will Go CCF Next Election

OTTAWA, July 25—(CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan said today in an interview that if Prime Minister Mackenzie King hopes to be re-elected in the next Federal election he had better find himself another seat and not attempt to hold the Saskatchewan constituency of Prince Albert.

Mr. Douglas, whose C.C.F. supporters swept Saskatchewan in the June provincial elections, said his party expected to win the seat in the next Federal election.

"Prince Albert, Federally, is made up of two Provincial seats," he said "We took the Provincial seats without trouble, and the Federal seat will be an even easier proposition."

(In brief comment on published speculation last week that he might run in an Ontario constituency, Mr. King said: "I have been devoting all my attention to the war. There will be time for political affairs when the war is won.")

EVER walk into an auction and find yourself getting excited and wanting to bid . . . a victim of "auction fever"? Wartime conditions can breed "auction fever" if we let them. Everything is in short supply. Many more people are able to bid.

But . . . if prices are bid up . . . all our dollars will lose some of their value. Even necessities could get out of reach.

- What use is more money, if living costs go up still higher.
- What good are higher returns to business, if they are offset by higher costs.
- What does the farmer gain if higher farm prices lead to depression and low prices later.

We cannot continue a full war effort and prepare to meet the problems of the post-war period unless we maintain a stable and reasonable price level now.

Roosevelt—Pro And Con

The decision of President Roosevelt to stand for a fourth term of office had been expected for months, and for that reason we perhaps underestimate the striking disregard for precedent which is involved in it. The American people, flexible in so many ways, are stiff-necked in matters of political custom, and hitherto it has been axiomatic that a man who had served twice as President should not seek a third term. Roosevelt, having had a third term, now seeks a fourth, at a time when his country must make the greatest decisions in her history. What are his election chances?

* * *

We in Canada look upon President Roosevelt with the greatest admiration and affection, for he has been the best of friends to us and to our motherland. But his own people see him at close quarters, and they see the blemishes in his career as an administrator. His first blazing months in office were distinguished by daring and iron firmness, but the record of mistakes was about as long as the record of successes; he must bear the blame for wrecking the London Economic Conference; the New Deal did much that was admirable, but it was also responsible for much waste, improvisation and recklessness; his promises to balance the national budget did not agree with his performance; in 1940 he fought an election on neutrality, and soon showed that his feelings were anything but neutral; he did not emerge well from his Supreme Court dispute; and, all through his twelve years in office he has played politics—a thing which every successful statesman must do, but for which the public never forgives him. When Mr. Roosevelt appeals to his countrymen there will be millions who will remember these things against him.

* * *

But on the credit side there is this overwhelming consideration: the United States needs a great man now, and Roosevelt has shown himself to be one of the greatest of our time—one of the great Presidents of American history. He has shown his greatness in national as in international affairs. And in accepting the nomination for a fourth term he has declared himself in the least equivocal terms as an internationalist. His party platform calls for:

"The establishment of an international organization...to make all necessary and effective agreements through which nations would maintain adequate forces to meet the needs of preventing war and of making impossible the preparation for war and which would have such forces available for joint action when necessary. Such organization must be endowed with power to employ armed forces when necessary to prevent aggression and preserve peace".

That is plain talk, and talk which great numbers of Americans want to hear, for they feel that the time has come for their country to take the position of leadership which she declined in 1920. Roosevelt has declared himself for collective security and world trade, and already there are agencies in being which can make realities of these ideals.

* * *

The Republicans are doing what they can to put the election on a domestic footing, for it is in domestic affairs that Roosevelt has made his big mistakes. In international matters his record is great. It is by no means certain — as many people seem to think — that Roosevelt will be re-elected. Canada, as one of the many nations who have found him a true friend, can only hope that it will be so.

New Understanding

The wish has frequently been expressed—from Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt down—that one of the results of this war will be improved understanding and friendship between the people of Great Britain and the United States. We think that this wish will be granted, but it will involve jolts on both sides, for both peoples will have to readjust some of their accepted beliefs.

There are full accounts of some of these re-adjustments in British papers. One of the bones of contention between the two races is their respective treatment of the negro soldiers from the U.S. The British think that the Americans treat the negroes badly: the Americans think that the British treat the negroes too well. The argument is not without its ironic element, as Americans have for some years permitted themselves a good deal of long-distance criticism of the British treatment of native races in India. The British opinion of the colour problem which the American troops have brought with them is to be inferred from the following extract from an article appearing in The New Statesman:

"On the whole the relations of black and white here have been better than was feared six or twelve months ago. There have, of course, been incidents, fights and a few deaths. This has been no fault of the American authorities. Mr. Winant, General Eisenhower and General Lee have all spoken most clearly and decisively. It has been made a matter of army discipline for white troops to behave well to the Negroes who are fighting the same war as themselves and running the same risks. Local conditions have varied with the wisdom or folly of American commanding officers. Some confusion has resulted among the British from the contradictory regulations issued by the Home Office and War Office. According to the Home Office every effort should be made to treat Negroes as equals. The War Office regulation, on the other hand, has laid down that British soldiers must be polite to coloured troops, but not fraternise with them, or offer them drinks. In some parts of this country one may meet black and white troops on terms of equality in the same public houses. More often they are in practice segregated during their recreation hours. The picture by and large over this country is not unhappy, and cases in which American treatment of Negroes has produced outspoken anger among the British are exceptional. Unfortunately, the improvement as far as the Americans are concerned appears to be superficial. Only too often we hear that American white soldiers from the South obey instructions on this matter as a necessary part of discipline without for a moment agreeing that serving in the same war and on the same battlefields entitles the Negro to an equal status. On the contrary, they often declare that the good treatment of the coloured troops here will make them "fresh" and out of hand in the United States when they get home. A bad period of racial trouble in America took place after the last war when the Negro had earned an improved economic and social status; the evidence suggests that the same causes will breed the same disease in an intensified form when the American army returns home after this war.

"Englishmen are frankly shocked and disgusted by this attitude on the part of some sections of American soldiers. Learning of the position of the Negro in the Jim Crow States of the United States, the British public take for granted that a coloured soldier has in this country, as in Georgia or Mississippi, a poor chance of impartial justice when sexual crime is alleged. If a black man is accused of rape, the public will too easily assume that he has been 'framed', and even when they are assured that the trial is fair and that no 'third degree' has been attempted, they believe that he is likely to be hanged on evidence that would never be regarded as adequate in the case of a white soldier. That this is the reaction of the British public has been again clearly shown in recent cases which have received wide publicity in the press".

There is indignation, too, about the importation of the prejudice against negroes into British life. People who stand to make money out of the American troops—hotel-keepers and restaurateurs chiefly—pander to the American taste, offending the British sense of justice and fair play. This letter to a British paper expresses a feeling which is reflected in other letters and anecdotes:

"Sir,—I was dining in the restaurant of a well-known West End hotel the other night. At a table near me a man in a torpor of drunkenness lolled face down on the cloth. The management were kind to him, roused him with a gentle pat, comforted him with black coffee, lit his cigarette and left him to drop forward again over his table. A sober but black soldier came in. The management refused to serve him. Full of resignation he retraced his steps to the entrance and disappeared into the night. Meanwhile the white man lolled on in peace and plenty. The little waitress, probably below conscription age, flared up in a truly noble indignation and rated the head waiter soundly and roundly for turning the black man away. No one else moved.—Iris Holland Rogers".

British democracy is far from perfect, and the British are learning that American democracy is sometimes anything but impressive. This mutual understanding could result in a greatly increased understanding of democracy on both sides. In any case it will be more valuable than preaching at one another across the Atlantic.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Nice girls do not dance or dine with them", writes a retired Major-General (quite inaccurately) about the Zombies. But does anyone 'dine' on a private's pay? We suspect that they just grab a snack at a greasy spoon joint.

A movie studio's publicity handout tells us this: "In her newest picture Diana Lynn will play several favourite Chopin selections, requiring her to practice two hours a day". This still leaves her a lap behind the late Paderewski, who practiced five hours a day when he was loafing and eight hours when he was preparing for a concert.

Hitler Is Not Alone

(By J. H. GRAY)

OUT of the welter of confusion which will surely follow upon the attempted assassination of Adolf Hitler there will stand one fact to which Canadians should clasp and hold firm. It is this: Not a single scrap of information is coming out of Germany which the Germans do not wish us to have. This applies to the official German statements, to the broadcasts of phoney "Free German" radios from within the country, and to the veritable flood of expertizing and theorizing from the rumor factories of Stockholm and Berne.

That an attempt was made upon Hitler's life can be taken for granted. We can believe that. The German regime is now engaged upon a frantic effort to turn this development of its own advantage at home and abroad as it has done so consistently with events in the past. The information it is giving to the world is being given with malice aforethought in an effort to undermine the fighting strength of the United Nations by creating over-optimism of a quick and easy victory over a revolution-torn Germany.

What is behind the bombing is, of course, difficult to guess at the moment. But we shall be in a better position to understand this and subsequent upheavals if we get the whole German regime in the sharpest possible focus, if we understand clearly that while Hitler is head of the German state he is not Germany; that the actual power of decisive action rests in Germany with the German Planning Board, upon which representatives of all branches of German life sit.

The Nazis have never publicized this board, but its existence and its method of operation is known well to many students of Germany in this and other countries. Instead of publicizing the unity of purpose of the German nation, the Nazi propagandists have sought always to direct our attention to the idea that there are serious differences between various groups; between the Nazis and the army, between the Nazis and the industrialists; between the Nazis and the financiers, the theologians and the workers.

THE German system, since the inception of Hitler, and even before him for that matter, operated roughly in this fashion:

Before any major decision was made in Germany, the opinion of the planning board big shots was always obtained. Instead of having a general pow-wow, representatives of each group, and opposing factions within each group, were called to Hitler's headquarters separately. The propaganda wing was called in and the frankest of discussions was held. Then came the industrialists, the bankers, the trades union representatives and the army group. In recent years, of course, the army has been the dominant faction.

Out of all the information provided by these talks, by the exchange of opinions of great diversity, came a decision. This decision was always solidified and then announced at a conclave of gauleiters—ward heelers—from every section of the country.

It was inevitable that serious disagreements would occur between various factions, section and individuals. But when the decision was taken it was not Hitler's, but collective. The objectors usually bowed to the will of the top planners. When they refused they were removed from their posts.

It so happens that a session with the top planners was either just over or just concluding when Hitler was attacked. The whole military situation was undoubtedly given the closest scrutiny at this meeting. This top planning board has no illusions about the war. It long ago decided, according to people who know Germany and the regime intimately, that the war was lost. The question of whether Germany would sue for peace in order to prepare for the next war was no longer a point of debate. The only question to be decided was when this should happen.

Was this attack upon Hitler, then, a major military plot to kill him and make peace now, as the Nazis intimate, or was it simply an outburst of impatience by a minority of disgruntled officers who found themselves in disagreement with the decision which the planning board made? Students of modern Germany here incline strongly to the latter.

They regard the idea that there is a distinction to be made between the Nazi party and the German army as fallacious—an illusion created deliberately by the Germans to fool the rest of the world. This illusion was created by the periodic firing of German generals by Adolf Hitler. These generals, however, were dismissed in fact by the high command itself for strictly military reasons, in the opinion of informed observers. The firing was simply done in Hitler's name, just as in the last war it was always reported to be the Kaiser who did the firing.

IF this summation of the German system is accurate, then the question which may have been debated at the recent meetings of the top planners was then to sue for peace. The decision which could have impelled the disgruntled minority into violent action would have been one which was for further prolongation of the war.

The top planners never went to much trouble to keep their master-plan a secret. If they failed in this attempt at world conquest they would try again after this war was concluded. Part of their plan was so to bleed their opponents even in victory that our will to fight another war with them would be destroyed. This would require that they exact the most fearful casualties possible before they staged some kind of a bogus revolution and made peace. Except for the Russians, who have suffered terribly, they have not as yet inflicted important casualties upon the armies of the democracies.

It may well be that the heavy losses the Germans themselves have suffered has impaired their own will to carry their fiendish scheme through to the end and led to the attempt on Hitler's life.

Whatever happens to Hitler and his top-ranking Nazis is, in the last analysis, not of paramount importance. Mr. Churchill, in his notable speech on the surrender of Italy, put the issue facing us very clearly. The Nazi regime must be completely destroyed. But we must root out and destroy as well the Prussian Junker military caste which yields nothing whatever to Hitler in its genius for evil. Unless the German militarists share the fate of Hitler and all his gang, we will have only postponed and left unsolved the German problem. Two wars within a generation have at least taught us that lesson. The militarists fooled us once, but we must not be fooled this time by a fake revolution or even by a whole series of assassinations.

A CHIP OF THE OLD BLOCK —By Thomas

Decline Of The Pledged Word

(By R. J. DEACHMAN)

IT was a warm summer morning, very warm. He crossed the street ahead of me. I called him. A car came between us and I was delayed for a moment, he waited.

"I haven't the slightest desire to see you run over by an auto on a warm morning like this", he said, "and besides there is something on my mind that I want to tell you. I have been reading an article on juvenile delinquency and the point I want to make is that it is not youth that is delinquent but age and we ought to turn our thoughts and minds to things as they are."

"We have", he said, "destroyed the value of a promise. Promises to pay are now made with reservations. An agreement is an agreement if it suits our convenience. This attitude to life began at the top and has moved down. It represents not the views of youth, but the views of maturity. It came from old age, from men who represented the nations at Geneva and the other conference meeting places, and from men who signed agreements, with tongues in cheek, because they knew they would never be kept—if anyone tried to break them."

Then he mentioned the long list running from Ethiopia to China, to Czecho-Slovakia to Manchuria and back again. It was always the same thing. Practical men were forgetting their principles, feeding the tiger in the hope that raw meat, plenty of it, would turn tigers into vegetarians, feeding quietly on peas and melons and saskatoons.

IT was hard to answer these statements. I fear I made a feeble reply, though I hate to take a challenge lying down. The world for years has been dominated by a "pink cast of thought", and alas, so often in life the "pinks" are wrong!

In this period of decline—in 1935—the Emperor of Ethiopia, Haile Selassie, made a few remarks which in the light of known facts deserve a place—I remembered it and looked it up when I reached my office—he spoke more truly than he knew:

"Do the people of the world not yet realize that by fighting on until the bitter end I am not only performing my sacred duty to my people, but standing guard in the last citadel of collective security? Are they too blind to see that I have my responsibilities to the whole of humanity to face? I must still hold on until my tardy allies appear. And if they never come, then I say prophetically and without bitterness: The West will perish."

Always it was the same story—the world had to be admonished by one who knew—but it failed to listen. Practical men saw in all these things an easy way to avoid issues. Action involves the recognition of facts. The strong began to see that they could overthrow the weak and do it with impunity. Haile Selassie had to read a lesson in morals to the League of Nations and to you and me and to all the other people of the world. Few listened—we were busy!

HERBERT AGAR, in a recent book, "A Time for Greatness", points to a curious change which took place in the life of the world between 1913 and 1938.

In 1913 the whole western world became incensed becaused one German shoemaker was knocked off the sidewalk in Zabern by a Prussian lieutenant. Men of middle age today will recall that incident. It shot through the world like an electric flash. The German Government almost fell.

That one incident caused more protest than Italy's invasion of Ethiopia or Germany's aid to Spain.

Mr. Agar mentions also the Dreyfus affair. A Jew, an officer of the French army, was bitterly wronged—imprisoned for a crime he did not commit. France was in revolt against it. Men risked their lives and reputations, for justice was dear to their hearts. But we lived to see the day when Jews were slaughtered by the hundreds of thousands by Hitler. France had died in the interval and a Frenchman at the head of the Government of France collaborated with the murderers. Perhaps in Canada, the United States and the rest of the world, we moved in that direction—but stark disaster brought us back from the pit of hell.

We are being trained to lean when we should be standing upright. The people, not the state, constitute the life of the nation. If the state can give us all we need, then the state must take from us all we produce or the state will become so poor it will fail to carry the functions which naturally belong to it. When men and women begin to feel that they can live by their votes rather than by their work, the danger signs are up—there is disaster ahead of us. The wealth of a nation depends upon the volume of its production. That is a fact, and the nation which fails to recognize it will lose its power and influence. There are realities in life and these, in the end, determine the fate of men and of nations.

Titles From Shakespeare

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

TO say that Shakespeare, like the Greeks, had a word for it is but to repeat a time-worn observation. Yet there can be few Shakespeare readers who have not experienced personal surprise on encountering in his pages for the first time some phrase that we thought was very new or that we thought came down from Julius Caesar.

Many an essay has been written on what Shakespeare has given modern slang or the language of diplomacy. What interests us here today, however, is a literary I.Q. published in the Saturday Review of Literature on titles taken from Shakespeare.

Among titles borrowed from the bard are:
"Both Your Houses", by Maxwell Anderson.
"Dear Brutus", by James M. Barrie.
"Tomorrow and Tomorrow", by Philip Barry.
"Can Such Things Be?" by Ambrose Bierce.
"This England", by Mary Ellen Chase.
"Sad Cypress", by Agatha Christie.
"Ill Met by Moonlight", by Leslie Ford.
"Goodnight, Sweet Prince", by Gene Fowler.
"Under the Greenwood Tree", by Thomas Hardy.
"Twice Told Tales", by Nathaniel Hawthorne.
"Brave New World", by Aldous Huxley.
"Told by an Idiot", by Rose Macauley.
"Cakes and Ale", by Somerset Maugham.
"Not so Deep as a Well", by Dorothy Parker.
"Remembrance of Things Past", by Marcel Proust.
"All Our Yesterdays", by H M. Tomlinson.
"Glimpses of the Moon", by Edith Wharton.

Many of these will be familiar to most Shakespeare fans, though one or two may stump them. "Cakes and Ale", that lovely title used by Maugham, for instance, comes from Sir Toby in Twelfth Night asking: "Dost you think, because thou art virtuous, there shall be no more cakes and ale?" But we find from our Bartlett's that Cakes and Ale was also used by Aesop in 550 B.C. in The Town Mouse and the Country Mouse: "Better beans and bacon in peace than cakes and ale in fear." "This England", of course, is from the memorable passage of Richard II. which has probably provided more quotations than any other eleven lines in literature.

Discipline

A number of patient shoppers standing in a queue outside a butcher's shop in a southern England town beheld a flying bomb making in their direction. They broke formation, hurried into the shop, and threw themselves to the ground. The bomb exploded near by and sprayed them with glass from the shop windows. They got up, shook themselves, went out into the street, and re-formed the queue in its original order. The butcher was not visibly impressed. "You don't want to buy this meat," he said; "it's full of glass".—From the Manchester Guardian.

Fifteen Years of Silence

THE death has taken place near Bulawayo of the youngest son of Lobengula, the last King of the Matabele. For the last 15 years of his life he refused to speak to anyone.

Educated in England at the order of Cecil Rhodes, Nguboyenja spoke English fluently, but on his return to the colony 30 years ago he found he had lost touch with the customs of his people and their way of living. He expected to return to a position of authority, but the chiefs of the Matabele royal house opposed him and he eventually became a dependent of the Government and lived a life of seclusion. He rarely left the house, spending most of his time reading English literature.

Embittered and estranged from his people, he took the vow of silence and all efforts to make him speak on the part of both Europeans and natives failed.—London Times.

Letter To The Editor

CONSCRIPTION ISSUE

Sir,—Your editorial of July 20th is the sanest and most comprehensive analysis of the conscription "issue" this observer has noted to date. Disregarding the merits or demerits of the case the situation is that the people of this country have no liking for enforced service of any kind.

Have those who are raising their voices to the high heavens in a demand for conscription given a thought to the impossibility of enforcing such an imposition on the will of the majority of the people? I think not. When it has been proven that even the limited demands of the N.R.M.A. are unacceptable to a vast number of our citizens, how may we go about enforcing the unlimited demands of total and full conscription? Short of defeating its own purpose by employing armed force to recruit armed force, it is impossible to attain a greater measure of conscription than exists at present.

What this country needs in addition to a sad superfluity of political parties is a sense of realism.

WILLIAM MICHAUD.

A Bible Message

I WILL mention the lovingkindnesses of the Lord, and the praises of the Lord, according to all that the Lord hath bestowed on us, and the great goodness toward the house of Israel, which he hath bestowed on them according to his mercies, and according to the multitude of his lovingkindnesses.....

Doubtless thou art our father, though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not: thou, O Lord, art our father, our redeemer; thy name is from everlasting. (Isa. 63: 7, 16.)

When the Most High divided to the nations their inheritance, when he separated the sons of Adam, he set the bounds of the people according to the number of the children of Israel.

For the Lord's portion is his people; Jacob is the lot of his inheritance. He found him in a desert land, and in the waste howling wilderness; he led him about, he instructed him, he kept him as the apple of his eye. As an eagle stirreth up her nest, fluttereth over her young, spreadeth abroad her wings, taketh them, beareth them on her wings: so the Lord alone did lead him, and there was no strange god with him. (Deut. 32: 8-12.)

◆ ◆ ◆

And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him. Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment: because as he is, so are we in this world. (John 4: 16, 17.)

For there are three that bear record in heaven, the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghost: and these three are one. (I. John 5: 7.)

Unconsidered Trifles

Mrs. Longsham, giving instructions to her new maid, said: "Before removing the soup plates Ellen, always ask each person if he or she would like any more.

"Very good, madam!"

The next day, Ellen, respectfully bowing to one of the guests, inquired: "Would the gentleman like some more soup?"

"Yes, please," was the reply.

"Well," said Ellen, "there ain't any left!"

"Eh?" said the farmer. "I can't 'ear yer."

"Are you interested in radio?" asked the salesman, louder.

"Speak up, man!"

"Would you like to inspect our new wireless model?" screamed the salesman.

"No, thank 'ee," said the old man; "we got a 'armonyum."

Four miles farther on he came to a cottage, and knocked at the door."

"Pardon me, madam," he began. "I have here——"

"Not interested!" snapped the woman. "Besides, I 'eard you the first time."

Adventurous Tommy Proves Real Glutton For Action

BY DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8th ARMY IN ITALY July 25 — (CP) — We met Peter Grainger poking around Cassino, the grimy, solid personification of the British Tommy. People had been coming to Cassino for days just to look upon its ruins, and Peter had come because it had seemed like an interesting thing to do.

His regiment didn't know where he was, Peter said. He had left it before the great Italian offensive had started because it was in reserve. He had put his rifle over his shoulder and gone out to find himself a battalion that would cross the Rapido river and fight for a bridgehead. He had gone across the river with the assault waves of one unit, had left it, too, when it went into reserve and had gone on with another.

When he came back to Cassino he was carrying a German machine-pistol. He had picked it up fighting with the Poles around Piedmonto and he had killed one German with it and captured two more.

All this Peter said.

"Some people think I'm mad for doing things like this," he grinned. "But that's just the way I am."

Weeks after, we still don't know whether we should regard Peter Grainger of London, England, as the fightingest or the most mendacious Tommy of them all. But we thought we'd tell you about him anyway.

All along the road the Germans had abandoned vehicles. The Allied bombs, shells and bullets had ruined them or started a ruin the Germans finished before they left them behind as blackened, distorted skeletons. There were trucks and busses and cars like the one they had tricked and bullied from Pietro and Giuseppe back in Rome.

There were many more than Pietro and Giuseppe who had been tricked and bullied back in Rome. Three days before they fled the Germans spread through the city the report that those who brought out their cars could have petrol to run them again. Slowly, dubiously the Romans brought out their cars.

Then the Germans struck. They set up machine-guns in the streets and grabbed off one vehicle after another. And that is how Giuseppe's car and Pietro's car came to be charred wrecks along the road the Germans took in flight.

Bobby Nayler Passes Bear Near Marmora

MARMORA, July 25 — (ENS) — Bobby Nayler had the surprise of his life one evening recently as he was cycling on No. 7 highway east of the village. As he came to where the pavement ends about a mile and a half from Marmora, a fair sized bear crossed the road a little ahead of him, taking a southerly direction. He returned to get some of his cycling friends but when the party arrived, nothing of Bruin could be seen.

Two Systems Of Voting Being Used In Albert In August

EDMONTON, July 25—(CP)—Proportional representation and single transferable ballot, two systems of voting in force in Alberta since 1926, will be used in the August 8 Provincial general election.

Under proportional representation, in the five-member Calgary and Edmonton constituencies only, a candidate to be elected must reach a fixed quota. This is done by dividing the total of first ballots by the total number of seats to be filled, plus one, and adding one to the quotient.

Under the single transferable ballot, used in the 47 single-seat ridings, no quota is necessary but a candidate to be elected must have a majority over all other combined. If a majority is not obtained on the first count, the candidate having the least number of first choices is eliminated and the ballots are allocated to others according to the second choice. This procedure is followed until one candidate has a clear majority.

In both systems the "low man" after the first count is eliminated. Proportional representation also calls for the winner's surplus to be distributed as the count proceeds.

Voters indicate their choices by figures—1 for first, 2 for second, 3 for third and so on. A voter is entitled to mark his ballot for all candidates in the order of his choice, and in the two multiple-member constituencies choices often reach the 20-mark. At the last session of the Legislature an amendment to the Election Act was passed allowing the marking of first choices with a cross instead of figures, as the voter preferred. Thereafter, numbers are to be used, such as 2, 3, 4, and so on.

Previously use of an 'X' disqualified the ballot.

Churchill's Son In Plane Crash

SOMEWHERE IN YUGOSLAVIA, July 17.—(Delayed).—(CP). — Maj. Randolph Churchill, Capt. Evelyn Waugh, four Russian officers and myself were fortunate survivors when our transport plane crashed from 400 feet and burst into flames in Yugoslavia.

We are being cared for in Partisan hospitals and billets. Our crew who perished were members of British and Dominion forces.

Maj. Churchill, son of the Prime Minister, and Capt. Waugh, novelist, are members of the British mission to Marshal Tito's Partisans. The Russians also were en route to Partisan headquarters.

This dispatch by a British correspondent did not disclose whether Maj. Churchill or Capt. Waugh were injured.

House To Sit On Saturdays

OTTAWA, July 25 — (CP) — The House of Commons, after a mild protest from Clarence Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South) Monday decided to work six days a week for the rest of the session. It will sit on Saturday, morning, afternoon and evening.

Mr. Gillis said this was hard on members of the opposition who had to be in the House all the time in order to watch legislation. He wanted to know how long the session would last.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King said the length of the session depended more on the opposition than the government. He could not say how long members would want to speak.

"As to opposition members being in the House all the time," he said, "I can say to my friend that I have not seen his leader (M. J. Coldwell) nor the leader of the Social Credit Party (John Blackmore) in the House for a week or so past."

(Mr. Blackmore and Mr. Coldwell are in Alberta for the Provincial election campaign.)

Replying to a suggestion from Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, that Saturday sittings be reconsidered after one week if progress is not being made, Mr. King said he had been considering adjourning the session until October, but felt that would not meet the wishes of members.

Helps Chase Away Her Winter Aches

For ten years now Mrs. Brock has found that the coming of winter brings on bothersome aches and pains. But she doesn't worry about that because she has a tried and trusted friend to help her . . . as she tells in her letter:—

"I am a middle-aged country woman and lead a very active life as a farm-worker in addition to household tasks. Ten years ago, I had a bad attack of neuritis. I tried Kruschen Salts and got relief in a week. Now I always keep a jar of Kruschen in the house, but during the busy summer days I forget all about it. Then winter comes, I begin to put on weight and also get aches and pains: then I am reminded of my Kruschen on the shelf. Down comes the little glass jar, and after the first three doses I feel better, and in about a week I feel like my old self again."
—(Mrs.) A. Brock.

The "little daily dose" of Kruschen Salts helps to keep your internal organs regular in their daily duties. Liver, kidneys and bowels are stimulated to healthy, normal activity, thus ensuring the punctual elimination of those waste products and poisons that may endanger the health.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable of all Drug Stores. 25c and 75c.

Indian Troops Gain Two Miles In Italy

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE 8TH ARMY IN ITALY, July 25—(CP Cable)—Indian troops of the British 8th Army yesterday overcame strong German resistance to take Citta di Castello in the Tiber valley and gains of nearly two miles were reported east of the town.

When the Germans finally withdrew they left the town of 34,500 heavily mined. German casualties were heavy. Seventy who were hiding in cellars were killed when the walls of the buildings were pushed over by British tanks.

Motorcycle Driver Wounded In France

OMEMEE, July 25 — (ENS) — Word has been received by Mrs. Cecil Armstrong, nee Dorothy Ellis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Ellis, Omemee, that her husband, Pte. Cecil Armstrong, R.C.O.C., has been injured in a motorcycle accident in England.

Mrs. Armstrong received a letter from her husband's nurse on Friday advising her of the extent of his injuries. He is suffering from a compound fracture of the right leg and severe side lacerations and his right arm is injured, causing temporary paralysis.

Pte. Armstrong enlisted in the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps in September, 1941, and landed in England on June 18, 1942. His wife and little son Jimmie reside in Omemee with Mrs Armstrong's parents. Jimmie was born after his father left Canada.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis also have two sons serving in His Majesty's forces —LAC. Davis Ellis, who is at present with the R.A.F. in France, and Tpr. Harry Ellis, R.E.C.C.E., who is stationed at Dundurn, Saskatchewan.

Complete Mobilization

London, July 25 (AP)

THE German home force's radio today broadcast an appeal to "mobilize to the last strength."

"Whoever fails to do his duty is no longer one of us," said the broadcast, which presumably now is under the direction of Heinrich Himmler, delegated by Adolf Hitler to command the home forces.

"No one has the right to live, not even breathe, who does not carry arms or force them," it added.

Senator Harry Truman will take Wallace's place as running mate with President Roosevelt.

When is a Dollar Not a Dollar?

When it won't buy a dollar's worth of goods! For instance, compared to present-day standards, your dollar of the last war was worth, not a dollar ... but sometimes less than 50¢. TORONTO, July 25—(CP)—In a copyright story in the Globe and Mail today, Ralph Allen, that paper's war correspondent, reported that Maj. Conn Smythe and his light anti-aircraft battery, recruited here, had arrived in France.

Plazas and Soldiers tie into each other tonight in the first game of their semi-final City League playoff series, and the battle should be one of the most exciting of the year. Plazas finished a notch above the Military Training Centre club, but the latter wound up the regular schedule by winning six games in a row, and they are carrying the impetus of that victorious march into the playoffs. In other words, the outcome of this best-of-five series between the two old rivals looks like a toss-up. Plazas in other seasons had a habit of playing their best ball when the checks were down, and it remains to be seen whether the second-placers show the same tendency this season now that the playoffs have arrived. The second game in this series will be played on Tuesday night, and after that there will be a break until the week after next, no games being scheduled next week because of the C.G.E. holidays, which affect three of the four playoff clubs. There has been no announcement as probable pitchers in tonight's game which is called for 7 o'clock, but the choice will be between Revoir and Procyk for Soldiers and Wilson and Stokoe for the Plazas. The Training Centre only has the two heavers, while the third member of the Plaza staff, Terry Woods, is away on a vacation trip and will not be available until the week after next.

The rainstorm last Monday afternoon washed out the opening game in the City League playoffs between Switchgear and U.E.W. The weather cleared quickly, and it was fine overhead at game time, but the diamond was too wet to be played on and so the battle had to be called off, leaving it up to Plazas and Soldiers in the other bracket to pry the lid off the playoffs tonight. Switchgear and U.E.W. will open their round Wednesday night, and with Union hopeful of having the services of Hatty Eakins of Lindsay for that engagement, it should be an exciting battle all the way. Switchgear, who finished in first place, will be short a few regulars. Honey Tompkins and Earl McNabb are away on holidays, Art Padgett broke a finger recently and Johnny Playford sprang a charley horse, and in addition Manager Murph. Chambers himself, who is holidaying at Belmont Lake, will be an absentee Wednesday night. He made the trip up last night only to find the game washed out, and announced that he would not be back until the Friday night engagement. However, Switchgear will be able to field a strong club and are confident that in spite of the gaps in the lineup they will be able to get away to a good start in the semi-final series tomorrow night. The game is billed for 7 o'clock.

Good Team Coming

The Westclox management is giving Peterborough fans a chance to see two entertaining games of softball on Saturday afternoon and evening when the fast Mountain View R.C.A.F. Bomberettes will be here for two battles with the Big Bens at Riverside Park. The team representing the women's division of the R.C.A.F. at Mountain View is made up of girls from all over the country, and the reports are that they are a team that is strong in all departments, and will give the Westclockers plenty of opposition in the two Saturday fixtures. Joyce Withers will probably pitch one of the games for the Westclockers and Isobel Bullock will take over the pitching task in the other. The afternoon game is billed to start at 3 o'clock and the teams will return for a second tilt which is called for 7 o'clock. Both fixtures should draw a big crowd as Bomberettes are said to play the kind of ball that will make the Westclox come up with their best brand if they want to turn back the invaders.

In the Girls' Softball League tonight and tomorrow night Westclox Seconds and Peterborough Lock will be the attraction. The two teams will meet tonight and Wednesday night they will do it all over again, this double meeting being rendered necessary by reason of the fact that the schedule-makers had to do some juggling around to keep the league operating while the Westclox teams were away on holidays, and also to provide for games in the absence of Aircraft, who are vacation-bound next week. The Baby Bens and the Peterborough Lock are two of the baby members of the loop this season, and both have been responsible for bringing out some young material that should be heard from later on. They are evenly matched and these two games tonight and tomorrow night should provide two interesting contests between outfits which need further seasoning, but the members of which are trying all the time and already showing the results of their first season in organized ball. In their ambition to improve the Baby Bens and the Lock team have the experience of Johnson Motors to encourage them. The Outboard Marines failed to win a game in their initial season last year, but they never stopped trying, got better as the schedule unfolded, and this year they have developed into an outfit that none of the teams can push around. Both Westclox and Aircraft discovered that fact last week when the Outboards threw a scare into both clubs.

Ken Colling of Belleville has been digging into ancient history, and he comes up with a story of a pitching duel 20 years ago between Belleville's Jack Ouellet and Oshawa's Duke Dainty, in which Ouellet triumphed with a one-hitter, moving Belleville into first place. Adds Bre'er Colling: "At the time of this game Billie Mills was leading the C.O.B.L. batters with a healthy .367 batting average. Next came Harry Batstone with a close .361, then Kingston's Mickey Compeau with .358 and next Al Heckman, Peterborough's pride and pitcher, with a .352 hitting average. That was the year two Yanks, by name: Kelly for Kingston and Serth for Peterborough, were imported to beat Belleville's Jack Ouellet and Oshawa's Duke Dainty. Kingston and Peterborough did finally finish in play-off positions, but a post-league squabble revealed neither Serth or Kelly were eligible, and low and behold if Belleville and Oshawa didn't finally meet in the 1924 C.O.B.L. championship series in which the records show Belleville won out. Incidentally Belleville won Central League pennants in 1919, 1922, '23, '24, '28, '29 and '30, making seven flags in all. Kingston won the old bunting on six occasions, Peterborough three and Oshawa three as the league operated 20 years with a lone break in 1927."

There was a lot of action on the big league fronts yesterday, but the standings were not disturbed a great deal. In the American League both the leading teams, the St. Louis Browns and the New York Yanks, were winners. The Brownies nosed out the Boston Red Sox 6 to 5 despite a Sox four-run rally in the 8th, and the losers dropped some ground to the fast-coming Cleveland Indians, who walloped Washington Senators 10 to 1, and are only half a game behind the Red Sox in the battle for third place. In fact, only four games separate the Tribe from the league-leading St. Louis Browns. Detroit, another threat, also won yesterday when Dizzy Trout picked up his 14th win of the season, blanking the A's 1 to 0 in a duel with Bobo Newsom. In the National League the Cards ,who are now 13½ games in front of the second-place Cincinnati Reds, gave Flutterball Jim Tobin quite a lacing in beating the Boston Braves 7 to 1. Rip Sewell of the Pirates was the victim of even worse treatment at the hands of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who put together a nine-run rally in one frame and won 12 to 7. Mel. Ott's Giants came from behind with four runs in the eighth inning to beat Chicago 5 to 2.

SPORTING CHILE CON CARNE: Cam Ecclestone, who pitched for the local All-Stars against his own team, the Tip Tops, here week before last, tosed a no-hit, no-run game in the Beaches' Fastball League last night, blanking the Navy 6 to 0. Ecclestone struck out 13 Sailors and the only three to reach first base travelled on passes. .Eddie Starr, Phil Pryde, Art Heal and Terry Woods of the Plazas are holidaying this week and will likely be out of tonight's game with Soldiers....Joe Blewett will take over the catching duties in Starr's absence....Jimmy Dykes of the Chicago White Sox has signed a new two-year contract....Manager Leo Durocher has been fined $50 for a verbal battle with Umpire Bill Stewart....The Lip will probably feel that he said $50 worth....Mike Martyk of St. Catharines was beaten in Buffalo in a 10-round bout last night by Sal Bartolo, who is generally recognized as the world's featherweight champ.

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

St. Louis Browns have led the American League through the entire season with the exception of about three weeks in May, but according to the latest fielding and batting averages they are definitely a second division club—sixth place at best. The Browns have only one .300 hitter, Vern Stephens, and the fielding averages rank them sixth, two percentage points out of last place. To add to the mystery, they have no standout pitchers, Bob Muncrief's 9 and 5 being the best won-and-lost record among the moundsmen.

Peppery Jimmy Dykes, after Conny Mack and Joe McCarthy the best-established of major league managers with 11 years' service in the Chicago White Sox uniform, last night signed a new two-year agreement with the Sox management. Mrs. Grace Comiskey, president of the club, said Dykes "did not take a cut." The White Sox boss is reported to be earning $27,500 a year under his present contract.

Lippy Leo Durocher, whose Brooklyn Dodgers give him almost as much trouble as National League umpires, received notice from League President Ford Frick before last night's game with the Pirates that he had been fined $50 as a result of his verbal row with Umpire Bill Stewart during the second game of Sunday's double-header.

Heinie Manush, former star major league outfielder now manager of the Scranton Red Sox in the Eastern Baseball League, has been suspended indefinitely for failure to pay a $50 fine levied on him on July 16. Heinie, alays a fiery performer in his playing days with Washington Senators and Brooklyn Dodgers, was fined for "conduct unbecoming to a professional ball player," Thomas Richardson, league president, stated.

War Stone, six-year-old gelded son of Man o' War owned by Anthony Graffagnini of New Orleans, broke his neck and died in an accident at the starting gate yesterday before the running of the seventh race at the Detroit track. His jockey, Tommy Bates, was unhurt.

GERMAN PRISONERS ESCAPE

CALGARY.—(CP).—Employed on a labor project at Winfield, Alta., west of Wetaskiwin, three German prisoners of war escaped Sunday night, army authorities in Calgary said last night. The men are Kurt Braeumer, 23, Lion Heins, 24, and George Zeller, 22.

Crews Expecting Keen Opposition At Henley Race

ST. CATHARINES, July 25. —(CP). — Hamilton Leanders with light and heavy eight-oared crews, a senior four and a stout singles challenger, figure to provide strong opposition for all comers at the Canadian Henley Regatta opening Thursday.

The Canadian Henley this year carries the North American sculling titles, as the United States National Regatta at Philadelphia this summer has been called off because of war priorities over college crews. One result is a heavy influx of United States contestants.

Besides Leanders and Toronto Argos, the aggregate championship winners of last year, main competition this week will be forthcoming from Jim Rice and his oarmen from Ecorse, Mich., and the crewmen of Buffalo Westsides, long Henley contenders.

The Hamilton oarsmen have been on the course since the week-end. Besides the heavy eight, Leanders have a 145-pound eight and a senior four and they will start Claude Saunders in the quarter-mile dash and the association singles, from which he hopes to progress to the senior singles. Saunders stroked the Leander eight at the 1932 Olympics at Berlin and has stroked three winning crews in the Hanlan Memorial.

Championship Winner

Toronto Argos a year ago took the aggregate championship with 56 points compared to 45 for Ecorse and 29 for Leanders, with Westsides fourth at 28 points and the rest trailing. This year Argos have entries in singles, doubles, fours and eights. Ken Thorburn is their leading singles contestant.

The championship singles on Saturday afternoon will pit Thorburn and Harvey Hutcheon, a St. Catharines boy now rowing for Ottawa R.C. as a member of the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa, against the association singles winner.

The senior eights will bring together Argos, Detroit, Ecorse and the winner of the junior eights in which Leanders, St. Catharines, Detroit and Westsides are entered.

St. Catharines is the only Canadian entrant in the High school eights this year, pitted against Ecorse, Grosse Point and Wyandottes, all of Michigan.

Only two heats will be rowed on Thursday—both in the junior 145-pound eights, but 10 races are scheduled Friday and 16 on Saturday.

The Sports Round-Up

By FRITZ HOWELL (Pinch-hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 25 — (AP). — A "Tale of Two Bucks" is the Mid-west's current laugh-getter.

Milwaukee's Brewers, getting set for to-morrow's American Association all-star game, erected 2,000 outfield seats to take care of the "all-for-charity" crowd which will see the loop-leaders meet the pick of the other seven clubs. To aid the buildup, V. P. Mike Heath asked the other executives to mail pictures of their players selected for the all-star squad.

The laugh?

St. Paul sent in two photos—and with them a bill for $2.

Do You Know Dept.:

No. 1—What player went through 23 complete major league seasons and was never hit by a pitched ball?

No. 2—Which club is the "baby" member of the American League?

(Answers at end of column.)

Quicky:

Food for thought: Bob Stedler of the Buffalo Evening News says that of the $2,527,601 wagered during the Fort Erie, Ont., race meeting, only $1,971,529 was returned to the Manning ticket holders. A total of $556,072, or about 2 per cent, was deducted.

Why not sign him:

The other day Centre Fielder Paul Douglas helped extend a New Orleans losing streak by letting a fly ball get away for a triple — a ball manager Lafayette Fresco Thompson thought he should have caught in his hip pocket.

Two innings later, a pelican hoisted a foul into the stands, and a spectator leaped up to make a tasty catch. Thompson raced from the coaching line into the stands and wrung the specetator's hand.

"Nice catch, nice catch," he yelled. "Would you mind coming out early to-morrow and showing Douglas how you did it?"

Newark Bears Whip Rochester By 4-1 Score

By The Associated Press

As a result of a sustained drive which has seen them rise from the International League cellar, Newark Bears stand to-day at the gates of the first division.

Just two games behind the fourth place Jersey Giants, Newark handed Rochester a 4-1 whipping last night in a game that saw Mel Queen rack up his sixth win. Manager Ken Penner of the Wings was chased from the game in the seventh for protesting a called third strike too vigorously.

The Giants hung on to their first division slot as they split with Buffalo 4-1 and 9-4. Although making only four hits in the opener, the Little Giants helped Bob Henry along to his second win of the season. Young Jim McAlarney was blasted from the hill by the Herd in the nightcap as Walt Wilson coasted to his 10th win behind 15 Buffalo hits.

Montreal Royals, in third place, crept to within half a game of the Herd as they pasted the Syracuse Chiefs, 7-2. Johnny Gabbard pitched his way to his seventh win, as the Royals decided things with a four-run second inning.

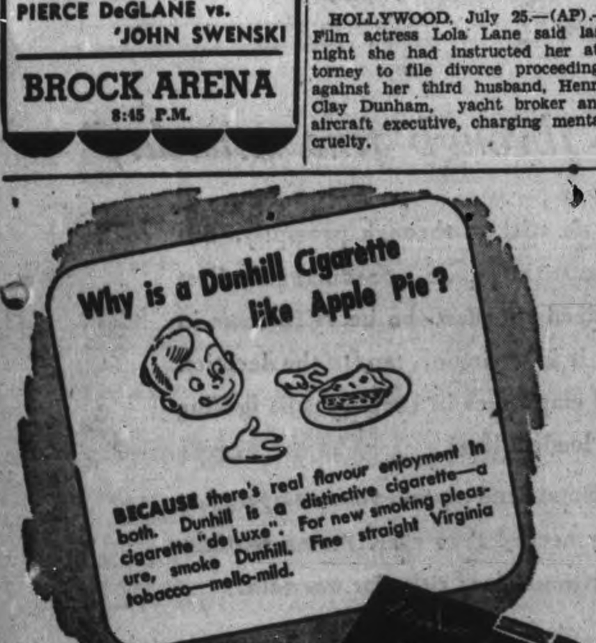
Loses Third Husband

HOLLYWOOD, July 25.—(AP).—Film actress Lola Lane said last night she had instructed her attorney to file divorce proceedings against her third husband, Henry Clay Dunham, yacht broker and aircraft executive, charging mental cruelty.



SINCE TAKING OVER her job as municipal lifeguard four weeks ago, Ruth Choate has rescued three persons from drowning and helped almost a score of children. Here she teaches youngsters how to swim at Inverlea Park.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

AT CAMP

Seventeen members of St. John's Wolf Cub Pack atended the two-day camp at the Scout graunds recently. The Pack met at the Parish Hall where equipment was packed on a truck many of the boys travelling by the same means. Mr. Cunningham, a member of the Group committee, provided transportation for the women leaders.

On arriving at the grounds, the pack was divided into three sixes, the Red, White and Blues, and were alloted places in the hut for sleeping accomodation, and were given hessian bags that were later filled with hay for beds. At the council rock every member was given a piece of cloth with his or her Jungle name drawn on same. The three visiting helpers were Mrs. Ford, Bagheera, Mrs. Groombridge, White Hood, A. Hope, Howkeye.

The Cubs were glad to welcome Pete Dominik at the Red Flower and invite him to take part. Swimming at the River was enjoyed by all and on Sunday morning the Pack gathered around the Council Rock where a short but impressive Cubs Own service was held. The game of Black Magic played Sunday afternoon caused lots of hunting and good fun.

Leaders At Camp

Eight leaders of local troops and one member of the Local Boy Scout association gathered at the Scout grounds for a week end of camping and work. Those who attended the camp were: Barry Ottewell, Pres. of Scout Association; Honorary Commissioner J. T. Hornsby, District Commissioner E. Wolff, Scouter Rivard, St. Peter's Troop, Akela Collet and Baloo Miss E. Grady, Sacred Heart Pack; Akela Miss B. Meiklejohn, St. Paul's; Scouter E. McNabb, Murray St. Troop. Sgt. Ken Brown, Assistant Scouter St. John's and Akela Groombridge also of St. John's. Two members of St. John's Troop also arrived in Camp late Saturday evening Jamie Collis and Alex McLeod.

The women were given use of the hut for the period of the Camp while the other members were allotted tents. Scouters George Houghton and Ed Johnston paid a brief visit during Sunday noon but did not stay to take any part in the proceedings. Many of the stones around the entrance of the hut were hauled up and the ground between the cook house and the main hut was levelled. A permanent table and some shelves were built in the cook house at the instigation of Sgt. Brown with many assistants. On Sunday morning a tour of the grounds was made by all, starting from the hut, proceeding to the northern limits, then by the road and through the bush to the southern limits back to the hut on the high level.

A period of discussions on the various needs of the camp took place Sunday afternoon. Although it is first in importance, the question of Pump for water was left out of this period, the Camp fire spot it was thought should be left to the Scouts and Cubs to do some work on as projects with the work being planned by special committees and allotted to various groups. Water barrels and eaves troughing of the back of the hut with buckets at various posts for fire protection purposes, water barrel on wheels for transporting drinking water or fire protection water was also discussed.

Folding Tables

The question of permanent fire places was brought up again and some action requested, all garbage is to be burnt, including cans, the latter to be flattened out and placed in receptacles provided by the association for that purpose. These were a few of the items discussed and placed on the agenda to take before the local association for their approval. It was suggested that some tables be built under the trees but this was thought to be too inviting and it was decided that folding tables be built so that they can be easily stored in the huts at the end of any camp.

President Barrie Ottowell is in favor of another such Camp being held simetime in September and we would like to see a larger crowd of officers on hand for the occasion. A committee will be chosen at an early date to make full arrangements for this affair.

Cardinals Hope To Clinch Flag By Labor Day

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

St. Louis was in a good spot today to start planning for that intra-city world series.

The Cardinals were 13½ games out in front of the National League traveling at a pace that should clinch the flag by Labor Day.

Luke Sewell's Brownies broke even in two important four-game series with Boston and New York and now entertain seventh and eighth-place Washington and Philadelphia.

While the Brownies were hard pressed to split even with their closest contenders, Cleveland took seven of eight from the other eastern visitors and moved to within a half-game of third place and within 4½ of the leaders.

The Tribe steam-rollered Washington 10-1 yesterday as Ed (Specs) Klieman, stopped the Nats with four hits for his eighth victory. Mickey Rocco drove in five runs.

Denny Galehouse took Nels Potter's turn for St. Louis and whipped Boston, 6-5, although relief help from George Caster was needed when the Sox spurted for four in the eighth.

Ernie (Jumbo) Bonham scattered 10 Chicago hits while Johnny Lindell set the slugging pace with four hits in an 11-5 Yankees triumph over Buck Ross.

Dizzy Trout whitewashed Philadelphia, 1-0, for his 14th win to move Detroit back into the .500 circle at Bobo Newsom's expense.

Brookly had its biggest inning of the year, scoring nine times in the lucky seventh, including a two-run homer by Dixie Walker, to rout Rip Sewell and defeat Pittsburgh, 12-7.

The New York Giants exploded on Claude Passeau for four runs in the eighth to pull out a 5-3 nod over Chicago with Phil Weintraub's double providing the tying and winning runs.

Patsy Joe Giordanno, 148, Toronto, outpointed Pte. Rudy Florio, 145, Hamilton, Ont., in six rounds.

TORONTO, July 25 — (CP). — Those race fans who were afraid the new 5 per cent tax levied by the Ontario Government would put damper on wagering at the tracks can dry their tears now. The betting hasn't suffered a bit—in fact, the Ontario tracks in the first half of the season showed a tidy $1,164,819 increase over the same period last year.

In the first 49 days of the track season, the parimutuel machines clicked merrily to the tune of $11,216,543, against last year's first-half total of $10,053,724, according to official figures given by Bobby Hewitson in the Toronto Telegram.

Most remarkable boost was at the Fort Erie track, which bettered its last season record by $579,671. That is quite a jump, but the track had an exceptionally poor season in 1943, so actually it only regained some lost ground.

Punters at Woodbine chalked up the biggest betting total for a seven-day meet, when $2,157,493 were thrown to the horses.

All of which goes to show that it doesn't matter how much the Government nicks the mutuels for. Even if 22 per cent of all money wagered went to Mr. Ilsley's Department, the fans still didn't mind kicking through with their hard-earned mazula—as long as they had the chance to win an ocasional bet.

Here and there:

Sammy McManus, who cavorted with Moncton Hawks when they captured the Allan Cup in 1934 and 193., may play with St. Louis in the American Association next winter. The aging Sammy is reportedly thinking seriously about a come-back in pro hockey circles.... Jim (Toronto Globe and Mail) Coleman did some calculating, and decided Fred Schelke's speedy Shepperton would be a much better investment than those goldmine stocks currently enjoying such a rage. A $100 investment on Shep in each of his 14 starts this year would have returned you an even $1,400. Shep won 12 of his races.... Baseball is flourishing beneath the midnight sun. Alaska, jammed with servicemen and construction workers, is going for the game strongly, with 13 teams in the Senior League at Anchorage, and similar enthusiasm shown in most other centres.

Big Bill Tilden was reinstated at Paris as a member of the United States Davis Cup team 16 years ago by the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association after French tennis officials pleaded with the American ambassador. He had allegedly violated amateur rules. France won the challenge round 4-1, Tilden trimming Rene Lacoste but bowing to Henri Cochet for his first straight-set defeat in nine years of Davis Cup tennis.

One Of Hardest Battles Of France Fought By Galt Outfit At Buron

By WILLIAM STEWART

WITH THE CANADIAN FORCES IN FRANCE, July 12—(Delayed)—(CP Cable)—One of the most bitter battalion actions fought in France in this war was the attack by the Highland Light Infantry of Galt, Ont., on the little village of Buron July 8 during the assault which led to the capture of Caen by British and Canadian forces.

The Germans had converted the groves and orchards around Buron and the village's little stone houses into one of a series of positions protecting Caen, four miles to the southeast.

It was the second time since D-day that Buron and its environs had been a battleground, from dawn until the day after the Canadian landings in Normandy early in June the North Nova Scotia Highlanders engaged in a raging fighting with counter-attacking German infantry and tanks in and around the village.

Part Of Drive On Caen

This time the Galt unit overcame the village position, which was surrounded by machine-gun nests and a focal point for a fierce enemy bombardment with mortar bombs and shells. The attack was part of the general British-Canadian drive which smashed into Caen June 9 as the climax of a two-day offensive.

The attack on Buron put Ontario troops into an inferno which some who saw bloody battles of the First Great War said was comparable to, if not more severe than, these clashes. Similar furious engagements were fought simultaneously for the nearby villages of Gruchy and Authie.

Commander Wounded.

The commander of the H.L.I., a lieutenant-colonel from Niagara Falls, Ont., was wounded, one company commander was killed, and two more company commanders were wounded.

There were individual acts of great heroism in the fighting that eliminated the German machine-gun nests one by one and carried the battalion into the village which had been devastated by the fire of Canadian and British guns that poured a great concentration of shells into it as the Canadian attack was launched.

On July 9, the battalion, whose headquarters and support companies were commanded respectively by Maj. F. A. Sparks of Woodstock, Ont., and Capt. Doug Kennedy of Kitchener, was part of the Canadian force that entered Caen.

All the men spoke highly of the stretcher-bearers, of their padre, Hon. Capt. John Anderson of Port Elgin, Ont., and Niagara Falls, Ont., and the medical officer, Capt. J. D. Gibson of Kingston, Ont., who treated the casualties of other units as well as his own.

Judges' Salaries May Increase

OTTAWA, July 25 — (CP). — Justice Minister St. Laurent said on Monday in the Commons he did not agree with those who stated that to qualify for appointment to the Bench in Canada a man had to be defeated as a candidate for public office.

Replying to John Diefenbaker (PC-Lake Centre) Mr. St. Laurent said he took price in the appointments he made to the Bench, especially in the higher courts.

The judiciary in Canada was held in high regard by the Canadian public, but it was known that some judicial reforms were necessary, said Mr. St. Laurent.

He agreed that judges' salaries should be increased in order to attract to the Bench the ablest lawyers. It was only in the last quarter of a century that salaries on the Bench ceased to be comparable with those for other comparable positions.

Mr. St. Laurent spoke during the passage of a resolution to a Bill which would allow judges to divide their annuity with their wives or to provide that their widows receive a pension. The Bill was given first reading following passage of the resolution.

Pilotless Bombs Not Sufficient To Shake British Morale

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 25 — (CP) — New heroes and heroines, successor to the men and women who put England's "little people" on the front pages in the blitz months of 1940 and 1941, are coming to light as Germany's new terror weapon, the flying bomb, smashed their homes in London and other parts of southern England.

And the same unruffled calm and deep rooted humor, so apparent three and four years ago, are still here. The British people are not as imperturbable as they are sometimes made out to be, but it is going to take more than a pilotless bomb carrier to shake their morale.

Probably what you notice most about the people of London is the way they "carry on" as though 2,000-pound bombs were part of their normal existence. Fred Bone, popular "bobby" in the newspaper district where he stands watch over the junction of Fleet Street and Fetter Lane, is a typical example.

Fred is 55 and has done 25 years police duty. He had been on retirement five years when war began but joined the police reserve a week after the declaration and has done continuous point duty ever since.

Four times during a two-week period of flying bomb attacks he handed over his traffic management to a colleague and went home to sweep up the debris after near misses.

"There's almost nothing left at home now," he said. "I've about had enough of buzz bombs. It's getting monotonous."

But enough or not, Fred will keep sweeping as long as there is anything left to sweep, and he'll keep directing traffic. You can't call him a hero—he wouldn't like that—but you can call him British, and a typical Londoner.

There is humor as well as patience and courage in these Londoners. Take William Gee, for example, who was standing with a bottle of beer in his hand when a flying bomb fell. Beer is precious so Gee just stood. His house was badly damaged, but he and his bottle were unscathed.

Then there was another man who returned home to find his place in ruins. He took off his coat and cleared away the debris of what probably was once his den until he found a box of cigars. These he distributed among the rescue workers.

Gas Bootlegger Made $7,200

TORONTO, July 25. — J. R. LaVoie, who told an R.C.M.P. constable that he had made $7,200 selling counterfeit gasoline coupons last year in Montreal, was yesterday convicted in Police Court of having half a loose gasoline ration coupon in his possession. Magistrate Prentice reserved sentence until Friday.

Testifying that he approached the accused and represented himself as a member of a chemical firm Constable W. J. B. Graham stated that LaVoie told him gasoline coupons were difficult to make this year. "He pulled out half an AA coupon and said this was the kind he wanted to make," he said.

Defence Counsel Harold Chaplin declared that his client had neither the "mentality nor the financial backing' for such an enterprise, and was merely trying to decide a $5 wager with a friend.

Frank Hakim, who pleaded guilty to having loose gasoline coupons in his possession, was also fined r100, and costs, or 30 days, and Lloyd T. Gordon, who pleaded guilty to giving Hakim two pages of coupons, was given a similar sentence. Hakim received the coupons when he purchased a car from Gordon, and the latter explained that he didn't know his action was illegal.

POST-WAR RECONSTRUCTION

INTEGRITY, experience and business capacity must be given full opportunity to contribute to post-war reconstruction. These qualities are fully as important to the bank in considering applications for loans as are the material resources of borrowers. Indeed, when possessed in high degree, these personal factors often weigh more with the bank than other considerations.

It will be the policy of The Royal Bank of Canada to extend liberal financial assistance to promising business undertakings, whether large or small, new or old, when under reliable management.

What is PRIVATE ENTERPRISE?

It is the natural desire to make your own way, as far as your ability will take you; an instinct that has brought to this continent the highest standard of life enjoyed by any people on earth. It is the spirit of democracy on the march...

THE ROYAL BANK OF CANADA

"WHY do they say Long Distance lines are crowded?

My call went through fine yesterday"

Yes, many calls do still go through promptly. But that's partly because the public, by reducing needless calling, have helped to offset the heavy increase in essential calls. It is testimony, too, to the devotion and skill of Bell employees in keeping calls flowing despite heavily loaded lines.

Today, with traffic at a new peak, your co-operation is more urgently needed than ever. Please continue to keep Long Distance lines clear for war calls.

AT EAGLE LAKE.

Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian Army overseas, is spending the summer months at Griffin's summer home, Eagle Lake. Gen. McNaughton is accompanied by his wife, daughter and son-in-law.

HARD TO GET, TOO.

A Norwood man who left his car parked on the market square returned after several hours to find that sneak thieves had broken into the automobile. Missing was a sweater coat, and what was much more difficult to replace, a month's quota of Canadian whisky.

GOOD LEADERSHIP.

The Calgary Tank Regiment, that chased the Nazis for a week in Italy, went as far as 15 miles a day. The speed of their advance was due in many cases to the work of a reconnaissance troop under Lieut. John Whitton, of Port Hope, it is reported.

HIT-AND-RUN.

Police are searching for the driver of the car which smashed into a red light on a pile of sand on Aylmer street late Monday night, breaking the warning lantern. The car was stopped at Charlotte street, and the occupants started back toward the scene of he accident, then changed their minds, got back into the machine and drove off.

THEY DIDN'T CARE.

It is not only in the spring, apparently, that a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love. Just to prove that it can happen in mid-summer too a young couple frankly embraced in a car parked near the corner of Hunter and Water streets at 9 o'clock this morning, oblivious to the amused glances of numerous passers-by.

NO MAGISTRATE.

Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., is enjoying his annual vacation, and because of his absence the arrangement is that neither of the other cadis, Magistrate E. A. Gee of Lindsay and Magistrate R. B. Baxter of Port Hope, will sit here on Tuesdays during the vacation season. Accordingly there was no regular session of the police court this morning.

STOLEN BICYCLES.

Police report another epidemic of stolen bicycles here, and owners are warned to be careful about where they leave their wheels. While some of the thefts are in the joy-riding class and the stolen bicycles are abandoned after they have served their purpose, some of the machines have permanently disappeared. This morning police recovered one bicycle that had been left in the gulley back of the Normal School.

DESECRATING WAR MEMORIAL

Two callow youths, almost at the military age themselves, were amusing themselves the other evening by climbing up on top of the bronze figures on the war memorial in Confederation Park, and indulging in what were supposed to be wise cracks. Apparently they failed to realize that several decades ago 800 young men of this city and district died in foreign fields to make that memorial possible. Or perhaps they just didn't care.

LEFT FOR CAMP

The 2nd (R) Battalion, Prince of Wales Rangers, left Sunday for a two-week camp period at the Connaught Ranges, and will be away from the city until August 6. The men will take an advanced training course and competitive sports will also be held. At the end of the camp there will be a field day, with prizes being offered for winners of high shooting scores. The entire brass band will be in attendance. The number of men at camp is approximately the same as the number which went last year.

SERVING OVERSEAS.

Pte. Sidney Luther, eldest son of Cpl. and Mrs. S. T. Luther, 57 St. James street, is now serving overseas. He enlisted in an Artillery regiment in March, 1941, just after his 17th birthday, later transferring to a tank unit. At the present, he is with the infantry. Before going overseas, he served in Labrador and other places in Canada. His father, Cpl. S. T. Luther, is with the Veterans' Guard in Bowmanville, and a brother, LAC. Jack Luther, is with the R.C.A.F. in Canada. Before Pte. Luther enlisted, he was employed at the C.G.E.

CHANGE CLINIC DAY.

The Blood Donors' Clinic ordinarily held on Friday evenings will be advanced to Thursday evenings at the same hours.

LUCKY BREAK

While the front portion of Mohan-Hunter's Dairy Company is being re-decorated, the waitress help has been given a month's holidays.

ALMOST FINISHED.

Work is progressing on the Post Office clock, and with one side of the big time-indicator already painted, the job will be completed before long.

LEAVE ON HOLIDAYS.

Factory employees of the Brinton Carpet Company began their two weeks holiday period on Monday. The office employees will take their holidays at various dates in the coming month.

BODY NOT FOUND

More than forty hours after Sheldon Falls drowned in Rice Lake Sunday evening, the body of the 17-year-old non-swimmer had still not been discovered in the waters of the lake up until noon today.

CATCH LARGE MUSKIE.

One of the best catches reported from the Kawarthas this season is a 21-pound maskinonge nailed on Monday night by R. W. Alford of Kingston in Lake Katchewanooka. The Alford family used to live in Lakefield some years ago.

BLOOD DONORS.

There were 55 donors at the Clinic on Monuay, with 19 from the C.G.E. and groups also from the Westclox and B. F. Ackerman's. Out-of-town donors came from Lakehurst, Bobcaygeon, Curve Lake, Indian River, and Ida. A ninth donation was made by Irving Moldaver.

89TH BIRTHDAY.

Byron O. Lott, long a prominent figure in Hastings County political and agricultural affairs, quietly celebrated his 89th birthday in Belleville on Sunday, July 23. It is said of him that he is known in every nook and corner of Hastings County, and especially to the members of the Liberal Association of his riding.

TRUCKS MAY BE USED.

A recent order of the War Time Prices and Trade Board has authorized the transportation of harvest workers in trucks for the period between July 17 and November 15. This order which over-rules the general prohibition of the use of trucks for carrying passengers applies to the movement of harvest workers for short distances and is passed as a gesture of assistance to farmers in the present emergency.

BODY NOT RECOVERED.

The body of John Jessup, the elderly Toronto man who was drowned in Stoney Lake on Saturday when an outboard motor boat swamped in a heavy sea, has not yet been recovered. A strong wind interfered with dragging operations Monday, and the difficulty of locating the exact spot where the victim sank beneath the water of the lake has also been a factor in the search for the body.

Motorist Convicted On Two Driving Counts

George Dodson was convicted on charges of reckless driving and drunken driving before Magistrate E. A. Gee at an afternoon session of the police court Monday.

On the former charge the accused was fined $25 and $12.25 costs, and on the drunken driving count was sentenced to seven days' imprisonment in the county jail.

Dodson's car was ordered impounded for three months and his driving licence suspended for a similar period.

The charges against the elderly motorist arose out of an accident on the Lakefield Road near Gill's butcher shop on the night of Saturday, July 15, when Dodson's car collided with an automobile driven by Dr. J. C. Smith.

Evidence in the two cases was much the same.

Defence witnesses testified that the accident was caused by a flat tire on Dodson's car and that the accused was not drunk. However, Magistrate Gee registered a conviction in both cases, despite a plea from the accused's counsel, John A. Bradshaw, that Dodson should be given the benefit of the doubt, especially in the drunk driving charge.

When the question of penalties was being discussed Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., stated that he was not asking for more than the minimum sentence.

Oldest Grocery Again Helps Victims Of War

All records and experiences of the past do play an important part and act as both inspiration and a guide to the future, so it is that business houses who can look back to well over a hundred years of continued service to the public have a very enviable record, for only those who have proved reliable in every respect can hope to carry on in such a splendid manner as this.

In the year 1832, shortly after this city had its beginning, through a group of citizens from the Motherland, led by Peter Robinson, locating in these parts to carve out a home for themselves from the primitive forests, the W. H. Hamilton grocery came into existence, and as such has been continuously serving this community and district ever since.

In a comparatively young country measured in terms of those in other parts of the world, this is something to be quite proud of, and records show that not only is it the oldest established business in this city, but also the oldest in its own sphere of business in the province of Ontario.

Changed Hands

About four years ago this business passed from the jurisdiction of the Hamilton family to that of D. F. Drummond, who bought it for his nephews to carry on in the same old tradition, but the call of King and country intervened and both entered the armed forces, carrying the spirit of public service to its greatest heights in offering life itself when the need was greatest.

One of these, P.O. J. Drummond White, has already paid the supreme sacrifice, while the other, Lieut. Drummond White, is on active service in France at the present time, so it may be yet some time before he can actively assume that continuity of service hereabouts that this firm has so ably done in the past.

For the third successive occasion at this time of the year, the service that this business house has given to the residents of this city and district has been extended beyond the seas to give a helping hand to the bomb victims of Nazi terrorism from the skies, and latterly through the robot bombs which have and are causing much damage to property and loss of life at the moment in Britain.

And so it is that almost exactly one year ago to the day, when the Peterborough and District British War Victims' Fund reported a gift of $25 from the W. H. Hamilton grocery, a similar gift is recorded in today's list on behalf of the fund, in addition to which a splendid personal gift of another $25 is also listed from Mr. Drummond himself, making the giving of aid to these sorely distressed people one of a personal nature, in addition to the interest in their welfare displayed by the business of which he has become the owner.

This personal interest might well serve as inspiration to others to assist in this worthy cause in a personal way, there already being a few who have done so since the last list of personal gifts was recorded three days ago, another of which it is hoped will appear before this week has passed.

Before closing, it should be of interest to mention that a link with the days of long ago in connection with this oldest business in the city is to be found in the stone building at the rear of the grocery store on Simcoe street.

TONIC FOR HENS

Ferguson and Mrs. Ferguson of Norwood, and is a graduate of the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal. Before enlisting she was appointed supervisor of the operating room section at that hospital.

BROTHERS IN ARMY—Two sons of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Doherty, Indian River, are serving in the armies of Canada and the United States. Pte. Herb L. Doherty (Left) is stationed in Western Canada with the Midland Regiment, having enlisted in March, 1943. His brother, Pte. Herb Doherty formerly worked in the C.G.E. and his brother was employed in New York.

G. A. Gillespie New President Of Federal Liberal Party

G. A. Gillespie was elected president of the West Peterborough Federal Liberal Association at its annual meeting in Paragon Hall last night, succeeding T. J. Carley, K.C., who requested that his name not be proposed again because of the increased demands on his time in the work of his office.

Three vice-presidents were elected: Mrs. (Dr.) C. M. Scott, W. W. Dawson of Otonabee, and Erie Pearson of Smith.

Treasurer, R. M. Glover.

Secretary, P. D. Scolaird.

Coresponding secretary, Frank Hughes.

The executive is to include the chairmen of the townships of the riding and the wards of the city.

"It is gratifying to see so many here this evening," Mr. Carley said in opening the meeting, "and especially a good representation from the country in spite of the highly important seasonal work which is now at its peak on our farms. The Liberal Party has not been engaged in political activity in this and in other ridings of Central Ontario because we have adhered to the view that this time of war was not a period for politics. I think we can truly say that for every Liberal meeting there have been five or six held by other parties; indeed, that there have been ten meetings by the other parties for every Liberal meeting. So we cannot be accused of undue partisanship in calling this meeting at a time when Liberal principles are needed so much now and for the future."

NEW PRESIDENT—G. A. Gillespie, former member of the Ontario Legislature for Peterborough West, who has been elected president of the West Peterborough Federal Liberal Association.

Problems involved in the conduct of the war had imposed necessary restrictions upon the entire population, Mr. Carley said. People did not like to be pushed about, and things had to be done for war purposes which in normal times would never have been conceived by a Liberal Government.

"We are hoping that these restrictions will be removed as quickly as conditions will permit. The Dominion Government has had to create boards with important powers, and we are hoping that when the time of necessity has passed, that the demand for the removal of such special authorities and boards shall come from Liberals."

Mr. Carley thanked the association for having elected him as president for two years and announced that he could not allow his name to be proposed for the ensuing year.

The meeting appointed as a nominating committee for the election of officers: Col. J. A. Dewart, Max J. Swanston, Robert Begley, Walace Shearer of Buckhorn, and P. D. Scollard.

District President

Walter Thomson, K.C., of Pickering, recently elected president of the Central Ontario Liberal Association, was inrtoduced by G. N. Gordon, K.C., as virtually a former Peterborough boy.

"Mr. Thomson's father was Presbyterian minister at Hastings for more than fifty years," Mr. Gordon said. "He was known as a saintly man and was beloved by a host of people throughout this part of the province, and we in Peterborough are delighted that he was chosen as the head of the Liberal Association in Central Ontario."

Mr. Thomson said he was more concerned about the responsibility of the presidency of the Central Ontario Liberal Association than the honor it reflected. It was all well meant and well deserved to pass resolutions of confidence in Premier King and his wartime government, but it was of practical importance that every Liberal should realize the duty of effort and cooperation that will rest upon him and her in the next federal elections.

Using the metaphor of the ship of state and the stormy seas of a world wide war, Mr. Thomson declared that Mr. King had fashioned a sturdy ship and had gathered around him an exceedingly competent crew in his Cabinet and many other assistants and had guided it through the roughest seas of war.

And as that ship of state begins to approach the haven of peace and security at last, to place it in the hands of an inexperienced or rabble crew would be to cast the future of Canada into jeopardy for many years.

"The peace must be stronger than the victory," Mr. Thomson declared, "and we must win for our soldiers and sailors and airmen a crowning peace that will be just and enduring".

The people of Canada who had placed the administration of the war in the hands of a Liberal government in the elections of 1940 had every reason from the magnitude of the task that had been carried out so successfully to decide now that this government should be given the responsibility of containing that work through the final stage of transition back from war to peace.

"I am in politics, although I did not expect to be elected president of the Central Ontairo Liberal Association until it was suggested at the hour of the meeting in Port Hope, because I have a deep interest in Canada, because it is the place where my children are going to live their lives and because I once did some scrapping for it after I came up here to Peterborough and joined the old 93rd Battalioin in 1916. And if I have any talent I don't propose that it shall be buried in the ground when my country needs it most."

"Turn back the Liberal party in the next elections and you turn back the clock of progress in Canada for a long time."

The government led by Mackenzie King had demonstrated a wonderful ability and efficiency in the

Sounds Of Struggle Bring Police On Run Find Tiny Mouse Cause Of All Excitement

Hearing the sounds of heavy blows, punctuated with an occasional scream, coming from her upstairs apartment as she opened the door at the bottom of the stairs Monday afternoon a woman living on George street north, who evidently believes in prompt action, hurried to a telephone and notified the police department that there was a fight going on at her place and that somebody was being attacked.

Officers W. A. Clarke and Ernest Beatty rushed to the scene in a police cruiser, dashed up the stairs, burst into the apartment and discovered that the cause of the entire disturbance was a mouse.

The woman's sister had noticed the intruder, armed herself with a broom and started to hunt for the mouse which promptly took evasive action. It was the banging of the broom and an odd scream from the huntress that had caused the call for the police.

Five Casualties Reported From France

In the first city casualty list since Friday night, Mrs. J. M. Sexsmith, 139½ Hunter street, has been officially informed that her husband, Sgt. Joseph Maxwell Sexsmith, was wounded in action in France July 18. The extent and nature of his wound was not disclosed.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sexsmith, Olive street, he joined the Prince of Wales Rangers (R) when he was 16 years of age, and remained with that unit until the Stormont, Dundas and Glengarry Highlanders recruited in 1940. After a training period spent in Kingston, Ottawa and Debert, N.S., he went overseas in July, 1941. The young soldier returned to Canada in December, 1942, as an instructor at the O.T.C., Brockville. In October, 1943, he returned to England, where he remained until D-Day.

Sgt. Sexsmith has two sons, one of whom, Glen-Garrian, aged eight months, he has never seen. Prior to enlisting he worked in the office at the De Laval Company and attended Peterborough Collegiate.

PTE. JOHN CLIFFORD TIGHE (Wounded)

Another S. D. and G. Highlander to be reported wounded in action in France is Pte. John Clifford Tighe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Tighe, 193 Park Hill road. He was wounded July 18, but the nature and extent of his wound was not learned immediately.

The 19-year-old soldier enlisted shortly after leaving Peterborough Collegiate in 1940, and went overseas with the Highlanders in 1941, after a training period at Kingston, Ottawa and Debert.

Pte. Tighe has never mentioned the war or fighting in any of his letters home, and in a letter dated July 17, from France, received by his mother, he still made no mention of any heavy fighting or war in general.

He enlisted in the Peterborough Rangers (C.A.) in April, 1942, and went overseas in May, 1943. Several months later he was transferred to the S. D. and G. Highlanders. Before enlisting he was employed at the C.G.E.

BDR. BRUCE HOWARD LATCHFORD (Wounded)

Mrs. E. D. Latchford, 228 Rubidge street, has received word that her son, Bdr. Bruce Howard Latchford, was injured in France July 18. His injuries were described as phosphorus burns on the left leg, arms, head and neck.

The 27-year-old soldier was born in Emily Township and came to Peterborough five years ago. Before enlisting, he worked at the C.G.E. Two brothers are serving in the Canadian Army, L.-Cpl. Robert J. Latchford, overseas, and Pte. Hector W. Latchford, in Canada.

BROADCASTS FROM BERLIN—Lieut. Hubert J. Vallery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vallery, Pearl avenue, was heard on a short-wave broadcast from Berlin July 5, and told his parents and his wife that he is well. He was taken prisoner by the Nazis during the Canadian drive on Ortona, during the fifth day of the drive across the Moro River in Italy.

Lieut. Hubert Vallery Sends Radio Message

Lieut. Hubert James Vallery, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Vallery, 310 Pearl avenue, in a short-wave broadcast from Germany, where he is a prisoner-of-war, told his parents and his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Vallery, that he is in good health. The broadcast emanated from the Berlin radio, and Lieut. Vallery is a prisoner in Stalag 7A. Although not heard by Mr. and Mrs. Vallery they have received many letters telling them of the broadcast.

The Peterborough-born officer, was first reported missing in action, after the fifth day of the Moro River drive in Italy, and a month later, in February 1944, word was received that he was a prisoner-of-war in Germany.

Bowmanville Doctor Named In Dispatches

Now overseas for three years, Capt. Harold Virtue Slemon, R.C.A.M.C., whose home was in Bowmanville before the war, has been mentioned in dispatches in a list announced by the Minister of National Defence to-day. His name is one among a hundred officers and men of the Canadian Army so honored.

Capt. Slemon, 31, served with a Field Ambulance unit in the Reserve Army from 1940, and was then appointed to the rank of lieutenant with the Active Forces on July 1, 1941. He went overseas at the end of that month, and was promoted to his present rank the beginning of October, 1941.

Soldiers Aid In Canning Season's Crops

A review of the labor situation in the Peterborough area from the office of the Selective Service reveals that the city's need for workers in various essential industries has shown few signs of slackening during this month, and the future prospects for late summer and early fall months are only likely to increase the load. As of Friday night it was reported by W. H. L. Mellis, manager, 244 women and 620 male workers, for a total of 864, is the labor deficiency in the area of the Peterborough office.

Mr. Mellis said to-day that chief sufferers from the manpower shortage in the city at the present time are Quaker Oats and the Canadian General Electric, perennial leaders in this respect, though most manufacturing plants in the city are burdened with the same complaint, at least to some extent. The efforts of volunteers at the Canada Packers have for the time being produced a satisfactory state of employment there, but that company's operations will shortly be reaching a seasonal peak when the canning, this year at an extraordinarily high level, finally hits its ful stride.

"They are doing a realy marvelous job," Mr. Mellis said with deep conviction, as he alluded to the soldiers from the local Training Camp who are working at Canada Packers and helping to allay that concernt employment difficulties. The men, who work in their off-duty hours, "are putting their hearts into the job," he said, expressing words of appreciation, also for the High School youngsters, who, no less mindful of their patriotic duty, are working alongside the lads in uniform.

The farmers who came from the West this year to give assistance to their Eastern brothers have been well pleased with the reception they got, Mr. Mellis said. About 10 arrived earlier in the month, all of them visitors for the first time in these parts, but a later arrival was a Western farmer who worked at Hugh Stewarts Hilltop Stock Farm last season and is going to do so again. One of the men has already finished with his employment at the farm he originally went to, but Selective Service knows there will be no difficulty in placing him in a second agricultural job within the district.

An interesting sidelight to employment figures in Selective Service records is that 167 servicemen of the present war now discharged have been given employment through the Peterborough office in the past three months. All of these men have worn the King's uniform at one time or another since the start of the war, and not a few are veterans returned from overseas duty. Some were taking jobs for the first time since being discharged, others were switching to more essential employment. During the same period, 55 veterans of the First Great War were also placed in new jobs.

J. Kelly, daughter of the groom, was matron of honor in a street-length mauve ensemble with black accessories, and carried a bouquet of mixed flowers. She wore a heart-shaped locket, a gift from the bride and groom. J. J. Kelly, son-in-law of the groom, was best man.

GROWING GRACEFULLY—Never too young to grow old gracefully . . . not so morbid a thought as it might sound. The first stage for a female child to watch out for a graceful opportunity is when she suddenly turns 'teen age. Chubbiness or unusual angularity is often a phase of this transition age, and the wrong dress can accentuate either state into a minor psychosis. The bodice of this wash frock with a pin money price tag is nicely, adultly tailored. The skirt is full enough to help along excessive slenderness tubbiness, and yet is not a flyaway pinafore or Greenaway proposition.

Ruth Jones Given Kitchen Shower

OMEMEE, July 25 — (ENS). — The home of Miss Christina Connell was the scene of a delightful party when a kitchen shower was given to Miss Ruth Jones, Omemee, whose marriage to Hiram Finley takes place in Omemee on Saturday, July 29.

Each of the guests brought two of her favorite recipes and the evening was spent compiling a recipe book for the bride-to-be, with the aid of scissors, mucilage and magazines. Some original bits of verse were added and the completed book was very attractive.

The hostesses sent the guest of honor on a form of treasure hunt, which disclosed many beautifully wrapped gifts, which were opened and displayed. Miss Jones made a speech of thanks, and invited her friends to visit her in her future home on Water Street in Peterborough.

Summer Specials Tested In Experimental Kitchens

By LAURA C. PEPPER
Chief, Consumer Section,
Dominion Dept. of Agriculture

"Special Today—Summer Coolers" —might advertise anything from bathing suits to toilet water. The wares we offer are something new in the way of iced drinks and fruit sherbets. Easy to make—easy to take—they will help make the hottest day more bearable.

Water ices and sherbets are the perfect hot weather dessert. The difference between them is that a water ice is simply a frozen fruit syrup while a sherbet has a little more substance. Either fruit syrup or fruit pulp is used and when half frozen, beaten egg whites are added to the mixture—milk and gelatine may also be used in sherbets. Freezing deadens flavor to some extent so lemon juice, which brings out the flavor of other fruits, always finds a place among the list of ingredients.

Appetites do lag in very hot weather but its never too hot for a frosty cool drink.

The addition of beaten eggs to milk or fruit drinks is good for flavor and packs extra nourishment. Use a syrup for sweetening iced drinks—its easier on the sugar ration than using plain sugar which is apt to remain undissolved in the bottom of the glass. To make the syrup use equal quantities of sugar and boiling water. Bring to a boil, skim and store in the ice box.

Bring out the flavor of fruit drinks with a little lemon juice and dress them up with a twist of orange or lemon peel, a few whole berries, a sprig of mint. Chocolate milk drinks take kindly to peppermint or fresh mint flavoring and also to cinnamon, while nutmeg is well mated to an egg nog.

Blueberry Sherbet

Add salt to egg whites and beat until stiff but not dry. Turn the partially frozen sherbet out into a chilled bowl, beat until very light and fold in the beaten egg whites, combining thoroughly. Return to the freezing tray and freeze until firm. Six to eight servings.

Norma Stenson Wed In Trinity Church

Trinity United Church, decorated with gladioli, delphiniums and fern, was the setting for a pretty wedding recently, when Norma Alberta Stenson, daughter of Arthur F. Stenson and the late Mrs. Stenson, Port Hope Highway, became the bride of Wilton George Hillier, only son of Mr. and Mrs. George G. Hillier, 475 King street. Rev. William A. Filer officiated. Miss Mabel Clarry was at the organ, and Miss Helen Parkinson, soloist, sang "The Lord's Prayer" before the bride entered the church, and "Dawning" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charmingly gowned in floor-length embossed organza over white satin, with fitted bodice, Sweetheart neckline, and a bouffant skirt. Her veil and train of white net was caught to her head with white chrysanthemums, and she carried a cascade bouquet of Better-time roses.

She was attended by her sisters, Mrs. Harold Rutherford, as matron of honor, and Miss Muriel Stenson as bridesmaid, who were frocked alike in white embossed organza over ice-blue taffeta, with fitted bodice, Sweetheart neckline, and full skirt, and soft bustle sash. Each wore a blue organdy picture hat, elbow-length organza gloves, and carried a bow-shaped bouquet of blue delphiniums.

Fred Stenson, brother of the bride, was best man, and ushers were Harold Rutherford and Gordon White, of Chatham.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home on the Port Hope Highway, where the bride's aunt, Mrs. P. Hetherington, received the guests in a navy blue figured crepe frock, pastel accessories, and a corsage of Rapture roses. The groom's mother, also receiving, wore lacy heliotrope crepe with matching accessories, and a corsage of Sweetheart roses.

For a trip to the Muskoka Lake district, the bride donned a blue-grey wool crepe redingote over a figured dress, and matching accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Hillier will make their home at 425 Homewood avenue.

Exciting Colors Promised In Fall Styles

When the news came via the fashion grapevine that clothing restrictions had been lifted to a great extent in the States, and, as a consequence, designers were breaking out in new dashing styles all over the place, Canadian women immediately began hoping for a similar boon to befall them. This hope was considerably heightened when word came that certain bans on clothing manufacture had been lifted in Canada too, but dampened in short order when the directives themselves became known. The new orders do lift the ban on short jackets, though, and this will prove a welcome addition to fall wardrobes, and a few other revisions have been made.

However, in spite of these continued restrictions, Canadian designers have managed to avoid to a great extent, that "skimpy" look which so often results when the quantity and scope of dresses must follow rigid rulings. Strategic draping has proved a great boon, since the soft folds of material, which do not consume too much yardage, but give the illusion of fullness in their graceful lines, can be utilized on a great many varied styles. As in late spring and early summer fashions, the dainty, flattering drills are being used again in late summer and early fall dresses, now making their appearance. The demand for these clothes does not really get under way until the first or second week in August, but some stores are already receiving the forerunners of their fall orders.

Styles will still not be greatly changed as yet, since designers will not have had time to take advantage of the partial relaxing of controls. However, late fall and early winter dresses should show the transition. In the styles soon to be seen, the two-piece suit is still holding its own, with the square neckline also heading its field. In the better type of dress, the three-quarter length sleeve will still predominate, with the cap sleeve a close second, and skirts on all dresses will continue to be narrow. Newer dresses will be appearing in one-piece fashions in wools and crepes, although the two-piece wool suits because of their serviceability, will continue to be in demand. Frilled and fussy styles, dear to the heart of the teen-ager, will also continue.

New Colors Promised

Flocks of new colors, predominantly in wools, will soon be making their bow in the fashion world, and should find hosts of admirers. Fuschias and greens seem to be particularly popular at the latest reports, but intriguing shades like lemon snow, winter blue, gay red, strawberry, fresh green, and grape, will also be bidding for popularity. All-black dresses, of course, will still be on hand, many with exciting sequin trim. Little encouragement on the question of long colored dresses again appearing has been given yet, but there's no harm in hoping and wishing, anyway.

Taking all facts into consideration, the fashion future doesn't seem to be so grim after all, and Miss and Mrs. Peterborough can step out, sure that they are togged in the latest and smartest styles.

CITY GAL COTTONS.— One of the most interesting phases of this Summer's fashions has been the keen handling of cottons by designers who usually give their attention to silks and woollens. And no wonder when there are cottons as fine and soft as silk and bright with beautiful prints. Joseph Halpert designs a button-down-the-back cotton using a black with a fuchsia and pink rose motif. The deep neckline is cool, and the back of the skirt has slight fullness.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

Our recipes to-day are going to be mostly for small cakes which do not require any of our precious sugar, yet which will give as good a cookie. Our families will enjoy them just as much as the sugar-make cookie. Following are some really delightful recipes so try them all and prove what I say is right.

Sugarless Brownies

Half cup shortening, 1 cup white corn syrup, 2 oz. unsweetened chocolate (melted), ¾ cup sifted cake flour, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 eggs well beaten, ¾ cup chopped nuts or seedless raisins, or half of each.

Work shortening with spoon until fluffy and creamy. Then add the corn syrup gradually, while continuing to work with spoon until light. Stir in melted chocolate. Sift together dry ingredients and add ¼ of them, while beating mixture with spoon. Add well beaten eggs, then the rest of the dry ingredients and nuts and raisins. Turn into greased cake pan and bake in moderate oven, 350 degrees, for about 35 minutes. Immediately cut into squares with a sharp knife. This makes about 25 brownies.

Nut Cookies.

One-quarter cup shortening, ½ cup sugar, 2 eggs, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon almond, 2 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon milk, 1 cup chopped nuts. Cream shortening and sugar, add eggs well beaten. Sift dry ingredients together and add alternately with milk. Stir in nuts and flavoring and mix well. Drop from teaspoon on a greased baking sheet and place a nut on top of each one. Bake in a moderate oven 375 degrees-400 degrees) for 12 to 15 minutes. This makes about three dozen cookies.

Honey Hermits.

One and one-third cups strained honey, 1-3 cup shortening, 2 eggs, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup chopped raisins, 1½ teaspoons cin-

Prime Minister To Outline Allowance Plan

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

OTTAWA, July 25 — (CP). — Prime Minister Mackenzie King is scheduled to give in the Commons to-day an outline of the Government's plans for the payment of family allowances.

Mr. King is expected to make a lengthy statement on the legislation when the Allowances Bill comes up for second reading at the afternoon sitting of the House, which yesterday spent most of its time examining Civil Department estimates.

The Prime Minister's statement will be the first official explanation of the legislation given on the floor of the House. Government officials have said outside the House that about 1,500,000 Canadian families would come under the allowances plan. However, only half the families were expected to benefit because allowances paid to the families in the higher income brackets would be drained through income tax.

The allowances plan, scheduled to go into effect July 1, 1945, would provide payments of from $5.00 a month to a child of less than six years to $8 for a child from 13 to 16 years.

Announcement that the Allowances Bill would be on the day's agenda came after the House passed the Labor Department estimates and most of those of the Trade and Commerce Department.

Trades Minister Mackinnon informed the House the Government was preparing to appoint additional trade commissioners and to expand existing export trade services "so as more properly to take care of the expanding trade we hope to have."

Training Policy

Labor Minister Mitchell said the government has established "a firm foundation for a training policy necessary for the rehabilitation of the men and women discharged from the Armed Forces.

"I have no fears whatsoever as to the ability of the Dominion in co-operation with the Provinces and the municipalities in providing training for every service man who desires to take it," he said.

Under the War Emergency Training Program 350,000 persons were trained for industry alone. In addition 41,000 were trained for the Army, 65,000 for the Air Force and 8,000 for the Navy.

Mr. Mitchell said that of the 150,000 men and women discharged from the forces only 3,000 have applied for vocational training. Many of the men and women were returning to their former employment without taking advantage of the government sponsored training.

Before passing to Labor Department appropriations, the Commons approved estimates for the Royal Canadian Mounted Police and passed an Interim Supply Bill to permit payment of government operations pending final approval of all through the Senate and received the estimates. The Bill also went through the senate and received royal assent along with other measures previously adopted by the Commons.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, July 26.

An exceptional day for unique, thrilling and quite unforeseen events is forecast from interesting lunar and mutual aspects. Generally it is wise to expect the unexpected as there are signs of sudden upheavals, change, travel, new plans and purposes. Major issues may be at stake, demanding bold, decisive, perhaps revolutionary moves in order to capture breathtaking opportunities. It is probable that romance and drama are in the ascendancy, with emotions and impulses reaching spectacular curves. Be keen to some tricky factors in signing writings and agreements.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a sudden and exciting breaking away from old ideas, adventures, traditions, and rules, to make way for sensational experience, of thrilling, dramatic, and quite unprecedented crises. It is probable that romance and emotional urges are pre-eminent, although business and unique openings for spectacular success may also be waiting shrewd and quick grasp. In all relations be wary with writings and agreements. Inventions, dramatic or other creative impulses should reach thrilling satisfactions, with keen personal joys.

A child born on this day may possess unusual talents, of an inventive, artistic or dramatic ingenuity and skill, assuring it public recognition as well as romantic rewards and joys.

WHAT LURED 16 HUSBANDS?
Millions of Dateless, Single Women Puzzled by One's Success in Piercing Male Armor.

In these days of acute shortage in the husband supply, it is interesting to read of a woman who is being tried for bigamy because she has sixteen living husbands. Putting aside for the time being the legal and moral aspects of the case, the uppermost thoughts in the minds of the millions of dateless and unmarried women of the country will be how did she do it? What bait did she use?

Unfortunately this man-snatcher seems to have kept her secret to herself, and so we have no authentic information on how the trick was done, or how she managed to lure sixteen men (count 'em) to the altar, when so many of her sisters can't even get one to take that fatal trip with them. The cold fact leaves us guessing.

Men's Tastes Vary.

Did she possess a beauty so great that it hypnotised men at sight? Maybe so, but beauty is in the eye of the beholder and not all men agree on what constitutes pulchritude in a female. Some like 'em tall and some like 'em short. Some are strong for living skeletons, while others prefer a good armful. Some fall for brunettes, while others can't resist a blond, either natural or synthetic.

Furthermore, while it is true that men give lip service to the worship of beauty, they seem to take little account of it when it comes to marrying, as is amply proven by the number of women wearing wedding rings whose faces could never have been their fortunes. All of us know many old maids who were celebrated beauties in their youth, which seems to prove that while looks are a great come-on in getting a girl dates, they are a washout for getting her to the altar.

Was the charm with which this siren lured sixteen men to the Marriage Licence Bureau vivacity? Did she have a quick wit and a nimble tongue? Was she the life of the party wherever she went? In a world filled with Dumb Doras, who gave their whole time and attention to admiring themselves and blowing their own trumpets, you can see how a man might be easily captured by any astute maiden who would turn the spotlight on him occasionally and say a few kind words to him.

Humor in Women Not Relished by Men.

But the gay and lively method of catching a husband is not a surefire recipe for getting a wedding certificate, for while some men are fascinated by loud and noisy women, who are always laughing and exclaiming and jumping around like a monkey on a stick, the great majority of them are allergic to them. Humor is not one of the qualities that men admire in women and they will go farther to dodge a wisecracking female than they would a man-eating tiger. Also, they are deadly suspicious of the woman whose laugh is hung on a hair-trigger. They are afraid she is laughing at them.

Inasmuch, however, as this woman who holds the world's record for multiple marriages does not appear to be either Miss America or Dorothy Parker, it still leaves us guessing as to what method she used in catching husbands. Did she bait her traps with flattery and tell them how big and strong and handsome they were, and ask them how they kept out of the movies? Or did she represent herself as a rich widow? Or did she weep upon their breasts and tell them how she loved them? Or did she follow the time-honored tactics of husband-hunters and stalk her victim until she caught him?

We pause for a reply.

Newfoundland Not Yet Ready For Responsible Government

It is not yet time to give Newfoundland responsible government, and were it to be done today the inevitable result would be a return to the old conditions under which the common people of the country suffered grave injustices in years past, Rev. Mr. A. T. Barr, former minister of St. Paul's Church in Peterborough, told a meeting of the Rotary Club Monday.

Dr. Barr, who lived for 10 years in the city and has until recently held a pastorate at St. John's, declared that by writing off the Commission of Government which has been in authority since 1934 and substituting for it a domestic government would only serve to bring back into power certain very wealthy and influential interests which had run roughshod over the democratic rights of the poorer class and would be sure to do so again.

The speaker criticized the attitude and views of Beverly Baxter, Canadian-born member of the British Parliament, who in articles has declared for a resumption of self-government in Newfoundland. In Dr. Barr's opinion, the country is far from ready yet to handle its own affairs, and any move to change the present system at the present time would only dissipate such progress as has been made.

More Education

"The solution", the former Peterborough minister stated, "will come in a few years. It is first necessary that compulsory education, initiated only two years ago, and the Adult Education Movement which is now coming into prominence, be given time to operate so that eventually the Newfoundland electorate will be in a position to put in a really responsible government." Before the union with Britain, Dr. Barr went on to point out, Newfoundland citizens, of whom 60 per cent. were illiterate in 1942, were subject to the very cheapest kind of political skulduggery and had no say in the running of their country.

The political and economic history of Newfoundland has been tainted by "forces which the people could not overcome and it forms one of the most disgraceful chapters in the history of the British Empire," the speaker stated. Besides his reference to the lack of general public education, he noted the injustices of the credit system, whose effect was to leave the ordinary worker and the fisherman in continued debt to the few families whose economic powers on the island were supreme.

"I must make it clear to you," Dr. Barr declared, "that the proposal for responsible government does not come from the common people, from the fishermen or from those who have been educated in the university or are members of the learned professions. It is advocated by that small group of capitalists who for centuries have bled the island, who are responsible for there being no middle class in Newfoundland, who are responsible for many thousands of the natives immigrating to New England and the Maritime because they were denied the opportunity to make a decent living in their own home." He added, however, that some of the wealthy citizens were prepared to make the sacrifices necessary for the good of all; and in this connection paid high tribute to the influence of Rotary whose club in St. John's was the only organization of its kind in Newfoundland.

Done Good Work

"Under the circumstances and remembering always the opposition it has had to face the Commission of Government has done a good job and gone as far as it could in ameliorating conditions," the speaker said. He said that many reforms, including elementary municipal services such as electricity and pavements, have been opposed by conservative forces, because it meant the levying of taxes, "which are difficult to collect, especially from the upper classes."

Part of troubles of Newfoundland, Dr. Barr pointed out, lay in its climate, which was misty and cloudy most of the year. In one year, he said, he had counted 21 days out of the 365 in which the sun appeared. Therefore, the island was a breeding ground for diseases, and tuberculosis had raised terrible havoc. "I venture to say that almost every family in Newfoundland has had some experience of T.B., and the island the the highest death rate from it of any place in the Empire or on the whole North American continent." The monotony and isolation of life and the inadequacies of the average diet account for a high proportion of insanity, the speaker added.

Most Hospitable.

Nowhere, Dr. Barr declared in tribute to the fine instincts of the people, were Canadian servicemen treated with such hospitality and graciousness as in Newfoundland; and the warm welcome men in the armed forces received was distributed impartially to Canadians, British and Americans alike.

In conclusion, Dr. Barr stated his belief that, notwithstanding the many problems the country has yet to solve, the future of Newfoundland was a bright one. This was particularly so in regard to aviation he said.

Dr. Barr, who has written a book on Newfoundland which is now in publication, was introduced by Rotarian E. L. Sackville, and the vote of thanks was moved by Rotarian R. F. Downey.

Man Is Arrested For 1925 Crime

WINNIPEG, July 25 — (CP) — Sought by police for 19 years, Alexander Danilhik, 56, wanted in Detroit for murder and armed robbery, was arrested by Royal Canadian Mounted Police here during the week-end, it was announced today.

He is charged with being a principal in the murder of Andrew Kacznarek in Detroit, Nov. 1, 1925. Police said three other men were implicated in the crime.

Kacznarek was robbed of a bank book, and then killed. His body, weighted with cement, was thrown in the Rouge River at Detroit. With the bank book, and a forged order, the men obtained $11,877 from Kacznarek's bank account.

Danilhik was arrested here by Inspector M. F. E. Anthony, R.C.M.P., on a warrant issued under the Extradition Act. He appeared in court today and was remanded pending extradition proceedings.

A routine fingerprint check at the plant of the Dominion Industries Limited in Transcona, near here, led to his arrest. The fingerprint card was sent to the Identification Bureau at Ottawa, where it was found he was wanted by Detroit police. Danilhik had been working at the plant for three weeks.

Police staid he had a previous Canadian record, and that he had been arrested in Hamilton Ont., in 1920 on a charge of attempted theft.

Call-Up Sent To Archbishop

OTTAWA, July 25 — Embarrassed is not the word for it when National Selective Service at Moncton called Norbert Robichaud under compulsory work transfer regulations with the intention of assigning him from his present job to more essential work.

Report had it that Selective Service Manager W. A. D. Trent at Moncton was more than embarrassed—he was deeply pained. And so was National Selective Service Headquarters at Ottawa when the affair of Robichaud was brought to its attention. It started, so the story goes, when the Moncton office, which has built up a reputation of toughness in compulsory job transfers, recently combed its lists and settled on the name of Norbert Robichaud. Immediately, a letter ent out to Mr. Robichaud demanding that he appear at the office—or edse.

There was an immediate response all right. There was no doubt it was Norbert Robichaud — wearing the insignia which go with the office of Archbishop of the Diocese of Moncton.

stressful conditions of war. As to the old and new opponents Mr. Thompson said he believed they would be helpless, but helplessness was as great a danger as conflict.

"If we hope for a better postwar world we must hope for a better postwar self because it is from each and every one of us that the spirit of democracy springs, and it is upon ourselves that democracy rests. So it remains with each of us a definite responsibility for what lies before us."

Speaking of the necessity of a thorough organization in order that this personal responsibility for the future of this country should be brought home to every elector, Mr. Thompson said he felt especially interested in Peterborough because he had so long regarded it almost as home.

"I can remember, for instance, as a boy posting letters to Richard Hall's store in Peterborough for my mother, and how she used to write those letters ordering the best line and the best cotton and other goods. We were only twenty-three miles away from this city, and it meant a great deal to me through all the years up to the last war and even later."

Mr. Thompson said he was convinced of the deep seriousness of the next Federal elections and of the reality of the responsibility which was facing every man and woman who desired only the very best possible future for this country which they had helped to build and save for its people.

"I believe that this opportunity to serve Canada and save Canada will never come again for men of my age."

Should Extend Term

Mr. Thomson said the Conservative government under the leadership of Sir Robert Borden had remained in power six years and two days and the Conservative government of Arthur Meighen had added nearly a year to that tenure, thereby creating a precedent which Mr. Thomson should follow. That was a personal opinion, and if it was contrary to that of the Prime Minister it was characteristic of the Liberal party that it provided ample room for the difference of opinion, at least of constructive criticism, and in that respect was the only political party in this country of which that statement could be truly made today.

However, Mr. King had made a statement and promise to the Canadian people that he would not extend the life of the Government beyond its normal term, and Mr. King was a man of his word.

The whole world recognized the tremendous contribution to victory in the war made by the people of this country in co-operation with the government of Mackenzie King, Mr. Thomson said.

The administration of this country in the face of all the problems and difficulties of war had been carried through to an extent never dreamed of by the people of Canada when the war was thrust on the world by the Germans.

"And with not one word of scandal against any of the men who have been in charge of this ship of state in the stormiest of seas," Mr. Thomson added.

The following resolution was adopted on a motion by Fred Whatley seconded by Mr. Scollard:

"That this Association expresses its confidence in Prime Minister Mackenzie King and his Government and commends the Prime Minister and the Liberal party for introducing the family allowances, the provisions for insurance against unemployment and the legislation providing for insurance against sickness, hospital costs and expenditures for doctors and nurses required through illness.

We also unanimously congratulate the Dominion Government for its untiring efforts in carrying on the total war against the Empire's enemies and the splendid leadership that has been given by the Prime Minister of Canada and his Government to the Canadian people during the last four years of anxiety and responsibility."

OBITUARIES

THOMAS GEORGE KERR.

Funeral service for Thomas George Kerr of Ida, who passed away on Saturday at Nicholls Hospital in his 72nd year, were held Monday afternoon from the residence of his brother-in-law, Robert Ruth of Ida, to Emily Cemetery for burial. Rev. W. E. Honey of Cavan and Rev. E. W. Rowland of Peterborough officiated.

Mr. Kerr, who was born in Emily Township son of the late William and Frances Kerr, was a resident of the district all his life and engaged in farming. He belonged to Bethel Church.

MRS. FRED BENNETT.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Fred Bennett was held recently from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Shearer, Buckhorn. Rev. D. Powell, minister of Rockcroft Presbyterian Church, of which Mrs. Bennett was a member, conducted the sevrice. During the service, which was attended by a host of friends and neighbors, Mrs. Charles Wood, niece of the late Mrs. Bennett, accompanied by Mrs. Art Bennett, sang a favorite hymn, "There Were Ninety and Nine."

Born in Frontenac county 84 years ago, the daughter of the late Peter Magarvey and Elizabeth Loyst, after her marriage to the late Fred Bennet, who pre-deceased her two years ago, she moved to Harvey township, where she has resided for over fifty years. The late Mrs. Bennett was known and loved for her many deeds of kindness.

She leaves to mourn her passing her only daughter (Blanche), Mrs. Wallace Shearer of Buckhorn, and a granddaughter (Viva), Mrs. William Inch of the Yukon Territory.

The many beautiful floral tributes from friends at home and the U.S.A. testified to the esteem in which Mrs. Bennett was held. Interment was made in Lakehurst Cemetery, and the following were pall-bearers: Arthur Bennett, Britton Bennett (nephews), Willie Shearer, Melville McWilliams, Charlie Herkimer, and Jack Sangster of Quebec.

SCOTT'S SCRAP BOOK —By J. R. Scott

With The Armed Forces

The editor of this column will welcome extracts from letters from boys serving or any other information concerning them.

By JEAN STENTON

In Canada's brief span of history many units have brought honor to their homeland, but none have established a greater reputation or put Canadians so in their debt as the Red Patch Devils of the first Canadian Division, writes Pte. Earl Hope, R.C.A.S.C., in Italy. He is the son of Mrs. A Hope, 219 Stewart street

"Lord Ha Ha gave our 1st Division quite a compliment the other day by saying the 8th Army had been battling the Germans for days to take a certain town and got no place So out went the 8th, and as Ha Ha said in came the 1st Canadian Division and pranced right through. If Canada had nothing else to be proud of she could brag and continue to brag about those Red Patch Devils and still not overestimate them. If any other unit in the Allied forces can't take an object, the Red Patches are always right there to do it for them.

"We are not 1st Division but I think we can be proud of the job this outfit is doing in hauling troops and supplies all over the country. From all accounts, 8th Army officials were almost shocked at the speed with which "41st Drivers" completed one of the biggest transfers of troops in the Italian campaign. So even if we don't kill Germans, we can sneak in on a little of the credit for the success that's come our way so far.

"As you know things have been going ahead like nobody's business and as they move, of course our outfit has that much farther to go. The more miles the vehicles go the more repairs we have to make and there are plenty. Recently we completed six crossings of Italy from coast to coast in seven days, and this gives me a a total of ten. They are not over the same route and some of the roads are so bad they make the old crossing from Burleigh to Buckhorn, on the Oregon Trail, seem like a straight road. On one side of the road may be a drop of 700 or 800 feet, so you're inclined to be very careful unless the convoy is getting too far ahead. Then's when you get a thrill to come around a sharp bend and see a great pit of nothing staring you in the face. You wheel like mad and thrown on the air and try to keep your fingers crossed at the same time."

Town of Death

The young soldier wrote that while he was still a good many miles in the rear, he had passed through Cassino, or what had been Cassino. He said that the only way to describe it was to say that "Cassino isn't." The entire town has been reduced to granulated stone and unless it is so completely rebuilt, no one will ever find shelter in it.

Singing does wonders in lifting, Pte. Hope discovered recently. He was watching some African labor battalions at work. Resembling the natives shown in Tim Buck's "Bring Them Back Alive," he said the group was asked to lift two 45 gallon drums of tar, which are far from light. They came over, jibbering away and laughing, then as soon as they began to lift, they started singing. When they reached a certain part in the song they all heaved together, but didn't make it, so they jibbered so more. One darky threw his hat on the ground and looked as if he were about to eat it, then the singing was taken up again and at the same spot they heaved and made it.

City of Tomorrow

"Rome has at last been opened for day leaves to Allied troops and I don't think there can be a more modern city anywhere in the world. Almost the entire city is made up of modernistic apartment buildings and they are finished in different colors. I didn't count the number of floors, but I imagine there must be at least eight floors and each building takes up about half of one of our city blocks. The streets are all paved of course and are lined with large trees which form an arch over the centre."

This Peterborough boy found the Tiber River not unlike the Clyde in Scotland, but not as deep. They are both muddy, but that doesn't stop the Italians from swimming, he declared. The banks are lined with houseboats where they swim from and have sun baths. It was difficult to believe that only a few days ago there was a war passing through, and he did not see more than half a dozen piles of rubble.

"To try and describe St. Peter's Cathedral is almost impossible. The tip of the dome is about 400 feet high from what I could find out, as we couldn't get a guide to tell us about the different parts of interest. We were right to the top of the dome. The copper ball on which the cross is mounted is about 10 feet in diameter and they let about six in at a time. We saw the paintings that Michael Angelo did and we also saw the tomb of St. Peter. When we had seen the church, we walked around and saw the old ruins such as the Colliseum, the Roman Forum.

"You can buy almost anything in Rome with the exception of food which the Nazis took with them. Food is accepted as payment for articles much more readily than money. Money means nothing. A man can have a hundred dollars and still starve."

The heavy rains which have fallen in Italy recently have not improved billets. Pte. Hope was living in a tent placed where the ground was furrowed. As soon as the heavy rains came, the water took the course of least resistance and settled between the beds and the boys were wading to and from bed through inches of water.

Before the 8th Army entered Rome, soldiers were issued a circular outlining some of the places of interest in the venerable old city and giving a brief background of their histories. Places within bounds for troops were listed and a map of the important sections of the city, included.

Well Looked After

Plenty of recreational facilities are supplied for members of the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F. who are stationed in Newfoundland, writes AW1 Molly Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Brown, 47 Benson avenue, who was posted following her graduation as a wireless operator in Montreal.

"There's an excellent library, a dramatic club, a station magazine, a bowling alley, a swimming pool, badminton courts and a baseball diamond. That's all I can think of, but there are others. It is rather hard to buy stuff around here. There is no rationing and no price ceiling so the cost of living is rather exhorbitant. You pay 25 cents for a card of bobby pins.

"It's a very beautiful station and we have had quite a time finding our way around, although everyone has been nice about giving us directions. The other day they gave us a piece of paper which had to be signed by a lot of people including the padre, S.P., the hospital, educational officer and fire fighters. There didn't seem to be much point to it except that we learned to find our way about."

Shortly after she arrived in Newfoundland AW1 Brown went on duty. The airwomen work in four shifts of six hours each and they work at a different time every day. The girls have some trouble remembering their shifts and learning to sleep in the daytime, but because so many people are working different times, the barracks are generally quiet, she writes.

No Canadian Included In Latest Nazi Murders

Nazis Burn Village After Maquis Attack

BERNE, July 25.— (AP).— The French section of the village of St. Gingolph straddling the border of Switzerland was burned to the ground yesterday by Nazis in swift retaliation for a raid by French Patriots, and 350 elderly men, women and children fled across the border to Swiss soil.

Several civilians were summarily shot. A number of persons were arrested.

Reports from France yesterday said members of the French Maquis had raided the village, cleared out the German garrison, then retired.

AVOID BLIND RULES

HAVE YOU met his kind? There is a type of contract addict who boasts that he will never double the other side's suit contract for penalties unless he can take at least one trick in the trump suit. He beats himself out of some of the most profitable doubles of all—those whereby he fools the declarer into misplaying the hand, enabling the defense to take tricks it otherwise would not get.

After the spade K was led, South sized up his situation. Deciding that East probably had the spade A, he counted on West for the queens of both red suits, especially because West had doubled them both. So he ruffed the lead with his heart 3, laid down the heart K and then led the J, intending to finesse against West. When the latter discarded the club 2, he came up with dummy's A, knowing now that he must lose a trump trick to East's Q.

Since West's double had misled him about the trump Q, he felt sure that he could catch West with the diamond Q. So he came to his hand with the diamond 5 to the A and led the J, letting it go through. East, of course, took that also with the Q. Two club tricks followed quickly, and then another trick with the heart Q, so that the contract was down two.

South said, at the conclusion of the debacle, that if West had not doubled, he probably would have counted East for both of the red queens, and so would have made his contract, losing nothing except two tricks in clubs.

Premier Godbout Calls Senator T. D. Bouchard Traitor To French-Canadian People

ST. JOSEPH D'ALMA, Que., July 25—(CP)—Premier Godbout said in a political speech here Saturday that Senator T. D. Bouchard, former chairman of the Quebec Hydro-Electric Commission, "will never again" hold a Quebec Government post because "he is a fanatic and a traitor to his own people."

The Premier said that Onesime Gagnon, Union Nationale member of the Legislative Assembly for Matane, had told his constituents that Senator Bouchard "had an understanding" with the Premier, and that he would receive another Government appointment after the Quebec general election Aug. 8 if the Liberals were returned to power.

"That is false," said Mr. Godbout. "Mr. Bouchard is a fanatic and I detest fanatics. He will never again come in because he is a fanatic and a traitor to his own people. If there is one thing which must be stamped out among us it is fanaticism."

(The Senator, who resigned as Quebec Minister of Roads to enter the Senate and soon after was appointed Hydro chairman, was dismissed from the latter post following a Senate speech in which he said a French-Canadian "secret society," the order of Jacques Cartier, was seeking to cause disunity in Canada.)

Mr. Godbout charged that the Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire parties, "with money received from the trusts," had paid those whose derisive shouts had prevented speakers from being heard Friday night at a Chicoutimi rally where the Premier had been scheduled to speak.

"Criminal Speeches"

At another meeting at Roberval Saturday, the Premier said "criminal speeches" were being delivered in the election campaign.

"It is traitorous in wartime to try to stir up the people," he said. "It is an imperious duty to public men to keep the population calm. Our people in this province are patriotic people who are ardent in politics and that is their right; but the basis of the Bloc Populaire campaign is composed of fanaticism, unrest and hatred."

The Premier said he saw a "great future for French-Canadians within Confederation," but that co-operation and friendship with other racial groups in Canada was "of the utmost necessity."

No Desire for Post

ST. HYACINTHE, July 25—(Special).—Senator T. D. Bouchard denied today that he had any "arrangement" with Premier Godbout to return to a Government post after the Aug. 8 provincial election, and said he would not return to the Quebec Government ranks in "any capacity."

Senator Bouchard laughed when asked to reply to the Premier's charge that he was a fanatic and a traitor to his own people. He said merely: "He has said just about everything he can, but you will find that there are a great number of Canadians who share my views."

The Senator denied what he said was a rumor that he was leaving St. Hyacinthe, a city of which he had been mayor for 27 years. He said he intended to spend his last days here and to keep on fighting for the welfare of French-Canadians "as citizens of all Canada and not only of a part of this large and promising Dominion."

Hints Premeditation

HULL, July 25 — (CP) — Alexandre Tache, Union Nationale candidate in Hull County, said at a meeting Sunday that he believed the "Bouchard incident" was premeditated, and added: "I have a good suspicion that Mr. Bouchard said what he said, hoping by those means to bring the English vote to the Godbout Government, and Mr. Godbout, by putting out T. D. Bouchard from the Quebec Hydro, thought he would keep the French vote."

Mr. Tache predicted the Liberal and Bloc Populaire parties would unite at the "first occasion" to keep Premier Godbout and Prime Minister King in power.

Interim Supply Bill Passed In Commons

OTTAWA, July 25 — (CP) — Finance Minister Ilsley in the Commons Monday obtained adoption of an Interim Supply Bill.

Men Describe Mahoney's Feat

OTTAWA, July 25 (CP)—Men of Major John Keefer Mahony's company were unanimous in their praise of the action which resulted in his being awarded the Victoria Cross—Canada's fifth V.C. of the present war.

Major Mahony, 33, of New Westminster, B.C., and an officer of the Westminster Regiment (motor), was awarded the V.C. after continuing successful direction of the holding of an Italian bridgehead though he had been wounded three times.

His award—90th award of the V.C. to Empire servicemen in this war—was announced in the House of Commons July 13 by Defense Minister Ralston.

CSM. William Smith of West Vancouver was Major Mahony's right-hand man during the action on May 24-25.

West Back Next Day

"It was 24 hours after the battle that I first saw him," said CSM. Smith. "He came back from the action wounded and dog-tired. He got his wounds dressed and spent the night with me, but he went right back to his company the next day. You can't keep a fellow like him down. The fellows are all feeling mighty proud of having him as their company commander, and they've got good reason to be."

Pte. J. R. Highland of Vancouver saw Major Mahony just as he was hit. "He just got up off the ground and carried on despite what must have been a painful injury. He was still going when I saw him last," said Highland. Another soldier, Pte. C. J. Walker of Vancouver, was impressed by Major Mahony's coolness.

"More than once I saw him standing out in the open under fire trying to locate enemy positions while the rest of us dug in. He seemed to have a charmed life," Walker said.

Cpl. W. M. Thorarinson of Winnipeg, only signaller in the operation who did not become a casualty and who was unable to leave his communications post, watched Major Mahony go out twice under fire and bring helplessly wounded men in to safety.

Sgt. N. Cormier of Tecumseh, Ont., who was in charge of the mortar section, said that with Major Mahony on hand "every one seemed to have lots of energy, and he is so well liked we could go through hell with him."

Westgate Is Hanged For Strangle Slaying

WINNIPEG, July 25—(CP)—One of the most sensational murder mysteries in Canadian criminal history ended Monday when Albert Westgate, 45-year-old Winnipeg mechanic, was hanged at Headingley jail, 12 miles west of here, for the strangle-slaying last Dec 4 of Grace Edith Cook in a downtown hotel here.

With the same stoicism shown during his trial, Westgate ate a light meal about three hours before he entered the death chamber and walked to the scaffold unassisted.

Keeping things Rolling

When war came—and Canadian industry began the battle for stepped-up production, Imperial Oil Limited swung into supporting action with a powerful weapon.

It was petroleum research. Through this search for ever-wider utilization of the myriad properties of petroleum had come outstanding pre-war advancements in products, in processes, in modern living. Imperial Oil Research Laboratories were now on a full war footing. Daily, out of countless experiments and tests came better ways of making new and improved products—faster. Petroleum, plus the technical skill of Imperial Oil research workers, solved many difficult problems that blocked the way to production goals . . . helped industry build improved, more effective weapons for the army and navy, and planes that flew higher, faster, longer than ever before . . . played an important role in helping to create new industries vital to Canada's war effort.

To-day, in its great effort to achieve final Victory, Canadian Industry can count on Imperial Oil Research for aid when the time comes to plan the better world of post-war . . . just as the men working the machines on the industrial front depend on Imperial lubricants to "keep things rolling" towards the goal of peace.

Stuttgart Is Plastered In Big Raid

British And Canadian Bombers Are Out In Great Strength

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 26.—(AP).—British and Canadian Bombers, ranging over Germany in Great strength last night despite severe electrical storms, pounded Stuttgart for the second successive night and plastered a wide variety of other targets, including Berlin, Bremen, Mannheim and Wanne-Eickel in the Ruhr.

There were indications the Reich was getting another pounding today, the German radio reporting that Allied bomber formations — apparently from Mediterranean bases—were winging in over Austria.

Approximately 1,000 four-engined R.A.F. and R.C.A.F. bombers and a large number of lesser craft participated in the overnight assaults, which were carried out at a total cost of 13 planes.

Weather worsened to-day with clouds down to 1,500 feet, but American medium and fighter-bombers again supported the American 1st Army smashing at German positions wave on wave and blazing the trail for a new dawn thrust south of the Periers-St. Lo road.

The Bremen and Mannheim raids probably were diversionary. Despite the feints, the bombers beat off numerous fighters around Stuttgart.

In hitting the Wanne-Eickel oil plant, the R.A.F. bombed an objective output of which represents a considerable part of the entire synthetic oil production of the Ruhr. More than 50 per cent of the Ruhr oil now is lost to the enemy through aerial attack on the five largest synthetic plants in that area, it was reported.

Hostages Return To Their Homes

By LYNN HEINZERLING
Associated Press War Correspondent

WITH THE EIGHTH ARMY IN ITALY, July 26—(AP). — The lost hostages of Gubbio have returned to their homes as their German keepers fled into the hills, and Father Superior Peter Baptiste Micheli of St. Ubaldo Monastery, where the hostages were held for a month, told how the Nazis had tried to employ him as a spy.

Some of the 231 civilians freed from the monastery said the Germans had warned them they would be machine-gunned if they attempted to escape. One man was shot to death as he was bringing food to the monastery, because he failed to obey the Germans' instruction.

During their occupancy of the monastery the Germans used the upper storey as an observation post and threatened to kill the hostages if the Allies attacked.

Father Micheli said a German soldier asked him to go into the country one day to look for food and then attempted to use him to help find out the disposition of the British troops. The priest said he refused.

Between 20 and 25 Germans were stationed in the monastery for about 50 days. The hostages lived 20 to a room.

Goering Is Made Dictator Of German Life

LONDON, July 26—(AP).—Adolf Hitler, having in effect placed the Reich and occupied territories under rule of an arch-Nazi "big four," was believed today to be preparing a general mobilization of all manpower in that part of Europe under German control for a last-ditch defence of Nazism.

A German news agency dispatch reaching Madrid quoted a German Foreign Office spokesman as saying that Germany herself was going to create new and important military reserves and that other countries "allied" with Germany would not be far behind in this program despite the cost.

In his new post Goebbels has become executor to Reichmarshal Goering, who was appointed by Hitler last night as chairman of the ministerial council for defence of the Reich. Thus Goering becomes a dictator over all private and public life in Germany.

Directed By "Big Four."

Forming the "big four" of Nazism to direct Germany's death battle are Hitler, Goering, Goebbels and Heinrich Himmler, the Gestapo chief appointed last week to be an all-powerful commander-in-chief of the army at home.

Reports reaching Barcelona said Hitler was preparing an order mobilizing "all Europeans in occupied countries" into the war effort without age or sex limitations.

The big unanswered question regarding the situation of Germany was to what if any extent did last week's ruthless Himmler-directed purge of rebellious junkers in the army affect the will to fight of the individual German soldier.

A diplomatic report received in Madrid said that a shooting fray developed between SS. and regular army officers in Brussels Sunday in which two unidentified SS. brigadier-generals, five colonels and 16 other officers were killed.

The French-Spanish border was alive with unconfirmed reports of sporadic clashes between the two branches of the German military, but even these reports indicated the fighting had been confined to officers and had not spread to the troops.

An Associated Press Stockholm dispatch quoted an informant with German connections as saying that 10 days before the attempt was made to kill Hitler Berlin was flooded with small leaflets bearing the single line: "Let's make peace now. Smash Hitler and his gang."

The leaflets were of a type different from the kind which heretofore have been dropped by Allied planes, the informant said, and Berliners generally believed they had been circulated by some element inside Germany.

8th Army Is 8 Miles From Florence

Allied 5th Army Is Battling Germans Near Pisa's Tower

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 26.—(AP).—The British 8th Army, advancing along a 30-mile front, has penetrated to a point within eight miles of the outskirts of Florence, it was announced today, while the southern portion of the historic city of Pisa was battered as big German guns stepped up their shelling of the areas south of the Arno River in American hands.

The Allied 5th Army, some units of which are within a few hundred yards of Pisa's famous leaning tower, consolidated its hold on a broad front south of the Arno.

Heavy Shelling at Pisa

The heavy German shelling of the American-held portion of Pisa south of the Arno covered likely river crossings in and near the city with mortar fire.

An Allied communique said 8th Army units had reached the outskirts of San Casciano, eight miles south of Florence, and in other sectors of the inland front gains up to three miles had been scored.

A dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent Doug How said last night that important local gains were achieved in the Arno valley on high ground east of the Arezzo-Bibbiena highway. Bibbiena is 18 miles north of Arezzo.

To the east in the upper Tiber valley, How reported, patrols reached within two miles of San Sepolcro, a road junction 17 miles northeast of Arezzo.

Near the right wing of the 5th Army front Allied troops wiped out the last nests of snipers in the towns of San Miniato, 22 miles east of Pisa and 20 miles west of Florence and in San Romano, four miles further west.

In that area particularly bitter fighting took place when Allied patrols surprised and wiped out enemy forces hurriedly trying to dig defence positions on a steep railway embankment a mile south of the Arno.

The Nazis still held Caprona, situated on the south side of the Arno in a horseshoe bend four miles east of Pisa, but were being subjected to intense artillery fire which knocked out a number of enemy guns.

In widespread aerial activity yesterday, which included an attack on the Hermann Goering works southwest of Linz, Austria, and on railway and communication lines in Northern Italy and Yugoslavia, planes of the Mediterranean Allied Air Force made 1,700 sorties.

During the varied operations, the communique said, 65 Germ[illegible] aircraft were destroyed, while [illegible] Allied planes were reported mis[illegible]

Hope To Merge Polish Factions

BY JAMES F. KING
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 26 — (AP) — The Polish government in London weighed today the advisability of attempting to re-establish direct contact with Moscow in its fight for survival as the Red Army crashed on within 50 miles of Warsaw.

Premier Stanislaw Mikolajczyk may attempt to visit Premier Stalin's capital for discussion of the situation brought on by Soviet Russia's recognition of the Polish territory now being wrested from the Germans west of the Bug River. More than 9,000 square miles which the Russians recognize as Poland have been captured.

The Polish cabinet is meeting again this afternoon and may decide.

The United States, as well as Britain, is expected generally here to continue to support the exiled government diplomatically while standing ready to give military help to the Soviet-recognized committee in the hope the two factions can be merged.

This position was viewed as consistent with the Allied policy of lending support to anyone fighting the Germans, but there is no attempt to minimize the deep concern felt over the split among the Poles and its possible repercussions.

The London News Chronicle said editorially that "we cannot afford to have our relations with Russia prejudiced by failure of the Poles to agree among themselves."

Goebbels Strong In Belief Nazis Will Win

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)—Propaganda Minister Goebbels of Germany, giving what he called a full report of last Thursday's bombing, declared tonight he was "convinced that there are no disaster and no danger which would not in the last turn to our favor."

Berlin's offiiial broadcasts on the talk were recorded by the Associated Press, NBC and CBS.

"Dearest Life In World"

The newly appointed Reich's Plenipotentiary for total mobilization of Germany said:

"If the plot had succeeded, efforts of millions and millions of Germans would have been thrown to nothing. Unimaginable misfortune would have overcome the Germans at the hands of the worst kind of criminal—of a small thief who raised his hand to shut of the dearest life in the world".

Goebbels said Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler had been ordered to "reorganise the whole German reserve army and move the reserves at home to the front."

Goebbels sought to reassure the Germans that their war effort, "especially at the eastern front, will soon be changed in our favor."

He added: "Total war will make available to the fronts and to war production so much manpower it will not be too difficult to master the difficulties of the war situation."

Gobbels said that when he received word by telephone that an attempt had been made on Hitler's life "it was a shock to me as it was to every German—I had for a moment a feeling as if my head would fall off."

Russian Army Storms Vistula Line

German Garrisons In Five Cities Of Poland Doomed

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 26.—(AP).—American fighter planes, flying directly from U.S. bases in tactical support of the advancing Red army, destroyed 38 German aircraft yesterday in an offensive sweep in the Lwow area.

The fighters were attached to the U.S. 15th Air Force, based in Italy. It was the first time American airmen had struck directly at the enemy in the battle zone of the eastern front, although they had conducted strategic bombings from Russian bases in shuttle operations.

They downed 29 Germans in combat and destroyed nine grounded planes. Another group strafed the Mielec airdrome on the Wisloka river, 100 miles northwest of Lwow from tree level. No American plane was lost.

The Americans reached the Soviet Union Saturday on a shuttle hop from Italy, blasting Romanian airfields en route.

Russians Use Cavalry

MOSCOW, July 26—(AP).—Hard-riding Cossacks drove the severely mauled Germans to the east bank of the Wisla (Vistula) River today in the Pulawy area, 66 miles southeast of threatened Warsaw. Far behind the front, other Russians surrounded the battered German garrison inside Lwow and broke into that great rail centre.

Around Pulawy, the Russians were within 358 miles of Berlin. The drive also carried to within 142 miles of German Silesia.

Beyond the Wisla, a rolling plain ideal for tanks and horsemen such as the heavily armed Cossacks, invites swift advance.

Germans Contesting Every Foot Along 3-Mile Canadian Front

By WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 26 — (CP Cable). — Canadian infantry have been fighting all day (yesterday) up the long, bald slopes south of St. Andre Sur Orne and Bourguebus and met fierce opposition practically everywhere along the 3½-mile front of their difficult advance.

The Germans are holding to all the positions in the line they have been preparing in the region lying in an arc about five to seven miles south and southeast of Caen. They are contesting every foot of the advance with heavy machine-gun, mortar and shell fire. They cling to their trenches and hold machine-gun posts even after they have been cleaned out from one pocket after another.

Advance Is Slow.

The enemy resistance has been particularly strong at May Sur Orne, 6½ miles south of Caen, and around the settlements of Verrieres, two miles northeast of May. The going has been slow for the Canadian infantry and armored forces which have British support.

Most of the front lies between the road south and slightly west from Caen to Thury-Harcourt, now called "Devil's Run," and the Caen-Falaise Highway, which runs straight and slightly east of south.

Enemy mortar and gun positions on the west bank of the Orne have been bombarding the line of the Canadian advance from high ground overlooking the battlefield. Gunfire has been a feature of the battle and both sides are making heavy use of artillery.

You can look over the smoking ground across which the advance is going from hills just south of Caen's suburb of Vaucelles, captured by Canadians a week ago.

Despite the haze which persisted through this grey but dry day you can watch the tanks which have been moving up behind the Canadian Infantry and see shells falling all along the exposed shoulders where some of the heaviest fighting has developed.

Out there on high ground is the small village of Verrieres in front of which the Canadians fought for several days and which they finally cleaned out about mid-day after stiff fighting. The Germans reacted immediately to the capture of Verrieres with several counter-attacks by infantry, supported by Panther tanks, but none has been successful.

Stop Big Panthers

Ontario troops who took Verrieres and entrenched themselves have antitank guns in position and stopped some big Panthers as they came in. The Canadians also opened up with Piats—light mortars—at short range at which they are most effective.

Ontario soldiers have been able to hold off one of the German attempts to push them back down the northern slope and across the lateral road between St. Andre Sur Orne and Hubert-Folie, respectively five miles south and five miles southwest of Caen.

Westerners have been in the heaviest fighting around May Sur Orne The advance has been most difficult here because of the weight of fire which the Germans have been able to bring down.

Some of their well-hidden gun positions look down on the road through St. Andre and they are able to snipe at our vehicles with 88mm. guns over open sights.

Ontario Unit, British Gunners Repel German Attack, Americans Gain Four Miles

Canadian Units Hold Narrow Gains Made On First Day

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 26.—(CP Cable). — Ontario infantrymen have repulsed a strong German counter-attack on Verrieres, six miles south of Caen, while along the rest of this front south of Caen and Vaucelles Canadian units hold most of their narrow gains.

The Germans struck at Verriers with upwards of 30 tanks supported by artillery and infantry, but the Ontario troops fought them off and there was no penetration.

At Tilly La Campagne, 1½ miles east of Verrieres, the Germans increased their pressure and made a slight gain. Maritime troops, however, hold an orchard at the north end of this village.

There has been more fighting at the west end of the line around May Sur Orne, where French-speaking Canadian troops are again in action.

The Germans hold May Sur Orne, however, and it appears to be the west pivot of their defence line in this area.

The weather is cloudy again today. Before this Canadian attack, heavy rain and overcast greatly restricted air observation, and the same situation still persists.

Heavy Armor Thown By Marshal Rommel Against Canadians

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 26 — (CP) — Heavy fighting raged in three towns on the British-Canadian sector of the Normandy battlefront tonight as the Germans fought with suicidal furry to stem Gen. Montgomery's drive southeast of Caen, while to the west American forces made "some progress" against strong opposition.

Field Marsnal Rommel was throwing heavy armor against British and Canadian units Packs of upwards of 30 and 40 German tanks attacked at a time, but the Tommies and Canucks held to their gains of yesterday and dug-in.

Headquarters said tonight that fierce battles continued around May-sur-Orne, Tilly La Campagne and Verrieres, south of Caen, with no new Allied assaults. Progress was confined to consolidation of Tuesday's gains and was achieved despite increased German counter-attacks, it was said. Verrieres was firmly in Allied hands.

Progress May Be Slow

Although headquarters gave no details of the American action, it was said that some progress had been made and warned that further progress ws likely to be slow in the difficult country through which the Americans are fighting.

Front dispatches said the U. S. advance had engulfed more than a dozen small villages, and that there was fighting at the outskirts of St. Gilles, four miles from St. Lo on the road to Coutances. Against the Americans the Germans were throwing in giant 52-ton Tiger tanks armed with 88-millimeter guns.

The major German armored thrust against Verrieres was crumpled by men of an Ontario infantry unit, Canadian Press War Correspondent Ross Munro said in a front dispatch today. Other front reports said cool British gunners held firm and picked off the enemy tanks or dispersed them as they attacked Verrieres.

This town, six miles south of Caen, still was in Allied hands after an all-night battle.

Munro said more than 30 tanks hit at Verrieres supported by enemy artillery and infantry, but made no penetration against the Canadians.

May Sur Orne, 6½ miles south of Caen, on the Canadian left flank, apparently is the pivot of the Ger-

Enemy Forces Trapped On Guam Island

PEARL HARBOR, July 26 — (AP) — American invaders of Guam laid fiery siege today to an enemy trapped by a juncture of American forces behind Port Apra.

Some hapless Japanese jumped into the ocean, reported Al Dopking Associated Press War Correspondent, as battleships, carrier planes and hill-based artillery blanketed the sealed-off Orote peninsula.

"A pall of smoke from bombs and shells hangs over the peninsula like a masterful piece of satanic art," wrote John R. Henry, representing the combined Allied Press, from the shattered town of Agat on the south beachhead.

While one arm of the north beachhead force forked down behind Port Apra, another reached northeast to threaten Guam's capital city of Agana.

More than 100 miles north of Guam at invaded Tinian, aerial bombings and warship bombardments of rail and highway junctions split the island's garrison into north and south forces.

Marine conquerors of nearby Saipan, bidding for complete seizure of partly occupied 4,500-foot Ushi airfield on the northwest tip of Tinian, mowed down the tank-led Japs.

Russian Army Nears Objective

LONDON, July 26 (CP) — The Russians "no longer are very far from their objectives" in drives toward Warsaw and Riga, the Berlin radio commentator Martin Von Hallensleben said today in a gloomy review which called the Red Army offensive the greatest of the war.

(Dispatches from Moscow said the Red Army was within 50 miles of Warsaw and within 70 of Riga.)

Hallensleben, in a D.N.B. news broadcast, said the Russians, by attacking "where large-scale operations should not have been undertaken," had pierced lightly-held German lines and as a result "the whole prudently calculated German defence system was threatened."

The commentator declared "nothing that can be compared with the power and extend of the forces and material resources of the present Soviet offensive has ever been seen at any moment of this war."

Dogs Used To Detect Non-Metallic Mines

WASHINGTON, July 26 (AP) — Non-metallic land mines, which cannot be located by mechanical devices, are being detected by highly-trained "M-Dogs" the Army disclosed today, but they find others, too, metallic lines, trip wires and booby traps.

Working on a six-foot leash the animals locate mine fields, lead the way around them, or point a safe path through them. As the dogs locate the buried or concealed explosive devices, the mines are removed and the cleared path marked with tape.

Air Assault Is Called Inhumane

By EDWARD D. BALL
Associated Press War Correspondent

IN NORMANDY, July 26—(AP).—A massive air assault flushed a covey of German parachutists today and they ran out sobbing and screaming, "This is not war; it's criminal."

Terror glazed their eyes.

They were some distance behind the first American troops before they could be headed off.

Splendid physical specimens, they quieted down under the calm handling of Sgt. Ernest Gunzburg of Miami, Fla., German-born interpreter, and Cpl. John Baer, his assistant, from Forest Hills, N.Y.

A 19-year-old Nazi who reported he had been a medical student at Munich, said he thought the air bombardment was "inhumane."

"How about Warsaw?" he was asked.

"We were defending ourselves."

"Rotterdam?"

"Rotterdam was a fortress."

"And London?"

"They started it."

It was the same with the rest, who ranged from 19-year-olds to men in their forties.

Men of one group said they surrendered because they were without water and had had only one meal for days. They wolfed canned rations like hungry animals.

Robot Strikes London Hospital

LONDON, July 26—(CP Cable)—Four people were killed and at least 250 escaped unhurt when a 2,000-pound Nazi flying bomb struck a London hospital early today, setting furious fires which swept rapidly through the building.

The robot struck with the engine full on, blasting an anesthetics dispensary which happened to be empty at the time. Flames fed by ether cut off the main stairway and spread to nearby wards, some of them occupied by the aged and infirm.

Two elderly male patients and a hospital visitor were among the victims, and the fourth was a hospital nurse. She was killed when the roof collapsed on her while she was helping to rescue patients trapped under the mass of burning wreckage.

Nurses and the hospital's own civil defence unit saved the majority of the patients by carrying them down a fire-escape which remained intact.

Corvette Camrose In Action

Ship Credited With Helping Sink Sub

OTTAWA, July 26.—(CP).—Navy Minister Macdonald announced today the Canadian corvette Camrose had been credited with a "important share" in an apparently successful attack on a German submarine, as a result of which the Admiralty assessment stated that the U-boat was "probably sunk"

The action was the second within a year in which Camrose distinguished herself under command of Lt.-Cmdr. L. R. Pavillard of Halifax. Last year Camrose, in a Mediterranean convoy, saved the lives of 135 torpedoed merchant seamen during an action in which she was credited with "probably damaging" a submarine.

In her latest action Camrose was on convoy duty in the Atlantic when a British warship which was travelling in the same escort group detected the U-boat on the surface and illuminated it with starshell.

The submarine dived on being sighted, and was immediately attacked with depth charges by the two ships. One of the attacks brought oil to the surface; another caused a huge air bubble about 25 feet in diameter and accompanied by oil to surface. Still another, delivered by Camrose, brought up oil and wreckage.

Peace Treaty With Italy

American Authorities Study British Proposal

WASHINGTON, July 26 — (AP) — A British suggestion that the Allies write a provisional peace with Italy, which now has the combined standing of defeated enemy and co-belligerent, is before American authorities, it was learned today.

The plan is understood to await discussion with Russia and other countries interested in the Italian settlement.

As now contemplated, the Peace treaty would leave aside all territorial questions—and probably other final claims such as reparations —for later decision.

Primarily, it would serve to regularise Italy's relations with the United Nations, clarify the position of Italian war prisoners, and enable Italian soldiers to reform and get into the front lines of the battle in their homeland.

Also, such a treaty would solve the question of the Italian Armistice and give considerable prestige to the Italian government, which has complained its position is too weak.

R.C.A.F. Bomber Squadrons Hit Stuttgart

By ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

WITH THE CANADIAN BOMBER GROUP, Somewhere in England, July 26 — (CP Cable)— Every squadron of the Canadian Bomber Group sent heavy bombers with the R.A.F. force which attacked Stuttgart in darkness early to-day.

More than 1,000 fliers took part from the Canadian group and uncounted Canadians flew in the R.A.F. crews in the operation.

All day yesterday on the group's far-flung stations—as was the case throughout all the R.A.F. Bomber Command — ground crews loaded the great black Lancasters and the Halifaxes with bombs for the second assault in two nights on the big engineering centre which often previously has been a target for R.A.F. devastation.

It was made known officially that more than 170 R.C.A.F. crews participated in the raid, dropping a great weight of incendiary bombs

Squadron commanders leading their squadrons included Wing Cmdrs. J. K. McDonald, Antigonish, N.S., Jim Lewington, Ottawa. H. R. Dow, Toronto, G. McKenna, Ottawa. They led respectively the Leaside, Porcupine, Iroquois, and Snowyowl Squadrons.

The Canadian bombers teamed with the main R.A.F. stream which reached Stuttgart just before 2 a.m. The assault was over in 15 minutes. Large fires were seen spreading as the fliers turned for home.

Last night's immediate return of the bombers to Stuttgart is explained by the fact that the city of 450,000 population has an irregular outline which makes it a difficult target, requiring more than one attack to damage al its war industries.

Family Allowance Ensures Freedom From Want Prime Minister King Says

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL—Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 26—(CP).—A crowded House of Commons yesterday heard Prime Minister Mackenzie King describe the payment of family allowances by the State as a means of ensuring freedom from want and as a method of establishing a greater equality of opportunity among the people of the nation.

Amid the loud desk thumping of his supporters, Mr. King said his government planned to pay the allowances as a means of bringing the aid of the strong to the weak, as a force for stabilizing the national economy in the post-war years and assuring a greater demand for commodities.

With these principles Opposition party members announced themselves in agreement, but they disagreed on the method the Government planned to follow in paying the allowances.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House leader, speaking after Mr. King had opened debate on second reading to the family allowances bill, said his party endorsed the principle and objective of adjusting the extra burdens by parents of families, but it felt the bill was unconstitutional, inadequate for the purpose and "illusory, hastily prepared and untenable."

Mr. Graydon asked in an amendment to the motion for second reading that the bill be sent to the social security committee for redrafting after consultation with the provinces so that it could be made into a joint Dominion-Provincial scheme. The amendment was ruled out of order and his appeal from the Speaker's ruling was voted down by 127 to 30. All members of the House except the Progressive Conservatives and A. W. Neill (Ind.—Comox-Alberni) joined the Government in voting down the appeal, and thereby indicating their support of the principle of the Government's legislation.

M. J. Coldwell, C. C. F. party leader, said he welcomed the measure as "a belated recognition of human rights." His party regretted, however, that it did not form part of a comprehensive Social Security proram.

Justice Minister St. Laurent told the House he could find nothing in the judgements of the Privy Council or the Supreme Court of Canada to indicate that the Bill was unconstitutional. Frederic Dorion (Ind.—Charlevoix—Saguenay) said he did not agree and that he believed that some parts of the Bill were unconstitutional.

Mr. Dorin, who said he would give his support to the Bill, was the last to speak in the Debate which was adjourned until today's afternoon session by Brooke Claxton, parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister King. Support of the measure also was promised by J. A. Olanchette (L—Compton) and Mrs. Cora Casselman (L—Edmonton East).

Bruce Criticizes Bill

Criticism of the Bill came from Dr. H. A. Bruce (PC—Toronto Parkdale), who suggested the Legislation had been introduced for the purpose of winning the Quebec Provincial election for the Liberal party.

Before beginning the Allowance debate, the House moved three other pieces of the government's post-war legislation through the resolution and first reading stages

Two of the Bills would pave the way for the establishment of floor prices under arm and fishery products and the third would provide government insurance for war veterans after discharge without medical examination.

The Family Allowance Bill provides for payments ranging from $5 per month for children up to six years to $8 for children between 13 and 16 years of age. Reductions would be made in the allowances paid to families of more than four. With institution of the allowances exemptions from Income Tax payments for children will be discontinued.

Mr. King said that 84 per cent of the children in Canada were dependent on 19 per cent of the gainfully employed people. The burden of supporting children fell on less than one-fifth of those with incomes.

Should Be Shared By All.

Raising the children of the nation was, next to defending the country against enemies, the greatest service which could be performed.

"It is only fair that the financial burden of this great national service should be shared by all," he said.

Among Canada's working population there was nothing approaching equality of opportunity in the battle of life for either parents or children. In the past people had come to take differences of opportunty between classes for granted. But the new order of things was going to take very little for granted.

It might be argued that many great men had become great only by reason of struggle against circumstances. That argument took no account of the thousands who perished or were handicapped for life by malnutrition, lack of education and lack of medical attention.

"The purpose of this measure is to remove that injustice insofar as the state is justified in acting," he saaid. "It is a measure in the general interest rather than in the interest of any particular class."

Mr. King said he had deeply resented a statment by John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, who stated that the allowances bill was a political bribe.

Mr. Graydon declared Mr. King had no monopoly on interest in the poor, and added it was a good thing Mr. Bracken was not in the House. Mr. King's blood pressure went up every time he thought of Mr. Bracken, and if the party leader was present Mr. King probably would collapse.

Mr. Graydon formulated his objections in five points:

1. It is unconstitutional and invades the jurisdiction of the provinces.

2. It seriously endangers the setting up of minimum wage standards in Canada. It may be accepted in many instances as a substitute for better wage levels.

3. It adds a further strain on national unity. Quebec was the only province which had retained the large family of pioneer times and its contributions to national revenue would be out of proportion to the payments it would receive.

4. It disregards the whole question of need in family life and child welfare. It is a direct threat to a more comprehensive social program where cash grants to those in need and adequate health, educational, housing and general welfare provisions would have their place.

5. It foreshadows the building of a giant peacetime bureaucracy with its inevitable controls, offices, inspectors and machinery.

"We support the purpose and principle of a living standard of family life among the masses of our people, but we do not believe this bill will adequately or effectively carry that out," Mr. Graydon said.

Challenged By Ontario?

Mr. Coldwell said he regretted Mr. Graydon raised the constitutional issue and took the fact as an indication the bill would be challenged by the one province in which "his friends" are in power, Ontario. If there was any constitutional doubt it should have been removed sooner.

Mr. Coldwell said he questioned the wisdom of reducing the amount of the allowance per child in large families and thought this was discrimination and not likely to work well.

He could not see why the Government did not plan to implement the legislation before next July 1. There appeared to be no reason why the legislation could not have gone into effect at the beginning of this month, or why it could not go into effect at the beginning of next year.

He said he advanced these suggestions as constructive criticism and not with a view of opposing the bill.

Impose No Obligation

Mr. St. Laurent, in saying he believed the legislation to be constitutional, said the bill did not impose any obligation on anyone. No contractual right was interfered with and no family right was affected.

He did not see how the allowances could effect wage scales. It was not practical to have in business or industry a different wage scale for everyone on the payroll.

There was a moral obligation on the people of the country to aid in bringing up the nation's children. Some said they did not mind paying taxes, but they did not like to see the money spent to bring up their neighbors' children. This was not the right attitude to take.

Mr. St. Laurent said that of the 443,000 families in Quebec, 215,000 of them had only one or two children.

Mr. Blanchette said the allowances would remove from the minds of the fathers of large families the fear that they would not be able to bring up their families in keeping with the value of the human personality.

Dr. Bruce said the bill would subsidize families which had been unwilling to defend their country and would tax hard-working people to bonus the "shiftless and the lazy."

Youth Is Fined $25 For Not Working

Ronald Horton was convicted in police court this morning on a charge under the National Selective Service regulations of having failed to accept employment and was fined $25 and $4.50 costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee.

W. F. Huycke, K.C., prosecuted the case for the Selective Service officials

L. A. Grant, of the staff of the local Selective Service office, produced copies of the documents in the case and testified that Horton had been directed to the De Laval Company for employment.

George A. Macdonald, plant manager of the De Laval Company stated that Horton had failed to report there for work. He had come down to the plant and discussed employment with the witness but stated that the De Laval had nothing to interest him. "His only excuse was that he did not want to work there," said the De Laval official.

Horton told the court that he had been in the Canadian Army for two years and had been discharged for flat feet. He said that he had worked in Sudbury for some time before enlisting. He thought that as an ex-service man he was entitled to an open permit from Selective Service enabling him to seek a job where ever he wished, he told the Magistrate.

"The fact is that this man was discharged in March and he has done no work since" said Mr. Huycke in asking that the penalty should be at least $50.

Magistrate Gee, however, made the fine $25, saying that he was taking into consideration the fact that the youth had been in the army.

28 Miles From Tatar Pass.

Hungary and Czecho-Slovakia were in the path of yet another Russian army group which virtually surrounded Stanislawow and reached within 28 miles of the Hungarian-held Tatar Pass in the Carpathians.

(The Berlin radio admitted a Russian breakthrough to the Wisla. The German communique said the Russians were advancing between the Upper Bug River and the Wisla and that their Lwow garrison repulsed the Soviets in a counterattack.)

Twin advances by Marshal Ivan D. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army group were flanking the fortress of Prezmysl on the north and south. The city lies 60 miles due west of Lwow, and on the direct road to Silesia, just north of the Carpathian Range. One Soviet force was reported 30 miles southeast of Irzemysl.

Nazi Air Force Comes Out

Reports from central Poland told of frantic German attempts to reorganize their shattered armies Red Star said the Nazi Air Force drew on its reserves and flew 500 sorties, strafing Russian reinforcements flooding across the San River toward Krakow.

Enemy infantry divisions were declared to have lost up to 40 per cent. of their strength and German wounded were reported ordered "to fight to the last man." Because of the lightning Russian advance, the Russians frequently were engaging numerically superior German concentrations, but not for long.

Decisions appeared near in the Red army's mighty drives to achieve four great objectives: Slash the Baltic front in half; liberate Poland; bring the war to the soil of East Prussia and Prussia itself, and open the mountain gateways to the Danube Basin.

Within 50 miles of Warsaw, symbol of Polish peoples' heroism in 1939, joint Russian-Polish forces under the supreme command of Marshal Konstantin K. Rokossovsky savagely engaged Germany's reserves attempting to stabilize the sector between the Polish capital and the Siedlce area.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian's 1st Baltic army encircled Dvinsk, largest city in Eastern Latvia, after severing the railway line to Riga 104 miles to the northwest.

Riga, capture of which would destroy the centre of the German front along the Baltic coast, isolate resisting divisions in Estonia and speed up the Finnish capitulation, was less than 70 miles distant from Soviet troops pushing due north from Middle Lithuania.

Two Armies in Push.

Gen. Ivan Cherniakovsky and Gen. G. F. Zakharov have teamed their 3rd and 2nd White Russian armies for mammoth blows against the approaches of East Prussia.

The battle for the Suwalki Triangle, which Hitler claimed for incorporation into East Prussia in 1939, was marked by a Soviet advance from captured Lipsk, three miles from the Triangle border. Front reports said the Red army spearhead was within 25 miles of East Prussia.

Solidly ringed by Soviet steel, the decimated German defenders of Brest Litovsk clung to the ruined buildings of the town but mopping up operations by the Russians went on methodically.

The 25th German General reported captured since the start of the offensive June 23 surrendered in the Lwow district, where the capital city shook with the fire of Soviet armored and mobile guns cleaning out machine-gun nests street by street. He was Gen. Haugge. His entire staff followed him into captivity, the Russians said. Hauffe, who was wounded, was commander of the German 13th Army Corps.

Searchers Find Body Of Sheldon Falls

BEWDLEY, July 26 — (ENS).— The body of 17-year-old Sheldon Falls, non-swimmer who drowned in Rice Lake on Sunday evening, was recovered at 5:15 on Tuesday afternoon, more than 40 hours after the drowning occurred.

Ross Metcalf, 16-year-old companion of Falls when he drowned, took part in the dragging operations, and Tuesday helped bring the body to shore, after it had bobbed to the surface, a short distance from the spot where Falls sank. Jack Hibbert, Bewdley, Ben Cook, Bewdley, and Constable Alexander McLeod, Cobourg, took part in the dragging operations and also helped recover the body.

The Bewdley boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Falls, was drowned following a rowboat trip out into the lake, when he climbed out of the boat and grasped hold of the anchor rope, which parted from the boat, and Falls sank immediately. Metcalf, who was sitting in the boat at the time, said that all he heard of the tragedy was a splash, and Falls disappeared.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at 2:30 from the Jex-Smith Funeral Home in Port Hope to Bewdley Cemetery.

Moving forward with heavy air support, British units were reported unable to crack the German hold on May Sur Orne last night. A front officer said that Gen. Montgomery's powerful drive along the Orne River had reached the "main German position."

The whole 25-mile American front from St. Lo west to the sea rocked to the thunder of a tremendous artillery barrage just before dawn. Then came wave after wave of attacking medium and fighter bombers. Lt.-Gen. Bradley's infantry made local advances despite heavy German resistance in some sectors. Headquarters said the front still was expanding.

Grind Down Reserves

One staff officer said the British-Canadian drive, without too great an expenditure of manpower, was grinding down German reserves in a zigzag battle of attrition.

Headquarters said the Germans have moved a second SS. panzer division across the Orne to bolster their defence and that other reinforcements had been shifted from the Caumont sector, 20 miles west of the Orne battleground.

The dug-in tanks and guns, which the Allies were encountering, were not considered a sign of an inferior German defence. The Germans simply dropped these weapons temporarily in hollows for concealment but they were quickly mobile.

German troops were putting up a furious fight against the greatest Allied effort thus far to break out of the beachhead, smash key chunks of Field-Marshal Rommel's forces and move inland for even greater operations.

Secure Tank Ground.

The hostly-contested town of St. Martin de Fontenay also was in Allied hands, and bitter fighting continued for May Sur Orne and Tily La Campagne. All these towns are from five to six miles south of Caen. The British-Canadian drive is headed down the road from Caen to Falaise and one of its immediate aims is to secure firm ground favorable for tank fighting to the south.

American infantrymen crossed the St. Lo-Periers road at a number of places and were reported to have advanced up to 3,000 yards.

The multiple cutting of the key road showed that one important area of the American attack was the eight-mile expanse of low, open country between the Vire and Taute rivers.

First reports from the American ground forces slashing ahead in the St. Lo area described yesterday's great display of aerial might as successful.

Bombing Casualties.

Although the enemy's dug-in tanks withstood the bombardment because the attacking planes employed mosty anti-personnel explosives, the Americans reported finding numerous bombing casualties among the German troops in the territory over which they advanced.

Around 4,500 tactical sorties were flown in support of the ground forces yesterday, including more than 3,000 individual flights which launched the American thrust.

The Germans did not oppose the American front line support fleet, but sent up interceptors in some strength elsewhere. Thirty German planes were shot down during the day for a loss of 25 Allied aircraft.

George Bernard Shaw Believes Hitler Will End Up In Vice-Regal Lodge In Dublin

LONDON, July 26 — (CP). — George Bernard Shaw, Irish playwright who is 88 years old to-day, thinks Hitler will "get away with it and end up in the Viceregal Lodge in Dublin."

"What will be the end of Hitler?" Shaw echoed testily to a Daily Sketch birthday eve interview here. "Why, he'll wind up in the Viceregal Lodge in Dublin, of course. The Kaiser finished his days peacefully at Doorn. Hitler is almost certain to get away with it, too."

The interviewers found Shaw — frailer but pink-cheeked — chopping wood at his Hertfordshire country home, which he said he'd give to the nation as a national trust.

He was willing to talk about anything but his birthday.

"I'd forgotten about it," he snorted. "I don't want your congratulations. You know very well I hate them. To hell with all birthday wishes I say. Who in his senses wants to be reminded that he's growing old."

Shaw said his latest work, a book entitled "Everybody's Political What's What," is ready for the binders.

He reminded his interviewers that Sophocles "wrote a play when he was 90—so I don't see why I should stop at 88."

Repairing of Barnardo and Wolsley streets by the Suburban Area Commission is completed, and the new proposed bus route in the north end of the city is now ready to start. It is understood that the transit controller some weeks ago gave permission to start operation of the route and the northend citizens are eagerly awaiting the service.

L. R. Mitchell, manager of the Bus Lines, said today that the service would be commenced in the near future, although a definite date had not been announced.

American Catches 32-Pound Muskie

BEWDLEY, July 26.—(ENS). — While fishing off the west point of Grape Island this week A. R. Wise, of Canton, Ohio, caught a thirty-two pound muskie. He was trolling with a muskie hound spoon. After a fight of twenty-five minutes he managed to land the fish without gaff, hook or net, by putting his fingers in its eyes.

The fish measured fifty-one inches with a girth of twenty-four inches. It is being mounted in Peterborough.

With Mr. Wise in the boat was Mr. Barringer, also of Canton, Ohio. They among the barty of friends are guests of Ted Shenkles of Bewdley. Mr. and Mrs. Shenkles took up permanent residence here last winter, coming from Canton, Ohio.

This is Mr. Wise's first trip to Bewdley, although he has fished in Canada for sixteen years. This is also his first muskie. Shortly after catching this one luck was with him again when he brought in another fourteen pounder.

He'll come again, he says.

Four Regiments Of Second Fight In France

By ROSS MUNRO

WITH THE CANADIANS IN FRANCE, July 26.—(CP).—Four Canadian infantry regiments, all of the 2nd Division, which fought at Dieppe two years ago, have been in the battle in Normandy, sharing in the fierce engagements of the Canadians south of Caen, it was permitted to be disclosed last night.

They are:

The Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders of Winnipeg;

The Essex Scottish of Windsor, Ont.;

The South Saskatchewan Regiment:

Les Fusiliers of Mont-Royal.

Until last night only 3rd Division units have been named as fighting in France.

The other two 2nd Division infantry battalions which fought at Dieppe were the Royal Regiment of Canada and the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry.

The four regiments landed in Normandy only a few weeks ago and gradually moved into the front line.

The Camerons—who landed at Pourville, west of Dieppe, Aug. 19, 1942, and penetrated further inland than any other battalion—advanced south of Vaucelles in their first action of their return to France. They assaulted positions at St. Andre sur Orne, on the east bank of the river, five miles south of Caen.

Here the Canadians again showed what they could do. They captured the town and hung on in the face of terrible mortar and shell fire from the south and from west of the Orne.

The South Saskatchewans — who went to Pourville with the Camerons and whose commanding officer, Lt.-Col. C. C. I. Merritt of Vancouver and Belleville, now a prisoner of war, won the Victoria Cross—again went alongside the Winnipeg battalion. They attacked south from Vaucelles between the Camerons and the Caen-Falaise highway, and near Verrieres, six miles south of Caen, bumped into extremely heavy German opposition.

Attacked by Tanks

German tanks counter-attacked them in wheat fields and there was heavy fighting. The S.S.R. gained 2½ miles of enemy territory and yielded only a half mile as enemy tanks roared right into company areas.

The South Saskatchewans reformed in dug-in positions of the Essex Scottish a mile north of Verriers and there they saw more action.

The Essex Scottish had been holding a position on the Odon River to the southwest of Caen, where they were heavily mortared and shelled for weeks. Then, when Vaucelles was captured, they moved east of the Orne and advanced south to a position on the slope north of Verrieres. Here they threw back several German counter-attacks and underwent more shell and mortar fire.

Les Fusiliers Mont-Royal also operated in the Verrieres sector in this front, repulsing German counter-thrusts last week. If any of these thrusts had been successful, the current attack could not have begun as it did.

YANK MARKSMEN CLEAN OUT SNIPERS—This scene shows American infantrymen, firing from behind a stone wall, at snipers who are hiding in the bombed houses in Saintenay. When the town was captured by the Americans, there were still many snipers around who were endangering the advance of the soldiers. To make the town safe for American occupation, these snipers had to be first cleaned out.

Locker Storage Plant To Open In Campbellford

CAMPBELLFORD, July 6. — (ENS).—A real estate transfer that is of importance to this district was consumated when H. N. Carr and Son, proprietors of Trent Valley Creameries here, purchased part of the McKelvie mill with the intention of installing "locker storage" for the convenience of the farmers and the citizens of the town of Campbellford.

These locker storages are similar to safety deposit vaults in the banks only they are much larger and provide spaces for meats, fruit and vegetables of all kinds under the locker holder's own lock and key so that no unauthorized person can have access to it.

Locker storages have become popular, particularly with the farmer, for when he kills a beef, hog or poultry he can, by placing the carcass in a chilled aging room, properly age the meat and then cut it up into the desired roasts, etc. Strawberries, raspberries and other fruits, neas, beans, cut corn or corn on the cob and other vegetables are also kept in fresh condition the year round without the work or expense of preserving or canning, so that strawberry short cake or corn on the cob are available throughout the year.

Mr. Carr announces that the W. P.T.B. have granted permission to install this service with a limited number of lockers, under certain conditions, and a large number of farmers, realizing that accommodation is limited, have already requested that space be reserved for them. In fact this is necessary because the W.P.T.B. insists that a certain percentage of the lockers be rented before priorities for the equipment are granted.

Nearly every town and village in western Ontario is equipped with locker storage. The village of Tweed has one and every locker is used, and wherever they have been installed, butchers and other merchants have found these invaluable for storage and the ageing of meats and preventing spoilage of perishable goods.

Personal.

Mr. and Mrs. James Seguire and sons John and Jeffrey of Lindsay, attended the funeral of Mr. Seguire's uncle, the late W. Seguire, who passed away at his Codrington home on Saturday.

PENICILLIN USED.

BROCKVILLE (CP). — Penicillin was used for first time here Sunday and is credited with saving the life of Robert Fitzgerald, North Augusta farmer, who suffered fractured ribs and a punctured lung in an accident on his farm. After other drugs failed to check infection, penicillin was used successfully.

New York, July 26 (AP)

THE BBC said today "reports spreading among German forces in Poland say that Field Marshal Ernst von Busch, until recently commander of the central front, has committed suicide."

The broadcast was reported by United States Government monitors.

Hail Damages Summer Crops

E. A. Summers, agricultural representative in Durham county briefly reviews in the Department's weekly report issued from Toronto some of the effects of the severe hail storm Thursday afternoon, July 20 "which swept across the county five miles north of Lake Ontario."

"This is one of the worst hail storms that ever hit the district. It cut a swath about half a mile wide and practically ruined the crops in that district. The leaves of the corn were cut to shreds and the plants could not be recognized as corn. In some cases grain was just about destroyed for threshing. Some farm homes had nearly all the windows in the west and north sides of the puildings broken. There were some large orchards in the path of the storm and the fruit will be almost a total loss."

Haying is about inished in Hastings country, and the cutting of wheat and rye about 80 per cent. completed. Considerable rust on oats is reported from some districts In Northumberland the pea harvest has been exceptionally good with viners working at capacity for a longer period than usual. Rust on late grain is serious in some sections.

Hail has done a great deal of damage in the southern part of Ontario county, "and many fields of grain are down as a result of the storm". Peterborough also reports many fields of oats flattened by heavy rains.

Severe Damage.

The fall wheat crop in York is excellent. The agricultural representative in that country comments that the hail damage in Markham township "was the most complete I have ever seen". Lodging of spring grains has been serious.

Damage by rust is mentioned from Carleton, Lennox-Addington and Stormont. Counties generally indicate that rains hafe materially assisted the corn, potatoes and other roots.

Halton estimates the yield of wheat at 35 bushels to the acre "and better, the heaviest crop in ten years". Threshing of wheat began in Perth country Saturday, July 22.

Middlesex wheat fields are returning 35 to 50 bushels to the acre.

Experts Question Value Of Lignite Deposits

COCHRANE, July 26.—The bright dream that some day Northern Ontario would enjoy the benefits of processed lignite fuel from the Onakawana deposit 126 miles north of here appears to have faded on analysis of all the facts. The select committee of the Legislature appointed last winter to make a first-hand study of the Onakawana deposit, reached Cochrane this afternoon after visiting the Government owned property. This committee, headed by A. Kelso Roberts, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto-St. Patricks, will recommend a course of action to the Government.

If vital machine parts on order for nearly two years can be obtained shortly, an effort will be made to process several thousand tons of lignite in the upper seam and have the fuel distributed in Cochrane and other Northern municipalities for experimental burning.

Close to one million dollars has been spent on the lignite development in recent years, mostly during the Hepburn Government's regime. The results to date have been inconclusive. From the standpoint of sound economics, commercial development does not appear to be warranted, according to the opinion of the experts who are accompanying the committee.

Rejected by Railway

In the first place the Onakawana lignite field is a very long way from large centres of population. Then there is the absence of any assurance that industrial consumers will be found. A logical consumer would be the Government-owned railway, the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario, which travels within a short distance of the property. The T. and N. O. subjected the lignite to exhaustive tests several years ago and on the basis of its findings turned thumbs down on it. To use lignite as engine fuel would require a big capital outlay for changes in equipment.

With the railway as a steady consumer of a tremendous tonnage of lignite the commercial success of the lignite development would have been partially assured at least. But despite the adverse decision, the construction of a plant and the purchase of machinery went ahead.

The overburden at Onakawana varies from 30 to 75 feet. The committee members were told that 10 million tons of the fuel could be exploited, yielding an approximate three million tons of lignite ready for consumption.

Not Considered Practical

There is in the same general area another 90 million tons of lignite, but the overburden, as much as 120 feet in some areas, is so thick that it is not considered practical to undertake its development, according to the experts.

In view of the investment already made, the committee is proceeding with caution. It does not wish to recommend a halt to further development unless it is clearly shown that further expenditures would be merely throwing good money after bad.

Dr. R. L. Sutherland, consulting combustion engineer of Chicago, and an authority in this field, frankly told the committee today:

On the basis of a purely domestic market, I am skeptical of its success. You must have a backlog of business, otherwise you will have lean years, I am afraid. The T. and N. O. Railway could have provided that backlog, but they declined to use it after making tests."

Books For Troops

MONTREAL, July 26—Employees of the Canadian National Railways in the Montreal area have contributed more than 120,000 books and magazines for the troops overseas, according to Hugh M. Parry, general secretary of the C.N.R. Employees War Services Association. With 17,700 magazines and books reported turned in during the first six months, the present year's total would likely surpass that of any previous year, Mr. Parry said. The detective story was still the strong favorite.

Lions Planning Annual Carnival

Lions Carnival, the annual drive to raise money for service club activities will be held this week on Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at Riverside Park, with 12 valuable prizes being awarded lucky ticket holders.

During the past year, the Lions have had the most successful and active period since the club was formed eight years ago, and already the bathing beach and supervised playground on the site of the tourist camp at the Hunter street bridge is in use and an established asset to the community. Besides this venture the club financed 27 tonsil operations, made substantial donations to Russian War Relief, Greek war relief, Chinese War relief, British War Victims, the Red Cross and the Lions British Child War Victims' Fund. Almost seven tons of magazines have been shipped to the Navy barracks at Halifax for the use of men in the Navy and the Merchant Marine.

Maintenance of the bathing pool and playground represents a tremendous drain on the club's finances, and the wholehearted support of the citizens is sought in order that all these activities may be continued.

Eldorado In The East

The confusion of the reports concerning Germany may be taken as a sign of the confusion within Germany, but from the confusion three points are clear enough to be fit subjects for discussion. The first of these is the charge which has been made that the army clique which tried to kill Hitler and wrest power from the Nazis had also its agents in Germany's centres of production, and that these agents had done great damage by sabotage. Heinrich Himmler has been given the widest powers within the Reich in order that he may safeguard production of war materials; Himmler is using his powers with vicious thoroughness.

The second important matter is that the German army in Poland seems to have collapsed. Himmler's violent action appears to have restored the spirit of the German fighting forces in France and in Italy to some extent, but in Poland the Russians are advancing twenty, twenty-five and thirty miles a day, which they could not do if they met any sort of organized opposition.

The third point is that nothing has been said about the German commander on the Eastern front, Marshal Walther von Modl. In the East the German armies are fighting on that East-Prussia borderland which is the ancient stronghold of the Junkers, the class from which so many high German officers are drawn. Could it be that the Junkers, fighting on their home ground, have taken matters into their own hands and are no longer responding to Nazi control? Can it be that for this reason the Berlin authorities are withholding supplies from the Eastern front? This is admittedly a long guess, but it is a possibility. If the Germans were in any condition to fight, why would they yield so much ground to the Russians every day?

The greatest German defeat and disgrace may be expected on the Eastern front. Nazi folly showed itself most clearly in the attack in Russia; and as soon as that attack had prospered the Nazis began to send thousands of colonists to Russia, promising them large holdings of land and plenty of serf labour. Fantastic as it may sound, the migration from Germany to the new Eldorado in Russia was a great one, and as soon as the German armies began to be forced back the colonists had to leave their new estates, and go home to Germany, ruined and disillusioned.

The Russians were understandably resentful of this indecent haste to snatch the spoils of victory, and many a German colonist has been killed by Russian guerillas. The story of the rush for land in Russia before Russia was conquered will always be remembered as a monumental piece of German greed and stupidity.

It is on the Eastern front now where the most violent action is taking place, and it should not be many weeks before the situation there reaches a decision.

G.B.S. Is Eighty-Eight

It would not do to allow today to pass without some mention of George Bernard Shaw, for this is his eighty-eighth birthday. At an age when most men are content to sit by the fire and dream the hardy old playwright is busily engaged in preparations for a film version of Caesar and Cleopatra, a play of his which has not been seen on this continent since Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson brought it here before the last war.

Shaw is undoubtedly the greatest playwright of our time, and one of our greatest philosophers. The proof of his immense vitality at an advanced age lies in the fact that he can still irritate some people to a point where they can no longer speak politely about him. When a man is really old most people are inclined to respect him, to defer to his views, and to forget about him. But Shaw is still younger than most of us, and can arouse men sixty years his junior to furies of bitter denunciation. Quite recently he goaded a number of prominent socialists to furious anger because he said that socialism—which he has preached all his life—is essentially a kind of purified Toryism, a system putting great power in the hands of a few and permitting little change. The socialists then denounced Shaw as a senile dodderer. But if he had really been a drooling old zany, and if there had been no truth in what he said, they would not have risen to the bait so sharply.

Shaw himself is a remarkably poor advertisement for socialism. He has found fame, wealth and happiness in the most capitalistic and dictatorial of all workshops—the theatre. He has lived in what may be called austere lavishness for forty years. He has received as much admiration, flattery and honour as any prince. He has stood high above the mob, and has used his pen brilliantly in the defence of the Uncommon Man. He has drawn attention to abuses, and has brought about reforms with levity which has shocked professional humanitarians, those glum and joyless folk. He is our greatest living paradox, and the most paradoxical thing about him is that he refuses to behave like an old man at a time when men half his age groan under the burden of their years.

Youth In Politics

Recently we commented on the fact that the meagre sessional indemnities which are paid to Canadian parliamentarians make it impossible for young men to enter political life. A man must have a reasonable amount of money before he can afford to go into Parliament here, because long sessions and small pay make Parliament expensive.

There are great advantages in entering on a political career as early as possible. It allows a man time to gain experience, and it means that if he has ability he can be a Minister — even a Prime Minister—before he is too old to bring full physical vigour to the job. Much of Britain's political strength has come from her young parliamentarians: look at her list of youthful Prime Ministers—the younger Pitt took that office at 25. And some of her best men have gone to Westminster early; Fox took his seat when he was 19, and Peel when he was 21; Gladstone was first elected when he was 23, Churchill when he was 26, and Lloyd George when he was 27. Has Canada any figures remotely comparable? We do not think so, and she is not likely to get them under our present system of making membership in Parliament a costly job.

We do not suggest that there should be young men in Parliament in order to shove old ones out; Parliament ought to include both young and old. But our Canadian Parliament is too old by far, and it would profit greatly by an injection of fiery and ribald youth. As things stand at present Parliament in Canada is not a career open to talent; it is a career open to men of middle age who have made enough money to be able to spend half a year in Ottawa without becoming bankrupt.

Movies Of Canadians In Action

The criticism is heard from several quarters that the newsreels which we see here in Canada show very few pictures of Canadian soldiers in action, or British soldiers either, for that matter. The emphasis is always very strongly upon the forces of the U.S.A.

This is natural enough, for the news films are made in the U.S.A. and are designed principally for consumption in that country. The Americans want to see their own men in battle and are willing to take the doings of the British forces for granted. But it is a pity that we cannot get any films which are intended chiefly to please us.

This seems to be a matter which the National Film Board might deal with. There must be plenty of good film of Canadian and British troops in action, and a collaboration might be arranged with the American news people, and their Canadian distributors, which would make it possible for us to see them without putting them in a special 'short' of their own. Much as we admire the exploits of the American forces, we sometimes get the feeling at the movies that they are fighting the war alone. We like them, but we want to see our own men, too.

For Particular Tastes

By
SAMUEL MARCHBANKS

EVER since the close of the last war the Sitwell family—Osbert the novelist and essayist, Edith the poet and critic, and Sacheverell the critic and essayist—has contributed a variety of admirable writing and thinking to current literature; now the Sitwells are reaching that point where they are no longer regarded as innovators to be slapped and scratched by conservative critics, but as Grand Old People, to be accorded a somewhat uncritical admiration. I cannot imagine that this state of affairs is pleasing to them, for the Sitwells are nothing if not critical, and one of the delights of their writing is that it never appears in print without being polished until no greater brilliance is possible. Like many highly polished things, their writings are sometimes brittle, but this is merely a fault which is inseparable from a virtue.

◆ ◆ ◆

IT is a great pleasure to have two Sitwell books to review at one time. The first is "Planet and Glow-Worm, a Book for the Sleepless", by Edith Sitwell; the other is "Sing High! Sing Low!" by Sir Osbert Sitwell. Let us look at "Planet and Glow-Worm" first. It is an anthology of "the composing and calming beauties that, in the compiler's own experience, bring a happy sleep in their train"; it is a book to be read in bed before going to sleep. The idea of such a volume is attractive. The confirmed reader-in-bed—I am one—often finds that what he reads just before he goes to sleep haunts that sleep and gives something of its own colour to it; the result is often a bad night. No bad nights can be inspired by this book; every passage is a spell charming toward peaceful slumbers. But to get the best effect from the book it is necessary to make its acquaintance. There are many good things in it which, encountered for the first time, jolt the reader into alertness by their excellence. Consider this, by George Peele:

"God in the whizzing of a pleasant wind

Read that suddenly, when sleep is near, and sleep will retreat while you admire, and repeat, and ponder. But when it has become familiar it has precisely the peaceful effect which Edith Sitwell intends.

◆ ◆ ◆

THE book contains a few selections in French and if you are bi-lingual—which all Canadians should be and seldom are—you will be able to savour the grace with which French poets are placed beside English ones who are akin to them in spirit; of these French passages Remy de Gourmont's 'Litanies de la Rose' was a new pleasure to me. It is hardly surprising to find in a book compiled by Edith Sitwell John Aubrey's account of that apparition which appeared in 1679, not far from Cirencester; "being demanded, whether a good Spirit or a bad? returned no answer, but disappeared with a curious Perfume and a most melodious Twang. Mr. W. Lillie believes it was a Fairie". That ghost, or fairy, has haunted Miss Sitwell's imagination for several years. Nor are we amazed to find Miss Sitwell quoting generously from the works of her brother Sacheverell; this literary family has gone in for genteel familiar puffing since they first began to publish; it is a harmless weakness, but it has exposed them to a great deal of ridicule, some of which has been unjustified. But I must leave "Planet and Glow-Worm", recommending it to you as I do so, and hurry on to the other book.

SIR OSBERT SITWELL is one of the best living writers of English prose, and undoubtedly the greatest living satirical novelist. If any one thinks that too generous, let them read or re-read "Before The Bombardment", and ask themselves if they know of any better satire produced in our time. "Sing High! Sing Low!" is a collection of essays which have appeared at various times in periodicals; a revised version of Sir Osbert's famous appreciation of the art of Thomas Rowlandson, which first appeared in a volume of the "Famous Water-Colour Painters" Series is included, and it deserves special attention. The range of subjects is wide; there is a fine essay on London as it has been revealed by the bombing—a welcome change from the interminable variations on the theme that 'London can take it'. Of course, London can take it; we all know that; what we want is something a little more understanding, written by someone who really knows London, and that is what Sir Osbert has given us. There is a brilliant defence of that Aunt Sally of modern reformers, The Old School Tie. That badge of caste, says Sitwell, has countless faults, but it has also several great virtues: It is not the mark of the softy, the contemptible Little Man of the cartoons; and it is not the mark of the dead level of mediocrity which so many people mistake for democracy.

◆ ◆ ◆

AN essay which particularly delighted me was "The Conspiracy of Dwarfs", in which the writer puts forward the paradox that, although the human race is obviously gaining in stature, its accomodations in trains, buses, motor cars, theatre seats and in the cheaper sorts of furniture are all growing smaller. This, he maintains, is the result of a conspiracy of dwarfs who insist that everything shall be made to suit their convenience and not that of the majority of the human race. I have suffered from the smallness of things for years, but it never occurred to me that it might be the result of a plot. Nowadays even houses are built to accomodate midgets, and the modern flat is just right for General Tom Thumb. The last essay in the book, "What It Feels Like To Be An Author", is a new expression of an old Sitwell opinion—that the general public loathes artists of all sorts, and does what it can to make their lives wretched. There is a case to be made for this belief; certainly there are people who like to reproach artists for not being like themselves; but I think that in most cases the slights shown to literary people are the result of crassness, rather than deliberate malignancy. . . . Both these books, it goes without saying, are distinguished in style and taste, and they should not be overlooked by anyone who enjoys wit and fine prose.

Unconsidered Trifles

After a lively argument, says wifie: "Bill, you're a terrible man to live with; why can't you be like Jack So-and-So?" she went on. "They've been married twenty years, and his wife tells me he's gentlemanly, and loving and tender."

"So he ought to be tender," replied hubby. "He's been in hot water for twenty years."

We'd Like To See The Cards

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

IF Canadians had had the trouble, like the British and Americans, of working out their own system of democracy, they would probably be much more aware of the great principles on which any such system must be based. Instead they inherited a system, and their comprehension of what they inherited leaves something to be desired.

One of the most vital principles of democracy is that the franchise, once conferred, is a sacred right, which should never be taken away from any holder of it except for misbehavior and after investigation by an impartial court. Once the state begins to take away by arbitrary action the franchise held by certain classes among its citizens, the whole foundation upon which democracy rests disappears, for that which is taken from one class by arbitrary action today can equally be taken from another class tomorrow.

It happens that Canadians never had to do much struggling about the franchise: they were presented with a pretty complete set of representative institutions at a time when they were being governed by Great Britain and not by themselves, and their struggle was not to ensure that their representatives should really represent them, but that they should have effective power over the non-representative officials who had been doing the governing. We have had to fight for responsible government, for popular control of education, for freedom of speech and many other things, but nobody except our women ever had to fight much for the franchise; we got it as soon as we were ready for it, and long before it conveyed much real power, and we got it because the American had got it and we were on the same continent.

That is part of the reason why we have of late become cynical about it, have failed to exercise it when called on, and have lost the sense of its tremendous importance as the very foundation of democracy. For if the franchise is not a sacred and inalienable right it is nothing. If it can be taken away by the will of the governing authority, it is of no avail against the governing authority and cannot control it. The instant we start picking and choosing among the electors those whom we will allow to vote and those whom we will not, we have destroyed democracy, just as the Germans destroyed it when they disfranchised the Jews, and just as the Americans continually destroy it when they disfranchise the Negroes.

And of all bases for disfranchisement, racial orgin is the worst. Discrimination based on racial origin is unscientific, and is influenced almost entirely by prejudices. One class of people at one time will want to exclude one race, and another class at another time will want to exclude a totally different one. The term "the will of the people" has no meaning if "the people" can be redefined whenever we feel like it.

Church Authority

AS a prominent and devout Roman Catholic, as well as a public figure, Senator T. D. Bouchard has definite qualifications to discuss the church's place in respect to the business of the state. Recent events have given him reason to consider this matter seriously, and there is obvious feeling in his references to those who use the "cloak of religion" to sabotage political institutions.

Senator Bouchard makes his stand abundantly clear. He is willing to yield to the church's authority in matters of "strict dogma," but he will not admit its right to dictate the form of "our government instituions and our economic laws." This is not religious rebellion. The Senator will probably have the backing of the vast majority of the clergy in this declaration of principles. It is only a small group who, either from mistaken zeal or ulterior motives, seek to establish an entirely false authority over the country's business, who will find in what he says anything offensive.—Windsor Star.

Work Hats

MR. WEBSTER'S admirable succinctness did not foresee all the types of modern headgear of milady and probably was not intended to cover the work hats which men contemplate with affectionate regard. It would be as impossible to define the requirements of a first-class, ten-year-old work hat as to describe completely the joys of gardening or tinkering.

We can, however, draw certain general specifications which will serve as a standard of excellence. A good work hat should be several years old. It may be either felt or straw. It must be battered, shapeless, faded, utterly comfortable, and hang on a nail in the cellar or shed.

A work hat reaches its sublime position after a long, arduous and honorable career. First it was a stylish outfit for church, business and social occasions; then it moved a step upward and was used in stormy weather. After serving its apprenticeship it became the easeful and comforting companion of a man when he needed his full mental and physical energies. We shall not become too aroused over excursions and alarums if men have reasonable opportunities to wear their old work hats.—Christian Science Monitor.

News For Frenchmen

The French Committee of National Liberation, in the words of an Associated Press dispatch from Algiers, has "published and thereby legally adopted a press law establishing a single French agency, with exclusive rights to distribute all French and foreign news within France." The ascribed purpose of this law is to enable the new agency "to hold its own against non-French agencies" its its beginning stages.

To Americans this must seem a most unfortunate step, incompatible with the idea of "liberation" and with the general freedoms for which France has nobly stood. A monopoly of news is a monopoly of the bases of opinion. There could not be a really free election in France if the French Committee or the French Provisional Government exercised the full authority given it under the new law. We hope that General de Gaulle and his advisers will realize the force of this objection and will find another way to encourage a legitimate French news agency, without suppressing the distribution of news by other reputable agencies in France.

Editor Buys a Tree

LAST autumn we decided to go into horticulture, just like so many others with the urge to garden these years. We wanted an apple tree. We had visions of nice rosy apples, so luscious they would melt in the mouth. Even if the small boys got them all, we could still take pride in having a tree that produced apples.

So, we got a fine tree. It was guaranteed to grow the finest apples, Duchess, Northern Spy or McIntosh Red, it didn't matter. All that did matter was that it would be an apple tree. There was much care in transplanting and considerable thought through the winter about the effect of frost on young trees. However, came the spring and the tree had beautiful foliage. It was something to behold, a thing of magnificence.

But, the apple tree is beginning to show signs of fruit. And, lo and behold, instead of apples coming on the branches, there are plums. They are still very green and very hard, but they are plums.

We were dismayed at first, but we have a solution. All we have to do is find the man in the army who buys the plum and apple jam. —Windsor Star.

Jesuit Pears

WE first learned about Jesuit pear trees from Mr. George F. Macdonald, who has a nominal roll of all the historic fruit trees, with their street addresses, in Essex County. The original trees were planted by the early Jesuit fathers, who opened up so much of Ontario for settlement. They brought the trees from France in the beginning of Canada. Some of their trees still stand as living monuments to their work.

Those Jesuit pears are getting old and we always wanted one. So, last autumn we got an ordinary pear tree—just a little one, about six feet tall. That was planted in the garden with the promise that, come the spring, a slip from a Jesuit pear would be grafted. No sooner had the warm weather arrived this spring and the buds were beginning to sprout, than the grafting operation was done. The tree was cut down to about four feet high. Then, a slip about four inches long was taken from an old Jesuit pear and carefully grafted. It was all sealed up with candle wax and left to its fate. In hardly any time at all, the slyip began to shoot upward. Then came leaves and now there is a good start on a real pear tree.

Maybe some Marco Polo or whoever it will be to come along the Detroit River in 2122 will look at this Jesuit pear tree and admire it, just as we have so often admired the Jesuit pears planted by the early missionaries as they passed along the water route of the new world.—Windsor Star.

A Bible Message

GIVE unto the Lord, ye kindreds of the people, give unto the Lord glory and strength. Give unto the Lord the story due unto his name: bring an offering, and come before him: worship the Lord in the beauty of holiness. (I. Chron. 16: 28, 29.)

And the Lord their God shall save them in that day as the flock of his people: for they shall be as the stones of a crown, lifted up as an ensign upon his land. For how great is his goodness, and how great is his beauty! (Zech. 9: 16, 17.)

SIR H. COWARD DEAD

Sir Henry Coward, a Freeman of Sheffield, and one of the most noted chorus masters of his age, died at his home in Sheffield last night aged 94.

He was also a composer of part songs, hymn tunes, ballads, cantatas, choral and orchestral works. His fame dated from the first Sheffield Musical Festival in 1896.

In 1911 he took the Sheffield Choir on a world tour, visiting 53 towns in three continents. Sir Henry conducted the choir before King George V. in 1912. He was an outspoken critic of jazz, and in 1926 he engaged in a controversy with well-known dance band leaders.

FOR THE NEXT WAR

When the last war began, the airplane was also in its infancy, and the tank was still unknown. But the airplane and the tank dictated the strategy and the tactics of this war, and nations that neglected them did so at their mortal peril.

It would be equally dangerous to underestimate the power and possibilities of this new weapon, especially since no effective defence has yet been found against it. If its main weakness at the present seems to be its comparative inaccuracy, which makes it effective even as a terror weapon only against large cities presenting an immense target, the further development of it may soon correct this defect.

And the theoretical range of properly constructed weapons of this kind is already such that they could well span an ocean.—New York Times.

Letter To The Editor

APPROVES EDITORIAL

Sir,—May I offer sincere thanks for your editorial entitled "Racism in Canada", published in Monday's paper.

Because of my recent work with Japanese-Canadian Young People in London, Ontario, I have had opportunity to see the growing menace of racism at work. Many Canadians by their attitude and actions subscribe to Nazi doctrines. We would do well to uphold democratic principles here at home lest our gallant soldiers die in vain.—Yours truly,

Douglas To Ask For Return Of State Papers

OTTAWA, July 26—(CP)—Premier T. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan, Elaborating on a press conference statement he made Monday said here Tuesday he was going to see former Premier W. J. Patterson as soon as he gets back to Regina to discuss the question of missing correspondence from government files. He hopes to get the correspondence back if it hasn't been destroyed.

Mr. Douglas yesterday said that "only empty cabinets" were left behind by the Patterson Liberal administration. He was discussing prospects for a Dominion-Provincial conference and he said he hadn't received the tentative agenda because when he took office all the files had been cleaned out.

No Investigation

Today Mr. Douglas said he knew of "two or three government departments" where correspondence had been removed. However, he thought it was a matter between himself and Mr. Patterson and he was not going to hold any public investigation or "anything like that."

Tonight he will leave for Toronto to call on financial houses "to go over our general financial situation." He did not elaborate on this statement. He will stay in Toronto two days before continuing on to Regina.

Interested In Proposal

Yesterday Mr. Douglas told a press conference that Finance Minister Ilsley "seemed interested" in his proposal for a settlement of the province's $17,000,000 seed advance debt which contemplated interest forgiveness and assumption by the Federal Government of responsibility for half the principal.

The advances, dating back to 1938, amounted to $14,000,000 in principal and $3,000,000 in interest and the loan is subject to renewal for another two years on July 31. The obligation was incurred by Saskatchewan for seed grain after the 1937 year of drought.

Mr. Douglas said he wanted the seed advance repayment plan cleaned up on a program by which his government would assume the responsibility for collecting the other 50 per cent from the farmers and making adjustments in cases where payments had already been made.

Peterborough In Early Sixties Visited By Prince Of Wales

BY CHARLES IRESON

When a community in 120 years has passed through a sturdy childhood and a vigorous youth to a strong industrial maturity there are bound to be events and happenings in the past which are of interest to the present generation.

We have recently been looking through local papers of the 1860's and found many items of interest, some of which distinctly link the past with the present.

On April, 1860, H. R. H. Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, afterwards King Edward VII visited the town. Crossing Rice Lake by boat, he was enthusiastically welcomed. There were decorations galore, triumphant arches, with a pavilion erected in what is now called Victoria Park, from which addresses of welcome and response were given, and the crowd seemed to include th whole countryside.

On January 13, 1861, census returns showed the population to be 3,836—compared with 2,391 in 1852. On April 26 of the same year the Horticultural Society was formed with Rev. V. Clementi as President, and J. H. Hughes as secretary. Other old time organizations include the present Industrial Exhibition which would have celebrated its centenary last year, but for the War and military occupation of the Exhibition grounds. The Cricket Club was formed in 1856, and the Curling Club in 1859.

An Act was passed by the Legislature on May 18, 1861 forming what is now the City Trust. In the decade following incorporation in 1850 the finances of the town became, to quote an Examiner editorial of January 1, 1861 "in a deplorable condition". To remedy this state of affairs the act was passed for the purpose of consolidating the municipal debt, vesting in five trustees, named therein the issue and management of the debenture debt and municipal real estate. The law now governing the City Trust is contained in Chapter 108, Ontario Statues 1906. As stated the original five trustees were named in the Act of 1861 but since then have been appointd by successive councils. The present council has created a precedent by appointing one of its officials, the City Treasurer as a trustee.

Early Factory

On Oct. 12, 1863 the Auburn Mills were opened for operation.

Early in 1865 it was announced that a poll would be taken in February to decide whether or not a prohibitory by-law dealing with the sale of liquor should be adopted, but on April 7 of that year 12 tavern licences at $50 each, and 6 shop licences at $60 were granted. As the population at that time was estimated at 4,000 there was a tavern for every 300 inhabitants and a shop for every 660. Assuming the present population, including suburban areas, to be 30,000 and licenses were granted on the same scale, we should hav about 100 beverage rooms, and 45 liquor stores. How far legislation has altered the incidences of drunkenness is outside the scope of this story.

In the same year 1865, certain optimistic townsmen, misled by unsound expert advice, thought oil was to be found under the town's surface and a company was formed called the Peterborough Petroleum Co. with James Hall as president. The capital was $4,000 of which $2,000 was to be paid up for preliminary exploratory work. A shaft was sunk in the river bed near the Blythe Mills, operations starting on September 4. At one time hopes ran high as it was reported signs of oil had been found, but these proved illusory, and on December 20, the drill broke in the shaft then 250 ft. deep and in January operations were abandoned and the prospective oil magnates lost their deposit.

In 1867 the population was estimated at 4,250 and on November 18 a by-law to provide $13,000 to build a new Town Hall was rejected.

A statement was issued by the government at Ottawa, June 18, 1868 setting aside July 1 in each year as a public holiday to be known as Dominion Day. It was greatly celebrated here with a temperature of 98 degrees. On August 27 of that year Peterborough had its first Civic Holiday. On the previous day a notice had appeared stating that the tax rate was 11 mills, and the present day taxpayer must feel that the old days had some advantage.

Another popular institution had its origin on June 8, 1868 when a meeting was held to organize the Mechanics Institute, the forerunner of our Public Library. It was situated on Water street north of the Bank of Montreal.

On August 13, 1869 a gas company was organized and gas was first used as an illuminant on March 4, 1870.

As a considerable area of North Monaghan is to be annexed by the City on January 1, 1945, it may be permissable to include the fact that in 1873 the town of Peterborough annexed 557 acres of North Monaghan, 239 of Smith and 50 of Douro. The whole site of the town, when incorporated in 1850 was formerly part of the township of North Monaghan.

Twin Airmen Brothers Separated By Death

TORONTO, July 26 — (CP). — Word has been received by the parents of LAC. J. Sinclair Holmes, 22, that he was killed in action in France July 16, his death separating twin brothers who had gone to school here together, trained in the R.C.A.F. together, and who had gone overseas together. The surviving brother is named Alexander.

The twins were identical and officers of their overseas unit had difficulty in telling them apart. They were born at Niagara Falls, Ont., and enlisted in R.C.A.F. ground crew in 1942. Before going to England and then to France, they saw service in Alaska.

Bank Deposits Not Claimed Sought By Governments

OTTAWA, July 26 — (CP). — The Commons Banking Committee after some discussion on Tuesday deferred decision on whether a section of the Bank Bill introducing authority for banks to make small unsecured loans should be removed from the proposed legislation.

Opinions on the section were heard after Finance Minister Ilsley said that after listening to objections made in the committee previously he was not insisting that it should be passed.

A large part of the day's two committee sittings were devoted to discusion on a section providing for transfer to the Bank of Canada of bank deposits unclaimed after 10 years. The deposits would be held in trust by the Bank of Canada and might be claimed at any time by the depositor or his heirs.

This proposal was opposed by G. C. Papineau-Couture of Montreal, appearing for Hon. Leon Casgrain, Quebec Attorney-General. The committee also received a telegram from the Nova Scotia Government supporting Quebec's position.

Revert to Province.

Present Quebec legislation provides that when deposits are unclaimed for 30 years they revert to the Province. It was argued by those supporting the Quebec stand that the Government's action was an infringement of civil and property rights. Mr. Ilsley held that it was the responsibility of the Dominion Government to protect the right of the depositor to reclaim his money at any time.

An amendment suggested by Mr. Papineau-Couture protesting the right of the Provinces to the money was moved by Joseph Jean (L-Montreal Mercier) and was defeated on an 8-6 vote.

Westclox Girls Have Close Win Over Lock Works

Although behind in the early stages, Peterborough Lock battled to within one run of the opposing Westclox Seconds in a Ladies' Softball League game Tuesday evening, with the final score registering an 8 to 7 victory for the Baby Bens.

Peterborough Lock began the scoring in the first inning, when Myrtle Falls singled to centre, advancing two more bases on passes, and completing the run on a triple into right field by Audrey Patton.

In the second Westclox gained one run, Marjorie Miles singled through third base and stole second, Laura Storey singled to left and Millie Miller singled. A high throw to first scored Miss Miles.

Westclox scored three times in the third frame. Dorothy Johnson was safe on an error, Verla Ferguson hit a high one into left field for one base, and Rita O'Heron was out on a short roller to first. Marjorie Miles walked, Laura Storey drove one through short to score Miss Johnson, and Mildred Miller popped to catcher. Alice McIvor hit into centre field, scoring Miss Ferguson, and Miss Miles scored on a wild throw to third.

One run in the fourth, with Mina Dunford scoring on a hit by Rita O'Heron, and one more in the fifth, with Mildred Miller completing a run on a hit by Dorothy Johnson, totalled the Westclox count at the end of the first five innings at 6 runs.

Two runs were turned in by Peterborough Lock in the fifth, making the score up to that time, 6 to 3, with the Baby Bens holding the 3-run edge. Jane Succee singled to centre, stealing second, Vera Carr flied to pitcher, Myrtle Falls singled to third, where a fumble allowed Miss Succee to score. Audrey Patton was out at first, Beryl Lee singled to left, scoring Miss Falls.

Westclox added another run in the sixth. Laura Storey singled to left field, and completed her run on a hit by Millie Miller.

The Lock Company began to threaten in the seventh, although only one run was scored. With several improvements in the field, they played better ball with less errors and mis-plays. Myrtle Falls singled to centre, stole second, and finished the run on a passed ball.

In the eighth, the Lock Company's Audrey Stinson singled to first, Mickey McFarland hit a high one missed by the first-baseman, and Jane Succee shot one through short to score Miss Stinson.

The Westclox girls, up to bat in the ninth, made an all-out effort to put the game beyond the reach of the Lock Company players, but only one run was scored, that by Rita O'Heron who walked, and in a series of wild throws scored.

In the last half of the ninth, Peterborough Lock started things with Beryl Lee smacking one into right field, stealing second and taking third on another daring steal. Betty McMahon walked, stealing second, and Isobel Mathews whipped a fast one into left, scoring Miss Lee. A hit over third base by Audrey Stinson brought home Miss McMahon.

A newcomer, Jane Succee, pitched for the Lock Company, with three strike-outs, and one walk. Alice McIvor was the mound artist for Westclox and she struck out seven, and walked none.

A decided improvement in all departments of the Lock team in the late stages of the play, made the game interesting.

The Sports Round-Up

By FRITZ HOWELL (Pinch-hitting for Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, July 26—(AP)— A spree grew in Brooklyn Monday night as the artless Dodgers blasted nine runs in the seventh inning to beat Pittsburgh's Pirates, and the fans hummed "Dixie" along the banks of the Gowanus in honor of Outfielder Walker, who hit the game-clinching homer.

Today, however, after yesterday's 14-6 loss to Chicago—the 22nd defeat in 25 starts for the "Durocher Dopes"—The backers of the Bums were singing their same plaintive old theme song: "Don't Get A Run Much Anymore."

Double and Redouble

Branch Rickey, asked whether he was contemplating any managerial changes due to the Dodger defeats, cleared up nothing at all by replying: "I am contemplating no change right now, but I could change my mind tomorrow or in five minutes if reasons presented themselves. But I do not anticipate those reasons."

Which led Joe Gootter of the Paterson, N.J., News to note:

"What the Mahatma means is that if Durocher erisats the diffibut before the Dodgers rillisut the pillifew, he positively will fattibill the lomicoff."

We're Asking You

No. 1—What pitcher holds the record for beating a club the most times in a season?

No. 2—Who was the only pitcher to hurl a double-header shutout, and against what team?

Short and Snapless

Dick Anderson, sports editors of the Evansville (Ind.) Press, is an original guy. When the 20th Armored Division baseballers beat the Servel Wings 15-0, third-sacker Mike Simon of the winners blocked team mate Howie Muderski's vision on a ground ball, and Shortstop Muderski muffed it. Official scorer Anderson figured Simon helped cause the fumble, so he scored it: Errors—Simon ½, Muderski ½.

We're Telling You

No. 1—Ed Ruelbach of Cubs beat Dodgers nine times in 1908.

No. 2—Ruelbach blanked the Dodgers twice, Sept. 26, 1938.

(Times don't change much, do they?)

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press.

Arnie Carter, Reds — Rookie southpaw chalked up sixth win by scattering nine Boston hits for 6-2 win, helped own cause with homer and single, scoring two runs.

Bob Elliott, Pirates—drove in six scores with three-run homer and single in 15-0 slaughter of New York.

Jim Tabor, Red Sox — Sparked Boston to 7-3 nod over Detroit with homer and three singles for perfect day at bat.

Steve Gromek, Indians—Blanked Yankees with six hits for 10-0 triumph with help of Ken Keltner's grand-slam homer; struck out 10 New York hitters and knocked in one Tribe score with double.

Al Jurisich, Cards — Shut out Phillies with six hits and collected two of St. Louis' 16 blows in 9-0 victory.

SPORTS—Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Switchgear and U.E.W. will clash tonight in the first game of their semi-final playoff series, with the second game billed for Friday and the rest of the round necessarily having to go over until the week after next. Union expect to have Lindsay's fire-baller, Hatty Eakins, on the mound for them tonight, and if he is the game will be regarded as an even-Stephen affair, if the Scugog twirler can come back with the same kind of a game he displayed in his last start against Switchgear when he held the leaders to three hits and the same number of runs. Manager Murph. Chambers of Switchgear will be an absentee from tonight's game, and the team will likely be handled by Centrefielder Johnny Playford, who will not see any action in this one because of a leg injury. Just which of the three Switchgear pitchers, Ronnie Akers, Bert Harrison or Freddy Elliott, will get the call against U.E.W. tonight has not been given out from the camp of the leaders. All three are ready. It will be Eakins or McPherson for the Union team, and the game, which is called for 7 o'clock, should be a real battle all the way.

* * * * * *

Plazas and Soldiers will be back in action tomorrow night in the second game of their playoff series, which the Plazas now lead one game to nothing. Plazas expect to have Eddie Starr and possibly one or two more of their absentees in uniform for the second tilt in the three-out-five series, but in any case it should be an exciting battle. The second-placers are out to get a stranglehold on the series by taking the second game, while on the other hand the Soldiers are faced with the alternative of winning the Thursday clash and squaring the round or finding themselves behind the eight ball. Big Dave Wilson will likely be on the firing line for the second-placers, while it is probable that Soldiers will start Pete Procyk, the Winnipeg boy who pitched nice ball for them in their game with St. Peter's the other night. Tomorrow night's game is called for 7 o'clock and will be the last battle between the two old rivals until the week after next.

A Matter Of Rules

Mike Rodden, veteran sports scribe, in his Kingston Whig-Standard column tells about a play in a recent Kingston ball game that caused quite an argument, although why, if the facts are as reported, is difficult to understand. If the batted ball really hit third base as described it would be a fair ball, automatically made so by the rules. Here is the Rodden paragraph: "Manager Ollie Olsen, of Locos, was gravely disturbed on Friday night when Doug. Smart drove the ball against the third base bag and Umpire Corrigan ruled that the blow was foul. In fact, Mr. Olsen was so disturbed that he lodged a protest while talking so rapidly that Corrigan was almost speechless. Says Mr. Olsen, 'It is a hit if I ever saw one.' Says Corrigan, 'And it's quite unlikely that ye iver accomplished such a feat.' Corrigan, of course, had the final word because his ruling was according to baseball law, but Olsen may debate the point long into the future. It all depends on the way Corrigan saw it—and he was directly in line with the play—and the way Olsen didn't want to see it or couldn't see it from his position on the Locos' bench. Well, you know it is possible to hit first or third base with a ball and rack up a home run. I saw it happen at the Maple Leaf Stadium in Toronto when a carom off third base sent the ball into the grandstand for a homer that astonished even veteran observers."

* * * * * *

It is true, as the eminent Mister Rodden points, that it is possible to hit first or third base with a batted ball and make a homer, although not in the way Mike describes. The play he tells about in which a batted ball caromed off third base and into a stand would naturally astonish veteran observers if it were ruled a home run, for the umpire who made such a ruling would have been clearly wrong. Section 3 of Rule 41 makes it perfectly clear that the batter would be entitled only to a two-base hit on such a play, for the official wording is, "A fair hit ball that bounds into a stand or over a fence shall be a two-base hit." But it is quite possible to drive a batted ball against either first or third and get a home run if the ball should happen to bound far enough from the bag while remaining in the playing field, either on fair or foul territory, to allow the batter to circle the bases. It is not a probable play, but is clearly possible, whereas under the rules a player could not get a homer by bounding a ball off either first or third into a stand or over a fence.

Still Going Strong

Peterborough softball fans will be interested in learning that the Stratford Kroehlers, who defeated Westclox in the provincial playoffs last season, are still going strong without their crack battery of 1943. The other day they beat the Victory Aircraft girls, who the week before won a 9 to 6 decision over the local Aircraft, by 10 to 5. Chick Appel has the following comment in the Stratford Beacon-Herald as to their playing: "The first glimpse at Gar Landers' Kroehler girls' softball team on Saturday afternoon left the impression that he has rounded up another good aggregation, despite the loss of his battery pair of last summer, Hazel Baynton and Jean Aiken. Greta Harmer pitched a winning effort against Victory Aircraft girls of Malton, and her battery mate, Eileen Heinbuck, held her up well. Greta Harmer has the best control of any girl softball hurler this corner has ever seen, and that includes a raft of pitchers. If there is any criticism of her pitching it is that she sometimes makes them too good by pouring them down the middle, and that's the kind of delivery on which the rival batters tee off. Another pleasure derived from Saturday's twin bill was witnessing this observer's first triple play, and it was the Stratford girls who executed it, thanks to some quick thinking on the part of Evelyn Easson, who received credit for one putout and two assists on the play. One spot where Kroehler girls seem to have been improved is third base, where Kay Johnson is handling a tough job in great style."

* * * * * *

July 25 will probably be remembered in big league circles as the day on which pitching was massacred all over both circuits. Take a look at the scores. In the National the Pittsburgh Pirates slaughtered the New York Giants 15 to 0; the Cubs beat the Brooklyn Dodgers 14 to 6; the rampaging St. Louis Cards blanked the Phillies 9 to 0, and in the smallest score of the day, Cincinnati Reds triumphed over Boston Braves 6 to 2. That means that the four winning teams put together a total of 44 runs! The American loop was nearly as bad. Boston Red Sox licked Detroit Tigers 7 to 3; the White Sox won from the Washington Senators 9 to 6; the fast-coming Cleveland Indians gave the Yanks one of their worst shellacking in years to the tune of 10 to 0, and the Brownies hammered three Athletic pitchers 9 to 1. That gave the winning American League clubs a total of 35 runs and made the grand total for the eight winners in the two circuits 79 runs, average of almost 10 runs per club, which must certainly be some kind of a record.

SPORTING CHILE CON CARNE: Bill Jones, young infielder of the Plazas, has enlisted in the R.C.A.F., and will be lost to the second-placers, who are applying for a military replacement....This was the second year with the Ellis-Starr combination for the youngster....Soldiers started a bunting barrage against Stokoe late in the game, and it came close to winning for them last night....Five of their hits were successful bunts. ....Bun Kingdon played his first full game of the season for Plazas, taking over second-base duties....Seven triples in last night's game must have a mark for the season in that division....Switchgear may be short of infielders tonight with Tompkins and McNabb away and Art Padgett nursing a broken finger....Procyk played a mile deep in centre for some of the Plaza batters and it paid dividends. He took long drives from Burton and Blewett that were hit far enough to be homers in hard ball.

Tribute To CWAC

OTTAWA, July 26 —(CP)— The Defence Department announced last night that through facilities of the Canadian Motion Picture War Services Committee Canada's theatres will pay tribute to the Canadian Women's Army Corps in the two-week period July 31 to Aug. 12.

CINCINNATI REDS NOSE OUT DODGERS 3 TO 2—Owen of the Dodgers is safe at home on Shortstop Bragan's single in the second inning. He is shown sliding in ahead of Criscola in throw to Mueller, catcher of Reds. The Cincinnati Reds nosed out the Brooklyn Dodgers 3 to 2.

Plazas Capture First Playoff Game From Soldiers

Plazas got the jump in their City League semi-final playoff series with Soldiers last night by nosing out the Military Training Centre 7 to 6 in the opening game of the best-of-five round. The second battle in that bracket will be staged Thursday night.

The winners set up a lead of 3 to 1 in the first inning and were never headed after that. They were leading the parade 6 to 1 at the end of the fourth but from then on the battling Soldiers whittled down the lead until they were finally beaten by only one counter and had the tieing run on the bases when the final out was registered.

Plazas only had nine men in uniform and had to use Pitcher Dave Wilson in right field and move Joe Blewett in from the gardens to do the catching. Eddie Starr, Art Heal, Phil Pryde, Bill Jones and Terry Woods were all absentees. Soldiers had Harry Morgan and Huck Herrick back but were without the services of Catcher Tony McIlveen and Second Baseman Chambers.

Frank Stokoe pitched steady ball in going the distance for the Plazas, in spite of a couple of misjudged flies that did a lot of damage. Earl Revoir went the route for Soldiers and suffered his first defeat of the season. Plazas got to him early and in the first five innings broke through his delivery for ten hits, including four triples and a double. After that he kept them under control for the rest of the game.

Jim Ellis with a triple and two singles in four trips to the plate led the winners at the bat and George Hawks drove in three Plaza runs. Clapp, new second sacker of Soldiers, led the Military Training Centre with three for five.

A running catch in centre field by Les Burton was a fielding feature and Huck Herrick in right for Soldiers covered a lot of territory to nail six flies in fine style.

Soldiers Score First

Soldiers broke in front in the first half of the opening inning when Anderson walked and ran home on Joe Dunkerley's triple to left. Procyk lined to Tucker and Junkin popped to Ellis.

Plazas came back with three in their half. Bun Kingdon opened with a triple to left and scored on Burton's fly to Herrick in right field. Tucker walked and Blewett got a life when Anderson dropped his high fly to short. Ellis ripped a single past first, filling the bases. Hawks lined a single to left, scoring Burton and Tucker. Maloney beat out an infield hit, filling the sacks again but Wilson and Stokoe popped out.

In the third with one out Jim Ellis tripled to deep left and scored on Hawks' fly to Herrick in right.

Junkin Chased

Plazas made it 6 to 1 in the fourth. With one out Stokoe doubled sharply to centre. Kingdon popped to short but Burton laced a triple to right scoring Stokoe and he registered himself when Tucker was safe on a rolled to Anderson. Soldiers kicked on the decision made by Umpire Dormer at first and finally Umpire Batley chased Junkin out of the game, Paris replacing him at third.

Soldiers closed the gap with two runs in the fifth. Clapp bunted safely to start the rally and went to second on Revoir's sacrifice. Anderson's double to left scored Clapp and the runner went to third on the throw to the plate. A wild pitch sent Anderson in. Morgan walked but the next two went out easily.

Plazas got one of those back in their half when Hawks singled and scored on Dave Wilson's long triple to right to make the score 7 to 3.

The losers threw away a run in the sixth. Paris opened with a triple over Maloney's head in left but was an easy out at the plate on a perfect relay, Maloney to Tucker to Blewett, when he tried to stretch the drive into a homer. Tomlison singled immediately afterward but with Paris out of the way the hit was wasted.

In the eighth Herrick bunted safely and went to third on Clapp's single to centre. Blewett threw Clapp out at second when he tried to steal, Herrick scoring on the play. Revoir bunted for a single. Anderson flied to Maloney. Morgan's high short fly to left was misjudged by Maloney and went over his head for a triple scoring Revoir. Stokoe made a nice play to toss out Dunkerley.

Soldiers made a good bid in the ninth. With the score 7 to 5 against them, Procyk and Paris bunted safely and the former scored when Tomlinson rolled to Ellis. Herrick however was called out on strikes and Clapp popped to Kingdon and the game was over.

Rally In Tenth Gives Birds Win Over Leafs

By the Associated Press.

Baltimore Orioles to-day enjoy one of the largest first-place margins any team has held in the International League pennant race so far.

The high-flying Birds are three games ahead of the second-place Bisons. Rallying in the last of the tenth, the Flock took a 2-1 decision over Toronto last night to make it a clean sweep of their three-game series. Sam Lowry opposed Toronto's Alex Mustaikis all the way for his tenth win. Skaff's long fly after Stan Benjamin had doubled produced the winning tally in the tenth.

Elsewhere, Newark Bears continued their red-hot drive to enter the first division by sweeping a twin bill from Rochester 8-7 and 15-5. Bob Miller got credit for his first win of the season in the opener. The second game was featured by a tremendous nine-run rally by the Bears in the seventh. High point of the big frame was Mike Portner's three-run home run.

Syracuse Chiefs whipped Montreal 6-3 to make it three out of four over the Royals, and thereby lift themselves out of last place where the Red Wings now reside.

Bob Maloy went the route for his seventh triumph, aided by three Chief double plays late in the game

HIT BY PITCHER AND IT HURTS—Ray Sanders, St. Louis Cardinal infielder, doubles up in pain on the ground after being hit by a ball pitched by Ewald Pyle of the New York Giants during a game in the Polo Grounds, New York City. Giant Catcher Mancuso and Umpire Dunn look on.

Watson's Commando Hold Floors Jack Washburn In 15 Minutes

Whipper Watson's devastating unconscious commando hold and Bunny Dunlop combined in the undoing of the veteran Gentleman Jack Washburn in the main bout of the Tunney wrestling rodeo at the Brock Street Arena Tuesday night.

Watson used the commando to take the first fall from the big Washburn in 15 minutes and he got the decision in the second round when Dunlop acting as Gentleman Jack's second burst into the ring like a mad man and Referee Bert Maxwell disqualified Washburn because of the interference. It was just a question of a moment or two anyway because the Whip had Washburn out on his feet with another application of the celebrated commando grip.

Dunlop's wild dash into the ring, however, was the opening shot in a few minutes of excitement. Whipper Watson sailed into the intruder and swung lefts and rights at Dunlop until the Strongman was reeling all over the mat. Then he grabbed Washburn's second and clapped the commando on him. Gentleman Jack rushed to the rescue and saved his partner by delivering a vicious kick that bowled the Whip over. By this time maddened fans were milling around the ring and when Washburn and Dunlop climbed down to go to the dressing-room they had to fight their way out of the crowd. Dunlop was tripped as he came down the steps but he quickly scrambled to his feet and swinging both arms burst out of the mob and he and Washburn got away without further damage.

Watson Too Good

Washburn who caused a riot here last week when he managed John Katan had promised to give the Whipper a wrestling lesson last night but the old timer was too busy defending himself to teach the British Empire champion anything. Gentleman Jack knows all the tricks of the trade and he did his best to handle Watson but the latter was too fast and clever for him.

Early in the first round he had the Whip in difficulties for a while with a chinlock that looked like a stranglehold but Watson weathered the storm all right and then gave the ancient Washburn legs a bit of attention with a series of stepover toe holds that didn't improve Gentleman Jack's underpinnings. Then the Whip softened up the challenger with a couple of swings to the jaw, followed with several powerful drop kicks and finally applied the commando and that was the end. Washburn tried to break the grip but was helpless and when Watson finally released the hold and dropped his opponent on the canvas Katan's manager was about out cold.

In the second round Washburn who had some tape on his hand tried to use it on Watson's eyes and for a while gave the champ a lot of trouble. Eventually however the Whip solved that problem effectively and took command of the match. He nailed Washburn once more with a commando grip and had the big fellow about out when he reached the ropes. Referee Maxwell was ordering Watson to break the hold when Dunlop made his mad dash into the ring and that caused the downfall of Washburn and started a wild scene.

Dunlop Really Bad

Dunlop was a bad man all night. Substituting for Dr. Len Hall, who failed to arrive in Toronto in time to make connection for Peterborough, Bunny battled Toar Morgan in one of the toughest semi-finals of the season. Dunlop must have been feeding on a lot of raw meat for he sailed into Morgan in the early part of the bout as if he were to tear the former Marine apart. He did more things to the people's choice in the opening minutes than the German generals would like to do to Hitler. Morgan was kicked, throttled and punched and Dunlop also used his secret weapon, some foreign substance to rub across the Marine's eyes.

But Morgan demonstrated that he knew something about handing it out too for he suddenly cut loose with an offensive that had Bunny in dire distress. It started after Morgan had been tossed through the ropes and Dunlop tried to stop him from climbing back in. Morgan dived between the strands like a human torpedo, hit Bunny in the stomach with a flying tackle and then proceeded to go to town. First he dropped-kicked the strong man a couple of times. Then he tossed him twice in succession with a monkey drop that made Dunlop bounce so hard that undoubtedly some of the plaster was shaken from the roof of the Dunlop domicile in West York.

Bunny weathered that onslaught and managed to keep from being thrown until the timer's bell ended an exciting bout.

The flashy Pierre DeGlane and a newcomer, Johnny Swenski of St. Paul, staged a lively preliminary in which both boys showed a lot of speed and class before DeGlane finally managed to take the fall after 17 minutes fast going, using a rolling chinlock and spread to wind up the clever exhibition.

Bert Maxwell toiled throughout the three bouts and Fred Scates announced and kept an eye on the stopwatch.

Tribe Smothers Yankees In Push On Pennant

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer.

Cleveland nursed a budding pennant boom to-day as the Tribe celebrated its eighth win in nine starts against Eastern opposition with a 10-0 landslide over the New York Yankees.

Although still in fourth spot, Cleveland trailed the second-place New York by a single game and the leading St. Louis Brownies by 4½.

As the Cleveland-New York series went into its second stage tonight the big league calendar called for the final seven games of 16 scheduled for war relief. In addition to the all-star game in Pittsburg that sent $106,275 into the service bat and ball fund, nine special games have upped the total to $304,775.

Steve Gromek, a strong-armed chucker for Baltimore last year, shut out the Yanks for Cleveland, sprinkling six blows while Ken Keltner's grand-slam homer in the first frame doomed Hank Borowy.

Bob Muncrief increased St. Louis Browns' margin over the Yanks to 3½ games by turning back Philadelphia 9-1, for his 10th victory.

Boston stopped Detroit's surge toward the first division, 7-3, although Joe Cronin had to call in Tex Hughson to help Yank Terry grab a decision over Rufe Gentry. Bill Dietrich received fine relief from Jake Wade in hurling Chicago to a 9-6 nod over Washington's Mickey Haefner.

Al Jurisich kept the St. Louis Cardinals in a winning mood by blanking the Phillies 9-0 with six hits.

Max Butcher threw the other National League shutout of the day, a 15-0 job for Pittsburg over New York with Bob Elliott batting in six runs. Chicago trimmed Brooklyn 14-6 as Hank Wyse won and Tom Warren lost and Arnie Carter helped his own cause with a home run as Cincinnati topped Boston 6-2 to hand Ben Cardoni his fifth straight setback.

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, July 26 — (CP). — The war money boom that set pari-mutuel figures soaring all across the country has taken hold in the Maritimes, where betting on the trotters and pacers normally is not a very heavy proceeding. The down easters have always gone to the races more for the fun of watching the nags and didn't flash the long green as much as the running horse fans.

But this year, money is more plentiful than ever down in the Maritimes, and the mutuel windows are besieged as they haven't been since the lush '30's. All of which prompted Bill (Moncton Transcript) Hutchinson to remark that "the Maritimes are no different from other parts of the country, even if some people do think so."

Grunt gleanings:

Abe Zvonkin, burly lineman with Queen's University and Hamilton Tigers fotball squads in days gone by, has turned to the grunt and groan trade. He took to the mat in Ottawa with Bunny Dunlop. Abe used to be a good journeyman heaver in his university days, it's said.

Western pioneer:

George (Edmonton Journal) Mackintosh points out it's just 20 years now since R. James Speers started his career as a racing solon in the West, and he recalls some of the improvements made in that time by the dean of Prairie horsemen. Most important, probably, are the mechanical starting gate and the popular daily double, both of which were introduced to North America by Western tracks. The West got the daily double 14 years ago, the year it was introduced in Montreal. The Western season got under way first, however.

Here and there:

There's a move afoot in Halifax to merge all athletic organizations into one strong body to control all branches of sport. Besides that the proposed Halifax Athletic Commission could also supervise recreational facilities and playgrounds for the youngsters....One R.C.A.F. bomber squadron overseas is strong in athletic talent. It numbers among its personnel such well-known figures as former Ottawa Rough Rider Tony McCarthy, Philadelphia Athletics hurler Phil Marchildon, ex-N.H.L. players Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt, boxer Melo Glionna, and George Hainsworth, Jr., son of Goalie George who performed with Toronto and Montreal in the N.H.L.

R.C.A.F. Spitfires Harass Nazis Dawn Till Dusk

BY WILLIAM STEWART
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN FRANCE, July 26 — (CP) — Pilots, groundcrews and administrative personnel with the Royal Canadian Air Force forward base in France live under canvas, eat the British "compo" rations which come in cans and work as long hours as they have since the start of the war.

Their life under canvas is no change for them because they lived in tents in Britain during the summer months. However, the slit trench which everyone has dug within a few seconds reach is more important than any slit trench was before.

Lately, the Canadians who belong to this sector in France under the command of Group Capt. . R. McBrien of Ottawa have not had much worry from enemy action, though not long ago they were the occasional target of enemy night fighters and once in a while enemy artillery dropped shells around the air strips.

The R. C. A. F. sector in France now is practically self sufficient except for its dependence on bigger organization in Britain, for such things as aircraft and personnel replacement supplies and certain types of major repairs. Otherwise its establishment in France is complete.

The sector, based in Normandy, provides the maximum support of which its Spitfires, each armed with two cannon and four machine-guns and able to carry bombs, are capable. Planes other than those operated here by the R.C.A.F. give the ground forces other kinds of airborne help. Everyone around the forward base and its airstrips, wears the blue air force battle dress.

Dawn Attacks

First Spitfires into the air from the dusty airways, roar past the control tent, at one side of the fields often before five o'clock in the morning. The last plane comes in about an hour or so before midnight.

While some of the Spitfires are aloft, the crews of others wait on the ground, remaining at various stages of readiness. Except when the weather prevents flying, there are R.C.A.F. Spitfires in the air from dawn until dusk.

The Spitfires' close support role for the ground troops, means patrolling, dive-bombing and strafing, particularly of transport, which is one of the most effective ways of hobbling the enemy's defence effort.

Until recently, the Germans kept out of the air in the daytime and the Spitfires had things to themselves. Then the Messerschmitts and Focke-Wulfes appeared in large numbers over the front and the Canadian fighter-pilots knocked down 26 of them in one day.

A pilot is in the air about two hours on one sortie and averages perhaps two sorties a day. Patrols are most unexciting, but combats when they occur, are the highspots of the day's operations. The pilots encounter flak in the dive-bombing attacks and in some of their attacks on transport which requires skilful flying.

The R. C. A. F. sector has lost pilots flying from Normandy airstrips in combat and others have disappeared in hot pursuit of enemy planes. Some planes have been damaged, but the Canadian sector in Normandy has both the personnel and equipment to perform most repairs.

PERMANENT MIST

DEADLY ROCKETS CARRIED UNDER WINGS — Group Captain Paul L. Davoud, D.S.O., D.F.C., Kingston, commander of a Typhoon sector in Normandy, examines the rockets carried beneath the wing of one of his charges. These rockets have the destructive effect of a well placed artillery shell. Former commanding officer of the "City of Edmonton" Mosquito Intruder squadron Davoud now controls the activities of a Royal Air Force rocket squadron and a Royal Canadian Air Force fighter-bomber wing in France.

Kingston Man Commands Rocket-Firing Squadron

WITH THE R.C.A.F. IN FRANCE, July 26—After successfully leading the Mosquito squadron, Group Captain Paul Davoud, D.S.O., D.F.C., Kingston, was handed a new post in the Second Tactical Air Force as commanding officer of a Typhoon sector which attacks with cannon, rockets and bombs.

"The big job now is direct support of the army in daylight; the other job was a straight air force proposition aimed against the Hun air force, mostly at night," he explained.

"With the Typhoons carrying their normal fire power placed over the bombs or the rockets, we can tackle most of the army support targets with good results."

Since he was appointed to his recent post, January 9th, 1943, the stocky former bush pilot has directed the training and operations of a number of R.A.F. rocket wings and a R.C.A.F. fighter-bomber wing. Prior to the invasion his aircraft had blasted bridges, railway lines, wireless stations, headquarters and other targets in occupied France. From experience he learned the most effective means of dealing with each.

Completed 22 Flights

With the "City of Edmonton" squadron from January 15th, 1943, to January 9th, 1944, he completed 22 operational flights, but never saw a Hun. His Mosquito crews saw many, however. The squadron recently celebrated the destruction of its 100th enemy aircraft. ..early 70 of the 100 were destroyed in the air. "Once they got started on daylight ops they never looked back," their former C.O. commented proudly.

The latest score is 111, including aircraft destroyed in the air and probably destroyed on the ground. Of these, 89 fell before the cannon and machine guns of the Intruders during 1944.

Top airmen were on hand to celebrate the 100th victory. Air Marshal Sir Roderic Hill, A.O.C. in C., Air Defence of Great Britain, and Air Marshal L. S. Breadner, C.B., D.S.C., A.O.C. in C. of the R.C.A.F. overseas visited the squadron and complimented them on the great job they were doing

Other visitors included two former commanding officers, G-C. Davoud, and W-C. Don MacDonald, D.F.C., Vancouver.

All who could be freed from duty took part in a sports day program or attended the dance and get-together at night.

Lindsay Man Returns

The celebration also marked the return of the commanding officer, W-C. A. Barker, and his navigator, F-L. G. Frederick, Lindsay, who the previous night were reported missing. The C-O and his navigator turned up in time for the party, however. They had crash landed in the English Channel, floated in their dinghy for 18 hours, were finally sighted by searching aircraft, and later picked up.

Success of the Canadians in night and day operations has been outstanding. They destroyed their first aircraft on June 23rd, 1942, while flying Bostons. A year ago they converted to Mosquitos. Up to the end of December, 1943, they had destroyed 19 in the air at night, one in the air in daylight and probably destroyed two and a half on the ground at night; with 18 damaged.

On January 21st, the Intruders chalked up their first success of 1944, one enemy aircraft destroyed at night. On January 27th, first of a succession of big days, seven were destroyed in eight minutes—all in the air. By May 12th, they had destroyed during 1944, 25 enemy aircraft in the air at night, and 23 in the air during daylight hours. Three had been left flaming masses on the ground at night and 38 had been set afire or exploded in daylight.

The 100th aircraft was destroyed by S-L. R. Kipp, D.S.O., D.F.C., early in the morning of May 3rd. It was the first of the four FW190s destroyed by the Kamloops, B.C., pilot during a night ranger trip.

Intruders either travel singly or in pairs. Their daylight and night ranger trips in search of enemy aircraft is on a voluntary basis, and the tactics of working alone has won for them such names as Lone Rangers, Ghost Raiders and Phantom Rangers.

The high scoring members of the Intruder Squadron are S-L. Charlie Scherf, D.F.C. and Bar of Glen Innes, N.H.W., Australia, and F-O. J. Caine, D.F.C., Edmonton, Alta., with 17 each; S-L. Bob Kipp, D.F.C., Kamloops, 11; S-L. Howie Cleveland, Vancouver, B.C., 7; First Lieut. J. Luma, Helena, Montana, seven and F-L. D. MacFadyen, D.F.C. Toronto, five.

G-C. Davoud destroyed the first DO. 217 shot down at night, probably destroyed a HE. 111 and damaged a DO. 217 while he flew with night fighter units defending Great Britain against air attack.

Awarded D.S.O. and D.F.C.

He was awarded the Distinguished Service Order on May 12th, 1944, and the Distinguished Flying Cross January 12th, 1943.

Prior to enlisting with the R.C.A.F. he served with the R.A.F. He came overseas and took a permanent commission from 1933 to 1925, returned to Canada in 1935, and was employed as a pilot with Canadian Airways until 1938. He was then appointed to take charge of all Hudson Bay Cmpany transportation in northern Canada, and his duties made him leading air traveller in the Dominion.

On October 14th, 1939, he married Miss Kilby Harding, daughter of Archbishop Harding, former Archbishop of Rupert's Land, now retired at Victoria, B.C. Miss Harding was then a stewardess on Trans-Canada Air Lines, and the first stewardess to marry. They have a three-year old son.

Group Captain Davoud completed his education at Royal Military College and Queen's University, Kingston, where he received a civil engineering degree.

ENEMY CONVOY UNDER ATTACK — An armed enemy trawler is almost wholly eclipsed in foam of white smoke as it bursts into flame after a cannon attack by Beaufighters of the R.A.F. coastal command in their recent attack off the Norwegian coast when they completely surprised a German convoy. It was one of the largest "strike" forces that the R.A.F. coastal command has put in the air, comprising Canadian, Australian, New Zealand and R.A.F. squadrons.

GOING FAST.

A check on retail and wholesale fruit and vegetable companies indicates corn, that luxury ushered in last week at 59 cents a dozen, is selling quickly, and in quantities sufficient to please even the hardest merchant.

REGISTRATION CANCELLED.

Registration of threshing machines is not required this summer, as announced by John D. McLeod, director of the crops, seeds and weeds branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The section of the Ontario Weed Control Act making registration compulsory was rescinded by the Legislature this year.

WHEAT THRESHED.

The harvest season reached its climax with the threshing of fall wheat on Monday on the farm of W. W. Dawson, Otonabee. Few farmers have yet reached that stage of the planned work, although the wheat crop is maturing fast and cutting should be general in a few days. The oats are causing some uneasiness. Quite a number of the fields are lodged and tangled, and some farmers say the color of the grain is paler than the standard of normal crops.

QUICK SERVICE.

A letter written by Gnr. Jack Quinn in France, reached his mother, Mrs. Howard Quinn, R.R. 5, Peterborough, only three days after it was mailed, illustrating a swift and efficient mail service for men on the invasion front. The letter, written July 22, and received by Mrs. Quinn July 25, was the first word she had in connection with her son being in the invasion. Gnr. Quinn's wife lives on Dufferin street. In the letter, Gnr. Quinn told of being kept busy night and day since the beginning of the invasion, sending up ammunition and supplies to the front. He worked at the C.G.E. before enlisting.

CHANGE TO CLASSICS.

The younger set is slowly making a switch from popular music, to immortal classical gems, according to a survey made of the city's leading music shops specializing in sheet music and phonograph records. While the change is slow, dealers have noted a growing preference for the more intellectual type of music, but so far, most youngsters have indulged in the lighter brand of the classics, such as Straus waltzes and muisc by George Gershwin, particularly "Rhapsody in Blue." On the other side, "G.I.Jive" is overwhelmingly popular, and has sold more copies during the past month than any other song. Other leaders in thqe popular field are, "Swinging On a Star," "Amour," and "Good-night, Wherever You Are."

Some of the neatest dance steps, mixed with various forms of difficult calisthenics, to be seen this side of Chemong, were displayed Tuesday evening in one of the town's better restaurants, to the immense delight of all the patrons. To the music blaring from a juke-box, the couple, calmly dropped their ham-on-rye and coffee, and with solemn face, began to grind out the snappiest brand of combination jitter-bug and juggle act seen around these parts in a long time. Somebody asked what kind of dance they were doing, to which the gal replied testily, "That, sir, is a minuet."—D.M.

Tribute Paid To Service Given By W. H. Buller

Tribute to the memory of the late William Henry Buller, former Mayor of Peterborough, who died on Saturday in his 83rd year, was paid by a large congregation, representative of all walks of life, at the funeral services Tuesday afternoon in All Saints' church. Rev. W. A. Filer officiated. Magnificent flowers decked the church and the music was played by Mrs. W. A. Logan, church organist.

Mr. Filer reviewed the enormous services that Mr. Buller had performed for the city in his lifetime, his interest in social measures and all he had done for the poor. Of an unassuming, genial character, Mr. Buller, he said, was not fond of platitudes but liked to do things quietly. The first warden of All Saints' church, he had watched the church grow up from infancy and had worked actively in its interests from the beginning. The success of the church today, Mr. Filer said, in large measure depended upon Mr. Buller and men like him.

The honorary pall bearers were Mayor James Hamilton, G. N. Gordon, R. J. Kidd, Nelson Roddy, Thomas Hooper and George Gillespie; and the active pall bearers were H. Steggles, Gordon Dobbin, Charles Cummer, Victor Tully, Alex. Weddell and William Parker.

Driver Pleads Loss Of Memory

That his mind was a complete blank as to events that took place before he was involved in a traffic accident at Lock and Lansdowne streets on the evening of June 8 and that he did not remember anything about the crash was the statement made in the witness box in police court this morning by Donald Wood, 19, 72 Kent street who was charged with reckless driving.

Wood, the rider of a motorcycle that collided with an automobile, suffered severe head injuries as a result of the accident and was in hospital for some time.

Magistrate E. A. Gee dismissed the charge after hearing the evidence, stating that the accused might have been convicted of careless driving or speeding but that in his opinion Wood was entitled to the benefit of the doubt on the reckless driving count.

T. J. Carley, K.C., defended the accused and the prosecution was in charge of Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C.

Approached Suddenly

Harold Davis, driver of the motor car involved in the accident and Frank Allen, a passenger, testified that Davis driving south on Lock street, had stopped before entering the intersection and that they looked both ways and did not see any vehicle approaching. After the car had crossed the centre line, Allen said that he saw a motor cycle approaching and estimated the speed at 40 miles an hour.

They heard the brakes on the motor cycle squeal and then the cycle had struck the rear wheel of the car and the rider, Wood, was thrown off and injured.

Davis admitted that he had pleaded guilty to driving with inadequate brakes on that occasion.

Mitchell Graves testified that he had been driving east on Lock street on the evening of the accident at 25 or 30 miles an hour when an east-bound motor cycle passed his car near the corner of George an hour had passed. Graves said he street travelling at around 50 miles turned north on George street and as he did so heard a crash which at the time he thought came from the Military Camp.

Over Speed Limit

Garnet Davey, a passenger in Graves' car who said that he had been a despatch rider overseas for over two years, estimated the speed of the motor cycle that passed them near George street at 45 or 50 miles an hour.

Constable Bruce Menzies swore that marks on the pavement showed that the motor cycle rider had applied his brakes 127 feet east from of the point of impact but apparently had released it again 24 feet from the intersection.

Called by the defence Ward Martin and Wesley Morgan who had been shingling a house near the scene of the accident testified that they had seen the motor cycle pass just before they heard brakes applied and said that the cycle did not seem to be going excessively fast. "It didn't seem to be travelling awfully fast going by" said Martin. Wood was called to make the statement that because of the concussion he had suffered he remembered nothing about the accident or even about riding a motor cycle that evening.

Aldermen Like Suggested Site For Charlotte Street City Hall

Imagine the federal customs-postal building and new city hall in two "L"-shaped structures with an expansive court between them, redeeming the south side of Charlotte street toward Aylmer street, to the cause of civic beauty, and you can form an idea of the aesthetic prospect Walter R. L. Blackwell, architect, held forth to the council Tuesday night.

And all that appears to be necessary for eventual reality of that project is agreement of the council and the Dominion Department of Public Works to coordinate their plans to that decorative end, providing, of course, that the council and the citizens decide to locate the city hall in the block bounded by Charlotte, Aylmer, King and Louis streets.

Several weeks ago the council arranged for Tuesday night's meeting in committee of the whole, and invited Mr. Blackwell to attend. Meanwhile, the Town Planning Committee presented to the council a report, reviewed by Alderman J. Dutton recommending the Charlotte-Aylmer site for the new city hall.

The scope and intent of the meeting was tentative, just a free discussion of locations which have been proposed from time to time for the new city hall. However, the recommendation of the Town Planning Committee (a group of citizens whose site suggestion is only a detail of their undertaking) gave a philip of directive interest to the Charlotte-Aylmer streets aspects, and Mr. Blackwell added decorative features as the two proposed buildings seemed to take actual shape and substance.

Some members of the council spoke in approval of the Charlotte-Aylmer site as if they were prepared to decide upon it at the meeting of the council Friday night when the subject will likely be received in a committee report.

Linking Prospects

At the outset Mr. Blackwell remarked that he fully understood that the meeting was called only for the purpose of discussion of possible locations, and he also said he did not wish to influence the council in any way. However, he pointed out that the Aylmer-Charlotte block, if it was otherwise acceptable, presented an opportunity of linking the two building projects together to an extent and effect that could not be obained elsewhere, and that property also eliminated backgrounds of old buildings which could not be escaped if the city hall was built in the George, Charlotte, Water block or the neighboring block bounded by Water, Hunter, Queen and Simcoe streets or the south two-thirds of that area. Mr. Blackwell also discussed the property south of the Public Library and bounded by George, Murray and Water streets, but dropped it to the bottom of his list.

The assessment of the land and buildings comprising the Louis, King, Aylmer and Charlotte street site was quoted by Mr. Blackwell at $85,000; but if the council did not wish to obtain the entire block a compromise area showed an assessment of $63,000, omitting, roughly, the southern third of that block.

The assessment of the block opposite Confederation Square amounts to $53,500, and of the Hunter-Simcoe, Water, Queen block $101,000, although that sum could be materially reduced leaving out the northern third of the block and reaching an assessment of $60,000.

Considerable discussion was given to the Simcoe, Water, Charlotte, George area, excluding its northwest corner.

Favoring Committee Plan

But, the fact, as pointed out by Mr. Glover, that the bequest of the late W. G. Morrow would amount to about half a milllion kept diverting attention away from back street locations, and looked more toward the recommendation of the Town Planning Committee as embroidered by Mr. Blackwell.

The Murray street, facing Confederation Square, and extending from Murray street to the Public Library received secondary consideration chiefly because it was regarded as too far uptown.

The site stage of progress has not yet been decided, and it may be deferred for some considerable time, pending negotiations with Dominion Department of Public Works seeking unity of plan.

One of the members of the council said last night: "If the Department will cooperate with the city in a planning scheme then I am for the Charlotte-Aylmer street site, but if they won't then I'm definitely not for it."

Government Influence

Some opinion to the effect that a change of government at Ottawa migh lead to a farcical shift in location for the customs-postal building seemed to apprehend a long delay in definite action by the Federal Department. The answer to that comment was that the council should immediately obtain assurance from the Department that the Peterborough work will be marked as an early project.

Alderman Bradburn recalled that Mr. Winter, of the Department, had told him and Mayor Hamilton the Peterborough customs-postal building would be the first to be undertaken after the war.

Alderman Glover said that he had no doubt that any government at Ottawa would retain the Charlotte street site.

"It was another government that bought the George street site back in 1914, thirty years ago," Mayor Hamilton remarked.

However, the Charlotte street property is much larger than the George-Sherbrooke lot.

"Well, it calls for more insistence on our part," Alderman Dutton said, and Alderman Swanston injected a note of political humor: "It is all the more reason why we should send the present government back."

After the Conservative members recovered from laughter at that unexpected "plug," Alderman Dutton and Bradburn moved a vote of appreciation to Mr. Blackwell for attending the meeting and contributing much helpful information.

BOMBARDIER WOUNDED — Bdr. Bruce Howard Latchford, son of Mrs. E. D. Latchford, 228 Rubidge street, has been reported wounded in France. His wounds are phosphorus burns on his left leg, arms, head and neck. The young artilleryman has two brothers serving in the armed forces.

Help Of Soldiers Invaluable At C.P.C.

"I don't know how we would have got along without the help of men from the Military Training Camp who worked with us during the evenings," said Ernie Ford of the canning department of Canada Packers.

The pack of peas is twice the output of last year, and will be finished this afternoon or Thursday.

The large increase in the number of cases over last year's production indicates a measure of the work that has been accomplished with the assistance of high school boys, soldiers in training and others who reported for this emergent job.

The canning department at C.P.C. will mark time until about August 20 when the pack of tomatoes will be begun.

Lieut. Gibbs Wounded In Normandy Battle

Lieut. Charles Everett Gibbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Gibbs, 186 Hunter street east, was wounded in action in France, July 18, according to word received by his parents on Tuesday.

The 24-year-old soldier joined the reserve army a year before going active, and went overseas in March 1942 as a re-inforcement officer to the S.D. and G. Highlanders. He was serving with the Highlanders when he was wounded.

Educated at Peterborough Collegiate, he worked in the Dominion Bank before enlisting. Lieut. Gibbs has a brother, Flying Officer W. R. Gibbs with the R.C.A.F. overseas.

17-Year-Old Fined For Reckless Driving

"You might have been in the cemetery instead of in police court," remarked Magistrate E. A. Gee in police court this morning to Louis Corbin, 17, who pleaded guilty to a charge of reckless driving.

Provincial Constable Price Morris told the court that Corbin had been driving on the Chemong Road on the night of July 19 and that his car had crashed into three guard posts breaking them off and then had crashed into a cement culvert.

"He received some injury and the car was almost a complete wreck," the officer stated.

Magistrate Gee made the fine $10 and $2.50 costs, remarking that the Department would probably lift the accused's driving license.

Canadian Legion Totals $2,210

In speaking of events in conection with the active part of the war in the zone of hostilities, we hear much of the various reserves that have to be called into operation time and again by all the various combatants, on whom a great deal depends either to push home a real victory or to stem an adverse tide on either side in the struggle for mastery.

Apart from the splendid work that the Peterborough Branch No. 52 of the Canadian Legion has done on behalf of the bomb victims in Britain thorugh the local and district fund which operates expressly for that purpose, the part it has played in keeping the fund working on a day by day basis has also been considerable. Once a month the Legion could always be depended on to give a portion of the net returns from the regular Wednesday night bingo games, which are conducted on behalf of its own welfare work, which is of considerable importance.

Thus in the manner of bygone day when the same veterans served their country in World War I., they are still serving in a first line of reserve to continue a good work in connection with the fund, which has been of much help to the management. When things began to show a little slackness, all the secretary of the fund had to do was to send out a call for the reserves, and the response never failed to measure up by both deeds and promptitude.

To-day a further gift of $50.50 is recorded in its name through G. Gimblett and G. G. Torrance, and this rolls up a splendid total of $2,210.31 that now stands to its credit, which is less than $20.00 short of their having contributed one whole gift of £500 that the fund management usualy cables over at one time.

Lord Mayor's Letter.

The latest word from the Lord Mayor of London has just reached Mayor Hamilton, and this comes in response to the latest donation of £500 which was completed by the previous gift of this same group, and cabled over to London on June 27.

Written on June 30, the letter reads thus:

"It was with very great pleasure that I received your cable and the sum of £500, being yet another gift from the citizens of Peterborough and district towards my National Air Raid Distress Fund, for which I enclose herewith official receipt No. 106280.

"The new raids to which we are being subjected have resulted in heavy demands being made on this fund, so that I am very grateful for your further generous gift. I shall be glad if my warm and sincere thanks can be conveyed to all contributors for their continued support of my fund."

Memorial Centre Canvass Planned To Commence On September 18

A general publicity campaign for a health and recreation centre in the city of Peterborough is planned to begin August 15, and the start of the canvass among the citizens and industries will be inaugurated on September 18 and run for two weeks, it was decided at a meeting of the Foundation Publicity Committee, under the chairmanship of Paige Rowell, held at the Peterborough Golf Club on Tuesday afternoon.

The minimum objective of the drive to make the dream of an adequate recreation centre at last a reality has been scet at $300,000, of which a part will be provided by city and Dominion grants; and $100,000 from wage earners and families with a like amount contributed by Peterborough industries, are the quotas set to make up the balance.

It was resolved that the official title of the proposed project providing not only facilities in an arena for hockey and other indoor sports, but better facilities for baseball, soccer, lacrosse, swimming, etc., than now exist, as well as arrangements that will alolw of dancing, roller skating, and the holding of conventions and large gatherings, will be the "Peterborough Memorial Community Centre for Health, Culture and Recreation."

As a patriotic gesture of real significance honoring Peterborough boys serving in the war, the Centre will be dedicated to them; and among the suggestions that were presented at the meeting was one that boys now overseas be consulted on their ideas regarding the set-up for sports at the new arena; and that quotations from them be recorded for the committee's use. William Eastwood was the committee member suggested to head this work.

In the course of the publicity campaign, which will continue until the end of the drive and use radio and newspaper to make the appeal a talked-about matter in the awareness of everyone in the city, it is hoped to arouse maximum interest in the plans and the real significance of having such a centre here by arranging various events, meetings, pageants, addresses, important sports events, to take place during the six weeks' period.

For Use of Everyone.

In the opinion of the committee, the most essential aspect of the publicity campaign is to drive home the idea that the Community Centre is by no means intended to be simply a place for playing hockey or staging boxing matches. As its title suggests, it is for the use and enjoyment of everyone living in Peterborough, with particular emphasis on the recreational and the health needs of the city's children, whose requirement in these regards are not too adequately met by present facilities.

It is hoped to present a pageant with the permission of Ross Dobbin based on incidents from his father's book on Peterborough and have 200 to 300 school children participate in it; to arrange to have the Toronto Philharmonic Orchestra under Ernest Johnston play here; possibly to get the finals of the boxing matches; and to have a playlet broadcast by the CBC.

Herbert Webb, formerly of Peterborough and now connected with an advertising agency in Toronto, addressed the committee and expresed his desire to help the project along. He stated also that many former Peterborough residents now living on the Lakeshore were keenly interested in the Centre and would more than likely contribute sums to help realize the goal. Use of the Centre, of course, will be available to residents of the district as well as those in Peterborough.

The Site Committee, charged with the decision regarding the location of the Centre, has not yet made public its conclusions; but an important announcement on this matter will be forthcoming shortly.

Ownership of the building erected and the properties improved will be in the city's name, and a committee of representative citizens appointed for a period of three years will handle the administration of the Centre. All profits arising from the operation will go to the development of playgrounds in different sections of the city, and no private group or persons will stand to make a cent of personal profit from the projected health centre.

New Device Is Used In Robot Bombing

LONDON, July 26—(CP)—The Germans battered London and Southern England with flying bombs at regular intervals during the night after one of the longest daylight respite which this country has experienced from the robot attacks since D-day.

Air raid wardens reported that during raids incendiaries—apparently dropped by the robots—fell at several places in the southern counties, suggesting the Nazis were employing some new device.

BRA BLOUSE FOR SUMMER—The new bare-arm fashions are practical, fabric-saving and fun to wear, and this goes for frocks and blouses. Here is an apt version of the Summer blouse, a bra-blouse of rayon jersey which launders as easily as a handkerchief. It is well-fitted with a flat neck-band, and has interesting shirred detail in front. Low-cut back is fastened with buttons. —By Alice Alden.

"GOING STEADY" HAS FAULTS

◇ ◇ ◇

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going steady with a boy for two years and I would like to start dating someone else, even though I still like the one I am going with. My problem is that all the other boys feel that I am this boy's property and that they do not want to date me because they think that will be interfering with his affairs.

How can I find a way to date other boys and still be a friend to the one I am going with?

IDA

Girl Gives Up Liberty Too Easily

ANSWER: It is pretty hard for a girl to get into circulation again after she has once let a boy put his brand upon her. To be know as "Joe's girl" or "Tom's girl" takes her out of the running and makes her just as much his property as if he had bought her in the slave market.

And when you realize that all the boy has had to pay for his hand-maiden is a few soft drinks, an occasional hot-dog, and letting her tag him when he went to the school festivities, it looks as if the girl sells her freedom pretty cheap, and that she can't be very smart, or else she would look out for her own interests better.

I do not think that there is any other custom so pernicious as the "keeping company" or "going steady" one. For it forces upon mere children the forming of ties and the assuming of obligations when they are too young and ignorant of life to realize what they are doing, and that they are making commitments that may ruin their whole future careers.

Many and many a girl is an old maid because Tom monopolized her during all the years when she should have been meeting young men, and then decided that he did not want her. Many and many an unhappy marriage stems back to a boy and girl marrying after they had lost their taste for each other, and because they had "kept company" so long they didn't know how to break away.

Don't do it boys and girls. Know as many youngsters as you can. Then you will be able to pick out the one who is most congenial to you, and you won't be left flat if your steady ditches you.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Our happy home is about to be wrecked by some neighbors who live only a few yards from us. They have two children the ages of ours who have neither manners, morals nor grammar and they are contaminating our youngsters. These children practically live in our house. What can we do to get rid of the pests?

H. E.

Two Methods To Protect Children

ANSWER: There are only two courses open to you. One is to break up your home and move into a better neighborhood where your children will associate with other boys and girls who have been decently brought up. This may cause you both trouble and expense, but children are profoundly affected by their environment, and they can be ruined for life by being thrown in close contact with dirty-minded youngsters who tell them obscene stories.

Your other alternative, if you do not wish to move, is to try to civilize the neighbor's children and give them a better outlook on life. Any form of culture or restraint is poison to them and you can bar them from the house by correcting their manners and pronunciation and making them listen while you read to them.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am a girl of 16 and I am thinking of marrying a soldier to get away from my mother who does nothing but fuss and nag at me all the time. I am tired of being bossed out of my life.

UNHAPPY GIRL

ANSWER: Getting married to keep yourself from being bossed and nagged is like jumping out of the frying pan into the fire. No girl ever knows how many faults she has until she gets a husband to point them out to her. And so for being bossed, well, the main thing every man marries for is to get a wife to whom he can lay down the law. Of course, he doesn't always succeed in doing it, but he does his best.

And don't forget this, you can look forward to leaving Mother and being free of her nagging, but when you are married you are tied to your censor for keeps. Wait to marry until you are so deeply in love that you won't mind be heckled and you will want to do what your husband says because you will think he hung the moon.

THE TEA HOUR GOSSIP . . . .

These days many housewives have to make up a lunch box every day, so I am going to give you some recipes that are lovely for that lunch and quite different. These sandwich recipes are also nice for that picnic that the children love on a Sunday afternoon or holiday.

Raw Carrot and Peanut Sandwich

Combine ½ cup shredded raw carrot, ¼ cup diced celery, ½ cup finely diced green pepper, ¼ cup chopped salted peanuts, 2 tablespoons maponnaise, ½ teaspoon lemon juice, ½ teaspoon salt and dash of pepper. This will make up three loaves of bread., cut thin.

This Week's Best Wartime Recipe

Contributed By Mary Moore Readers

DEAR MARY MOORE: I want to send you this because it fills a vacancy in my meals, and my family's stomachs that suffered formerly. Since it calls for little over ½ cup of sugar and only 1 egg, you may think you can put it in your wartime recipe box.

Spicy Apple Muffins.

(Mrs. Fred Knox).

Two and one-quarter cups sifted pastry flour, 3½ teaspoons making powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, 4 tablespoons shortening, ½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 egg beaten, 1 cup milk, 1 cup finely-chopped raw apples. Sift flour with baking powder, salt, ¼ teaspoon cinamon, and ¼ teaspoon of nutmeg. Cream shortening and ½ cup sugar. Stir in egg, then flour mixture alternately ith milk. Fold in apples, then fill greased muffin pans almost ¾ full. Sprinkle with the remaining sugar, cinnamon and nutmeg. Bake at 425 degrees Fahr. for 20 to 25 minutes. These amounts make 20 muffins. I put 10 of them away for the following day, and thus have dessert for two meals. No frosting needed. Hard on the butter ration, though, unless you serve a cream cheese and leave no butter on the table. —Mrs. K.

This makes an excellent cake, too. Bake it in a pan 8 x 12 x 1½ inches, at about 400 degrees Fahr. for 30 minutes. Delicious with ice-cream, of course, or a Blanc Mange Pudding. Thanks, Mrs. K.

Not Beginning Career Of Bribery King Tells Canadian House

OTTAWA, July 26 — (CP) — Prime Minister Mackenzie King, amid loud desk thumping by his party supporters, told the Commons yesterday that now that he has reached his 70th year he does not plan to begin a career of bribery, and that if he does nothing else "I'll leave my party and my country an honorable name."

Mr. King said he spent the greater part of his life trying to solve social problems and to improving the living conditions of the people of Canada and he planned to continue this work to "the end of my life."

The Prime Minister made the statements while outlining the government's plan for payment of family allowances. He said a public leader had termed the plan "political bribery."

(John Bracken, Progressive Conservative Party leader, said when the Family Allowances Plan was first announced that he considered the plan a political bribe.)

"I wish the man who made that statement was on the floor of this House," Mr. King said without referring to Mr. Bracken by name. "If he were in the House and made such a statement I would immediately arise and ask the speaker to make him withdraw it. Everyone knows that such a statement cannot be made on the floor of this House."

Reflection On Every Member

Mr. King said anyone who claimed that the Family Allowances Plan was bribery cast a reflection on every member of the house and on the intelligence and integrity of the people.

The plan would be before the country and the people would have an opportunity to pass upon it.

(Mr. King said in the Commons recently that a general election would be held before July 1, 1945, when the family allowances are scheduled to go into effect.)

The charge that the plan was bribery would be resented by the people of Canada.

Deeply Interested In Reforms

He said he resented the charge very deeply. He had given the greater part of his life to improving the social conditions in the country. When he left the University of Toronto he had taken post-graduate studies on social problems instead of following a law course as his father had wished him to do.

When he came to Ottawa in 1900 to assist in the establishment of a Labor Department, he had not come to bribe the people. Later when he sought election to parliament it was because he had wished his voice to be heard on the need for social reforms.

Mr. King said that when he was defeated in 1911 and was out of parliament for a time he had not given up his fight for social reforms. He had written a book entitled "Industry and Humanity". Many of the principles laid down in the book were being carried out by parliament.

Restored Pension Right

When he returned to parliament nearly 25 years ago as leader of his party one of the first measures he undertook was to restore to railway workers their pension rights.

The term bribe had also been applied to such social legislation as Old Age Pensions, Unemployment Insurance and other measures.

"I have not gained the confidence of the people of Canada by any thought in their mind that I was trying to bribe them. I have gained the confidence of the people more than any other man in Canada because they knew that I would fight for the principles of a better way of life.

"I intend to fight for these principles to the end of my day."

Mr. King said latest statistics indicated there were 3,500,000 children under 16 years of age in Canada. These children were in about 1,500,000 families. More than half of these families in whole or in part benefited from income tax exemption. The families with the lowest incomes did not benefit.

About one-third of the families, or 500,000 received the full benefit of tax exemption. Another 500,000 received a partial benefit. The next 500,000 received no benefit. It was in this group that the need was greatest. There were probably more children in the lowest income group of families than in the middle group and more in the middle than in the upper.

Mr. King said that persons in income tax brackets now were granted an exemption of $108 for each child. Family allowance would extend this benefit to persons outside the income tax brackets.

It was the duty of the State to aid in the bringing up of children, but up to the present that obligation had only been recognized in the cases of income tax payers with children. Where the need was the least the principle of the State aiding in the upbringing of children had been recognized. Family allowances would extend the aid to where it was needed most. Those who would benefit most from the allowances would be married persons with income of less than $1,200 a year, or with incomes not exceeding $1,200 by more than the $108 tax benefit granted for one child.

The amount families outside income brackets would receive would be less than $108 per child, he said.

Fleet Bombards Sabang Harbor

LONDON, July 26 — (CP). — A large Allied task force of cruisers, destroyers and submarines yesterday bombarded Sabang Harbor at the eastern end of Sumatra, Japanese Imperial Headquarters communique broadcast by the Tokyo radio said to-day.

The Japanese asserted without confirmation they had sunk two of the destroyers and one submarine, as well as downing a number of carrier-based aircraft.

If the report were true, it would mark the second such blow at Sabang within a little more than four months. A British task force under Admiral Sir James Somerville hit the port last April 19.

Nationality of the vessels was not disclosed in the Japanese communique.

Open Air Service

MARMORA, July 26. — (ENS). — Rev. E. M. Cadigan conducted an open air service at Booster Park Crowe Lake, on Sunday evening. Over a hundred persons were present, villagers joining with the lakesiders.

Do What Your Doctor Does If Child Is Listless

Because the tongue is the upper end of the stomach and bowels, it is usually the first thing a doctor looks at when he examines a sick child. He knows that a coated tongue and bad breath is a danger signal — a warning of an upset condition below, which may lead to real illness.

Don't you take chances — look at your child's tongue and check the breath every day! And at the first sign of bad odor on the breath or a coated tongue, give Children's Own Tablets. Small, pleasant-tasting tablets made especially for youngsters from runabout age to 15 years, they are wonderfully effective in helping to clean out harmful wastes and sweeten sour, upset stomachs. No drastic weakening flush-out action like many old-fashioned laxatives have.

Get a package of Children's Own Tablets — only 25¢ — today from your druggist. Made by the makers of Baby's Own Tablets — your guarantee of a reliable product.

Ken Bryant's Service In Army Takes Him To Many Countries

When Ken Bryant, son of Edward J. Bryant, R.R. 2, Lakefield, went to camp at Petawawa in the late summer of 1939 he was thinking only of the immediate training period and certainly he could not foresee that the next five years were to slowly unfold for him as a soldier at war with continuing chapters of experience all the way into the Middle East North Sicily and Italy with the British 8th Army.

His father recalled that background of historic events through which his son has moved along with the course of the war from the darkest days on the south shore of the Mediterranean through the defeats of German and Italian armies

IN ARMY FIVE YEARS — Sgt. Kenneth Bryant, son of Edward J. Bryant, R.R. 2, Lakefield, has been in the Army since early in 1939 and has fought in many countries, principally with the 8th Army. At the present time, he has been transferred to the R.C.A.M.C.

to the recent retreats of Hitler's forces before the advancing Allies in the successful progress of the campaign in Italy.

A recent letter from Ken Bryant points with boyish pride to the fact that he has come up from the ranks as corporal and now as sergeant fully recovered from a wound he suffered when he was injured in one leg with shrapnel, ninety-two hours after he landed in Sicily. His letter is mostly personal in its information and enquiry, but he also mentions that he was forwarding to his father a Victory Bond which he had bought in Sicily, and another one which he had also subscribed and paid for, but was sending separately.

In Army From 1939

"When he went to Petawawa in 1939 he never came out of the army from that day to this," Mr. Bryant recalled in a reference today to his son's long experience overseas. "He enlisted in camp with the Hastings and Prince Edwards, went overseas with the 1st Division in 1939. I understood that there was a call for volunteers overseas to go to the Middle East with the 8th British Army and as Ken was then a corporal he was one of those who stepped forward.

That is how eventually he got into the African campaign, came through it without a scratch, and then was injured in Sicily. But before that he was with the Canadians who landed at Dunkirk, before France fell, and when the British forces who had landed to help the French were forced to return to their own country."

Mr. Bryant said he did not think there were many Canadian lads who had seen so much of the countries through which the famous 8th Army had driven the Germans. Now he is hoping that it will be all over soon, "and as he says he is keeping his fingers crossed hoping that he may be back home by Christmas."

Transfer To R.C.A.M.C.

Mr. Bryant also received some time ago a letter from Captain E. S. Dixon, protestant chaplain, written from England, informing him that Ken was now with the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps in Italy.

The following is a quotation: "Ken came down to our Depot as a patient, and became so useful that we applied to have him transferred to us. Since that time he has won his two stripes as an instructor. His ankle seems to be almost as good as good as ever. As you know he is very athletic. He looks very fit and well and is doing fine work for us. He is also very much liked by the officers and men of the unit. You do not need to be especially anxious about him, though we know all parents are anxious about their sons and daughters overseas.

"In closing, may I add the hope that, in God's mercy, the war may end soon and allow our boys to return to their loved ones. Meantime you may be proud of your boy's service to his country."

WOUNDED BY BOMB — Pte. Garnet Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Thompson, Norwood, has been wounded in action in France by a bomb fragment in the right arm, according to word received by his parents. He enlisted in February, 1942, and has been overseas since January.

Bank Deposits

The section of the Bill dealing with small loans enables banks to make unsecured loans up to $500 repayable in instalments and subject to an interest rate equal to a discount of 5 per cent on a one-year loan—in effect this would, in most cases, result in interest of 9% per cent.

Mr. Ilsley said he recognised that there would be borderline cases in which it would be left to the local bank manager to decide whether a man should receive an ordinary loan at 6 per cent or be put in the small loan class at the higher rate. On the other hand, he felt facilities would be provided for a number of persons whose only present source of loans was small finance companies.

Protection From Sharks.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (PC-York-Sunbury) said he thought the legislation was worth trying and it might protect small borrowers from loan sharks. W. R. Macdonald (L-Brantford City) asked that the interest rate be clarified so borrowers would know exactly what they were being charged.

Dr. J. J. McCann (L-Renfrew South) supported the plan as a means of providing facilities for residents of smaller communities who now had to turn to loan companies in larger cities where they were not known and who had to pay a high interest rate.

W. A. Tucker (L-Rosthern) opposed the small loan plan on the ground the farmers who now received bank loans on the same basis as other borrowers might be classed with small borrowers and charged a higher rate than they now pay. Some banks were already in the small loan business and he said he could see no necessity for the legislation.

As An Aid To Peace

LENOX, Mass., July 26—(AP)—To insure the success of the next world peace conference, Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, in a birthday interview, suggested an international music festival be held with it. That "music can save the world," long has been the philosophy of the famed conductor of the Boston Symphony orchestra, 70 years old today.

Gnr. C. Bolderstone Seriously Wounded

COBOURG, July 26 (ENS) — Gunner Charles Boldersone of Cobourg, who landed in France on Invasion Day, has been seriously wounded, his wife was advised here. His injuries consisted of a dangerous shell fragment in the skull, word from Ottawa said. The son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bolderstone of Brighton, he married Ruth Cane of Cobourg in February of 1940. He enlisted with the 14th Field Battery at Cobourg in 1939 and went overseas in September, 1940. He is 25 years of age.

Russian-Based Planes Bomb German Airfield

NEW YORK, July 26.—(AP). — Russian-based American planes bombed a German airfield 100 miles northwest of surrounded Lwow in Poland yetserday, downing at least 30 enemy aircraft, an N.B.C. broadcast from Moscow said to-day.

The planes returned to Russian bases after "taking an active part on the Russian front" for the first time, the broadcast said. Previously, shuttle bombers from Britain and Italy have used Russian bases for strategic attacks.

The force was described as a strong formation of Lightnings and Mustangs, probably used as fighter-bombers. The name of the airfield was not given nor was the Russian base identified.

The broadcast said 26 of the destroyed planes were Junkers.

Large Crowd In Attendance At Annual Summer Fair

The grounds of Immaculate Conception church underwent a radical change Tuesday, as booths, a country store, a lunch counter, and tables for games of chance mushroomed up in preparation for the grand summer fair. Ideal weather prevailed, and the booths did a rushing business, and everyone enjoyed a pleasant evening. The attendance was exceptional, and one of the best in the history of this annual event.

Convener of the country store, which attracted a great deal of attention with its hand-made quilts, and blankets, was Mrs. Lena Boland, president of the Immaculate Conception Catholic Women's League, assisted by members of the League. James Byrnes was in charge of the wheel of fortune, and John Driscoll, James McCormick, Arthur Primeau and John Collins sold tickets.

Also popular was the lunch counter, which did a steady business throughout the evening. Mrs. George Hynes was general convener, assisted by a committee of members of the C.W.L. Mr. and Mrs. A. Armstrong were in charge of the hamburgers, which were constantly in demand. A feature of the lunch counter was the delicious home baking, contributed by women of the parish. Mel Armitage, Jerry O'Donoghue, Vernon Perdue and Bernard O'Rourke were in the soft drink and hot dog booth which was vieing for trade with the lunch counter. The Sodality had sole charge of the sale of ice cream and candy, and Miss Dorothy Theobald, president, supervised the activities in this booth. She was assisted by a committee composed of members of this group.

Games of chance and skill attracted a great number of people wanting to try their luck. The race horses, supervised by Hurrel Dodds, Sylvester Hickey and Edmond Leonard; the cigarette game, in charge of Joe Boland, William O'Donoghue and Clare Brady; the ball game, with Kel Sheahy, Fraser Watson, Frank Butler and John Moher in charge; were only a few of the diversions offered to the crowds. Patrick Devlin, Maurice Leonard, Vince Hughes, Frank Kearney, Jack O'Dette, Vince Cranley and Bernard Amyotte also donated their services for other games.

The grand draw for cash awards was made late in the evening by little Jerry McGrath. Winners were: first prize, $10, A. J. Primeau, 34 Cricket Place; second, $5, Mrs. M. Maguire, 175 River Road; third, $5, Marie Kearney, 486 Rogers street; fourth, $5, Mrs. T. Tobin, 315 Murray street; fifth, $10, Mrs. E. Walsh, 303 Mark street; sixth, $5, Mrs. P. McGillen, 218 Carlisle avenue; seventh, $5, Mrs. C. Bacon, 697 Ross street; eighth, $10, Bob Primeau, 34 Cricket Place. Winner of the raffle for the chenille bedspread was J. Clarke, 319 Bethune street, and Miss Nora Butler, 474 Rogers street, was the holder of the winning ticket on the wedding cake.

Controlled Marketing Of Produce Need Of Farmers Following War

OTTAWA, July 26—(CP)—Stabilized farm prices and controlled marketings of farm products are post-war necessities, the Canadian Federation of Agriculture said Tuesday in a brief presented before the Commons committee on reconstruction.

The brief said the "very core of any reconstruction program for agriculture must be carefully planned measures, designed not merely to stabilize farm prices, but to support the general farm price level and maintain it in proper relationship with other price levels and other elements in our national economy."

"Never again must we let prices go where they will; we must not let them fluctuate widely in different seasons; we must not let them ruin the producers of one product because of a temporarily glutted market; we must not let a small export surplus on the world market set the price of the bulk of that product in the home market at an uneconomic level."

Canada's exports should not be sold so low in the world markets that they would ruin Canadian farmers as well as the farmers in other agriculture countries.

Government Measures

The brief said it was anticipated that the government's legislation for the setting of floor prices under farm and fisheries' products would "provide a substantial measure of price support and stabilization."

Some form of regulated marketing should be adopted, the brief said.

"Our best plans for stabilizing farm prices and income will be of little or no avail unless they are accompanied by more orderly and efficient marketing," it said. "Where control of the market is essential to do an effective marketing job, or to the success of price floors or prices stabilization, we believe that some form of regulated marketing must be adopted."

International agreements for the sale of exportable production, together with accurate knowledge of domestic requirements, would place Canadian producers in a favorable position of being able to produce for a known market. Given a known market and assurance of remuneratives prices, Canadian farmers would realize that in some way they would have to plan their production program to correspond to the requirements of the known market. The brief also urged that existing farm credit facilities be extended to lighten the burden on those first establishing themselves on farms.

Three R.C.A.F. Pilots Down Seven Huns When They Run Into Formation Of Forty

By WILLIAM STEWART

AN R.C.A.F. AIRFIELD IN FRANCE, July 26— (CP).—Three Toronto Spitfire pilots Tuesday told how a routine weather reconnaissance turned into a smashing victory for the R.C.A.F. when they ran into a formation of 40 German fighters and destroyed seven without loss.

F.O. W. J. Banks of Leaside, Flt. Lt. O. M. Linton, York Mills Rd., Toronto, and P.O. D. R. Jamieson, 140 Symington Ave., Toronto, were just about to returrn from a look at the weather Monday afternoon when they sighted 20 Nazi planes over Liseux, about 27 miles east of Caen.

Jamieson saw them first, and the Spits gave chase as the German formation was joined by another group of similar size.

"They began to orbit in two sections, and we came in from above and attacked individually," Jamieson said. In a short, swirling dogfight Banks doubled his total score of destroyed planes by knocking down three, and Linton and Jamieson each got two.

Banks' tactic for each of his three was almost identical. In each instance he closed to within 50 to 75 yards before opening fire with cannon and machine guns. Each Nazi plane burst into flames and plummeted to earth.

Jamieson's first vctim broke in two when he concentrated his fire behind the German's cockpit. The second went out of control following strikes on the tail. It hit the ground and exploded.

Linton, who was leading the section, shot down his first with a two-second burst from 300 yards. "Then I climbed to 9,000 feet and engaged another one," Linton said. "I was lucky enough to knock off at least half his port wing. He flicked over, spiralled down, and went stranght into the ground."

HERE AND THERE IN SPORTS

By The Canadian Press

Jock Hutchison, the old Scot who is still operating as a pro golfer in Chicago, yesterday compared the modern top golf scores with those of a quarter century ago, and he says the old-timers were every bit as good as the present crop. Twenty-five years ago a 72-hole score of 300 was considered pretty good golf, but it wouldn't rate anywhere to-day. Hutchison said that better-conditioned golf courses and better playing equipment are the answer.

Warren Wright's sensational filly Twilight Tear, winner of the $80,000 Arlington classic last week-end, will not compete in the $50,000 Arlington Handicap on Saturday at Chicago. When weights were released at Chicago yesterday it was revealed that both Tilight Tear and Marriage, last year's handicap winner, would withdraw leaving 15 nominees. Top weight of 121 pounds goes to Allen Drumheller's Georgie Drum, winner of the Stars and Stripes Handicap.

Rogers Hornsby, who led the St. Louis Cards to their first National League pennant and World Series title, has been signed as a sports commentator for a radio station at St. Louis. He started this season as a manager in the Mexican League.

Steady Pitching Gives Win To Quaker Oats

In a fast, well-played Industrial League softball game Tuesday evening at Memorial Park, Quaker Oats behind steady pitching by Fisher, eked out a one-run decision over the Westclockers, with the final count of 9 to 8.

Horton pitched the first two innings for Quakers, but was replaced by Fisher in the third, who finished the game.

Hopcroft hurled for Westclox.

The teams:

Quaker Oats—Roote, ss; Ash, 1b; Gunn, c; Sullivan, 2b; Fisher, p; Horton, lf; Weaver, 3b; Willshaw, cf; Northey, rf.

If North had answered the 5-No Trumps Blackwood question about kings with 6-Hearts, showing he had two of them, South would have bid 7-Spades or 7-No Trumps, he said later, depending on how he felt about it, probably the latter in order to get the honor score for his aces.

West opened the diamond Q, and South began to figure out his problem. With two losers in hearts and one in diamonds, his sole chance to get rid of them lay in using the dummy's clubs for discards. But how could that be done if there was no entry to the dummy? An entry would be simple enough if the outstanding four trumps were divided evenly, as then two high trumps would dispose of the opponent's four, and the trump 10 would be an entry to use the clubs. But perhaps one defender had three to the J.

South solved that problem by taking the diamond lead with the K and immediately leading the spade 9, playing the 4 from dummy. East, in high glee, won that with the J and returned another diamond to the A. Now the spade A, club A and spade 2 to the 10 enabled him to run the clubs, discarding his two small hearts and small diamond to assure the contract. If East had fathomed what was up, and had refused to take a first or second round of trumps with his J, the contract would have been set two tricks.

$10,000 Policy For Veterans

OTTAWA, July 26 — (CP). — Veterans of the present war may obtain insurance policies up to $10,000 without medical examination, under a Bill introduced Tuesday in the Comomns by Pensions Minister Mackenzie. The Insurance will be carried by the Government at premium rates slightly lower than those charged by insurance companies for non-participating insurance.

The scheme is open to all members of the forces, men and women, regardless of where they serve and regardless of their physical conditions.

In introducing the measure, Mr. Mackenzie compared it with the Returned Soldiers Insurance Act passed for veterans of the First Great War. That maximum has been raised to $10,000 from $5,000 under the former scheme. The terms under both Acts were for 10, 15 or 20 years, at age 65 or age 85 under certain special conditions.

The interest rat is 3½ per cent compared to 4 per cent under the last war scheme. Owing to the lower interest rate the premium rate was slightly higher.

The scheme was open to members of the forces for a period of three years from the date of the passing of the Bill or from the date of their discharge.

AMERICANS CRACK NORMANDY LINES

Counter Blow Smashed By Typhoons

British Troops Watch Heavy German Attack Being Formed

By ROGER D. GREENE
Associated Press War Correspondent

ON THE ORNE RIVER FRONT IN NORMANDY, July 27.—(AP).—Without lifting a finger—but with cheers — British frontline troops watched a heavy German counter-attack as it was smashed and scattered in the orchards south of Verrieres.

Here is the story of what happened in this strange episode of modern warfare:

Across no man's land late yesterday German infantry, supported by upwards of 50 tanks, was seen forming for an assault in the Requancourt sector.

No Artillery Barrage.

The British gave no inkling they were aware of the Nazi plan, and instead of laying down an artillery barrage tipping the Germans their scheme was known, the Tommies sat quietly in their slit trenches.

Immediately, however, word was flashed back to air headquarters and several hours passed while the Germans were allowed to mass for attack.

Then suddenly, at the crucial moment, R.A.F. rocket-firing Typhoons streaked across the sky and spread havoc among German troops and tanks alike.

At the same time a great artillery concentration of hundreds of guns behind the Canadian front opened up, adding to the enemy's confusion.

Five Nazi tanks were destroyed, eight were damaged and unknown numbers of enemy infantry killed or wounded.

In less than an hour the entire German concentration was cut to ribbons and dispersed. The enemy fled in confusion and never attempted to "get off" from the starting mark under the terrible punishment meted out by the rockets.

"And we didn't have to fire a single shot in anger," exulted British infantrymen who would have had to absorb the shock of the German attack.

The British beat off a small German raid on Verrieres at 3 a.m. today.

Elsewhere east of the Orne the situation was unchanged.

In the Orne-Odon valley west of Caen it was disclosed British units had fallen back slightly from Hills 112 and 113.

London Remains Commerce Spot

LONDON, July 26.—(CP).— Old London, the battered mile-square "city" around St. Paul's Cathedral —will emerge as a district devoted purely to business after the war, with no fancy face-lifting proposed in rebuilding plans put forward today by civic officials.

The program calls for wider streets, taller buildings, fire-proofing of some of older edifices, and removal of some of the ramshackle buildings which clutter the district. But City Engineer F. J. Forty, who drafted the plan, struck its keynote when he said: "I want the city to be the leading place of commerce in the world, and not—as some planners would suggest—a park."

The city of London is the financial centre of the British Empire, with a daytime population of 500,000 which drops to about 10,000 at night. In size, it is one of the smallest divisions of Metropolitan London.

Patriots Annihilate Convoy

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 27 — (AP). — French patriots have defeated German tank attacks in ambushes and are continuing successful warfare against the foe, the Allied Command said today in a communique from an advanced command post. Patriot forces annihilated a German convoy of 116 trucks in the Saone-et-Loire department, the bulletin declared. The German attacks aimed at liquidating Maquis areas have taken the form of raids by armored columns, it added, but since July 19 the French forces of the interior have repelled such attempts.

In Normandy and other areas enemy lines of communication have been disorganized by blows against railway systems.

In the Pyrenees, resistance forces attacked a column of armored cars and artillery so successfully the Germans were "forced to bring up reinforcements in order to avoid complete defeat," the communique declared.

Locks on important canals, particularly in the north and east, have been destroyed, interfering with transport of fuel, and "barges carrying 100,000 gallons of oil and fuel have been blown up and petrol depots and convoys have been destroyed in the "Nievre" department, the bulletin added.

Senator Robinson Dies In Montreal

MONTREAL, July 27 — (CP). — Senator C. W. Robinson of Moncton, N.B., former Premier of New Brunswick, died in hospital here to-day. He was in his 78th year.

Senator Robinson, who had been Liberal Senator for New Brunswick since 1924, entered hospital here three months ago.

A native of Moncton, he was educated there and at Mount Allison University before studying law at Moncton and Saint John, N.B. He became Mayor of Moncton in 1897 and was elected to the Provincial Legislature as a Liberal at a by-election in Westmorland riding soon afterwards.

He was re-elected in 1899 and in 1903, became Speaker in 1901 and minister without portfolio in 1907. He became Provincial Secretary in April of the same year and after re-election in May was called to the Premiership on the resignation of Hon. William Puggsley.

He was re-elected in 1908, but resigned the Premiership when his party was defeated. He joined the Government as minister without portfolio in 1917 and later was alloted the portfolio of Lands and Mines.

3 German Generals Named Connection With Bombing

By TOM YARBROUGH—Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 27—(AP).—Three German generals, two of whom led Nazi forces on the Russian front, were named today by the German radio as participants in the bomb plot against Hitler last Thursday. Berlin said two are dead and the third awaits trial. They were: Col.-Gen. Ludwig Beck, former German chief of staff, who was said to have committed suicide when arrested. The Germans said he was "no longer among the living" in announcing his death last week and branding him as leader of the plot. Today the enemy radio said he committed suicide when found in a "sobbing fit" after the plot failed.

Infantry Gen. Friedrich Olbricht, a former leader on the eastern front, who was said to have been shot after a court martial. The broadcast said he was chief of a general army department at supreme German headquarters. He was said to have been second in command of the German home army, now headed by Gestapo Chief Henrich Himmler.

Maj.-Gen. Erich Hoepner, also a Russian front leader. He was said to be under arrest awaiting trial.

Neither Olbricht nor Hoeper was widely known. Beck had been known for years as an anti-Nazi and headed the German General Staff until 1938, when he opposed Hitler's annexation of Austria and Czecho-Slovakia on the grounds that the army was not prepared for such undertakings.

Sabotaged Effort.

Olbricht was characterized by Propaganda Minister Goebbels as a General "who hitherto has distinguished himself only by sabotaging every big decision." The broadcast asserted Olbricht "gave false orders to troops on July 20 and was shot in the court yard on Berlin's Bendlerstrasse, High Command headquarters, the same night."

The German radio said Hoepner was thrown out of the army because of a "cowardly retreat" on the Russian front at the end of 1941. He was 57 and commanded a tank

King Watches Men In Action

ON THE BRITISH 8th ARMY FRONT IN ITALY, July 25.—(Delayed).—(AP).—King George VI. of Britain stood in an observation post in front of newly-captured Arezzo today and watched British artillery shell the little church of Campriano, 3,000 yards away, while Sherman tank units and Indian infantry worked their way up a hillside toward a Nazi strongpoint in the basement of the church.

The King's face was streaked with dust and dirt from a 70-mile drive, much of it through lines of cheering British troops, as he imperturbably watched German shells bursting on the plain directly in front of his tree-shrouded hillside grandstand seat.

The late afternoon action unfolded before the King was a minor one as battles go, but was typical of the German last-ditch delaying tactics across the Italian front in Terrain highly favorable for defence.

Polish Cabinet Sends Premier To Moscow To Confer With Stalin

By ALEX SINGLETON
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 27.—(AP).—Premier Stanislaw Miloljczyk of the Polish government in London left for Moscow to-day.

His departure came after the cabinet of the Polish government had approved a plan to send him to the Soviet capital to confer with Premier Stalin in an apparent effort to effect a compromise with the rival Polish faction in Moscow.

The Premier was accompanied by Foreign Minister Romer, who was Polish ambassador to Moscow prior to the rupture of Soviet-Polish relations.

The cabinet's decision was regarded as a sign that neither the London Poles nor the British Government had abandoned hope of settling the differences between the Government of the peasant-born premier and the Polish Committee of Liberation with which the Soviet Government signed an agreement for administration of Polish territory occupied by the Red Army.

Milder Tone Taken

Meanwhile the London Daily Worker, which has been vitriolic in its attacks on the London Polish Government, took a milder tone and said, "A splendid opportunity exists for all honest Polish democrats to take part in the rebuilding of a strong Poland," if Mr. Mikolajczyk and his followers "find the courage to break once and for all with the reactionary gang around him."

Some degree of unity is being developed in the Polish armed forces. The Moscow radio broadcast said a letter from Lt.-Gen. Sigmund Berling and Maj.-Gen. Alexander Zawadski, commanders of Polish troops in the Soviet to Gen. Jucjan Zeligowski in London called for a Poland "great, strong, happy and not dependent on anyone." Zeligowski's reply praised them for their part in the restoration of an "independent" Poland.

Under terms of the accord between the Soviets and the Liberation Committee, supreme power is vested in the Russian commander-in-chief in areas where the army still is engaged in fighting, but as soon as the area ceases to be a zone of military operations the Polish committee will assume full responsi-

Design Monster Robot Bomb

10-Ton Rockets Feared More Than Just Talk

ADVANCE COMMAND POST, ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE July 27 (CP)—An Allied commentator said today that German talk of using 10-ton explosive rockets against England, may not be sheer propaganda talk.

He pointed to attacks by R.A.F. Lancasters on possible V-2 (Rocket) sites with 12,000 pound "quake-makers."

The new rocket is reported from certain unauthenticated sources inside France to weigh about 90 tons at launching. Its size is said to diminish as fuel is expended in flight through the strathosphere and the 10-ton warhead is designed as the part of this monster weapon to reach its destination.

The commentator said V-2 might be highly inaccurate or might fizzle out in flight, but that there should be no wishful thinking.

It is highly probable that the Germans may use it soon to bolster flagging morale of the German population, reeling under military defeats and shattering Allied bombings of Nazi cities.

The Germans call their present robot bombs, bombarding London and Southern England, the V-1.

Red Infantry Crossing Vistula River

Amphibious Trucks Are Negotiating Last Great Natural Barrier

LONDON, July 27 — (CP). — Russian troops surged across the Vistula River south-east of Warsaw to-day, captured Bialystok 110 miles north-east of the Polish capital, and were reported by the Moscow radio to have stormed into the streets of Brest Litovsk.

Premier Stalin announced the capture of Bialystok in an order of the day:

"Troops of the Second White Russian front, after two days of fighting, to-day captured by storm the town and large industrial centre of Bialystok, important railroad junction and powerful fortified area covering the road to Warsaw."

The announcement from the Moscow radio, recorded by the Soviet radio monitor, followed by several hours a German broadcast statement that the city of 91,000 had been evocuated. Stalin ordered 20 salvos from 224 guns.

Vistula Spanned.

Both the Russians and Germans said the Vistula, last natural barrier to German Silesia 140 miles to the west, had been spanned.

Brest Litovsk is 110 miles east of Warsaw and 80 miles south-east of Bialystok. Both cities were crucial defence points along a line which the Germans had strengthened over several years. Both had been bypassed and besieged for about two weeks.

The fall of both, following the announced Red Army crossing of the Vistula River 57 to 65 miles southwest of Warsaw, would indicate a virtual collapse of the German central front. Warsaw, a guardian city to German soil was under concentric threat from the south, northeast and east.

Report Street Fighting

The Berlin radio said defence lines in the Brest Litovsk area were taken back "under massed pressure of the enemy" and Moscow reported street fighting in the city of 50,000.

The Germans said a great tank battle was developing on the level plains around the Vistula River bridgeheads—the same flat terrain that stretches without break 140 miles to German Silesia.

The area is 355 airmiles from Berlin, closest Allied approach to that capital.

Heavy, continued fighting was reported around Bialystok.

The city of 91,000 has been surrounded several days and is well be-

Allied Progress Difficult In Normandy

By MARSHALL YARROW
Reuter War Correspondent

ADVANCED COMMAND POST, Allied Supreme Headquarters, July 27 (CP-Reuter)—A military spokesman today said three factors were making Allied progress in Normandy difficult.

The first is the uncontrollable factor of the weather. Second is the strength of the German positions, armor and infantry confronting the Anglo-American armies and third is the nature of the Normandy terrain which makes it impossible, the spokesman said, to make full use of the superiority of Allied armor for the time being.

Hindered by Marsh

It is not much advantage to have 100 men to the Germans 10 if the fighting occurs under circumstances where only eight of your men can reach the Germans 10 at one time, he said.

This is the situation confronting the Allied armor at present. Only the heads of the Allied armored columns can approach the enemy in the present country as they are hindered by marshy lands, ditches and well-prepared military obstacles.

This phase may soon be ended and in better country with room to manoeuvre the Allied tanks could swarm around, through and behind the enemy.

The spokesman declared that the strength of the Germans in armor, heavy guns, tanks and infantry is so great that had it been opposing the Russians at the start of their drive the Soviets might not have progressed so swiftly.

The fact, the Germans might have had enough strength from the west to face the Russians in the east. The Allied invasion of Normandy has actually caused armored troops to be withdrawn from Russia, thus smoothing the path further for Marshal Stalin's victorious armies, said the spokesman.

An Allied victory is one and indivisible. In this light, since it all means the ultimate complete defeat of Germany, the speed of the advance in Normandy cannot be regarded as disappointing even if it falls below optimistic expectations.

Goebbels Threatens New Terror Weapon

LONDON, July 27 — (CP) — After a 12-hour lull German flying bombs came hurtling over London and southern England again today, causing new damage and casualties although the opening barrage was not on a heavy scale.

Several persons were killed and injured when a bomb landed in a residential district, wrecking a row of houses. In another area a group of empty houses previously damaged were completely destroyed.

Britons expressed wonder as to whether new terror weapons would be called into use by the Germans. Paul Joseph Goebbels, the German war mobilizer, made veiled threats in his speech last night, but so far the V-1, packing 2,240 pounds of explosive, is the only such weapon in action.

Official sources said there was nothing to reports that buzz-bombs double the size of the original robots were being used.

War Bulletins

LONDON—Marshal Stalin announced tonight the Russian capture of Stanislawow in the Carpathian foothill approaches to Czechoslovakia.

LONDON — The Allies have launched a new major offensive over the whole front in Normandy, according to Gerhard Emskoetter, German Transocean Agency's war reporter.

AIR ADVANCED HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE — American fighters planes now fly escort for tanks as well as for bombers. Maintaining constant low patrol over U.S. armored columns driving through German lines west of St. Lo, pilots claimed 20 Nazi tanks destroyed, 19 probably destroyed, and 50 damaged yesterday alone.

German Flank Is Threatened Three Miles Gained In Six Hours By U.S. Forces

British And Canadians Hold Firmly In Face Of Counter-Attacks With Tanks, Artillery And Mortar Fire

ALLIED SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, July 27 — (CP). — American infantry and tank teams penetrating German defences south of St. Lo have gained three miles in the last six hours, with advanced patrols reaching the road centre of Periers, while the British-Canadian flank held firmly in the face of German counter-attacks with tanks, artillery and mortar fire.

Fanning out westward from St. Gilles and Canisy, the Americans began closing a trap on Germans in a bend of the Vire River below St. Lo, capturing Le Mesnil Herman, six miles south of St. Lo and nine miles from their jump-off point.

East of the Orne, the Canadians still hold firmly on to Verrieres after throwing back two German counter-attacks during the night. Headquarters said that there is "no cause for anxiety" about the situation on the stalled British-Canadian sector.

The Americans had seized Canisy in their advance and cut the road running from St. Lo to Percy along the baseline of the Cherbourg Peninsula.

Now Fanning Out.

To the east, headquarters announced, patrols entered Periers, central strongholds of the German line stretching to the sea, and were at a point 10 miles north of Coutances.

The armored spearhead pushing southwest of St. Lo had driven so deep, however, that it was closer to Coutances than the Periers force. Fanning out westward from Marigny, this force advanced nearly a mile along the St. Lo-Coutances road to within nine miles of Coutances.

To the east, between St. Lo and Caumont, the Americans also scored sharp advances, throwing the Germans back two miles since last night and capturing Mouffet, five miles west of Caumont, as well as laying firm hold on Berigny to the rear.

This advance severed the Caumont-St. Lo road.

Field dispatches said the whole German rear had been disorganized by the rapid smashes into the Nazi lines, and prisoners were being garnered by the hundreds.

Moving Up In Solid Line

The Infantry was said to be moving up in an almost solid line from Marigny to Canisy in the wake of the slashing tank columns whose commanders directed circling planes to attack objectives as they chose.

Fighter planes alone were said to have wrecked or damaged 70 Nazi tanks yesterday.

On the British-Canadian sector, the Germans recaptured Esquay seven miles southwest of Caen, and blood-soaked hills 112 and 113, headquarters and field reports said. Due south of Caen, Canadians of the British 2nd Army held on to Verrieres smashing enemy counter-attacks.

Meanwhile the American 1st Army battlefront had broadened to 40 miles. Doughboys won a town northeast of Periers, and lashed out near Caumont, 13 miles east of St. Lo, capturing Montrabot. In all, at least 15 villages and towns have been taken in 48 hours.

Cut Down Rocket Gunners

Front dispatches said tanks bearing sharpshooting infantrymen—snipers who cut down German gunners — had advanced beyond Canisy, four miles southwest of St. Lo.

The other U.S. tank spearhead at Marigny was battling only eight miles from the Germans' supply road running north from Coutanc-

193 Nazi Planes Knocked Down In Three Days

ROME, July 27 (AP)—Air battles, such as cost the German Air Force a record loss of 193 planes in the past three days, raged again today when medium forces of Mediterranean heavy bombers attacked the Manfred Weiss Steel Works in Budapest, Hungary.

First reports from up to 500 bombers participating said that the bomber gunners as well as fighter pilots scored a number of victories to boost the total of 193 tallied in the last three days, a top mark for this theatre. One of the hardest knocks yet received by the Germans in this area was delivered yesterday when Allied airmen knocked down 78 enemy planes.

The Manfred Weiss Works is one of the largest industrial plants in Hungary and produces aircraft engines, guns, ammunition, machine tools and other war essentials.

Airmen said this target was well hit and enveloped by smoke.

New Landing Being Planned

LONDON, July 27 (AP)—Masses of Allied warships, transports and landing craft were reported by the Berlin radio tonight to be concentrated with several divisions of troops in the coastal area of the Tyrrhenian Sea for an imminent landing in Northern Italy around La Spezia and Genoa.

The ships and troops were said to have been massed during the week. There was no Allied confirmation of the enemy declaration.

La Spezia is on the Italian West Coast 480 miles northwest of Pisa, the southern section of which is held by the 5th Army. Genoa, Italy's leading port, is 90 miles up the coast from Pisa.

Both are behind the German "Gothic Line" which extends across the Italian peninsula along the mile-high mountains from points north of Pisa and Florence to around Rimini, on the Adriatic.

Landings at La Spezia or Genoa would flank the Gothic line and post an entrapment threat for the survivors of two German armies who have been pushed 200 miles north-westward from Cassino through Rome.

Black Day For Nazis

LONDON, July 27—(CP)—Red Army vanguards stormed today across the Vistula River while Russian forces on their flanks captured four important German bases—Daugavpils, Rezekne, Bialystok and Stanislawow—in the blackest day for the Germans since the start of the Russian summer offensive.

New Area Bombing Strategy

Allies Take Full Advantage Of German Situation

LONDON, July 27—(CP Cable)—London newspapers yesterday suggested that behind this week's great "area bombing" attacks on Kiel and Stuttgart rests an R.A.F. bomber command decision to take full advantage of the boiling internal situation in Germany.

Until this week, all bomber command's attacks since Normandy was invaded June 6 have been directed against specific targets—chiefly synthetic oil plants—but on Sunday night Lancasters and Halifaxes, including many from the Canadian bomber group, went to Kiel for area bombing operations and followed it up with Monday night's and Tuesday night's similar pounding of Stuttgart.

James Stuart, Evening Standard air reporter, wrote: "I believe these raids are designed to take full advantage of the new internal situation in Germany," and Colin Bednall, Daily Mail air correspondent, wrote similarly.

This sudden intensification of the heavy bomber assault on the Reich was seen as a move by bomber command's chief, Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris, to stir up as much trouble as possible for the German home front at a highly-critical moment for the Nazis.

Heavy Bombers Attack Belgian Targets

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer.

LONDON, July 27 — (AP). — American heavy bombers attacked Belgian military targets in the Brusels and Ghent areas to-day and Berlin said other U.S. bomber formations from Italy made a "terror attack' on the Hungarian capital of Budapest amid great air battles.

Low clouds and squalls limited tactical aerial operations in Normandy.

During the night, British heavies bombed the rail centre of Givors-Baden, 12 miles south of Lyon in south-east France. Mosquitos kept Hamburg awake, bombed other German targets for the fourth night running and harassed troop movements in Normandy.

Rail Bottlenecks.

Up to 250 American heavies with an equal escort of fighters, struck in Belgium in the same general area where Thunderbolts late yesterday hurled high explosives and incendiaries on dozens of rail targets. Brussels and Ghent both are rail bottlenecks leading from Germany to Normandy. A single bomber and one fighter were lost to flak today.

Fighters swooped low to strafe ground targets such as locomotives and freight cars.

Six heavy bombers ere lost in the thrust that carried the R.A.F. fleet across France to a point about 80 miles south-west of Lake Geneva, and immediately north of an area which had been under attack by Italian-based Allied bombers frequently last month.

Tactical air units flew 3,500 offensive sorties yesterday.

The day's combat score was 16 German planes downed for a loss of 13 Allied aircraft.

Marines Seize Ushi Airfield

PEARL HARBOR, July 27—(AP) —American forces overrunning the Marianas have captured the north quarter of Tinian, with its 4,500-foot Ushi airfield, and today strove to annihilate doomed Japanese troops on Guam's Orote peninsula in a bid for a 4,700-foot airfield and the Sumay naval base.

Twelve miles of Guam's west coast comprise the American beachhead which extends in strength in behind the highly prized harbor of Port Apra.

On Tinian, Marine conquerors of nearby Saipan have sealed off the north quarter of the island by forging a line from Faibus San Hilo point on the west coast to Asiga point on the east coast.

hind the Russian advance lines, Moscow dispatches have said. It lies on a trunk rail line from Leningrad to the Polish capital and on a lateral railway from East Prussia to Brest Litovsk.

Bialystok was a main German fortress position protecting the approaches to East Prussia, 45 miles to the northwest. It is the 13th largest city of the country which was Poland between the wars. It was old Poland's largest textile centre except for Lodz.

Associated Press War Correspondent

MOSCOW, July 27—(AP).—Russian infantry was reported storming across the Wisla (Vistula) River southeast of Warsaw today in thousands of amphibious trucks covered by massed artillery fire, negotiating the last great natural barrier before German Silesia and gravely threatening the whole German central front of the level plains.

Warsaw already could hear the first sounds of approaching battle, the Moscow newspaper Izvestia said, quoting advices from the underground.

Outflanking Threat

The crossing of tre 600-foot wide Wisla was in the Deblinpulawi region 57 to 66 miles southeast of the greatest Polish city which had a peace-time population of 1,265,700 The surge across the stream posed an outflanking threat to the city The area of the penetration is 355 airline miles from Berlin on a historic invasion route. It is 140 miles from the border of German Silesia.

Russian Cossacks, tanks, infantry and cannon reached the east bank of the river yesterday on a 30-mile front, driving before them the tattered and haggard Germans. Nazi rearguards fled to the west bank soon afterwards and were enveloped in a cacophony of massed artillery and mortar fire.

"Polish troops are advancing beside the victorious Red Army," Izvestia said. "Deblin is liberated already and the capital of Poland listens to the remote detonation of artillery."

By capturing Delaytin in the Carpathian foothills 20 miles from the Czech border, the Red army posed a threat to both Romania and Hungary, uneasy German puppet states.

100 Miles Of Tallinn

At the northern end of the 1,000-mile undulating front, the capture of the bastion of Narva (population: 24,000 and the third city of Estonia) and an advance beyond, carried Soviet lines within 100 miles of Tallinn. The fall of Narva opened the way for a swift advance along the Gulf of Finland. It was cracked by the eighth great army group now in action, the Leningrad forces of Marshal Leonid A. Govorov.

(The German communique finally announced the fall of Lublin and Narva and asserted that Russian attacks were repelled in the Stanislawow, Brest Litovsk, Bailystok and Kaunas areas. The Germans said they still clung to Lwow.)

Five, perhaps six, German garrisons were besieged. Most were miles behind the advanced Russian lines. These were Lwow, where street fighting was bringing the battle toward a bloody denouement; at Stanislawow, north of Delaytin; Brest Litovsk; Daugavpils; Bailystok and probably at Kaunas.

Baltic front troops were within 100 miles of the German cities of Memel and Tilsit, the latter a target of Russian bombs during the night. Riga, on the Latvia shore, was 65 miles north of the advancing Red Army. The Suwalki triangle (of East Prussia through 1939 annexation) was three miles away and the pre-war East Prussian border within 25 miles.

Within Striking Distance

The Polish cities of Krakow, Lodz and Radom were within striking distance and across plains easily negotiated by masses of tanks, cavalry and trucks which the Red army has at its disposal, partly through U.S. lend-lease. Lodz, second city of Poland with 665,000 population, was 95 miles from the front. Krakow (254,600 and fifth largest city) was the same distance away. Radom was within 25 miles.

Warsaw was threatened not only from the southeast but from the east as well.

There were no indications that the Germans had been able to destroy the permanent bridges at Lublin and Pulawy before falling back across the river. If Marshal Rokossovsky's cavalry moved fast enough—as it did at the Bug River —it was possible that the bridges were in Russian hands.

Narva Captured.

Meanwhile capture of the Estonian city of Narva and neighboring towns on the south shore of the Gulf of Finland split the North Baltic front wide open, and additional successes were gained in the Stanislaw and Kolomya sectors on the routes to Czechoslovakia. In al, the Moscow communique announced the capture of more than 500 towns.

Front dispatches said poor flying weather, which would hamper operations ordinarily, did not hold back thousands of fighters, fighter-bombers, and dive-bombers from giving troops massing for the Wisla crossing the maximum of coverage.

Gen. Ivan Bagramian's quick follow-up of his latest breakthrough in the Central Baltic Soviet Republics has separated German forces in Estonia and Latvia from those in Lithuania.

Lost the Baltics.

Thus it appeared that Hitler has lost the Baltics, and his immediate problem is how to evacuate his troops left defending Baltic cities they still hold. Railway communication to East Prussia or to Memel appears out of the question. The troops in Estonia and Latvia probably will seek to leave by sea, large forces remaining in Lithuania must pour back into East Prussia.

Mosquito Bomber Squadrons Are Known As "Cavalry Of The Air"

BL ALAN RANDAL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 27 — (CP) —"Last night a force of Mosquitos carrying 4,000 pound bombs made a swift attack on Berlin."

That is Britain's Air Ministry speaking. "t is the official language of the communique.

Last night, Mosquitos on intruder patrol destroyed four enemy aircraft over their bases in Germany."

That too is Air Ministry speaking. It is in this clipped language they tell the story of the Mosquitos' sting delivered night after night by these all-purpose wonder planes which have come to be known as the "calvary of the air."

There is almost no end to the stories they tell of the exploits of the Mosquito men, both fighters and bombers and there are Canadians out working over Germany almost every time the Mosquitos take off.

Fulfill Well Land Plans

From the beginning of this year until D-day the Mosquitos fulfilled a comprehensive and carefully worked-out program of attacks on railway marshalling yards, on Railway communication and radio location stations and Luftwaffe air facilities. Immediately the invasion took place they switched to closer support for Allied troops while the Mosquito bombing force mixed this up with block-busting penetrations to German industrial targets.

Wing Cmdr. M. E. Pollard, D.F.C., A.F.C. of Montreal, serving in the Royal Air Force, commands a Mosquito medium bombing squadron of the Allied Expeditionary Air Force. Their post-D-day program, he said, is "to harass, attack and delay enemy movements by rail and road."

The men who fly these planes have little opportunity to see the results of their work. They are in and out too fast. And it is always dark. But if they have any doubt they might listen to the comment of captured German soldiers in Normandy.

These Germans—some of them at least—have maintained seriously that there should be some Geneva convention forbidding the bombing and strafing by night of troops who had been fighting by day.

Keep Troops Tired

Strange talk, coming from German troops, but it is said to be true. And it is true that part of the Mosquito force has been used at times for no other reason than to fly around over German troop concentrations, dropping the occasional bombs an keep tired troops in a state of wakefulness.

The plan seems to be working out to Allied advantage if the word of these captured Germans is worth anything.

The operations book of the Wing in which Pollard, and other Canadians serve bears witness to the havoc they are causing in the enemy lines. It has been partly due to their work that the enemy has been having such difficulty in moving convoys at night since tell-tale lights on vehicles, no matter how closely dimmed, betray the movement to the low-flying, trouble-seeking Mosquitoes.

If no troops are to be found on the move at night—and our day-flying aircraft have made daylight movement extremely hazardous—the Mosquitoes go after roads, rail junctions, trains, bridges, viaducts and tunnels, and even lights in woods.

Canadians in one squadron have been working in this way, fliers like P.O. R. A. Martin of St. Catharines, Ont., who knocked out a bridge.

Suggest Receptions For Returned Men

Bi-monthly receptions for men and women returning from overseas were proposed by the legal and reception committee of the council Wednesday in a motion by Aldermen Glover and Sullivan that relatives be appealed to through the press and radio to provide the council with the names and addresses of those home from active service.

The council has discussed this problem of public appreciation of the men of the armed branches and of the women of the auxiliaries, but has been unable to obtain advance announcement of their arrival back in Peterborough.

At the recent meeting of the council the committee of which Alderman Sands is chairman was asked to consider this matter in the hope of planning adequate reception to express to these men and women the gratitude and welcome of the citizens. The council has been concerned about the lack of greeting in Peterborough caused by inability to obtain information as to when repatriates would reach home.

THE STARS SAY . . . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Friday, July 28

Although there are indications of excellent returns for sound and worthy efforts in the direction of achieving high objectives and aspirations, with the spirit of enterprise and initiative under high pressure, there may be demand for much concentrated effort, sagacity and well-organized systems and policies if any sort of cooperation is to be counted upon from superiors or elders. These may not be easily won over. There may be tenacious conflicts, both public and private, where cleverness as well as tact or finesse might be effective. Professional as well as financial and artistic gain may climax shrewd management.

Those whose birthday it is have it in their power to reap substantial rewards for sagacious, sturdy and efficient concentration on sound and enduring objectives. This marshalling of the resources and talents may have surprising success, with distinction and increasing accumulations, winning against the lack of cooperation or endorsement of those in high places, public and private. It would be well to make appeal to such, by sound tactics, acumen and clever handling of difficult situations and against definite opposition. Compromise and tact may win out.

A child born on this day may have high ambitions, sustained by sterling character, sound principles and policies, yet may encounter opposition from high places. Modesty and graciousness might prove assets in conflict.

es to the battle front at Periers.

These armored fists had scored the deepest inland penetration of the invasion—about 30 miles from the coast.

The Allied spearhead which thrust into Canisy, two miles south of St. Gilles, threatened to cut off the Germans who have been holding out in the Vire River bend west of St. Lo since the Americans penetrated the city 10 days ago. For miles on either side of the St. Lo push the Americans were also on the move.

Two columns pressed in on Periers, 15 miles west of St. Lo. One, driving southwest down the road from Carentan, firmly regained the town of raids which has changed hands repeatedly in the last fortnight.

The other, pushing a new bridgehead across the Seves River, due north of Periers, repelled four German counter-attacks yesterday and last night. A previous bridgehead over the Seves was shoved back last week by the Nazis.

In their drive east of St. Lo American troops took the town of Montrabot, four miles northwest of Caumont, the approximate mid-point of the Allies 100-mile line in Normandy, and the Allied communique said troops in this area had made a number of other unspecified advances.

40,000 Nazis Block Allies.

At least 40,000 Germans, half of them Elite armored troops, in a great concentration of one division to every two miles, were desperately blocking the British and Canadian drive southeast of Caen on the east of the Orne River.

A front dispatch from Reuter War Correspondent Doon Campbell said last night that British troops had fallen back from most of the ground gained in a diversionary attack southwest of Caen several days ago before the trans-Orne offensive.

Campbell reported it had been disclosed the Germans now hold the tip of Hill 112—Crucifix Hill—and Hill 113, northeast of Evrecy, and are in possession of Esquay and Evrecy, respectively 7½ and 8½ miles from Caen, while east of the Orne they were back in May Sur Orne in strength.

Germans Use Famous Tower Of Pisa

British 8th Army Breaks Fierce Counter-Attacks 8 Miles From Florence

By NOLAND NORGAARD
Associated Press War Correspondent

ROME, July 27—(AP).—The battle for Florence, the last big Italian city in German hands south of the Gothic line, flared to a new fury today with the British 8th Army smashing fierce German counter-attacks eight miles from the town.

At the same time indications grew that the ancient city of Pisa would become a major battle ground. The Germans were observed erecting barricades in the main streets north of the Arno River and setting up machine-gun posts. It was officially reported the enemy was using the famous Leaning Tower as well as church steeples for observation posts.

Railway Cannon Destroyed.

The roar of heavy artillery resounded along the Allied 5th Army front on the Lower Arno from San Romano to the sea. American long range guns destroyed a big enemy railway cannon, several tanks and self-propelled guns, and a number of enemy dumps during day-long shelling.

The Germans continued to fight bitterly in the horseshow bend east of Pisa—their only stronghold on the south side of the Arno 5th Army front.

A front dispatch from Canadian Press War Correspondent Doug How last night said 8th Army Forces were maintaining a steady advance on Florence along a 30-mile front in hill country, with armor and infantry driving the Germans towards the Gothic line to the north.

Veteran New Zealanders made substantial advances near Casciano, eight miles from the outskirts of Florence, west of the Poggibonsi-Florence road, How reported.

He said gains up to three miles were made west of the Arezzo-Pontassiev-Florence road.

The New Zealanders are confronting the same paratroop unit they faced twice before, in Crete in 1941 and at Cassino earlier this year.

The Mediterranean Allied air force gave the German air force one of its hardest jolts yesterday, knocking 78 enemy planes out of the air over southern Europe and boosting the total score in the past three days to 193, a new Mediterranean record.

Simultaneously, it was announced that fighters of the 15th U.S. Air Force have returned to their Italian bases after a shuttle operation to Russia in which they shot down 64 enemy planes over Romania and Poland and destroyed many more on the ground.

Twenty of yesterday's victims were claimed by these formations returning from the three-day shuttle.

Resort Owners Told To Keep Up Standards

With the large increase of tourists into Ontario this year, resort owners should maintain the best service they can provide, even in the face of the difficulties of this summer, Douglas R. Oliver, Toronto, director of publicity and travel for the Ontario government, warned the industry in a talk to Belleville Kiwanis.

The provincial tourist bureau was able to report for June an increase of 100 per cent. in the number of American cars entering the province for periods longer than 48 hours, as compared with the same month last year; and the number fishing licenses for that month were up 109 per cent.

The tourist industry of Ontario was due for a big expansion after the war Mr. Oliver said. In pre-war time visitors from the United States spent $20,000,000 a year in Ontario, and their vacationing experience here was an important factor in the cementing of good relations between the two countries.

Mr. Oliver said the danger this year was that resort owners, facing the trials of big increase in tourist business might be restricting services, skimping on meals and so on, because wartime conditions do create a problem for the industry. The circumstances required just a little extra effort to make satisfied customers of all this season's visitors.

HAPPY MARRIAGES PUZZLE US
Nobody Knows What Brings Success, Whether To Wed From Fancy or Cold Appraisal

It is a queer thing that, although millions upon millions of men and women have experimented with matrimony since time immemorial, no one has yet found out just what it takes to make marriage a success. We don't even know what to marry for, nor whether to pick out our husbands and wives with our fancies or to use our heads when we do it.

Unfortunately, all the teachings we get about choosing our mates come from novelists and poets and the cinema and they are all strong for glamor and are all for boys leading their Dream Girls to the altar and maidens wedding their Prince Charmings. Which would be perfectly delightful if the supply of Prince Charmings and Dream Girls was not so limited, and if love's young dream didn't so often turn into a nightmare after marriage.

Propaganda Creates False Standards

But the worst of all of this romantic propaganda is that it establishes a false standard of love by which so many men and women judge their emotions, and, because they can never feel the chills and fevers and hectic thrills which they have been taught are the manifestations of the tender passion, they pass by the honest affection they feel for some man or woman without recognizing it as love, and go on their lonely ways searching for the palpitations they are constitutionally incapable of having.

I get innumerable letters from women saying that men whom they have known all of their lives want to marry them. The men are fine chaps. They would make ideal husbands. And the women respect and admire them because they don't make love like cinema heroes, and because they, themselves, don't have hysterics at the sound of Tom's or Jim's footsteps.

These foolish girls are waiting to experience symptons of love which they can never have, because they are sane sensible individuals with nothing neurotic about them. And the tragedy of it is that they wait so long for the impossible to happen to them that the men marry somebody else, and they are left lamenting.

Emotion Not Enough in Marriage

These mistaught, silly sentimentalists lose their chance of real happiness because they do not understand that there are many things besides romance that go into the making of a successful marriage. There is a calm, quiet love that expresses itself in service, instead of passionate vows of devotion, and that wraps a woman in a peace that is like the peace of God. Thousands of inarticulate husbands and wives who, as the phrase goes, "take each other for granted," are living love idyls greater than any poet or novelist ever imagined. For the happy marriage must have in it something more than emotion. It must have suitability and congeniality which lasts long after romance and thrills have gone with the wind.

Summer Gloves Help Brighten Dull Ensembles

Summer gloves, with their versatility and smartness, are a welcome addition to any wardrobe or ensemble, and clever little ladies are taking full advantage of the varied and classy styles to be had in the stores. Since the cap sleeve has been firmly established as a major fashion, gloves are more than ever in the limelight, and designers are losing no time in turning out snappy numbers in both long and short styles.

As always, the arm-length glove, for afternoon wear, is much in demand, and newest patterns are made in mesh, mostly in black or navy blue. Giddy prints, for wear with summer frocks, are also being made into gloves, but are a wee bit on the spectacular side for everyday wear White gloves of course, are still best sellers, and they live up to their reputation for serviceability and beauty, since they complement any ensemble, in any color. Washable white gloves are the best buy by far for street wear, but a really "good" pair, although they must be dry-cleaned, are grand things to have for the best "Sunday-go-to-meeting" dress or suit.

For the woman who can wield a crochet hook, there are all sorts of patterns for hand-made shorties. She can make several pairs, each in a different color, for each ensemble, and since they wash and dry quickly, they're good to take along for vacation wear. Latest news on the glove trimmings are dashing buttons, in gay, decorative patterns, which can be carried through on the dress or blouse, in a larger size. Try getting two sets of matching buttons, one large and one small, and sewing the latter on a pair of plain white gloves, and the former on a white dress that needs brightening up, and be surprised at the effect which results.

National Issues Placed Before Electors

LETHBRIDGE, Alta., July 27. — (CP).—National issues last night occupied the attention of speakers in the Alberta election campaign and were stressed by both Premier E. C. Manning, Social Credit leader, and Ontario C.C.F. leader, E. B. Jolliffe.

Mr. Manning told a meeting here that voters in the Aug. 8 election hold in their hands the destiny of Canada for the next 25 years. The Social Credit fight against "Socialism" was "a crusade" and on election day voters would decide whether they would retain the Social Credit movement or accept a system of state monopoly.

"Use your intelligence to make the wisest decision in your power knowing that in that decision lies the destiny of 11,500,000 people in Canada," Mr. Manning said. By returning the government the voters would "start Social Credit across Canada like prairie fire before the wind."

Only in War Setup Impotent

Mr. Jolliffe told a meeting at Vermilion, Alta., "there will be 2,000,000 jobs for Canadians to find after the war and the past three proved that our present set-up is impotent." Only in war-time had full use been made of our manpower and production facilities.

3000 Shipyard Workers On Strike In Halifax

HALIFAX, July 27—(CP).—Nearly 3,000 workers went on strike at the three local yards of the Halifax Shipyards, Limited, this morning as all negotiations broke down between officials of the Industrial Union Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (C.C.L.), and the management of the shipyards. Many of the workers who joined the strike were non-union members.

Picket lines were mounted before the Halifax shipyards, the marine slip and windmill pier in Dartmouth at seven o'clock this morning, an hour before the start of the regular work day. About 40 workers were estimated to have passed the picket lines and gone to work in the Halifax yards, while only two reported for work at the marine slip.

The picket lines were quiet and orderly, and no police guard was stationed.

Allies Closing In On Japs Fast In Pacific

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

We shouldn't let Allied success in Europe make us overlook the fact that things also go well for us in the Pacific—so well indeed that we likely shall be able soon to launch major operations which will be calculated to win the war in the Orient much sooner than originally expected.

We are closing in on Japan fast. This doesn't mean that we have an easy task before us. On the contrary it bids fair to be a nasty job.

Admiral King, commander of the U.S. fleet, declared a couple of days ago that the Japanese "will continue to wage war with all the power they possess." Admiral Halsey, commander of our Third Pacific Fleet, adds the pungent remark that "the Japanese still are like rats and fight until they are exterminated."

However, our recent conquests in the Mariana islands, including the great naval and air base of Saipan, have put a new and rosy complexion on prospects. Uncle Sam's heavy bombers now are within reach of Japan and the Philippines—both only 1,500 miles away. Admiral King reminds us that our navy now has bases to smash directly at Japan, the Philippines and China.

Well, that's hanging it on the line for the Mikado and his little men to see. And the new Japanese cabinet ministers, who are shouldering the heavy troubles ex-Premier Tojo packed up for them, read the signs and freely admit that things are serious for them.

They're particularly concerned about the Marianna theatre, pointing out to the Japanese public that several powerful U.S. fleet task forces are prowling about in these waters which are vital to Nippon's security. They have a right to be worried, for we not only possess Saipan but are getting ahead well with our conquest of the important neighboring islands of Guam and Tinian.

bility in matters of civil government and establish an administration in accordance with the Polish constitution.

The Polish administration also was authorized to recruit men for the Polish armed forces now fighting with the Russians in the liberation of Poland.

The Moscow radio declared the agreement provided that while on Polish territory all personnel of the Red Army would be under jurisdiction of the Soviet command and the personnel of the Polish army would be governed under Polish military law. This, the broadcast said, also applies to civilians, even where crimes are committed against Soviet citizens, except in zones of military operations.

In areas where both Russian and Polish troops are operating the Polish forces will be under the Soviet commander-in-chief in operational matters and subordinate to the Polish command in matters of personnel and internal organization.

Had Dizzy Spells; Backache; Gas Bloat; Praises Syntona

Suffered Year With Weak, Nervous Stomach; Tired and Rundown; Declares Syntona Herb Compound Gave Her Grand Results.

"In the past year I suffered so with a weak, nervous, upset stomach that my entire system became rundown," said Mrs. Florence Fleischauer, 123 Garfield Avenue, London, Ontario, in a recent report.

"I could scarcely eat anything without having awful gas formations, bloating, and belching up of hot, sour liquids. Spells of heartburn with a feeling like a lump in my throat came over me after almost every meal. I was getting bad, dizzy spells with little black spots coming before my eyes. My back was aching all the time and I used to have splitting headaches. This condition had kept up for so long that my nerves were all on edge. I wasn't getting my proper sleep at night and I felt tired and fatigued from the beginning of each day.

"I had tried so many things without getting any better, that when I read about Syntona it took a long time for me to make up my mind to try it. Now I am only sorry I didn't do so long ago. From the very first bottle I noticed my food was digesting better. I became so encouraged that I kept on taking it and now I can say I haven't felt so good in years. I am eating hearty meals again without gas, sourness, or bloating afterward. The heartburn does not trouble me now and I am free from dizziness, headaches and backache. My nerves have calmed down, too. As a result I am getting more sound, restful sleep at night and I do not feel tired and fatigued as I used to.

"I have already persuaded several of my friends to try Syntona and I recommend it highly to everyone suffering as I did."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliotts Drug Store. Find out how this pure herbal tonic will help you, too.—(Advt.)

Conservative Party Is Accused Of Attempting To Sow Disunity

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP).—Statements that the Progressive Conservative party was attempting to sow disunity in Canada were heard yesterday by Commons members who also were told by a Western member that there was a growing anti-Confederation sentiment in the Prairies.

"They have nothing to lose in Quebec, but they do think by raising the racial issue they are going to gain a few votes in Ontario," said Hughes Cleaver (L.-Halton), while criticizing Conservative members for saying Quebec would benefit more than any other province from the Government's proposed family allowances.

Mr. Cleaver, one of several members to fire criticism at the Conservative party, spoke soon after Walter Tucker (L.-Rosthern) stated before a meeting of the Commons banking committee that in the Prairies "there is more of an attitude today than ever I can remember against continuing as part of Confederation because of a feeling of discrimination."

"It's the feeling of the people of Western Canada and the Maritimes as well," he said after committee members objected to his statement.

While Mr. Tucker feared that disunity might arise in the West as a result of the country's policies other members expressed belief that the Conservative party's stand on the family allowances legislation would not aid the cause of unity in the East.

Mr. Cleaver said Gordon Graydon, Conservative House leader, had stated that the allowances would place an additional strain on national unity, because only one province had kept its birthrate high.

"The reference to Quebec's high birthrate was made only to raise racial discord," said Mr. Cleaver. Among those joining him in the attack on the opposition members were Dr. Gaspard Fauteux (L.-Montreal St. Mary), Emmanuel d'Anjou (B.P.-Rimouski) and Fred Rose (Lab.-Prog.-Montreal Cartier).

Dr. Fauteux said Dr. H. A. Bruce (P.C.-Toronto Parkdale) had stated the Government had introduced the family allowance legislation for the purpose of winning the Quebec election for the Liberal party.

Of Dr. Bruce, Mr. d'Anjoy said: "As long as we have imperialists and fanatics like him in this country we will have difficulty in obtaining national unity."

Mr. Rose said Dr. Bruce's remarks had been unfortunate. It was time for people to stop speaking on sectional lines and to start speaking as Canadians.

Death March Is Described

EDMONTON, July 27—(CP)—The fall of Bataan and Corregidor to the Japanese "is the blackest incident in American history," Major Sam Grashio of the United States Army Air Forces, believed to be the only survivor in North America of the infamous "death march" perpetrated by the Japanese after the fall of the fortresses, said here Wednesday.

In a talk to officers, men and civilians at the Edmonton army air base, Major Grashio said "in the 361 days I was a prisoner of the Japs, 5,200 Americans and 27,000 Filipinos died in that camp. Others are still there, but not many of them."

"There's only one conclusion to be drawn and that is that the Japs must never be permitted to be a member of the civilized nations.

"The fall of Bataan and Corregidor is the blackest incident in American history."

A member of the 21st Pursuit Squadron, Major Grashio escaped from the Japanese April 4, 1943, and several months later made his way to friendly territory.

Speaking of the death march, Major Grashio said "for seven days we marched without a drop of water or any food.

"I saw a Japanese tank deliberately swerve off the road to catch an American officer under its treads. An enlisted man, craving for a drink of water, was bayoneted by the Japs. You couldn't walk 100 yards without passing dead Americans and Filipinos.

"In one day we carried 500 Filipinos to their graves, and all were dead because the Japs intended them to die. There were two water spigots for all of us. I stood in line for eight hours to get one canteen full of water. There were many behind me didn't get any because the Japs turned the water off."

Japs Are Isolated

SYDNEY, Australia, July 27—(CP)—The Commonwealth Government estimated here yesterday there still are 140,000 Japanese troops in the south and southwest Pacific area, but reported they had been neutralized into isolated groups with little hope to escape.

SUFFER LITTLE CHILDREN—The Japs knew that Saipan top-drawer military objective was bound to come under violent American attack sooner or later, but they kept women and children there to undergo all the horrors of modern war. These children, their hurts cared for by American medics, will now have the protection of the American flag and it will take a lot of kindness to make them forget the ordeal they have undergone.

How Real Is The Plot?

Since the news of the attempted assassination of Hitler became public all kinds of reports, direct and indirect, have been offered in explanation of it. But one thing is clear: the plot seems to have been turned very cleverly to the advantage of the Nazis. A picture showing the room in which the bomb exploded reveals a great deal of damage, and yet it appears that Hitler got off with a few light burns and the loss of his trousers. Everything seems to have worked out so well that the suspicion is aroused that the plot may have been stage-managed.

What would the Nazis gain from such a hoax? They might gain many things. A spokesman of the High Command has said on the radio that the plot "inflicted important harm on the striking power of our field army". What could be more convenient at a time when the German Army is not showing to best advantage. Could it be that the plot is meant to excuse the eventual capitulation of that army? Certainly that would give the illusion that the army was "stabbed in the back and not defeated in the field", which is what Hitler has always insisted on as the reason for defeat in 1918.

Such a theory may seem far-fetched, but the Nazis have done many far-fetched things. Certainly the German leaders know now that they cannot win, and certainly they would like to make their fall as easy and as economical as possible. A good excuse for failure, which would preserve the core of belief in an invincible German army would make it easier to prepare for the third German war, which will certainly come if we make any mistakes in dealing with our enemy.

The attempt to kill Hitler, and the apparent revolution in Germany does not, in our opinion, give the United Nations any cause for self-congratulation or rejoicing; it does give us every cause to be on our guard for German trickery. Not only must we destroy the German military might; we must destroy the powerful German military legend.

In this connection the New York Times has an interesting opinion. After praising the bold tactics of the Russians on the Eastern front it continues thus:

"But this raises the question as to whether Allied strategy in the west, and especially in Normandy, could not adopt some of the Russian methods. The Italian front is moving forward as well as can be expected in view of the terrain, but the spectacular initial successes in Normandy and the promising break-through at Caen have been followed by a disappointing stalemate. Even granted that the Allied armies in Normandy have done all that is possible in view of the circumstances, it is still true that they represent only a part of the forces at the disposal of the Allied Command. Great forces must still be in reserve somewhere for employment at the right moment. But if there ever was such a moment, it is now. Because of a proper realization of the political situation in Germany toward the end of the last war the Allied High Command launched its big and final offensive in the fall of 1918, instead of postponing it, as originally planned, till the spring of 1919. The time has come to examine whether the present political situation in Germany might not require a similar decision".

Telling military commanders what they should do is always a very dangerous game for newspapers, but what the Times says sounds reasonable. To win the war properly, we must smash the German army so completely that even the Germans will be unable to deny that they were beaten in a fair fight. If they are trying to sneak out of the war now by means of a farrago of fake plots and inspired revolts, we cannot hesitate.

Procession In Moscow

Recently 1000 German officers and 57,000 German soldiers paraded through the streets of Moscow, while Russian crowds looked on in utter silence and disdain; it is not likely that any German who was in that procession will ever forget it. The Germans were on their way to prison camps and the Russian authorities, with truly Russian feeling for the impressive and the picturesque, marched them through the principal thoroughfares of the capital. The people of Moscow had been warned that they were to make no demonstrations of hatred; perhaps it was felt that if a wave of hate swept through the city it might be impossible to keep it in control; and so the Germans marched, as captives have marched for thousands of years, to make a spectacle for their conquerors.

The people of Moscow did not look on with idle interest, as the people of Imperial Rome might have looked at captive Gauls; there cannot have been a soul in those Moscow crowds which was not intimately caught up in the tragedy of the war. When the Germans swept through Russia in their first successful drives they committed crimes and follies which will endure in the Russian racial memory for a thousand years. The brutal harrying of non-combatants, the obscenities at Yasnaya Polyana, the wanton killing of children, the mass murders of peasants—these things have eaten deep into the Russian soul. If they had screamed for blood as the 57,000 Germans paraded to prison it might have been terrifying; but was not their ominous silence even more terrible?

Five Cents Worth Of Silence

The inventor of the juke box died recently, leaving a huge fortune. Now, we presume, his restless sprite heaves and rolls in an empyrean where the latest boogie-woogie numbers are perpetually blaring, and where the cosmos seems bathed in lurid red and yellow light; whether this particular hereafter is Heaven or Hell depends upon your personal taste.

The juke box is a super-phonograph which plays when it is given five cents. There is one in every restaurant which pretends to modernity, and it is rarely silent. There was a period, about two years ago, when we ate in the same restaurant every day for several weeks, and we never had a meal without hearing I Don't Want To Walk Without You, Baby, at least once. After a time this tune began to haunt our waking hours and intrude its sentimental strains into our sleep; we suffered a species of mental rot, and had to eat elsewhere, in a restaurant which had no juke box. Even the most insipid tune can become a torture when it is repeated every day. For one cannot be expected to listen to a juke box; it is merely a distracting noise which accompanies one's ingestion of food.

The latest juke boxes have an attachment which allows one to buy five cents' worth of silence. This is a relief, certainly, but why should it be necessary to buy silence? Why should a man pay money to be free of the incessant frigging and jigging and bubbling and snarling of the juke box? It is a degenerate society indeed in which silence during meals becomes a luxury.

But it is a fact that there are thousands of people to whom silence is a torture. Unless a radio or a juke box keeps up its thought-destroying racket they are lost, bewildered and without resource; they must have noise or go mad. Those people are going to find Eternity very, very long, and awesomely quiet, unless they have the luck to enter the Boogie Woogie Empyrean with the inventor of the juke box. There, blessed or damned, they will at least be spared the torments of peace.

NOTE AND COMMENT

"Hitler Missed Death By Six Feet", says a headline. But we still think that his regime has one foot in the grave.

Hitler's personal physician announces that the Fuehrer's condition is now entirely normal. Well, well, we must learn to take the bitter with the sweet.

Shoe manufacturers report that women's feet are getting bigger. Having invaded so many male preserves, they are now getting ready to enter the police force.

"Hitler has a swollen face, low and jumbled voice", says a contemporary in a report of the attempted assassination. But for years he has suffered from swollen and jumbled head.

Toronto is plagued by thousands of rats, and the city health officials are alarmed. Let's see, didn't that city boast a very active Reliable Exterminator at one time? Is he still giving his full time to politics?

"The Canadian Broadcaster in its issue of July 22, says:

"Prime Minister King's radio talk scheduled for August 8 will not be heard in the Province of Quebec. This is conforming with the regulation prohibiting broadcasting on the eve of an election, the date of the Quebec provincial election being August 9th.

"This would be quite an interesting little news items except for three facts: (1) Mr. Mackenzie King's speech is not going to be broadcast anywhere; (2) Mr. King speaks on August 7; (3) The Quebec provincial election is August 8".

Family Allowances

(By GRANT DEXTER)

OTTAWA: At one stroke the Federal Government, in the family allowance bill now before Parliament, proposes an annual expenditure of from $200 to $250 millions. Payment of the allowances is to begin in July, 1945.

These are days of vast expenditures, but a few comparisons will help to put this single item of social welfare into perspective. At the time of Confederation, in 1867, total expenditure on social welfare, including relief, was one million dollars. In 1896 it was $4 millions; in 1921, $36 millions; in 1930, $84 millions; in 1937, $250 millions. This country spent $111 millions on education in 1939. And if you add welfare expenditures, as distinct from relief, to education, the sum would still be less than $209 millions.

The family allowance bill, therefore, is much the most ambitious social measure ever to come before Parliament. At a single stroke, it is proposed to spend about twice as much on family allowances as is spent, all told, on education; almost as much as was spent on all welfare and relief in 1937. Incidentally, this single item is about equivalent to a 50 per cent. increase in the normal pre-war budget.

That the measure will be controversial is certain. Family allowances, traditionally, are disliked by organized labor because they are thought to weaken labor's case for higher wages. When family allowances are in operation, the factor of the size of a man's family may be ignored in fixing wages.

IN Parliament, the opposition parties at this writing have not disclosed their views on the legislation. There have, however, been many slighting remarks from Conservative members—notably from Mr. Rowe, financial critic of the Conservative parliamentary group. Mr. Graydon, speaking for the Conservatives on the resolution stage of the bill, was non-commital. The C.C.F. said nothing at all.

Mr. Bracken, the Conservative leader, in a statement issued on June 24, was critical. The policy, he said, "has all the earmarks of a political bribe. . . . It is time we asked ourselves when this legal bribery of the electorate is going to be stopped. . . . All this fanfare looks like an election bait to gain the support of the electors, or to fool them, or to do both." Mr. Bracken advanced an alternative policy: "Let the Government lift the ceiling on low wages and let these expand up to at least the minimum of decency for mature, experienced workers." Mr. Bracken's alternative is that wages be raised to "a decent level."

Mr. Bracken, however, ignored the rural part of the population. He appears to be under the illusion that family allowances are to be paid only to urban workers. Actually, the chief beneficiaries of the family allowance policy are the farm and not the city population. Presumably, however, he would favor higher farm prices, fixed, if necessary, by the State, to take care of rural income deficiencies.

THE Conservative press generally has attacked the policy. The Ottawa Journal described it as not merely the dole, but the dole in its most vicious form, a kind of national defeat. The Toronto Globe and Mail regarded the policy as one of "political expediency," whose chief aim is to make Quebec safe for the Liberals. "It is the hope of the Government," said the Globe and Mail on June 8, "that the distribution of more than $100 millions of federal money annually to assist the large families of Quebec will help to keep the French Canadian vote solid for the Liberal party."

The Montreal Gazette opposed the policy, but not for Mr. Bracken's reasons. It preferred welfare to be provided more generously but much as in the past, through welfare organizations rather than blanket allowances.

Labor leaders have reacted in the traditional manner. Percy Bengough, of the Trades and Labor Congress, and Charles Millard, of the Canadian Congress of Labor, have both criticized the policy.

The most important opposition, however, has come from outstanding authorities on welfare work. Miss Charlotte Whitton developed the case against family allowances in "The Dawn of Ampler Life," as well as in a series of letters in the Ottawa Citizen. Miss Whitton is an acknowledged expert in this field and her criticism will be summarized in a later article.

There is, as well, a growing tendency to criticize the policy on racial or minority grounds. It is being said—the excerpt from the Globe and Mail being a fair sample—that Quebec will be the chief beneficiary. It is being said, as well, that other minority groups will profit unduly. And, of course, there are sectional antipathies. The provinces will not share equally in the payments, and opponents of the policy in the provinces which will receive least are tending to protest against what they regard as discrimination.

THE most striking fact about the discussion so far is that there has been among the opponents little appreciation of the main purposes in view. Family allowances have not been adopted at Ottawa for political reasons. The Cabinet has known all along that the political advantages were extremely doubtful. Indeed, the policy did not arise with the Cabinet or the Liberal members or the Government officials who are engaged in social work. It originated with the so-called brain trust, who got the idea from the McTague and Cohen reports on the wartime wage policy and who persuaded the Government to adopt it on grounds which are only in part concerned with social betterment. The decisive arguments were economics—not welfare. The chances are that many of the social welfare experts in the Government service would agree with Miss Whitton. The writer does not know this as a fact and it is to be noted that Miss Elisabeth Wallace, of the Canadian Association of Social Workers, has taken up cudgels for the policy and has publicly disagreed with Miss Whitton.

The point, however, is that the most powerful arguments for this particular form of social legislation are concerned with the national economy; the preservation of individual, competitive enterprise; the so-called market and price system. The aim is to achieve social betterment in such a way as will not injure the competitive system but, rather, strengthen it. Not the least of the merits claimed for the policy is that it will avoid direct ventures into Government operation or regulation of business and enable industry to escape a crushing burden of uneconomic wages. The emphasis here is on the word "uneconomic." There is nothing in the policy to hold down wages or to hinder a rise based upon efficiency or increased productivity.

Public Opinion and Bouchard Affair

(PRESS INFORMATION BUREAU, MONTREAL)

IT is interesting to examine how the Conservative press has made use of the Bouchard affair. Le Montreal-Matin (Conservative, 11,746 circ.) denounced the Senator's attitude, criticized his Senate speech but without any bitterness. Public Opinion (English edition of the official organ of the Progressive-Conservative Party) published textually the P.I.B. bulletin which gave an impartial and objective summary of the facts. The article was set off with headlines which read as follows:

QUEBEC FIRED BY NEW FEUDS
Internal Strife Splits Liberals

On the other hand, the French edition of Public Opinion—which is published in Quebec and directed by Mr. Bona Arsenault, has openly taken a stand against Mr. Bouchard, and this in somewhat violent terms:

"Teddy Quisling Bouchard, long known for his effrontery and his anticlericalism, has just opened the flood-gates of his resentment. Although burning with his desire to attack Catholicism and the respected institutions of French-speaking Canada, Quisling Bouchard has always kept himself from doing so because of his fear of the electorate on whom his political fortune depended. This blockhead dictator who has been the terror of the Liberal Party for fifteen years, this fellow with the looks of a cattle-drover who directed some kind of ministry under Mr. Godbout, has waited until he was free of the popular vote to give a treacherous blow which he has been planning for a long time".

Le Droit (Ottawa, Clerical-Nationalist, 21,000 circ.) denounces what it calls "the double game" and Mr. Camille L'Heureux publishes an article in which he draws attention to this contradiction in its account of the same fact by two papers of the same name representing the same party:

"For years, the Progressive-Conservative Party has never stopped accusing the Liberal Party of having practised or of practising a double policy: one for French Canada and the other for Anglo-Canada. The Progressive Conservative Party is certainly right. But while busying itself with what others are doing, it would be well for it to see what is going on in its own house. That which it condemns in others, it is itself doing. We do not want any other proof of this than the last issue of the French edition and also the English edition of the official organ of the Progressive Conservative Party".

Le Droit then says that the English edition published textually the P.I.B. bulletin while the French edition thought good to present to its readers a violent criticism of Mr. Bouchard's speech. Mr. L'Heureux concludes his article in this way:

"The Progressive Conservatives of Quebec are complaining in the same number of Opinion Publique (French edition) of the 'double game' played by the Liberals concerning the recent conscriptionist statement of Mr. McTague, chairman of the Progressive Conservative Party. The latter resorts to the same tactics in regard to the Bouchard affair. The official organ of the Progressive Conservative Party by condemning him in its French edition is beginning to act in the same way. Honesty, as precious in politics as elsewhere, might thereby have won out".

We'd Like To See The Cards

(OTTAWA JOURNAL)

THE increasing talk in the United States about post-war "international co-operation" has quite frequently left us wondering just how much was meant. A little friendly suspicion has perhaps colored our view of that kind of talk from that quarter, but there didn't seem to be much point in complaining. Now, however, the Saturday Review of Literature, of New York, has taken the words right out of our mouth.

The Review says that statements in favor of international co-operation have become standard equipment for politicians, like kissing babies and supporting widows' pensions. Pressed by an anxious electorate for his position on the future of America in an interdependent world, the politician solemnly reaches down into his safety kit and comes up with what he hopes he can palm off as a glistening new gadget, which he proceeds to call "international co-operation".

The New York publication adds, however, that in most cases this new catch-all term is devoid of real meaning. "Even old-line isolationists and nationalists can utter it without gagging." It has become a phrase and a way out.

Comments the Review:

"There ought to be a law to compel anyone who declares himself in favor of international co-operation to finish the sentence. . . . Does it mean participation or observation? Organization or association? Consultation or convention?

"The world has a right to know. It has a right to ask us to stop playing fast and loose with the issues of common hope and common survival. The world is sick of American platitudes and the extension of campaign oratory into the field of long-range planning among nations. And this applies to both our political parties."

There is plain talk from an American publication about America's position. The pity is that the Review has so restricted a circulation. Expression of similar views in the mass circulation papers of that country would indeed be welcome to her Allies. For this is not merely domestic politics. As the Review says, the world cannot be blamed if it asks the United States to do something more than mumble good intentions. "It cannot be blamed for suggesting that this time we furnish a bill of particulars defining specifically what we propose to do or not to do, what we propose to give and what we propose to take; and, most importantly, how we propose concretely to translate our promises, whatever they are, into plausible reality."

Ferney-Voltaire

Among the French Departments where the patriots of the underground have risen against the Nazis is that of the Ain, in northern France between the Saone, the Rhone and the Canton of Geneva. Its northeast frontier town of Ferney, or Ferney-Voltaine, has been famous for nearly two centuries. It was Voltaire's home from 1758 till he went to Paris to be acclaimed and to die. His place was on the shore of Lake Geneva about four miles from the city of that name. There he was the country gentleman, squire of Ferney, host of many European celebrities and of celebrity-hunters like Jimmy Boswell.

If in those last years he added little to his literary glory, as a friend of justice and liberty and a hater of oppression he was most active. Names like Calas and Lally are enough to recall his grave and humane service. A Genevese aristocrat, Albert Gallatin, destined to become one of the most illustrious of American statesmen, was often taken to Ferney by his grandmother. There he met Voltaire and his friends. From Voltaire, Condorcet and Rousseau he got his love of freedom. When he was 19 his grandmother told him that she was going to get him an appointment as lieutenant-colonel in the army of the Landgrave of Hesse-Cassel. "I will not serve a tyrant", cried the boy. His grandmother boxed his ears energetically.

He disappeared, next to be heard from in America, whither he went with a letter of recommendation from Dr. Franklin. Mr. Gallatin, Minister to France, was in Ferney with his son in 1815. He told of hearing Voltaire read a play aloud, of himself playing the part of a Negro boy. When the child was older, said Mr. Gallatin, Voltaire "impressed upon me always to be charitable in thought and action, to benefit my fellow-creatures as much as was within my power, always to speak the truth, never to be afraid to give my opinion".

It is a good omen, this rising of the French in Ferney, home so long of the undaunted defender of freedom, free opinion and free speech.

PECKOVER'S WATCH

A reward has been offered for the return of a watch in a metal case inscribed "Wm. Peckover, H.M.S. Bounty, Cap. Bligh". One hopes that it may be recovered, for Peckover has his little niche in history. It is true that he did not rise high in his profession, but his record in the number of the circumnavigations of the eighteenth century in which he participated was surpassed by very few.

On Captain Cook's first voyage he was A.B. in the Endeavour, his home being shown in the musterroll as Enoth, Northants. On the second voyage he was gunner's mate in the Resolution, and on the third gunner in the Discovery.

It was as gunner, too, that he sailed in the Bounty with Bligh, and, as befitted an old sailor, remained true to his captain when the mutiny broke out, and was one of the open boat's crew which made the astonishing journey from Tofoa to Timor.—Sir Maurice Holmes in London Times.

WE SENT HIM AWAY

Dr. Hans Emanuel Neumann Enoch, co-discovered of vivicillin, was in Canada only a short time before he perfected this medicinal wonder drug, and would probably have remained in this country if he had been permitted to remain here as a refugee, it is revealed here by Saul Hayes, national executive director of the United Jewish Refugee and War Relief Agencies. Dr. Enoch was one of the refugees from Germany who had been indiscriminately interned in Great Britain after Dunkirk and shipped to Canada as interned refugees. They were kept in confinement in camps here for some time. A number of them were released on a temporary basis in the Dominion. Dr. Enoch was among those who returned to Great Britain where he was released and continued his research.

Such treatment is in striking contrast to that extended by the United States to Einstein and others.—Quebec Chronicle-Telegraph.

"You'll have to undergo a strict examination," the man in charge said when he applied for the job.

"Ask me anything!" bragged the applicant.

"All right," spoke up the examiner, "Supposing you are at the crossing and two trains are coming along from opposite directions, what would you do?"

"I'd blow my whistle."

"Supposing your whistle was out of order?"

"I'd always wear a red shirt and I'd take it off and flag the trains."

"Let's say this happened at night."

"Then I'd swing my lantern."

"But suppose you had no oil in your lantern."

"In that case I'd call my sister."

"Your sister? What for?"

Kent Coal Miners Stuck To Posts In Days When Invasion Threatened

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, July 27.—(CP).—Coal miners of Kent won recognition in the House of Commons when David Grenfell, Secretary for Mines from 1940 to 1942, revealed how they stayed at their pits four years ago rather than accept evacuation even though the threat of invasion hung over them day and night.

This was in 1940 and Mr. Grenfell called the miners' decision to continue work "the best example of national loyalty and valor that I can quote." The government had been advised the Kent coal field was untenable and trains, tickets, desination and plans for wholesale evacaution had been mapped out in every detail.

Set An Example.

"I realized that we relied upon Kent to show an example," the former minister said. "They were producing 30,000 tons a week and if they started to decamp and leave their production posts the example might be uncontrollable and ruinous to the country."

Mr. Grenfell met a miners' representative and was told, without hesitation: "Yes, we will stay, we will make a fight for it."

"These men were going down to pit 3,000 feet deep through a little hole that might be plugged and kept plugged for the duration of the war," Grenfell added. "They volunteered to stay — and there they are to-day — and there they stay."

Visiting Britain.

Aussie Losses Total 81,260

NEW YORK, July 27.— (CP).—Casualties in Australia's three armed services up to the end of March this year totalled 81,260, the Melbourne radio said yesterday in a broadcast reported by the Federal Communications Commission.

The Melbourne radio broke the figure down as follows:

"Army—9,338 killed, 3,466 missing, 26,062 prisoners of war, 30,637 wounded or injured. Total 69,493.

"Air force — 4,870 killed, 1,845 missing, 771 prisoners of war and interned, 2,175 wounded or injured. Total, 9,461.

"Navy—1,201 killed, 532 missing, 333 prisoners of war, 230 wounded. Total, 2,306.

"Of every 10 men in Australia between the ages of 19 and 35, seven have served in the Australian fighting forces during the war," the broadcast said. "Gross enlistments had reached 891,000 by the end of April this year.

"Nearly 50,000 women are now in the auxiliary forces, and 80,000 are employed in heavy industry. Over 200,000 more women are now working in essential occupations than formerly."

The return trip from the beachhead was made without incident, with the same escort as before, augmented by four Mustangs which accompanied the flight part of the way.

Veteran Weekly Editor Arthur W. Wright Dies

In 1902 Mr. Wright bought the Mount Forest Confederate and 16 years later the Representative and since that time successfully carried on the amalgamated papers. He was a well known member of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers' Association, took a keen interest in compiling historical data and took an active part in various local organizations and in the work of the Presbyterian church and latterly of the United church. He is survived by three daughters, Grace and Jean, Mrs. H. S. Winchester associated with him in the newspaper and Anne, St. Catharines. His wife, Annie D. McConkey, died in 1926.

Handling Charge For Wheat Pegged

OTTAWA, July 27—(CP)—The Prices Board issued Wednesday an order effective today controlling handling charges for Canada eastern winter wheat, which provides that the maximum charge which dealers may make for handling the wheat must not exceed three cents a bushel.

The order follows a recent announcement by Trade Minister MacKinnon of government action in setting a floor price under Canada eastern winter wheat.

A dealer must sell f.o.b. his shipping point and his selling price, including handling charges, must not exceed the legal ceiling of $1.26 a bushel, basis f.o.b. Montreal.

The order permits the dealer to add to his maximum selling price any brokerage charges incurred by him, but not in any event exceeding one cent a bushel.

Dealers must report to the Toronto office of the wheat board all purchases of Canada eastern winter wheat from farmers in July and during each week thereafter.

FAGGED-OUT? DEPRESSED?
Make this pleasant 30-DAY TEST

See how one simple change of diet can help you keep fit

1. If you're really ill—see your doctor! But if you're all too often just feeling tired and washed out, chances are you are suffering from incomplete elimination. Particularly if you're over 35! Yet there's no need to let your work be spoiled—or your fun! Just take this simple precaution:

2. Start now to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning! To keep fit you don't have to take unpleasant doses . . . or harsh cathartics which actually may be harmful. Instead, get plenty of the needed 'bulk' in your diet by eating Kellogg's Bran Flakes With Other Parts Of Wheat. Gently laxative, they help keep food wastes moving promptly . . . supply valuable minerals and proteins too.

3. Just thirty days, and you'll prove it for yourself! Thirty days away from the medicine cupboard, and you should know how grand it is to feel alert, have extra energy to do the extra things you want to do! And it's no chore to keep fit the Kellogg's way, because Kellogg's Bran Flakes are so downright delicious, you'll want to eat them every morning!

LOOK FOR the name "Kellogg's" on the distinctive golden-yellow package at your grocer's. Regular or economical Family size. Made at London, Canada by the makers of the famous Kellogg's Corn Flakes.

THOUSANDS HAVE PROVED IT!

"A saleswoman has to be on her toes all the time. I wasn't! Incomplete elimination was getting me down. But since I made the 30-day test . . . started to eat Kellogg's Bran Flakes every morning . . . I feel fit to do my job, and help evenings in a canteen, too!"

"My machinist's job is no real exercise. But it's trying work. I used to feel out-of-sorts and logey all day long. Pills and doses only gave me temporary relief. Then I made Kellogg's pleasant 30-day test. It sure convinced me!"

"I found as I got older that I took less and less real exercise. A continual feeling of depression really had me worried—but I couldn't put up with nasty tasting laxatives. Then I discovered Kellogg's Bran Flakes—began to enjoy them every morning. And my constant 'tired' feeling went away, for good!"

The International League leading Baltimore Orioles have added to their pitching strength with the purchase of Johnny Podgajny, former Philadelphia Phillie, from the Columbus Red Birds of the American Association, it was announced yesterday by Manager Tommy Thomas.

Robert J. Halos, native of Belleville, and one of the finest amateur pitches in the Niagara Peninsula a generation ago, died on Tuesday at his home in Buffalo, N.Y. He was 53 years old.

Bil Irwin, former Balmy Beach, Peterborough, and Montreal football player, will coach the 1944 edition of the Toronto Indians in the Ontario Rugby Football Union, it was announced yesterday. Irwin will have several veterans of last year's squad, which finished out of the league playoffs, as well as junior and High School stars to choose from.

Lieut. Larry O'Conor, 32, outstanding Canadian athlete, was wounded on July 15 in France, it was learned at Chatham last night. He won the Dominion 120-yard low hurdle championship in 1937 and was a point-winner for Canada in the 1936 Olympic Games and in the British Empire Games of 1938. Before going to France as an infantry reinforcement officer he had been sports officer with the Canadian Army in Britain.

Montreal police athletes, led by Ian Hume, yesterday outpointed the Toronto police contingent 69-32 in the annual track and field meet of the Montreal Police Department. Hume took three firsts, a second, a third, in five events to pile up 18 points and pave the way for the Montreal victory.

Officials of the Toronto and District Professional Golfers' Association last night announced completion of arrangements for the holding of a $5,000 golf tournament here within the next few weeks which will be open to all Canadian and United States professionals and amateurs. Tournament dates will be announced as soon as results of negotiations for the use of one of the city's courses are known. War charities will share in the proceeds. The prize money has been subscribed by a group of Toronto sportsmen.

LAWN BOWLING

By HERB MARTIN

After yesterday's experience we feel satisfied that the weather man plays no favorites to any lawn boling club staging a tournament on Wednesday afternoon. Up until yesterday we were a little doubtful, but that doubt has now been removed.

At the annual men's doubles over at Cannington, with eight pairs from Peterborough in attendance, one game was played and then the rain came, forcing the committee to withdraw further contests.

Down at Port Hope in their mixed tournament the same thing happened—one game, rain, tournament called off. Peterborough was represented by eight rinks at that tournament.

We are going to offer a suggestion: How about changing the half-holiday to, say, Monday, Thursday or any other day? We might hit on a dry afternoon.

At the time of writing this column (6:30 a.m.) it does not look any too promising for to-day's games.

To-morrow is Friday — remember the provincial play-offs at 2 p.m., and the men's tournament at 7:30 p.m.

John E. Wray, St. Louis Post-Dispatch: Our Browns are seventh in team hitting, sixth in team fielding, and below par in other departments of play . . . in fact the only thing they're first in is the American Loop.

Lynn C. Doyle, Philadelphia Bulletin: Twenty-five pounds of scrap paper was the admission fee to Brooklyn's ball park the other day . . . a small order for Flatbush fans with the fore sight to save clippings of the critical analyses of the Dodger losing streak and the Rickey system for rebuilding a ball club.

Fresco's In Again

Buzz Walker, Mobile, Ala., Register: Don't believe all the wild yarns you hear about Manager Fresco Thompson of the New Orleans club. Only about 99 44/100 per cent of them are true.

That two-way flashlight, for instance. Fresco appeared in the third base coaching box at his first night game with it in his hand. It was a thing of beauty, one button turning on a green light, the other a red. Fresco used it as a stop-and-go signal for his base runners.

We asked Fresco about it, and he grinned this reply:

"Well, it's true. I thought it was a pretty fair idea at the time, but the umpires chased me out of the park with it. Said I was making 'light' of the national pastime."

SPORTS-Day by Day

By FRED D. CRAIG

Plazas and Soldiers will meet at Riverside Park tonight in the second game of their City League semi-final playoff series, and fans are looking forward to another exciting battle between two clubs who fight each other all along the line. Plazas broke in front in the series by winning the opening game Tuesday night, but the Soldiers made it very, very close, and they had the tieing run on there when the struggle ended. Tonight the interest should be keener than ever for Soldiers have to win to even up the round, and on the other hand, the Plazas are anxious to get a firmer grip on the series by reeling off another victory. The second-placers should have more player strength available tonight than in the initial contest when they had exactly nine men in uniform. Eddie Starr is expected back from Belmont Lake for this engagement and will take over the catching duties, releasing Joe Blewett for outfield duty. Dave Wilson will likely be called on to do the firing for Plazas. In his only other start against Soldiers this season he held them to six hits and won his game 4 to 2, a homer by Jenner with a runner on the sacks robbing him of a shut-out. Pete Procyk, the Winnipeg hurler who is the likely Soldier starter, has not pitched against Plazas this season.

The Switchgear and U.E.W. outfits will soon be entitled to the name of rain-makers. They were billed to open the City League playoffs Monday night, but late in the afternoon a thunderstorm wiped out that fixture. They tried it again last night, and once more old Jupe Pluvius got the decision. A drizzle had been falling for some time before game time, and just as the umpires were getting ready to start the battle the rain began to really come down, so once more the fixture was postponed. The teams will make a third effort Friday night to get their series started before the break caused by the C.G.E. holidays. U.E.W. expect to have Hatty Eakins on hand for the opening fixture and are counting upon him to turn back Switchgear and thus give them the jump in the series. Manager Murph. Chambers' team naturally cannot see it that way, and they are confident of opening the series with a win over the fourth-placers. Switchgear have Ron Akers, Bert Harrison and Fred Elliott all ready for action on the firing line. The game is called for 7 o'clock sharp, and will undoubtedly rate a real crowd. It will be the last game in the playoffs until a week from Monday, with next week absolutely blank so far as the City League is concerned.

For a Good Cause

Peterborough fans who turn out to see the Westclox girls battle with the Mountain View R.C.A.F. Bomberettes at Riverside Park Saturday afternoon and evening will not only have the chance of watching two good battles but will also assist a worthwhile cause. The proceeds of the two games are to be turned over to the fund for supplying cigarettes to Westclox employees who are serving in the armed forces overseas. There are a large number of former workers in the big plant who are in the Navy, Army or Air Force and regularly supplies of smokes are sent to them. The cost is naturally increasing as the number gets larger, and thus a real turnout for Saturday's games will be of great assistance. On their own merit, of course, the contests should attract big crowds. The Westclockers never fail to play pleasing ball, and the W.A.A.F. outfit, who will be their opponents here Saturday, come with a reputation of being a well-balanced outfit, featuring strong pitching talent. The Big Bens will probably send Joyce Withers in against them in the afternoon game, which is billed for 3 o'clock, and Isobel Bullock will do the tossing in the evening tilt, scheduled for 7 o'clock.

* * * * * *

George "Soup" Campbell, Oshawa sports scribe and softballer, declares in his column that the game with Switchgear last Saturday was a "thriller-diller," and is loud in his praises of the treatment accorded the Colts here. Says Bre'er Campbell: "Oshawa Colts had a bang-up game in Peterborough on Saturday when they managed to nose out C.G.E. Switchgear, the league-leading team of Peterborough's senior softball circuit. The game went 11 innings and it was a thriller-diller from start to finish with Colts leading only 1-0 for a full 7 innings and then making it 3-0 only to have the homesters stage a 3-run rally in the 8th to tie it up. They had the bases loaded and only one out but couldn't score again as Colts flashed the steady, reliable defensive play which has featured their campaigns for two years. Peterborough had the winning run on 3rd base in the 9th, 10th and the tying run there in the 11th inning, but Colts wouldn't let them score. It was a super event as far as entertainment goes. The Peterborough fans were really given their money's worth and went home talking to themselves. Colts made a very fine impression and came home sounding high praises of the fine hospitality of the "Switchgear" club. Transportation, showers, meals, etc., all expenses and all those phases which make a ball game and trip enjoyable were more than adequately fulfilled by the Peterborough sportsmen."

May Set Record

"St. Louis Cardinals are setting a terrific clip, and when the National League race terminates, the Billy Southworth led outfit may sport a margin over the second place squad that will surpass anything ever enjoyed by the numerous fine Yankee teams of other seasons," predicts Bill Gaynon in the Niagara Falls Gazette. "At this writing the Redbirds are 13 games ahead of Cincinnati, and they show no signs of easing up. Not even the absence of such an outstanding rookie thrower as Munger, seems to have had any effect on the two-time loop champs. They look like the one club in major company that sports a lineup of pre-war calibre, such regulars as the Cooper brothers, Max Lanier, Ray Saunders, Marty Marion, Whitey Kurowski, Stan Musial, Danny Litwhiler and Johnny Hopp, being headliners when all the good ones were in the opposing lineups. Stopping this aggregation in either the league or world series seems too great a task for any opponent and possibly they will have their own group cinched when they return from their present eastern journey."

* * * * * *

The St. Louis Cards picked up another half game in yesterday's doings by scoring two runs in the 10th to defeat the Phillies 8 to 6, and the champs are now 14 full games ahead of the second-place Pittsburgh Pirates. Cincinnati Reds had to be satisfied with an even break with the Boston Braves. The latter knocked Bucky Walters out of the box in the first game to win 9 to 2, but Harry Gumbert came to the aid of the Reds in the second and Cincinnati took that one 8 to 5. The once high-riding Brooklyn Dodgers took over sole possession of the National League basement by losing to the Chicago Cubs 4 to 1, with Les. Fleming pitching steady ball for the winners. Meanwhile the Pirates had taken over second place by nosing out the New York Giants 6 to 5. In the American League the Yanks stopped the onrush of the Cleveland Indians, winning 6 to 3 and driving Jim Gagby out of the game, but they failed to gain, for the leading Brownies took their second game in a row from the A's, beating Luke Hamlin 4 to 2 with a three-run homer by Red Hayworth proving to be the big blow in the contest. Boston Red Sox and the Detroit Tigers were having a ding-dong battle with the score tied at 1-1 when came the rain, and the boys had to call it a night.

Naval Doctors Prepare For Pacific War

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP).—Canadian naval doctors have started to study tropical diseases and ship air conditioning on the assumption that the Royal Canadian Navy will participate in force in the fight against Japan, a reliable source said last night. However, he made it clear that the role of the navy in the Pacific will not be decided until the European war reaches a final stage.

The part of the Canadian Navy is dependent on that of the Royal Navy, and the British, concentrating on the European war, have given Pacific naval operations only minor attention as yet, the source said.

He spoke of a popular opinion held in United States Naval circles that they would like to finish the Pacific war themselves.

"By next year they will have a navy more powerful than that of all other Allied fleets combined and a personnel of 3,000,000, and I don't think they would have much trouble in finishing the job," he continued.

He said the United States carrier fleet—so vital in Pacific island warfare—greatly outranked that of any other nation in strength.

Would Welcome Aid

However, he added, he felt that the United States Government would readily agree with the desirability of welcoming powerful British and Canadian forces in that area.

"Frankly they feel it's a grudge fight and sort of a matter of national pride to clean up the Japs themselves in revenge for Pearl Harbor," he continued. "But they will never lose sight of the fact that the greater the force brought to bear on the enemy the more rapidly he will fold up. And one must also bear in mind that the British feel they must redeem the loss of prestige suffered when Hong Kong and Singapore fell."

His own opinion—and he knew nothing official had been decided yet—was that while the greater share of Pacific amphibious warfare would fall to the United States, that country would welcome the hard-hitting British Navy and the light escort Canadian fleet to swell their power "overwhelmingly."

The Canadian Navy, closely identified with Royal Navy and outfitted similarly, would probably accompany the senior fleet to the Pacific when it transfers its full might there. This close identification was to facilitate equipment renewal rather than a matter of Empire collaboration, which, of course, all existed.

However, the source said the case might arise where light Canadian escorts would see duty with heavy American craft and for his own part he would welcome this co-operation.

He added he believed that when British naval forces move they would go through the Mediterranean to bases possibly at Ceylon and Australia with the object of first regaining Burma and the Malay Peninsula—former British possessions.

The Japanese submarine fleet was not the formidable force the German undersea raiders have been on the Atlantic supply lines, and there would be less need of Canada's doughty corvettes and frigates for escort duty. However, these vessels, with the powerful Canadian destroyers, would prove a healthy asset for "trouble shooting" on the flanks of the big Allied capital ships.

A less likely transfer for the British Navy to take, he thought, would be for any large part of it to steam through the Panama Canal and operate from Canadian Pacific and Hawaiian bases. This, first of all, seemed to be a United States sphere of responsibility, and besides that, enemy-occupied British territory was closer to Colombo and Darwin.

He also said he thought that Canadian aviation would find an important role, but he did not comment on the army. It was recalled, however, that both the RCAF and the Canadian Army have sent missions to the Southwest Pacific to study battle conditions there, presumably in preparation for active participation by their branches of the armed forces.

Doubts Margin Of Baby Benefit

OTTAWA, July 27. — (CP). — Thomas Reid, Liberal member for New Westminster constituency, said last night in the Commons that figures did not bear out the contention of Opposition members that Quebec would benefit much more than any other province from the payment of family allowances by the Federal Government.

Mr. Reid said the Dominion Bureau of Statistics had furnished him with figures showing that there were 3,409,911 children in Canada under the age of 16 years. He read into the record a table showing how many of the children were in each province and what percentage of the population of the provinces they represented.

Night Baseball Only Gets 34 More Games

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP). — Unlimited night baseball, legalized two weeks ago, appears to have flashed a caution sign instead of a green light to big league club owners.

Although the St. Louis Browns and Cardinals, desperate for a box office lure, pushed the plan and adopted schedules calling for almost continuous night action at home, only 34 games have been re-scheduled from day to night in both leagues.

The New York Giants, Brooklyn, Cincinnati and Pittsqburg, all equipped for after-dark activity, have decided to stand pat on their original night schedules, as have the Cleveland Indians in the American.

Presdient Bill Benswanger of the Pirates summed up the general attitude of those contented with a 14-game quota when he said, "I see no reason for a change in our schedule, although I have an open mind on the matter as it concerns other clubs in this topsy-turvy war year."

Some baseball executives still harbor hopes of returning to the seven-season limit for arc-light ball after the war but they will meet stern opposition from Presidents Sam Breadon of the Cards and Clark Griffith of Washington who are preaching the own ball gospel. Griffith's 1944 plans were unchanged by the major league vote as he already had been given permission to play all week-day games from May 10 to Sept. 17 after dark.

Hiller Pitches Sixth Shutout

By The Associated Press

The war may have produced a scarcity of good pitching, but International League batters who have faced Newark's Frank Hiller will emphatically claim the opposite.

Frank, who went directly from Lafayette College to the Bears last year, turned in his sixth shutout, 7-0, of the year last night against Rochester for his 12th win. He now shares the league lead in games won with Al Jarlett of Toronto.

Frank was backed up by Newark's seven-run blast in the second inning, the big blow of which was Mike Portner's lead-off home run.

Buffalo Bisons rolled to within two games of the league leading Baltimore Orioles as they swept a double-header from Jersey City, 4-1 and 2-1.

Jack Tising won the first game for his fourth victory, three of which have been recorded over the Little Giants. He was aided by Eddie Nobesky's 19th home run, the total being good enough to top the loop in that department.

A future British film is to be known as "The Tawny Pipit." That means that the pipit is yellowish-brown—but what's a pipit? . . . In "Since You Went Away" Robert Walker falls in love with Jennifer Jones. In real life they are divorced . . . Theatre men are not afraid of competition from television. In the end, they say, it will get down to who has the best show—and it will be a long time before television can match the movies for technical excellence . . . A moving picture without a man? They are preparing to make one to be called "For Women Only" . . . This is Hoot Gibson's 25th year as a star and his 34th as a screen player.

Leon Schlesinger, who made those Bugs Bunny cartoons, has retired. Many years ago he was manager of the now-vanished Strand Theatre in Toronto . . . All three wives of Louis Calhern have been writers. His second was Ilka Chase . . . One of those Screen Snapshots, called "The Kids Go to War," is devoted to the former juvenile stars now in the armed services. It will show scenes from films in which Mickey Rooney, Jackie Coogan, Jackie Cooper, Freddie Bartholomew and others starred as children . . . A film that should be seen by all is the March of Time's "Tolerance." In it race prejudice is dealt with in interesting and logical fashion. This subject has been largely avoided in films . . . The Bing Crosby—Barry Fitzgerald film, "Going My Way," was seen by 1,010,000 persons at the Paramount Theatre, New York, in ten weeks, breaking all records.

An actor was assailed by a lady with "Why aren't you in the service?" The actor, a rejectee, snapped "For the same reason you aren't in the Follies—physical disability" . . . Britain has such big plans involving film production and distribution on a world scale that many young Canadian writers and actors are talking of going there to try their luck when the war is over . . . The term "Talkies" as applied to films is no joke. Next season 17 per cent of films issued will run over 100 minutes. One film, the all-star "Since You Went Away," will run for almost two-and-a-half hours . . . One type of film that hasn't made much headway in Canada is the advertising reel. Many USA theatres run them . . . At least half of the population of Australia goes to the movies weekly . . . It cost $312,000 to costume "Woodrow Wilson." Alexander Knox, the star, required 54 changes.

"The question most often asked me," writes John Grierson, head of the National Film Board, "is why Canada does not make her own features pictures. An attache in the Soviet embassy put it to me the other day. He wondered why we allowed our feature artists like Deanna Durbin, Walter Pidgeon, Mary Pickford, Norma Shearer, Hume Cronyn, Alexander Knox, Ned Sparks—all of them Canadians originally — to work for the benefit of another country."

Canadian production on a large scale, he says in answering the question, is not practical but we could arrange to make our films in New York or Hollywood. Hollywood takes $9,000,000 out of the Canadian market annually, he point out, and gives good entertainment for it but there aren't enough Canadian themes. However, the movie people, Grierson admits, are realizing this.

TORONTO, July 27 — (CP). — One of the top-ranking softball hurlers in Eastern Canada Cam Ecclestone, turned the no-hit no-run trick again in Toronto the other night. He's been turning in no-hitters regularly in his 14-year career, but this time he decided to do it the hard way.

Pitching for Tip Tops against the Navy, Ecclestone coasted down to the final batter, a weak hitter, needing only one more out of his "dream" game. But then a hoarse clatter arose from the Navy bench, daring him to pass th weak batter and let Bill Balmer, burly Navy Slugger, have a crack at him.

Ecclestone stood the taunts as long as he could, then rolled four straight balls along the ground, sending the batter to first. Still seething inside, he pitched three balls to Balmer—and struck him out.

Off to the wars:

Western racing has been hard hit by the war, but is carrying on even more successfully than ever. A recent count showed more than 70 owners, trainers, jockeys, grooms and other attendants are in the services now.

International topics:

Officials of the International Baseball League are thinking seriously of organizing a league in Western Ontario after the war in the territory once occupied by the old Canadian and Michigan-Ontario loops. The league would be of Class D calibre, and would be a great training ground for young players developing in Canada in future years.

Incidentally:

Andy (Toronto Star) Lytle was cavorting about the Garden of the Gulf—otherwise Prince Edward Island—the past week or so, writing about life in that eastern summer playground. He took special interest in the harness races, and the colorful people who surround race doings on the Island.... An interesting experiment is afoot in Sudbury, Ont. Fans are voting to select all-star baseball and softball teams, and when chosen they'll meet in a half-and-half contest, playing part of the game with softballs and equipment and the rest with baseballs. It should be fun for the onlookers anyway.... Danny Holden, former Vancouver St. Regis hurler, has gone to Newport News, Va., for a trial spin in the Brooklyn Dodgers farm machine.... Sprague Cleghorn says the best defence man he ever played with or batted against was the late Eddie Gerard. Sprague plumps for Bill Cook as one of hockey's best all-time forwards.

Two Heats Scheduled At Canadian Henley

PORT DALHOUSIE, Ont., July 27 (CP)—The 62nd Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, which this year carries both the Canadian and North American sculling titles, opens today on the Old Welland canal here.

Contestants from several Ontario cities, including Toronto, Ottawa and Hamilton, and the United States make up the draw. Only two heats are down for today—both in the Junior 145-pound eights. On Friday 10 races are scheduled and there will be 15 on Saturday, including the champion singles in which Ken Thorburn of Toronto Argos and Harvey Hutcheon, a St. Catharines sculler now rowing for the Ottawa Rowing Club as a member of the R.C.A.F. at Ottawa, will be pitted with the Association Singles winner.

Toronto Argos will be defending their aggregate championship.

Cancellation of the United States National Regatta at Philadelphia because of war conditions left the way open for the Canadian Henley to carry both the Canadian and North American titles.

Durham County Girls' Clubs Hold Annual Achievement Day

MILLBROOK, July 27 (ENS) — The annual Durham County Girls' Achievement Day, held in the Town Hall, Millbrook on Tuesday, with morning and afternoon sessions, repeated its success of previous years, over thirty girls being in attendance representing five clubs, with their instructors. The leaders for the day included Miss Jean Scott, Home Economics Coach, Miss Florence Eadie, provincial head of the junior girls' work, and Miss Mary Humphreys, coach for the girls' work in the Lake Erie counties.

The project for the past year was "Being well dressed and well groomed", and the exhibits included the slips which the girls had made; their Record Books; a mended garment; and a one and one-half inch finished darn on woollen material. In the morning, judging was completed, and a dress parade, under the caption: "The Well-Groomed Girl", was held. Those taking part were: Mildred Snowden, Maple Grove; Mary Humphreys; June Lyal, Lindsay; and Mrs. M. W. Kinsman, Cavan. Following constructive criticism of the costume worn, posture, manner of walking, appearance, and other details, by Miss Eadie and Miss Scott, the girls them selves carried on the discussion.

At the noon hour, while the several groups had their lunch in picnic style ,the Millbrook girls' club with their leaders, Mrs. W. H. Armstrong, and Mrs. M. W. Ball, were hostesses to the visiting coaches, Misses Scott, Eadie, and Humphreys, for the informal meal; the local Women's Institute provided tea for all the guests of the day.

Three-Minute Talks

An opening feature of the afternoon session, after the darning on wollen material had been inspected, and helpfully criticized, was "Comments of Club Exhibits", the individual member chosen being allowed three minutes for her explanatory remarks, in connection with being well groomed and well dressed. Pearl Collicutt, of the Maple Grove "Pert, Pretty and Proper" Club, was first on the list using, as did all the other speakers, a colored original poster to illustrate her remarkr.

Some of the points were: correct posture, well-balanced diet, clothes neat, well brushed and pressed, and suited to the occasion for which they were worn; under clothing neat, well-fitted, with edge of slip showing below the dress; hair properly cared for every day; cleanliness, including a daily bath, using a mild soap, with all make-up washed off before retiring at night; well-ktpt hands with no bright nail polish, unless on some special occasion; shoes that fit properly, with low heels or school and walking, high heels being reserved for formal occasions; no loose buttons, nor pins used in lieu of a missing fastener; clothes hung up after wearing, and hosiery and lingerie washed after being worn but once; the daily use of a deodorant moderate make-up and regular exercise with plenty of fresh air.

These points include those covered by all the speakers, with varied detail, and also those made in the demonstrations which followed, "and which all add up to the conclusion that health and cleanliness are the key-note of beauty, and to the one thing, a well-groomed and well-dressed girl."

Besides the speaker mentioned others who took part were: Dorothy Stapleton, Newtonville, "The Blue Bird Club"; Margaret Dawson, Millbrook "Stitch and Wear Club", who included in her talk the contents of a well-fitted work basket; Betty Adams, Cavan, "Stitch and Wear Club," who had an original set-up, a tall stand with shelving either side, against red, white and blue background, containing the various articles listed for personal use; and Joyce Hills, Tyrone, "The Well-Groomed Club" her theme being "Would you look your best?"

Living Up To Motto

Miss Eadie made the comments, and declared that "the girls were a fine illustration of good grooming and of being well dressed; and that making themselves a part of the club work was an excellent training for taking an active part in other church and community organizations."

Outstanding in the afternoon's program were the clever skits and demonstrations put on by the clubs, with original dialogue. Tyrone club chose "The Groomsburg Court", with Beth Miller a judge, and the 'prisoners' showing a flagrant disregard of the rules of good posture, dressing, appearance, and manners. Those assisting were the group's leader, Mrs. A. E. Wood, and the Misses Bessie Hills, Helen Miller, Joyce Hills, Shirley Parks, and Edith Woodley. Joan Longman, a war guest from England for the past four years, was the spokesman for the Maple Grove Club, with "Making the Most of Our Clothes" as theme Lenore Cayllicutt meriting the prefix "Sloppy", while Betty Stevens, correctly illustrated the skit's title.

Quality Counts

Millbrook club chose "The Importance of a good Slip," with Jessie Dawson and Audrey Armstrong emphasizing comfort, laundering qualities, material, attractiveness, protection, and, by means of a lighted match applied to two kinds of rayon showing which should be chosen for the garment. The Cavan girls, Mildred Armitage, June Miller, Mary Richards and Myrtle Seymour, illustrated making the most of one's clothes, and how carelessness about personal appearance may spoil the effect of even good clothing, also that care in detail is necessary though the occasion be but going to a ball game.

Miss Scott gave the talk on the Record Books, using a number to illustrate her points, original ideas or the covers being stressed, with the name of the owner, the leader's and members' names on the inside page; accounts of each meeting written or pasted in; plain paper, colored illustrative material showing the year's project, so the book becomes the individual girl's record of achievement."

A highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of certificates and pins by Miss Scott, those completing two or more units being eligible; when they reach six projects completed they receive county honors and pins, and 12 brings them up to provincial standing. Mary Richards, of Cavan, had covered six units so received from Miss Humphreys, the certificate and county pin; of the Millbrook group, Melba Ball and Velma Thexton had each finished two, and received their certificates, as did also Betty Adams and Mildred Armitage of the Cavan Club. Mildred Snowden had four units to her credit, and her certificate was ready.

The project chosen for 1945 was: "Dressing up home grown vegetables," and the training school for leaders will be sometime in October, one at Bowmanville and the other at Millbrook. It was decided that all would eat together at the next Achievement Day, around a table, as being more sociable, and before closing Miss Scott urged the girls to take up the garden project next season, the payment of $1 entitling each girl to a packet of 20 kinds of vegetable seeds, and 10 flowers. Applications must be in for the seeds in March so the head office will know how many packages are wanted.

New York Yankees Down Cleveland Indians 6 to 3

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sport Writer

If Joe McCarthy ever gets those New York Yankees up for a fourth straight American League pennant, Atley (Swampy) Donald's black magic over Cleveland and St. Louis will come in for a lion's share of the credit. Donald beat the Indians 12 of 13 starts since hitting the big show and drubbed the Brownies 11 of 14 tries.

Yesterday, with the help of homers by Snuffy Stirnweiss and Oscar Grimes, Donald stopped Cleveland for the third straight times by a 6-3 score before 25,483 pennant-minded Tribe followers. Jim Bagby suffered his first loss.

Gates from yesterday's games upped the major league war fund contribution for 1944 to $445,093.71. With a Cincinnati at Boston double-header on Sept. 24 still to be played, all major clubs will have contributed one home date.

Jack Kramer finally hit the 10-win mark as the Brownies shaded Philadelphia 4-2 although outhit 11 to 6. Catcher Red Hayworth's three-run homer in the fourth spelled Luke Hamlin's doom.

Boston and Detroit were halted by rain in the eighth for a 1-1 tie between Hal Newhouser and Pinky Woods and Chicago staged a two-run spurt in the last of the ninth to top Washington, 4-3.

Pittsburgh took over second place in the National by trimming New York Giants 6-5 behind Fritz Ostermueller as Cincinnati split with Boston.

Bro[illegible] took over sole occupancy of th[illegible] by losing to Chicago's Bill Fleming 4-1 as Boston beat Bucky Walters 9-2 in the first game. Cincinnati grabbed the nightcap from the Braves 8-5 for Harry Gumbert's eighth triumph.

Danny Lithwiler was the hero of St. Louis' 8-6 nod over the Phils by clouting a three-run homer in the eighth and scoring the winning run in the 10th.

What Is Status Of McNaughton?

OTTAWA, July 27.—(CP).—The future of Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian Army Overseas, in relation to his permanent position as president of the National Research Council was discussed briefly in the Commons during consideration of Research Council estimates.

Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative House Leader, asked about the status of the position and sai dihe public ought to be advised as soon as possible about the Government's intentions.

(Gen. McNaughton has been on leave from the council since war started.)

"I think most people in Canada will want to see a great warrior like Gen. McNaughton occupy an important position, and one for which he is well qualified," said Mr. Graydon.

Trade Minister McKinnon said the matter had not been considered or discusssed.

"I am not suggesting," he added, "and I am sure the Leader of the Opposition does not want to create the impression, that Gen. McNaughton wants to come back and the Government does not want to have him."

Socialized Schools Planned By C.C.F.

REGINA, July 27—(CP)—Wilfred Gardiner, son of Agriculture Minister Gardiner, yesterday said the C.C.F. party is planning a system of socialized schools across Canada and produced a copy of the Melville Advance, Saskatchewan weekly, which he claimed substantiated his statement.

The issue of the Melville Advance, which he brought to the convention floor was dated July 6, and carried the headline: "C.C.F. conference at Balcarres favors a socialist school for Melville."

The last paragraph of the report on the conference said:

"One proposal which was on the agenda for discussion had a vital bearing on the future spread of socialist culture in Canada. This innovation proposes to establish commodious colleges at central points for the teaching of socialist principles with many feeder schools in outlying districts. A resolution was passed saying Melville was an ideal centre for one of these schools."

Old School Tie Gone?

LONDON, July 27 — (AP) — A Government-appointed committee of leading educationalists yesterday published a plan to transform the "old school tie," traditional symbol of the British upper classes into a democratic cravat by opening the country's famed public school system to everyone—regardless of wealth or social rank. The plan would be voluntary, but its general acceptance seems likely.

$10 A DAY.

NO CASUALTIES.

Up to noon to-day the city had been free of reported casualties among its servicemen on fighting fronts for a period of 48 hours. In recent days, however, Cobourg has suffered severely, several artillerymen from there have been in the thickest of the fighting, and three or four Cobourg men a day have been casualties in the grim actions which their unit has fought.

BLOOD DONORS FEWER.

Summer vacations have caused a sharp reduction in the number of blood donors at the Clinic since the re-opening a week ago; and this Wednesday only 45 persons came to give their contributions, the lowest figure this year. Employees of the C.G.E. and Genelco, Nashua Paper Co., and Quaker Oats attended, as well as out-of-town donors from Lakefield, Lily Lake, and Havelock. Joseph Yelland and Uzal Waterman were awarded buttons for 10th donations; a ninth donation was made by George Hewitt; and an 8th donation by Miss Dorothy Turner.

OFF THE BEAM

A driver for Silverwood's reports that as he was on his rounds early this morning he was hailed by one of the occupants of a car with an American license "What place is this" asked the tourist from across the line, and on being told that he was in Peterborough the visitor remarked "How did we get here? I thought this was Hamilton."

ICE ENTERPRISE

Six hundred families and stores are being supplied with ice from the stock that was piled up last winter in the big storage building acquired by the city. Hiawatha Group Aids Victims Of Robot Bombs

The practice of any Christian virtue as taught in the average Sunday School class, has a far more vitalizing effect on the young minds being moulded in this manner for the better things of life, when they are alro led to do things in an actual practical way in support of such, for teachings accompanied by deeds far surpass anything that is taught by precept only.

In taking an active part in assisting a stricken people thousands of miles away, young children cannot fail to grasp the real significance of just how blessed it is to help other people who are in distress, and when this comes at the sacrifice of their pennies which to such young folk are comparative to more than dollars for their elders, the true spirit of sacrific is really evident, for pennies mean candies or other such attractive things to them.

By no stretch of the imagination could one imagine that the pupils of the Junior Class at Hiawatha Sunday School would belong to well to do parents, who could afford to give their offspring a lot of pocket money, or extra collection for any one particular object, and yet these youngsters have displayed on a number of occasions, the true spirit of their teachings by gifts to alleviate the district fund which operates for that purpose.

Sharing in this, undoubtedly credit must go to their teacher Mrs. Dan Musgrave, for all good works done in a co-operative way must of necessity have a leader, particularly when the group concerned are of such tender years as these young folk are.

To-day another gift of $10.00 from this class is listed in the receipts for the fund, and comes at a time when much extra need is apparent through the latest attacks made on London and the south-east portion of Britain by the robot flying bobs, an almost daily or nightly occurrance for the past six or more weeks, so their gift is all the more welcome indeed.

Penny Boxes Total $2,273.75

An old saying taught the writer in days now long past, that if one took care of the pennies, the pounds (for which dollars also could be substituted) would take care of themselves, was never more aptly demonstrated than through the fund's experience with a relatively few penny boxes placed in about 35 different business places in the city.

Another of these splendid assists to the fund is listed today, when a collection was made from the box located at Buehler's Meat Shop on George street where it reposes under the eye of Miss Royea the cashier, who was quite hopeful of its containing a fair sized amount to help the worthy cause it seeks to assist. The $3.70 it contained had exactly 200 pennies in it, and now brings the total from this one source up to the splendid sum of $2,273.75, which is over $30.00 more than the amount needed to complete one full gift of £500. that the fund usually cables over.

Price Of Wood Is Unchanged

Local prices of fuel wood are unchanged from the schedule in effect last winter as shown in a statement received by City Clerk Outram from the regional fuel wood division of Wartime Prices and Trade Board through its representative in Peterborough, G. A. MacKey.

First grade hardwood is $13 a cord in four-foot lengths; $14.50 for 24-inch lengths; $15.50 for 16-inch lengths and $16.50 for 12-inch lengths. Most of the wood sold through the fuel trade is cut in 12-inch lengths.

The half-cord of first grade maple in 12-inch lengths is $8.50; and the quarter cord lot is $4.50.

No. 1 hardwood consists of maple, beech, yellow birch, red and white oak, all bodywood.

Mixed hardwood, comprising maple, beech, yellow birch, oak, soft maple, elm, white birch (not more than 15 per cent limbwood) is $12 for a cord of four-foot; and $15 a cord in 12-inch lengths; the half cord of 12-inch is $7.75.

Second grade hardwood—white birch, soft maple, elm, ash, apple (not more than 15 per cent limbwood) is $11 a cord uncut; and $14 in 12-inch lengths. The half cord in 12-inch lengths is $7.25.

Hardwood slabs are $11 a cord uncut and $14 in 12-inch lengths; and $6.75 the half-cord in foot lengths.

Trade information today affirmed that the prices are the same as last year.

Apparently there is a new classification as follows: hardwood limbs or mixed wood consisting of pine, spruce, cedar, hemlock, tamarac, basswood, and not more than 15 per cent limbwood in the latter category; $10 a cord uncut; and $13 a cord cut in foot lengths.

C.S.M. Fred Linsey Dies In Battle Zone

A growing list of casualties reported on July 18 would indicate some heavy fighting at that time, and the S.D. and G. Highlanders were apparently in the front lines of the action.

Mrs. Linsey works at Genelco.

Claim Property Too Valuable For City Market

Continued use of the market and its adjoining hall for the buying and selling of farm produce one day in the week impressed members of the council Tuesday night as an unprofitable and unwise investment that should be terminated as soon as possible in the period of transition from war to peace.

Opinion on this rediscovery of real estate values actually in the possession of the citizens seemed ready to tear down the market hall block, with its ground floor stores; clear out the public rest rooms; and, when the present city hall is vacated, demolish the old structure, including police court and offices of the Utilities Commission, and sell the land as sites for stores, theatre, hotel or whatever other purposes might develop.

To retain that block as a one-day-a-week market and as a parking space the rest of the time, apart from the present needs of municipal offices, seemed to some of the aldermen as such an utter waste of central land value that every citizen would probably asesnt to a new deal for Peterborough's central business block.

This is a summary of discussion incidental to the council's consideration of locations for the new city hall to be built with the funds provided by the will of the late W. G. Morrow. Obviously, early action is out of the question until the war is over, and there is no immediate urgency about the suggestions, but the present council would probably be prepared to abandon the market to some other section of the city, sell the land and possibly use the revenue in payment of the property that may have to be bought as the site of the new city hall.

Business Has Declined

The manifest decline in the market during these war years, the need of better accommodation, if any is to be provided, with all of it on the ground floor, are secondary considerations. The primary thought Tuesday night that the central block of the city deserves a better standing in down town realty than as parking lot of cars and trucks and one-day-in-the-week market.

The council is also ready to admit without any dispute that the city buildings on George street and at the Simcoe-Water corner are old and antique, survivals of an age that has departed, far behind the modern procession and likely to be further outdistanced after the war.

Even the accommodation for the stores on the east side of George street, under the market hall, are considered unsuitable for present day merchandizing, and it was felt that every citizen realizes that fact.

Some members of the council wish to provide new market accommodation that would attract primary producers of Peterborough and neighboring counties, but they consider that a separate undertaking not to be involved in plans for a new city hall.

Actually the market block has not been cancelled as a prospective site for a city hall, but it lacked convincingly attractive features as compared with the Charlotte-Aylmer possibilities.

It was stated the other night that a theatre company would grab at a chance to get such a cenral location as the market block, and the nearer to George-Charlotte the better. Other potentials were mentioned for the future of the focal block of the city in a day when the city's old buildings have been torn down and the land is made available for larger commercial purposes.

Asphodel Man Is Fined $100

Described in court as a returned soldier with a small pension and unable to work, Albert Scriver, Asphodel Township, was fined $100 and $4.50 costs by Magistrate E. A. Gee this morning after a plea of guilty had been entered in his behalf by his wfie, on a charge of having possession of liquor not acquired on his individual permit.

Mrs. Scriver said that her husband was ill and was unable to appear.

Provincial Constable Archie Grayling, of Havelock, stated that he had searched Scriver's residence at the outskirts of Hastings and had found a 26-ounce bottle of rye whiskey not covered by the accused's permit.

"Is there any suspicion of bootlegging?" asked Magistrate Gee.

"Yes, there have been some complaints to that effect," replied the officer.

Constable Grayling said that Scriver was a returned man who was not able to work. He drew a small pension, the officer stated.

Mrs. Scriver, who said there were seven children in the family, told the court that her husband had a war pension of $40 a month.

"Why can't he get work guiding?" asked the magistrate, and the woman replied that her husband could hardly work and was too big to do guiding. "He weighs 320 pounds," she said.

"Well, he will have to do something different to bootlegging," said Magistrate Gee in imposing the $100 fine.

Baseball Fight Ends Up In Court

They apparently take their baseball seriously in Douro, judging by a case which was heard at Wednesday afternoon's session of police court when Wesley Dunford was charged with assaulting Hilliard Garrett.

The evidence disclosed the fact that there was a ball game in progress the other day and Garrett, who was at bat hit what he thought was a home run. This was disputed by Dunford, who was catching for the other team, and in the argument that followed, according to the evidence, Garrett was hit a number of times.

Magistrate Gee registered a conviction against Dunford and fined him $1 and $14.50 costs.

Goebbels Tells Nazis Bomb Made In England

NEW YORK, July 27.—(AP). —Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels said in a radio address last night that the bomb used in the assassination attempt against Hitler last week was of English make and so powerful that some of Hitler's associates were blown through a window.

While not disclosing the location of the attempt on Hitler's life, Goebbels indicated it was outside Berlin by asserting that Count Claus von Stauffenber, whom he named as the perpetrator, had flown to the capital after the attack with a false report that Hitler was dead.

Goebbels said that explosive was hidden in a brief case which had been placed at Hitler's feet and that the Nazi leader escaped death or serious injury only by a miracle.

This is Goebbels' story of the actual assassination attempt:

"The perpetrator had been sent by one of the arrested generals to the daily discussion of the situation for a pseudo-consultation.

"He brought the explosive in a brief case to the room where the daily situation was being discussed and under the pretext of wanting to set it down had pushed it directly in front of the feet of the Feuhrer at an unguarded moment.

"Participants in the discussion were thrown through the window by the force of the blast, and their uniforms were torn to shreds.

"In the entire room there was within the area affected by the enormous wave of detonation caused by the explosive only one single spot which remained comparatively untouched by it. That was the spot on which the Fuehrer was sitting at the map table.

"The map table itself was thrown through the room by the explosion, but the Fuehrer himself remained entirely unhurt with the exception of slight bruises, burns and scratches on his forehead."

Goebbels said that if the escape of Hitler was not a miracle, "then there just are no miracles at all."

State Supervision Of Capitalism Is Advocated By Bracken

OTTAWA, July 26 — (CP). — John Bracken, National Progressive Conservative Leader, said last night in a radio address that the post-war policy of his party was based on a reformed capitalism which placed "production first and profits last."

In the first address made by a member of his party under the new CBC plan of free time to political parties, Mr. Bracken attacked the Governments Army manpower policy and denied reports that efforts had been made to oust him from the party leadership.

Dealing with manpower, he referred to an Army advertisement for recruits with the caption "Have I the guts." This and other evidence indicated the need for manpower in the Army, in industry, and on farms.

"Yet there is an army of 70,000 men being kept here in uniform at the taxpayers expense, not because young Canadians haven't got what the Government's advertisement indicated, but because the Government itself hasn't shown much of that particular commodity in the handling of its manpower in this war," said Mr. Bracken.

On party leadership, he said there had been no attempts to oust him and he knew of no aspirants for the office. Neither had there been any attempt at domination by a business group.

The Government's manpower policy was harmful to unity with the Government failing to face up to the principle of equal responsibilities as well as equal rights.

"There never can be unity while the casualty lists light up the inequality of sacrifice resulting from the cowardly policies of the Government," he said.

If there was failure to prepare, peace could be more terrible than war and there had been no realistic preparation.

"Of course there have been Government promises—some of them foolish, many of them reckless, many which will never be carried out," he said. "Some are legislative measures which have all the earmarks of King government political expediency."

Offers No Security.

In fear of the future increasing numbers turned from the King Government. The C.C.F. offered Socialism which offered no security but rather regimentation and chaos. The fundamental issue the Canadian people faced was not Socialism or Capitalism but the capitalism of scarcity or the capitalism of abundance.

The reformed capitalism the Progressive Conservative party supported did not seek to do away with profits but rather to make them incidental to maximum production. Legitimate business and industry would welcome reformed capitalism as its only hope.

"The Progressive Conservative party offers the people of Canada a reformed, efficient, modern, human capitalist system, which will give them everything that is humanly possible to obtain—everything that providence meant that we should have and more than any other type of economy can give," said Mr. Bracken.

The Progressive Conservative party was a new party which would give both big and little business a square deal and no more. It was a party which had no place for reactionaries.

C.C.F. Is Fighting Soul-Mates Of Hitlerism

MONTREAL, July 27—(CP)—While young Canadians fight Hitlerism overseas, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation is fighting the soul-mates of Hitler in this country." National Leader M. J. Coldwell of the C.C.F. said here Wednesday night in two political addresses in East and West Montreal.

"What we do for destruction in wartime, we must do for construction in peace," Mr. Coldwell said. "We will never be able to do that while the country is under the control of a few trusts and cartels. We must make up our minds that those things which are our common heritage must belong to the people."

Mr. Coldwell was speaking in support of 10 C.C.F. candidates on the Island of Montreal in the Aug. 8 Quebec general election. He said other parties in the campaign, the Liberals, Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire, "are led either by millionaires or by finance."

Basic Set of Problems

"Our young men overseas know what they are fighting for as well as what they are fighting against," he said. "Each Province may have certain individual problems, but there is one basic set of problems from the Atlantic to the Pacific—problems of food and of clothing and of shelter. Our problems are not problems of race or language."

The C.C.F., he said, was "the fastest growing party in Canada" and he was "proud" that it was the only party in the Dominion "running candidates in all nine Provinces under our full name." In three Provincial elections since 1941, Mr. Coldwell said, the Liberals had taken 40 seats, the Conservatives 48 and the C.C.F. 81.

"It is our great hope that through the Dominion Parliament and the Legislatures, we may find a unity which will solve our Canadian problems," he said. "We want the people of Quebec Province to be united with the other people of Canada in delivering our country from the control of a few trusts, combines and monopolies. We know that we cannot win Canada—not for the C.C.F., but for the people — unless the people of Quebec are with us. We must have unity among the common people, regardless of race or religion.

Respect One Another

"We must recognize each other's qualities. There is no reason in the world why, in this great country, we should not respect one another whether we speak English or French, whether we worship at the Holy Mass or in an Anglican Church, as I was brought up to do.

"After the war, in the readjustment period, it won't matter what language we speak. We'll all need food and shelter. The old parties say we must return to what is miscalled 'private enterprise.' We believe in co-operation."

For years, said Mr. Coldwell, Quebec has been regarded as "a sort of happy hunting ground for the trusts, combines and cartels."

"Quebec farmers got the lowest prices," he said, "and for every dollar an Ontario worker received, the Quebec worker received 83 cents. Not so long ago advertisements used to appears in the newspapers advising industries to locate in Quebec because this Province had the greatest reservoir in Canada of low-wage labor."

Quebec maternity deaths, Mr. Coldwell said, were the highest in the Dominion and in one Quebec town, Rimouski, the death rate from tuberculosis was almost 20 times as great as the Ontario rate of 30 deaths per 100,000 population.

Aluminum Company

Mr. Coldwell said the Aluminum Company of Canada, "which I had the good fortune to expose last year," was permitted to gain through tax rebates and "by being paid five-and-a-half cents a pound more than their product was worth," the sum of $174,000,000 in Quebec on war work. He said the Province had received "the paltry sum of $40,000" for a waterfull which was being used to run "the greatest power plant in the world."

"That is the kind of thing we want to stop—the giving away of our waterfalls, our minerals, our forest resources," he said. Mr. Coldwell said charges the C.C.F. wanted to deprive people of their homes and farms were untrue "because the C.C.F. is nothing more nor less than the people from whom the banks and the mortgage companies try to take away farms and homes."

Family Allowance Legislation Is Meeting With Strong Support

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA, July 27. — (CP). — More than a dozen speakers from various political groups promised in the Commons yesterday to support the Government's family allowances legislation, although some of them said they did not agree fully with the plan as drafted.

Members of the Social Credit and Bloc Populaire parties threw their support behind the legislation, joining the C.C.F. members who said Tuesday they would back the plan. Support also came rom Mrs. Dorise Nielsen (Unity-North Battleford) and Fred Rose (Lab-Prog.-Montreal Cartier.) This left only the Progressive Conservative party and possibly a few Independents, who have not yet spoken, opposed to the bill.

Resumed By G. K. Fraser.

Further reasons for the Conservative party's opposition to the bill were expected to be heard at today's afternoon session when the debate on second reading to the bill will be resumed by G. K. Fraser (PC-Peterborough West).

Round Issue

Several of the speakers expressed belief that the Conservative party was attempting to sow discord in the country by raising racial issues while participating in the debate.

Mr. Claxton said that differences between what various parts of Canada will receive under the allowances plan are much less than often suggested. Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick and Quebec might receive more per family than other parts of the country because of larger families, but other provinces would receive more per child because they would not be subject to the deductions provided in allowances for children in large families.

Mr. Martin said that although the Conservative party now opposed the measure it was exactly what was recommended by the present national chairman of that party, Charles P. McTague, when he was chairman of the National War Labor Board.

Suggestion that the allowances be paid to mothers instead of fathers was advanced by Mr. Knowles. Prime Minister King interjected that the parents could designate the person to whom payments should be made.

Surprised at Labor

Mr. Rose said he was surprised that some labor leaders had criticized the allowances scheme. Such labor leaders had not given much thought to the question of allowances, or they would change their minds.

Mr. Cleaver said the monthly cost of allowances in Quebec would be only slightly higher than it would be in Ontario. The monthly cost in Quebec would total approximately $6,709,000, and the cost in Ontario would be about $6,000,000.

Mr. Gillis said it was a mistake to say that organized labor was opposed to the allowances. All labor leaders had not had the same opportunity as members of parliament to study the proposals. He was satisfied the bill could be taken to a meeting of any labor body in Canada and would obtain approval.

Interest On Loan Stays At 7 Per Cent

OTTAWA, July 27 — (CP). — The Commons Banking Committee acting on the recommendation of Finance Minister Ilsley, on Wednesday dropped a section of the Bank Bill providing a plan for chartered banks to make small unsecured loans payable on an instalment basis.

Holding its 44th meeting the committee also defeated an amendment proposed by E. E. Perley (PC-Qu-Appelle) for a further reduction in the maximum interest and discount rate which may be charged by banks. The maximum rate now is 7 per cent and is reduced by the Bill before the committee to 6. Mr. Perley sought a reduction to 5 per cent. On a vote the amendment was lost 14 to 5.

Mr. Ilsley in a statement made at the opening of the meeting said he favored withdrawal of the small loan section and he had the assurance of the chartered banks that they would extend their small loan business under the present provisions of the Bank Act.

Hull Charges Argentina Aids Germany

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON, July 27.—(AP).—The United States last night denounced Argentina for "deserting the Allied cause," and decisively rejected all suggestions that it negotiate with President Edelmiro Farrell's regime on re-opening diplomatic relations. Instead, it recommended to all United and Associated Nations the diplomatic isolation of Argentina.

The denunciation was issued by the State Department after Secretary of State Hull had consulted for several weeks with other American Governments. Copies were sent to all the American Governments except Argentina.

"Virtual Unanimity"

A department official said there was "virtual unanimity" among those Governments in supporting the principles laid down by Hull for continuing non-recognition of Argentina on the ground of desertion. One or two, it was said, have not given endorsement yet, but are expected to do so.

The extent of support for continued non-recognition of the revolutionary Farrell regime is regarded by Hull as of the utmost importance, since Farrell and his officials have hoped that if they failed to get United States recognition they would be able to persuade other nations, particularly those in South America, to break away from the policy.

The American declaration asserted that Argentina had taken "two steps which have resulted in tremendous injury to the Allied cause":

Strong Charges Made

"1. It has deliberately violated the pledge taken (at Havana in July, 1940) jointly with its sister republics to co-operate in support of the war against the Axis powers, and in thus deserting the Allied cause has struck a powerful blow at the whole system of hemispheric co-operation;

"2. It has openly and notoriously been giving affirmative assistance to the declared enemies of the United Nations."

Recently, it was disclosed, the Argentine regime sent through Chilean channels two notes, dated June 30 and July 10, arguing for recognition and promising to collaborate with the United Nations.

Yet "at the very time" this was going on, the United States declaration asserted, reports were coming in to Washington that Farrell was following "a contrary policy."

"The department is in possession of irrefutable evidence," the statement said, "that as late as the middle of June of this year the Argentine authorities required firms friendly to the United Nations to receive bids as subcontractors from Nazi firms on contracts calling for materials imported from the United Nations.

"It is definitely established that

Canadian Corps Served Year In Italy

By DOUG HOW
Canadian Press War Correspondent

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 27—(CP)—The first year was over. They had known Sicily and Southern Italy and the valleys of the Moro and Liri and Chiana and now here the year had ended, in the forbidding hill country southwest of Arezzo where the Germans were fighting for time to prepare their Gothic line.

It had been a year of events for the Ontario armored regiment, climaxed here in the picturesque valley of the Chiana and along the western shores of Lake Trasimeno. For three weeks they had slugged ahead, through the Trasimeno line, up the valley and into the hills. The year had ended in battle.

On June 20 the German was in flight. On June 21 Majs. Doug McIndoe, of Vernon, B.C., and E. K. Kennedy, of Southport, P.E.I., ordered their squadrons forward and found themselves fighting a heavy action against an enemy whose flight had ended in a line that ran from Lake Trasimeno to Lake Chiusi.

Stubborn Fighting

Their squadrons fought for hours that day in San Fatucchio and Pucciarelli and they were occupied for two more days in the countryside around them. It was a battle of shooting up houses, chasing snipers from wheat fields, destroying machine-gun nests and one particular stronghold in a walled cemetery outside San Fatucchio. Against them was a German brigade. With them were good Irish infantrymen.

Many prisoners were taken and more than 100 German dead were counted in and around San Fatucchio. For two days the squadrons sat outside the villages and mopped up the areas.

On June 24 squadrons under Maj. William Harrod, Toronto, and Kennedy moved on Pescia and Ranciano and pitched into the regiment's most successful day. Up against Panther and Tiger tanks, they destroyed or crippled for destruction a number estimated as high as eight, at least two anti-tank guns, five flak guns, 15 machine-guns and worked with the infantry in the capture of a considerable number of prisoners. Their losses were two tanks.

By July 1 the pursuit through the Chiana valley had begun. It was a pursuit of thorny rearguards which more than once succeeded in holding up squadron for hours, took their toll of the attackers and slipped away in the night.

Germans Disappear

Around the village of Barelto Maj. McIndoe's squadron fought a harsh action and suffered losses in both personnel and armor. Heavy shelling and infantry opposition continued all day and into the night. In the morning the German had disappeared. That was a German rearguard.

The advance went on, through villages like Badicorte, Dorna, Badia Al Pino and Tegoleto, then through Tuori and into the hills across from Civatella. There the tanks could do little. In the loosest sense of the term it wasn't tank country. They tried to advance at night. They gave covering fire to the British infantry trying for just one more slope. But for days there was no new advances. The first year was over.
